WHY

WORKING CLASSES ATTENTION
We are now prepared to furnish all classes with employment at home, the whole time, or for spare moments. Business new, light and profitable. Persons of either sex easily earn from 50 cents to $5.00 per evening, and a proportional sum by devoting all their time to the business. Boys and girls earn nearly as much as men. Those who see this may send their address, and test the business, we make this offer. To each one who is not well satisfied we will send one dollar to pay for the trouble of writing. Full particulars and outfit free. Address at once GEORGE STINSON & Co. Portland, Maine.

IDDESLEIGH WILL RESIGN.

THE CHANGES IN THE CABINET OTHERWISE UNIMPORTANT.

No Grounds for the Changes of Administration in the War and Navy Departments—Mr. Goschen will Control the Appointments.

LONDON, Jan. 4.—Mr. Goschen, although he will not be the Conservative leader in the House of Commons, obtains control of the appointments. Sir R. A. Cross and Lord Iddesleigh have offered to resign in order to make room for Goschen's nominees. The result will be a general reconstruction of the Cabinet. Mr. Goschen has asked Lord Northbrook to become Sir R. Cross' successor. He also wants Mr. Ritchie in the Cabinet, as he desires the latter's support in the work of reshaping the Local Government Bill. Sir Michael Hicks-Beach and Lord Ashbourne left Dublin for London last night. They are coming to attend a Cabinet Council which is to be held to-morrow. Sir Michael still adheres to his determination to remain in his present office. In official circles it is accepted as settled that in the reconstructed Cabinet Mr. Smith will be First Lord of the Treasury and leader in the House of Commons and Lord Salisbury Premier and Foreign Minister. Among Conservatives no expressions of regret are heard over the prospective retirement of Sir R. Cross and Lord Iddesleigh. Before accepting office Mr. Goschen closely scrutinized the accounts and estimates of the War and Navy Departments in order to ascertain whether or not there were any grounds for charges of maladministration, and found that Lord Randolph had been misled by wrong data, which it is supposed were supplied through interested treasury officials.

Parliament Further Prorogued.

LONDON, Jan. 4.—The proroguing of Parliament until January 27 was gazetted to-day.

Gladstone on Chamberlain's Speech.

LONDON, Jan. 4.—Gladstone, in a letter that has been made public, refers to the speech recently made at Birmingham by Mr. Chamberlain as an utterance that ought to lead to the securing of a modus vivendi between the present opposing sections of the Liberal party. As for himself, Mr. Gladstone says he would be glad in any means to bring about a free discussion of the differences dividing the Liberal party in order to obtain such common action as might be consistent with the respective principles of the sections.

The Earl of Northbrook Joins the Cabinet.

LONDON, Jan. 4.—The Cabinet Council has been postponed until Saturday. Lord Salisbury finds that progress in the reconstruction of the Cabinet is impeded by party jealousies over Mr. Goschen's appointment. The whole influence of the Carlton Club is exerted to persuade Lord Iddesleigh and Viscount Cross to remain in office. Lord Iddesleigh pleads that he is in ill health and unable to sustain the fatigues of the foreign office and he will persist in his determination to retire. Viscount Cross is uncertain as to what he shall do. The only positive result announced to-day has been the Earl of Northbrook's consent to join Mr. Goschen in the Conservative Cabinet. It has not yet been decided what portfolio will be given to him. The Conservative opposition is mainly directed against Lord Northbrook, partly because he is suspected of sympathizing with Mr. Gladstone and partly because he has hitherto been hostile to Lord Salisbury's foreign and Indian policy. If Mr. Goschen insists upon nominating two Cabinet colleagues, the Conservatives prefer the Marquis of Lansdowne and the Earl of Morley.

The Changes Will be Few.

LONDON, Jan. 4.—It is considered improbable that a change will be made in the Foreign Office. Lord Iddesleigh denies that he has expressed a wish to retire, and Lord Morley denies that he has been offered the Foreign portfolio. The necessary changes in the Cabinet are few in number and it is thought will not be of a startling character.

THE EXPRESS ROBBERS SENTENCED.

Wittrock and Haight get Seven Years and Weaver Five Years.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Jan. 4.—At 3 o'clock the Grand Jury handed in their indictments against the accused train robbers. That against Wittrock was for robbery in the first degree, that against Haight for being an accessory before the fact, and that against Weaver for being accessory after the fact. The prisoners were immediately arraigned before Judge Norreville. They all pleaded guilty and were at once sentenced—Wittrock and Haight to seven years and Weaver to five years, in the penitentiary.

A Message From the Queen.

OTTAWA, Jan. 4.—Yesterday morning Mayor McDougall of this city sent the following cablegram to Her Majesty: "In the name of all the people of Ottawa I congratulate Your Most Gracious Majesty on the jubilee of your glorious reign. (Signed) FRANCIS McDOUGALL, Mayor."

Shortly after His Worship received the following reply: "Osborne, Jan. 3, 1887.—To the Mayor of Ottawa: The Queen is very grateful for your kind and loyal congratulations on behalf of the people of Ottawa. PONSONBY."

Reece's Living on the Shirtwatching Fund.

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—The Council of the Fenian Brotherhood has promulgated another circular arraigning O'Donovan Rossa for fresh acts of swindlery. It claims that Rossa is living off money subscribed by his poor Shirtwaisting Fund and that the cash of his broken up Skirt and Embroidery Association has disappeared, and the books appeared to have been destroyed.

A TERRIBLE OCCURRENCE.

A COLLISION ON THE BALTIMORE AND OHIO RAILWAY.

A Passenger Train Runs Into a Freight, the Wreckage Takes Fire and Twenty-two Persons Are Burned to a Cinder—Awful Scenes in the Burning Cars.

TIFFIN, Ohio, Jan. 4.—At 3 o'clock this morning the west-bound fast train, known as the Erie Express, on the Baltimore and Ohio Railway, collided with a freight train west of Republic, and nine miles from this city. The express does not stop at Republic, and it is supposed was running at a speed of not less than sixty miles an hour. The freight eastward bound, had expected to make a siding at Republic and was probably running twenty miles per hour. The collision caused a telescope as close out and disastrous as has ever been witnessed in this section of the country. The engines were run into each other as one stove pipe fits into its mate, and all that could be seen was one shapeless mass of brass, iron and steel. As an early hour there were hundreds of people coming to the scene of the disaster, ready and anxious to do what they could for any of the unfortunate sufferers who might need help, but it appears that just as soon as the B. and O. agents could get to the place where the wreck occurred, for some reason they saw fit to hastily carry out of the county the wounded, dying and dead. Your correspondent was only permitted to see four persons that had escaped the awful holocaust in which is believed there were at least twenty-two bodies burned into a disheartening mass of flesh and bones, beyond all possible recognition. From the report of a fortnight would appear that a number of the unfortunates were not only swallowed up in the awful fiery furnace, but that their bodies were so perfectly incinerated that their ashes could not be gathered from the debris. The night was sickening and most forbidding to witness. The collision occurred one mile from town and half a mile from any dwelling.

It is related of one Bradley, a prominent Knight of Labor from Washington, D.C., that he, while the flames were bursting from the car windows, which had been broken in by the collision, by some means got out his hand and threw his watch and pocket book to those whom he could see outside. He was pinned on the inside and was being roasted alive, but those who saw him were unable to render assistance. They could hear the frenzied man as he madly endeavored to burst the barriers that held him. The charred remains of the express messenger, consisting of the two thigh bones, were found in the debris of the car. The engineer and fireman of the freight reversed their engine and jumped. The engineer of the express reversed his engine and sprang to the left. The fireman endeavored to get out to the right, but being overcome with fright, fell close to his engine and was badly burned, but not beyond recognition. His body is at Republic awaiting the arrival of his relatives.

THE QUEEN'S FAILING HEALTH.

Apprehensions that Her Majesty May Not Survive the Jubilee Year.

LONDON, Jan. 4.—The Prince of Wales is shortly going to leave for the South of France. He is expected to arrive at Cannes about Jan. 25, and may go on to Malta to visit his brother, the Duke of Edinburgh. An effort is being made to have the Prince go out to Australia to open the Centennial Exposition the next summer. But there is a good deal of opposition to the project on the ground that it is too far from home. The Queen herself thinks he should not go. The Queen is breaking very rapidly, and she is conscious that her life cannot be spared many years longer. The only shadow over the jubilee year is the general apprehension among the people of England that the Queen may not live till the year is completed. The appearance of old age is most clearly marked, even in her jubilee portrait, which has just been completed and placed in the gallery leading to her private apartments at Windsor. The people of that little borough are very busy getting ready for the festivities which are expected to begin very soon. The Queen and her household have gone to Osborne, and the workmen were busy everywhere putting things in order for the visitors who are expected this spring and summer. Jubilee souvenirs are already displayed in the shops. Some of them are very pretty. One is a porcelain cup with the royal arms and the name of Windsor underneath. Another is a small white bust of the Queen with an accompanying bust of Lord Beaconsfield, her favorite Minister. The jewelers have made dozens of jubilee designs in silver and gold, some of which are very pretty and are said at most reasonable prices. The people of Windsor expect to reap a rich harvest from the multitude of visitors this year.

THE IRISH DIFFICULTY.

Mr. Gladstone Refuses to Discuss the "Plan of Campaign."

LONDON, Jan. 4.—Mr. Gladstone, replying to a request from the Welsh Radical Club for his views upon the matter, declines to express any opinion on the "Plan of Campaign" in Ireland. He says: "I cannot discuss what is going on in Ireland upon partial and fragmentary evidence, and will defer judging the Government's conduct until I hear in Parliament what is said for and against it."

The Prosecution of the Nationalists.

DUBLIN, Jan. 4.—The trial of the case, against Messrs. Dillon, O'Brien, Sheehy, Harris, Crilly and Redmond, for alleged conspiracy, was resumed to-day. Redmond and Harris were absent on account of illness. The Crown closed its case and the trial was adjourned.

More League Funds From America.

DUBLIN, Jan. 4.—At the fortnightly meeting of the Executive Committee of the National League, held here to-day, the different speakers ridiculed the idea that Mr. Goschen's acceptance of the Chancellorship of the Exchequer would be the means of saving the present Conservative Ministry. The treasurer reported the receipts of $25,000 in donations to the league's funds during the past two weeks from the United States.

The Jury Disagreed.

DUBLIN, Jan. 4.—At the Connaught Assizes to-day, the jury in the case of Mr. Tulley, who was on trial for calling Crown Solicitor Burke a liar and a swindler, disagreed and was discharged.

Russia's Suggestion.

VIENNA, Jan. 4.—Russia has suggested, as a basis for negotiations between the signatories to the Berlin Treaty, for the settlement of the Bulgarian question, that the Bulgarian regents resign; that a new Sobranje be elected for Bulgaria only; that two Zankoffites be admitted into the Bulgarian Cabinet; that Prince Nicholas of Mingrelia be proposed to the new Sobranje for the Bulgarian rulership, and that an ordinary Provincial Assembly be convoked for Roumelia.

Restrictions Removed.

LONDON, Jan. 4.—The restrictions imposed in 1884 on the transhipment of American cattle on the Thames have been removed.

Dr. Weir Committed for Extradition.

LONDON, Jan. 4.—Dr. Weir of Oscoda, Mich., finally appeared before Judge Elliott this morning, and was committed for extradition. Mr. Meredith, counsel for Weir, has applied for a writ of habeas corpus to release Weir and have the order for his extradition set aside.

RESCUED INTO SLAVERY.

Milwaukee Detectives Report on the Traffic in Girls for Immoral Purposes.

MILWAUKEE, Jan. 4.—The Mayor, Chief of Police and detectives are endeavoring to devise methods of putting a stop to what the authorities call a traffic in girls. The report of the detectives detailed to collect facts is, in brief, that in the vicinity of Hurley, Ironwood, Bessemer, Marinette, Menominee and other lumbering and mining towns are what are termed dance-houses; that the inmates of these houses are usually young girls, as making less trouble to the proprietors; that the inmates are furnished by men in Milwaukee and Chicago, who are paid a certain sum for each; that the inmates are virtually prisoners, their clothing being taken from them and they being kept in debt to the proprietors so that they are unable to leave the places. One of these victims, Florence West, aged 16, was returned to her widowed mother in this city to-day by two detectives detailed for that purpose. The officers went to Bessemer Wednesday morning, finding that a Milwaukee man had telegraphed Jack Beardman, keeper of the dance house near that place, and warning him to get rid of the girls. Early yesterday morning the West girl and another Milwaukee girl, Anna Winkelman, were taken to a house near Hurley. The detectives then proceeded to Ironwood and Hurley, a distance of eight miles, visiting eight dance houses. Each house contained from four to twelve girls between the ages of 14 and 18 years. The West girl was found in the house at Hurley and was anxious to return home.

At Chief Ries, this afternoon, Miss West said she was induced to leave her home in this city four months ago by a west-side saloonkeeper. She went to Bessemer and thence to Jack Beardman's dance-house. Her clothes were taken from her and she was dressed in short dresses, and was not permitted to leave the place or to communicate with her friends. By a system of fines she was kept in debt to the proprietor, who refused to surrender her clothing until she had paid him what he claimed was due him. One item in the bill of expense was the cost of getting the girl to Bessemer, nearly $100.

A telegram received from Bessemer to-night says that Jack Beardman, proprietor of the house near that place from which the Milwaukee girls have been rescued, to-day closed his establishment, fearing that the recent exposure of affairs there would lead to a raid by the authorities if he kept open. Beardman also says that the publication of facts concerning the Range "dance houses" has caused business to fall off to a mere nothing. Latest advices say that the Michigan authorities, as well as those of Wisconsin, are investigating affairs, with a view of raiding all disreputable places in the Iron Range.

THE RUSSO-GERMAN TREATY.

Figuring on the Possible Correctness of Such a Diplomatic Document.

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—The Times' London correspondent says the positive reiteration by M. Hewitz that Russia and Germany have signed a definite treaty is accepted generally as having a probable foundation. In fact, from the start it has been known that the Kaiser, who is unalterably opposed to war, is even more strenuously opposed to allow his grandnephew the Czar to get pitched upon by a combination of powers. Deathbed pledges exacted in 1840 by his father impelled the aged Kaiser, now living so much in memories of his youth, to cling to the house of Romanoff. It now looks as if he had gone over Bismarck's head to arrange by a personal letter with the Czar this astonishing treaty alliance, which alters the whole political situation in Europe. Of course, until the announcement is confirmed, comment will be more or less in the air, but the English already discuss it as probably true. It is regarded as a grievous tactical mistake which, while it will possibly serve the purpose of postponing war, will only make it worse and more widespread when it does come. The present result will be a complete sacrifice of Bulgaria. Austria thus deserted by her powerful ally, will not dare to defy Russia single-handed, and England and Italy, while ready enough to join in a safe fight, will not budge without a lead from Austria. Hence the Bulgarians will have to submit and be overrun and practically annexed by Russia, unless they have the nerve to resist on the bare hope that the scene of blood will draw all Europe into the struggle.

Bonded at Vienna.

VIENNA, Jan. 4.—It is reported that the German Government has assured Count Kalnoky that the statement that a treaty had been concluded between Germany and Russia to the detriment of Austrian interests is not true.

Excessive Drinking Killed Him.

ST. THOMAS, Jan. 4.—The other night John Rouse, a teamster for Col. Martin, at Fletcher, imbibed freely of the contents of a whisky jug at Tilbury Centre and started for the boarding-house of the gang, but had only proceeded twenty-five yards when he dropped unconscious, dying a short time afterwards. Coroners Bray and Tye were notified and a jury consisting of six white and six colored citizens empanelled. A verdict of death from excessive drinking was returned. Deceased was 28 years of age, and his friends reside in North Euston. He was to have been married the day following that on which he met his death.

THE PRICE OF HISGOVERNMENT.

The Dominion Government is not only imperilling the integrity of the Confederation by repeated attacks upon Provincial rights—the principle of which is the very cement of Confederation—but it is also acting unjustly in other ways, and is spending public money to conciliate Provinces rendered disaffected by such courses. For instance, the Ottawa Free Press says:

The members of the the Prince Edward Island government who visited Ottawa some days ago, have returned home with the announcement that the Dominion Government has agreed to place half a million dollars to the credit of the island province, the interest upon which will be drawn annually by the provincial government. It is not stated whether the half million has been granted as compensation for the failure of the Federal government to carry out the terms of confederation, or on account of the claim made by the island government for a refund of moneys expended upon railway construction. Enquiry in official circles shows that the arrangement to grant half a million to the island, if made at all is only provisional and subject to the approval of parliament. Sir John Macdonald has evidently been resorting to the old expedient of trying to remove discontent in Prince Edward Island by a grant of money from the Federal treasury, and his conduct indicates that a Dominion election is at hand. It would be easy for Sir John to promise anything to a discontented province on the eve of his defeat, leaving to his successors the duty of keeping faith with the province affected and carrying out the obligations incurred by Sir John. If the Federal government agrees to recognize the justice of the claim of the Prince Edward Island government to have all moneys expended by it upon railway construction refunded, however it refuse to recognize similar claims preferred by Ontario municipalities.

THERE has been an enormous increase in the Dominion revenue, yet the extravagant methods of the administration are such that a deficit is the result. The Conservatives are much more adept at increasing the expenditure than in reducing it. In Mr. Mackenzie's last year the expenditure was $23,503,158, a decrease in the expenditure in the five years he was in power, the expenditure in 1874 being $23,316,316. Since the Liberals retired from office the expenditure has increased, till in 1885 it was $35,037,000. And this, in face of the fact that the rate of interest on the public debt has diminished, and that no new provinces have been added to the Confederation, calling for increased expenditure.

SIR JOHN is wont to off-set his modest depreciation of his personal attractions by an assertion that he is "a rum un' to go." This is where he differs from Mr. Mowat, who is "a rare un' to stay."

THE Ottawa Free Press remarks that "the Tories of East Peterborough had to face a Blezard, and it is not surprising that they got snowed under by 340 majority."

Eulogy on Gladstone.

(Extract of a letter from A. D. Gallelly, Galashiels, Scotland, one of the Border Burghs to his brother in Peterborough).

I am right glad to find in you a staunch supporter of the 'Grand Old Man.' Proud of him; well may we be. That bright intellect of his perceived that the time was come to heal the wounds of Ireland, to dispel the bitter memories of generations, and perceiving that, he held out the hand of brotherhood, which was warmly clasped by our friends across the channel. Peace like a dove was about to alight on that much suffering land, when lo! those who were supposed to be far ahead in matters radical held aloof. Friends on every side left him. The rich, the great, the powerful deserted him—even our much loved Tennyan forsook him—but firm as a rock, which cannot be overthrown amid a sea of trouble, he stands, the admiration of all true men. The hero of a hundred fights, full of fire and vigor, though old in years. Still waving in the breeze the banner of humanity, on which are inscribed these words, freedom, progress, fraternity, justice between man and man.

From the same pen, on Kennedy, Scottish vocalist:

Whole-souled Kennedy, bubbling over with bantering fun and sly jokes. Prince of story tellers, king of Scottish song. And now, alas! 'tis all over with him here below. He who stirred the finer and nobler sentiments of thousands in all parts of the world, lies unconscious of this world's din and maddening roar, sleeping the sleep that knows no waking, till the last trump shall startle into life the slumbering millions, and cause the sea and ocean old to give up their dead. One genial soul the less now moves upon this sublunary sphere of ours.

Otonabee.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

HIGH REPUTE.

On Tuesday, Dec. 23rd, being the last day of school for the year, the pupils of S. S. No. 13, Otonabee, presented their teacher, Mr. M. McClelland (who has been their teacher for the past three years), with a dining desk, a gentleman's companion, and a copy of Burns' poems handsomely bound and illustrated, making altogether a valuable, useful and beautiful present, accompanied with the following address:

To our Teacher:

It is with feelings of deep regret we have learned that the relation which has existed between you and us as teacher and pupils is now to end.

During the several years which you have spent among us your time and energy have ever been used to further our best interests, and, therefore, we desire to place on record something of the high regard and esteem we hold for you as friend and teacher. The constant care which you have always evidenced in behalf of our welfare must ever be held in loving remembrance.

As a token of our regard for you we make the accompanying presentation as something you may hold in pleasant recollection of the scholars of S. S. No. 13, Otonabee.

In bidding you farewell we hope, whatever the future may open out to you, that success may attend all your efforts and that the blessing of God that maketh rich, shall crown your life to the end.

Signed on behalf of the school,

KELLY EMMERSON, HAROLD KINDRED,
ARNER COLLINS, ALBERT DAVIS.

Mr. McClelland replied as follows:—

MY DEAR PUPILS.—I am so overcome with the solemnity of the occasion I don't know how to express my appreciation of your token. It will ever shed pure light and love upon me. It is with great reluctance I sever my connection with you as teacher. The respect, trust and security received at large and your generous tenderness, filial obedience and effectionate gratitude have far exceeded my worth and faithfulness. The jealous remembrance I dedicate to you is without end. Be diligent in your studies, for education is a companion that no misfortune can depress—at home, a friend, abroad, an introduction; in solitude, a solace, and in society an ornament.

"I must now take a kind adieu of you but let us hope we shall all meet where love and bliss immortal reign and parting is no more.

The parting of teacher and pupils through the desire of the former for further advancement in study was convincing testimony of the greatest union and affection existing mutually. A good representation of the section were present during the afternoon when the time was well used in testing the work of the past term by the teacher. On the following Sunday Mr. McClelland took a formal leave of Zion's Sunday School where for some time his assistance has been heartily given and accepted as organist. He takes with him the good wishes of all.

Ennismore.

Facts Regarding Our Manufacture of Furs.

No. 1—The only place in Peterborough where Furs of every description are manufactured.

No. 2—Goods that cannot be surpassed, neither in the Midland District nor in the whole Dominion.

No. 3—That the material bought personally in Leipzig, (Ger.) is selected and acquired on better terms by means of export and import.

No. 4—That all Canadian Raw Furs are bought in great quantities direct from the trappers, affording such a selection as will give the greatest satisfaction for ordered goods.

No. 5—No guarantee is asked of us when goods are sold or ordered to be made, as our word is guarantee for truthfulness.

No. 6—That such goods are sold at the lowest possible prices.

No. 7—That the public knows, it can get furs properly repaired without being sent to Montreal or elsewhere.

No. 8—That the public acknowledges our efforts by a hearty support.

No. 9—That the advantage taken by other houses in taking orders on the pretense of being manufactured in town when such orders are sent out of town to be filled, is a fraud.

No. 10—That a guarantee given by such houses is also worthless, as only the manufacturer of such goods knows whether they are shoddy or otherwise.

The Evil Genius.

A DOMESTIC STORY.

BY WILKIE COLLINS.

The hotel servant was surprised at their not speaking to each other. He was a stupid man; he thought the gentlefolks were strangely unlike gentlefolks in general; they seemed not to know what to say. Herbert happened to be standing nearest to him; he thought it would be only civil to the gentleman to offer a word of explanation.

"The lady had these rooms, sir. She has come back from the station to look for a book that has been left behind."

Herbert signed to him to go. As the man turned to obey he drew back. Sydney had moved to the door before him to leave the room. Herbert refused to permit it. "Stay here," he said gently, "this room is yours."

Sydney hesitated. Herbert addressed her again. He pointed to his divorced wife. "You see how that lady is looking at you," he said; "I forbid you to submit to insult from anybody."

Sydney returned into the room.

Catherine's voice was heard for the first time. She addressed herself to Sydney with a quiet dignity—far removed from anger, farther removed still from contempt.

"I do you justice," she said. "You can still feel a sense of shame."

Herbert snatched up the book. It was only a momentary outbreak of anger. The next moment he mastered Catherine's self-control; he spoke to her with scrupulous respect. "Here is your book, madam."

She still kept her eyes fixed on Sydney—still spoke to Sydney.

"Tell him," she said, "that I refuse to receive the book."

Sydney attempted to obey. At the first words she uttered Herbert checked her once more.

"I have begged you already not to submit to insult." He turned to Catherine. "The book is yours, madam. Why do you refuse to take it?"

She looked at him for the first time. A proud sense of wrong flashed at him its keenly felt indignation in her first glance. Did his worn face, his wasted figure, plead with her? Those eyes that had so often looked love at him, softened with sorrow. She signed to him to lay the book down. "No," she said; "not from your hands and not from her's. I leave the book; I leave you." She moved to the door and looked back at Sydney. "Poor creature!" she murmured to herself. The faint sound of her dress on the carpet was heard in the perfect stillness and lost again. They saw her no more.

Herbert approached Sydney. It was a moment when he was bound to assure her of his sympathy, and even of his respect. He felt for her. In his inmost heart he felt for her. As he drew nearer he saw tears in her eyes; but they seemed to have risen without her knowledge. Hardly conscious of his presence, she stood before him—lost in thought.

He endeavored to rouse her. "Did I protect you from insult?" he asked.

She said absently, "Yes!"

"Will you do as I do, dear? Will you try to forget?"

She said "I am trying," still, as it appeared, thinking of something else.

"Would you like to lie down, Sydney, and rest?"

"Yes."

She took his arm. He led her to the door of the room. "Is there anything else I can do for you?" he asked.

"Nothing, thank you."

She closed the door—and abruptly opened it again. "One thing more," she said. "Kiss me."

He kissed her tenderly. Returning to the sitting-room he looked back across the passage. Her door was shut.

His head was heavy; his mind felt confused. He threw himself on the sofa—utterly exhausted by the ordeal through which he had passed. In grief, in fear, in pain, the time still comes when Nature claims her rights. The wretched, worn-out man fell into a restless sleep. He was awakened by the servant laying the cloth for dinner. "It's just ready, sir," the man announced; "shall I knock at the lady's door?"

Herbert got up and went to her room.

He entered softly, fearing to disturb her if she, too, had slept. No sign of her was to be seen. She had evidently not rested on her bed. A morsel of paper lay on the smooth coverlet. There was only a line written on it: "You may yet be happy—and it may perhaps be my doing."

Gone!

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

"Mr. Herbert Linley, I ask permission to reply to your inquiries in writing, because it is quite likely that some of the opinions you will find here might offend you if I expressed them personally. I can relieve your anxiety on the subject of Miss Sydney Westerfield. But I must be allowed to do so in my own way, without any other restraints than those which I think it becoming to an honorable man to impose on himself.

"You are quite right in supposing that Miss Westerfield had heard me spoken of at Mount Morven as the agent and legal adviser of the lady who was formerly your wife. What purpose led her to apply to me under these circumstances you will presently discover. As to the means by which she found her way to my office I may remind you that any directory would give her the necessary information.

"Miss Westerfield's object was to tell me, in the first place, that her guilty life with you was at an end. Acting under motives which I am sure you must understand, and which I hope you will also respect, she has left your protection—not to return to it. I was sorry to see (though she tried to hide it from me) how keenly she felt the parting. You have been dearly loved by two sweet women, and they have thrown their hearts away on you—as women will.

"Having explained the circumstances so far, Miss Westerfield next mentioned the motive which had brought her to my office. She asked if I would inform her of Mrs. Ormond's address.

"This request, I confess, astonished me. To my mind she was, of all persons, the last who ought to contemplate communicating in any way with Mrs. Ormond. I say this to you; but I refrained from saying it to her. What I did venture to do was to ask for her reasons. She answered that they were reasons which would embarrass her if she communicated them to a stranger.

"After this reply—speaking as gently and considerately as possible—I declined to give her the information she wanted.

"Not unprepared, as it appeared to me, for my refusal, she asked next if I was willing to tell her where she might find your brother, Mr. Randal Linley. In this case I was glad to comply with her request. She could address herself to no person worthier to advise her than your brother. In giving her his address in London I told her that he was about on a visit to some friends, and that he was expected to remain in a week's time.

"She left me and rode to [illegible].

"I was interested in her. Perhaps I thought of the time when she might have been so dear to her father as my own [illegible]. I was sorry for her. I was [illegible]. I was [illegible]. I was [illegible]

Examiner Bindery.

Merchants and business men, now is the time to call at the EXAMINER bindery and leave your orders for journals, day books, ledgers, invoice books, cheque books, and all blank books used in business. Don't wait till the moment you want to use them. All blank books last longer for not being used immediately after being finished.

Oilcloth Carpets, Oil Cloths, and Mats at the Golden Lion.

Second Ward.

Mr. T. Stenson has been declared elected to represent the Second Ward in the Town Council for 1887 by the returning officer, Mr. C. D. Macdonald. Messrs. Stenson and Kelly each had 219 votes, but one ballot with three crosses opposite Mr. Stenson's name, rejected by the deputy returning officer, has been declared good, which thus gives Mr. Stenson the election.

The Army's Difficulties.

Adjutant Bolton and Capt. Pople, of Peterborough, were among the Salvationists arrested at Lindsay a few days ago while marching on the streets. The case comes on for trial at Lindsay to-morrow (Thursday). There is a good deal of excitement, especially in Salvation Army circles, over the affair. In another column will be found Commissioner Coombs' opinion on the subject. The case will be stubbornly contested by the Salvationists.

W. C. T. U.

The regular meeting of the Women's Christian Temperance Union was held Monday evening in the usual place. The president occupied the chair. After the minutes had been read and approved, a communication from Mrs. Chrisholm, on "mission work," was read and received; also one from Mr. Buchanan. The Union renew their offer of three prizes to the primary and high schools for the best essays on "Intemperance," its effects on the physical, mental and moral parts. It was decided that the Union co-operate with the Royal Templars in holding a series of evangelistic services, of which further particulars will be given; also that the children of the Band of Hope are now in practice for a concert to be given under the direction of Mr. Seward towards the latter part of February.

A Bad Beginning.

H. Charbonair came into the police court this morning with a gorgeous eye and bruised body, which he claimed had been given him by Adolphus Laplante on New Year's Day. His story was that on the evening of that day, Ernest, Adolphus and Baptiste Laplante, father and two sons, called at his house, and he treated them to three glasses of beer each, and one glass of whiskey. After some songs by Mrs. Charbonair, her husband, who felt hilarious, jumped up and catching hold of the Laplantes, waltzed them around the room. This "horse play" resulted in the old man's being thrown against the table, which made him angry, and in the row that followed Charbonair was kicked and beaten severely, so much so that the services of a medical man were necessary. The magistrate imposed a fine of $10 and costs on Adolphus Laplante, and ordered him to give the complainant $10 for personal damages. The money was paid.

Children's Caesar Festival Encore.

The Choral Festival will be repeated by request on Thursday, the 6th, after which the gifts will be distributed to the children from the Christmas trees by Santa Claus in person. Those ladies who have kindly offered to assist in the children's entertainment at 5 o'clock in the afternoon, in the Concert hall, will please send their donations to the Opera house on Thursday morning next, so as to have things in readiness for the children. Nearly 500 children will participate in the concert. It is hoped that the friends of the children will fill the house. There will be a rehearsal on Wednesday afternoon at the Concert hall at 3 o'clock. All the children are requested to be present, as fresh tickets will be given out to the children taking part in the concert. This plan becomes necessary, as many of the children had their old tickets stolen from them. Children must remember that no child may come to the entertainment who has not received a ticket. Mr. Seward will feel very grateful if the ladies of the different congregations throughout the town will all unite in the matter of furnishing refreshments for the children. Tickets on sale at A. L. Davis & Co's Bookstore.

"Persecution, Idolatry, and Devilry."

Commissioner Coombs, of the Salvation Army, on the Lindsay Trouble—The "Wonder of the Age" Lead Here.

Tuesday was a gala day for the Salvationists. In the afternoon Commissioner Coombs, of Toronto, held a council of war with the officers of Peterborough division, and in the evening a rousing time was had. About 75 officers and soldiers were in the procession, and their singing was simply grand. Commissioner Coombs was carried down George street on the shoulders of four men. At the barracks, which was filled to overflowing, the usual services were gone through with, varied to suit the exigencies of the occasion. The Commissioner, in the course of a brief sermon, referred to the trouble in Lindsay, where last week the whole corps of the Army had been arrested and gaoled. He said "the mayor and chief constable of Lindsay must have their own notions of running a town. They want to prohibit the people from worshipping on the streets; their next move will be an attempt to prevent their worshipping in their own houses." The Commissioner stated that last week twenty special constables (eighteen of them conveniently of the mayor's own religious persuasion— had been duly sworn in in Lindsay for the purpose of arresting as many Salvationists. The speaker thought it was about time the question was decided by a higher court. An appeal case of theirs was now pending in the higher court, but its trial would not come on for some months yet. He said, "They slapped us on one side, and we turned the other side to them. They slapped that too; but as we had no more sides to offer them, we decided to face them." The Salvation Army was

BOUND TO WIN,

and they were going to make a test case of this, to see if a chief constable is justified in locking up a score of Christian people, and "brutally assaulting" the poor drum and brass instruments—that could not speak—and breaking them to pieces. The night before that, an immense mob had taken possession of the streets, driven almost crazy with political excitement, and the town band had been out adding its discord to the general confusion—but not a word was said against it. As soon as the Salvation Army came out, though, "Oh, they were a nuisance; they were obstructing the streets," and, therefore, must be arrested and gaoled like criminals. But they were bound to see their comrades through, and he called upon all those present, who were in sympathy with the Lindsay soldiers who were suffering from the effects of "persecution, idolatry and devilry," to shout Amen. An immense shout that nearly raised the roof off the building followed. After a half hour of testimonials, the Commissioner began his lecture on

THE WONDER OF THE AGE.

The wonder of the age was the Salvation Army, and to prove the statement, the speaker compared the Army as it was 11 years ago, when he first knew it, with what it was at the present time. Its progress had been marvellous, and it had never grown so fast or made such rapid strides as it was doing to-day. Not only were its members increasing, but new stations were constantly opened out. To the statement of some people that the Salvation Army was not needed, he would reply that their mission was to bring the Gospel to the people, and wherever their was a sinner or drunkard, there would be found the Salvation Army to lead them to Christ. The speaker instanced several notable conversions that had taken place in Toronto—of drunkards who had been snatched from the gutter, and of ministers of the gospel who had been brought to a better knowledge of the truth. He instanced in particular one Episcopalian minister who had been a preacher in Toronto and elsewhere for a great number of years, who never really knew peace till he found it at the Salvation Army penitent bench. The Commissioner dwelt next upon the Army work in Canada, of the good already being done in Quebec, where, despite the determined and they received, they had established two places of worship and nine officers. In Nova Scotia, Manitoba and the North-west also their labors were being blessed, and it was the intention of the Salvation Army to go among the Indians, for which mission 70 officers had already volunteered. He mentioned the kind receptions the Army had received in Winnipeg and other places, the work, the increase, and closed by earnestly appealing to the audience to make their peace with God.

BITTER OPPOSITION

Condolence.

At a meeting of the W. C. T. U. Executive Committee, Jan. 4th the following preamble and resolution was adopted.

Inasmuch as it has pleased the Lord to bereave this body of our beloved Zion, by the death of our esteemed sister, Miss Mary Wood, who a few days days ago was taken away from her place as organist of our Union to a possession of the inheritance of the Saints in Light. Therefore be it resolved, that we as a token of our high regard and as expression of our appreciation of her pure Christian motives, request the editors of the Peterborough Review and EXAMINER to publish this resolution.

That we as a Union extend to the bereaved parents and family our tenderest Christian sympathy, assuring them a place in the hearts and prayerful memory of the Union, until the Master shall grant them a blessed happy reunion, where the dominion of death and the sorrow of separation are unknown.

MISS SANDERSON, CHAIRWOMAN.

What Peterborough's Electors Have Done.

A Recount of the Ballots Cast on Dec. 22th to take place.

In accordance with the provisions of section 117, R. S. O., a recount of the ballots cast in the Provincial election on Dec. 22th, has been demanded and granted, and the recount will begin before Judge Weller at the Court House on Saturday, Jan. 8th at 3 o'clock p.m. The section alluded to provides that when the majority of the successful candidate is under fifty, a recount of the votes may be had. At the recent election there were 29 "rejected" ballots, 16 "tendered" ballots, and 14 "spoiled" ballots. The law provides that the greatest care be taken in the recount to preserve the secrecy of the ballot.

Scott Act Fine.

T. Cavanagh was fined $100 and costs this morning for a second violation of the Scott Act.

For Consultation.

Dr. G. Sterling Ryerson, of Toronto, will be at the Oriental hotel, Peterborough, on Saturday, January 22nd, for consultation in eye, ear, throat and nose cases.

Curling and Convivility.

Last night, the spell in the inter-presidential curling contest, was played by rinks skipped by Mr. Judge Weller and J. H. Burnham. The judicial rink collapsed with a score of 8 to 22 for the embryo-legal rink. The judicial skip was not disheartened but gracefully stood sponsor for bivalvular convivility a la mode Sam Ray, at the rink restaurant.

School Trustee Elections.

Elections for members of the Board of Education took place to-day. In the first ward Messrs. W. Stock and W. English are in the field; in No. 2 ward Mr. Wrighton has been elected by a vote of 1 to 0. It is said that the rumor that there will be a recount in this ward are unfounded; in No. 3 ward Dr. Burnham has been elected by acclamation; in No. 4 ward Messrs. T. Rutherford and Dr Fife are the contestants.

Week of Prayer.

The union meetings of this week have begun well. On Monday night there was a good attendance and an interesting service in the Charlotte street church. In the absence of the Rev. E. F. Torrance the Rev. F. H. Wallace gave a short address. Last night the school room of St. Paul's church was filled to hear Rev. J. C. Wilson, who delivered an address on "Sin," and to unite in confession and supplication. To-night the meeting will be held in the school room of St. Andrew's church. The address will be by Rev. F. H. Wallace, and the theme of the evening will be "The Church of Christ."

Time Half Past—Still Great Chances.

Two more weeks remain of the month's chances for big bargains offered by Belleghem. The offer was a bona fide one, and hundreds have taken advantage of it by purchasing the best of all kinds of furniture at 'way-down prices. And still there are big bargains for hundreds more. Belleghem's warerooms are crowded with a magnificent stock of superb furniture of every description and variety, and for the next two weeks it will be cut down to extremely low prices. Now is the time to get bargains and make home handsome and happy by buying furniture of the latest style at bottom prices. A dollar never went so far before in buying goods as it does at Belleghem's great holiday sale. Come one, come all; from hut or hall Grand goods on sight, with prices right. Bargains galore for two weeks more.

Municipal Elections.

DUMMER—Reeve, A. R. Kidd, by a majority of 143; Deputy-Reeve, Richard Crow, majority of 57; Councillors, Thos. Webster, Henry Moore and George Kirk. The figures are: For Reeve, Kidd, 246; Kelly, 103. For Deputy-Reeve, R. Crow, 202; Robb, 145. For Councillors, J. J. Crew, 104; Kirk, 179; Moore, 179; Payne, 144; Webster, 207.

LAKEFIELD—Reeve, R. C. Strickland, by a majority of 78; Councillors, Jas. Moore, William Cox, S. Henderson, and James Watson.

SOUTH MONAGHAN—Reeve, J. Riddell, 123; F. M. Willan, 113; majority for Riddell, 10. Councillors, R. Baxter, 138; J. Buckham, 127; R. Nurse, 130; R. Parker, 151; L. Byers, 110. The first four were elected.

BOBCAYGEON—Reeve, J. L. Read; Councillors, W. Kennedy, J. L. Lancaster, J. Moore, A. M. McIntyre.

Free Trade.

The reduction of internal revenue and the taking off of revenue stamps from Proprietary Medicines, no doubt has largely benefitted the consumers, as well as relieving the burden of home manufacturers. Especially is this the case with Green's August Flower and Boschee's German Syrup, as the reduction of thirty six cents per dozen has been added to increase the size of the bottles containing these remedies, thereby giving one-fifth more medicine in the 75 cent size. The August Flower for Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint, and the German Syrup for Cough and Lung troubles have, perhaps, the largest sale of any medicines in the world. The advantage of increased size of the bottles will be greatly appreciated by the sick and afflicted, in every town and village in civilised countries. Sample bottles for 10c. remain in the same size. eodw41

Harper's Young People.

AN ILLUSTRATED WEEKLY.

Harper's Young People has been called "the model of what a periodical for young readers ought to be," and the justice of this commendation is amply sustained by the large circulation it has attained both at home and in Great Britain. This success has been reached by methods that must commend themselves to the judgment of parents no less than to the tastes of children—namely, by an earnest and well sustained effort to provide the best and most attractive reading for young people at a low price. The illustrations are copious and of a conspicuously high standard of excellence.

An epitome of everything that is attractive and desirable in juvenile literature.—Boston Courier.

A weekly feast of good things to the boys and girls in every family which it visits.—Brooklyn Union.

WHY
Will people pay rent when houses and lots can be purchased on such easy terms as are offered by the undersigned, come and inspect our work and see for yourselves how we consstruct our houses. Our chief aim and study is to build substantial, warm, frost and damp proof houses. I am offering good building lots, and will build solid brick houses, nine-inch walls, strapped and lath and plastered, for less money than you can buy frame or veneered buildings. We cordially invite those who anticipate renting or buying to inspect our work and prove for themselves that our houses are not merely built to sell. Every house I've sold gives first-class satisfaction, and I am determined that every house I build shall be a standing testimony to honest building. JOHN CARLISLE, Inspector, George street, 2nd block west of St. Andrew's Church. wd

WORKING CLASSES ATTENTION
We are now prepared to furnish all classes with employment at home, the whole time, or for spare moments. No capital required. Profitable. Persons of either sex easily earn from 50 cents to $5.00 per evening, and a proportional sum by devoting all their time to the business. Boys and girls earn nearly as much as men. That all who see this may send their address, and test the business, we make this offer. To such as are not well satisfied we will send one dollar to pay for the trouble of writing. Full particulars and outfit free. Address George Stinson & Co. Portland, Maine.

SALISBURY'S HEAVY TASK

FEW OF THE POLITICAL LEADERS ANXIOUS FOR OFFICE.

Lord Lansdowne Invited to Come Over and Take a Stand, But He is Doing too Well in Canada to Change Now—Lord Churchill Going to the Continent.

LONDON, Jan. 5.—The Daily News, without being too sanguine as to the results of the proposed conference of Radicals and Gladstonians, says that the anger which the proposal excites among the Tories is a measure of the satisfaction with which it may be greeted by the Liberals. It is expected that the conference will be held at Sir William Vernon Harcourt's residence in London.

The Standard says the course which Mr. Chamberlain sanctions calls for stern rebuke, and that whatever happens he cannot pretend that he had not been warned of the conditions of any possible compact.

Churchill Going Abroad.

LONDON, Jan. 5.—Randolph Churchill is going to the continent. He will not appear in Parliament until after the debate on the address in reply to the speech from the throne.

Lansdowne Will Not Accept Office.

LONDON, Jan. 5.—Lord Northbrook has decided not to accept a position in the Cabinet. He has written to Mr. Goschen regretting his inability to join the ministry in view of the Conservative discontent and the doubtful nature of the agreement with Lord Salisbury. Lord Salisbury is urgently pressing the Marquis of Lansdowne to accept an office in the Cabinet. It is now reported that Lord Lansdowne is not willing to surrender his emoluments in Canada, especially as the revenues from his estates are decreasing.

Irish Opinion.

DUBLIN, Jan. 5.—The Freeman's Journal says the adhesion of Joseph Chamberlain to the Liberal party will be dearly bought, if it cost the abandonment of the vital principle in Mr. Gladstone's Irish policy of an Irish Executive responsible to an Irish Parliament only. The Irish leaders will never, says the Journal, sanction such a bartering away of their rights.

AFTER THE SENTENCE.

A Meeting Between Witcock and Fotheringham in the Court Room.

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 5.—After Witcock, Weaver and Haight, the express robbers, were sentenced yesterday, a dramatic incident occurred just as the jail doors closed behind the robbers. A tall, slender young man in a blue shirt was standing against the screen talking to two ladies in the cage.

"There is Fotheringham," said Haight to Witcock as they halted near the guard's desk. Witcock looked intently at the young man in the blue shirt, and said "I believe it is. Yes, it's him." By this time the irons had been removed from Witcock's wrists, and walking hastily to the young man he extended his hand and said: "Fotheringham, old boy, I am glad to see you. I did you a wrong about two months ago, but I hope you don't bear me any hard feelings."

"None at all," said Fotheringham, "although you took advantage of me when we last met."

Again shaking hands, Fotheringham continued his conversation with the ladies. Afterwards the pair had a long conversation regarding the events that had transpired since they last met.

FREE SUGAR AND TOBACCO.

A Bill Which Proposes to Take Internal Taxes Off Tobacco.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—Mr. Hiscock's bill to reduce revenue, which he will propose in the House, takes 30 per cent. of the duty off raw sugar imported from countries which do not levy an export tax, repeals all the internal tobacco taxes, allowing a rebate of the tax on stocks on hands, and makes alcohol used in the arts tax free. He believes that the reduction on sugar will strike off $20,000,000, the repeal of the tobacco tax $20,000,000 more, and as to the reduction by free alcohol the opinion of experts assures him that it will reach fully half of the whisky product which now yields a revenue.

DEAD MEN BY THE CORD.

Cholera in Its Most Malignant Form is Raging at Buenos Ayres.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—A letter from Buenos Ayres, under date of Dec. 10, states that cholera in its most malignant form is raging there, and the number of deaths daily is frightful; that the dead are removed to the outskirts of the city, piled up like cross-ties and burned to ashes.

Negroes Fire Upon Mexican Laborers.

SAN MARCOS, Tex. Jan. 5.—The particulars of a most atrocious murder committed Saturday night have just reached here. Four Mexicans were employed on the farm of W. C. Simmons in Cottonwood, Guadloupe county, to clear and grub the land. While in camp Saturday night they were fired upon by a party of negroes, and two of the Mexicans were killed. Another was mortally wounded, and a fourth was shot seven times, but managed to crawl to a house some distance away. Before leaving the murderers poured kerosene oil over the body of one of the men, set fire to it and burnt it to a crisp. They were traced four miles towards Kingsbery, and were then lost sight of. The Mexican who is still alive stated that two of the men were negroes and the third was a mulatto or white man.

Poisonous Baking Powder.

WABASH, Ind., Jan. 5.—The family of John Wooster, a prominent citizen of Montezuma, consisting of five persons, was poisoned Monday night by eating biscuit in which had been used a very inferior quality of baking powder. Two hours after supper the entire family were seized with terrible spasms, and the intense pain could not be relieved. The patients have grown steadily worse, and the family are in a precarious condition.

A MASSACHUSETTS MURDER.

The Body Dismembered and Strewn Along the Roadside.

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 5.—A bundle of bloody clothing was found yesterday in Lexington. To-day farmer Brooks discovered near the place the head of a man, which had been severed from the body, and near it other portions of a body covered by snow. The head was gashed and distorted by terrible wounds. It had evidently been chopped from the body with a dull axe. About a mile from where the head and arms were found the investigators discovered in a deep gulley a mutilated trunk. It was naked, and deep cuts in the hip and leg indicated the intention of the murderer to sever the left limb as they had the right, which had been rudely chopped off at the thigh. The features were those of a hard working man.

The Somerville police have received information which indicates that the disfigured remains found in Lexington to-day are those of George A. Codman. Codman was a young unmarried man, and carried on the milk business in Somerville. There is little doubt that the victim was killed by a terrible blow on the back of the neck with an axe and then chopped to pieces as found. The left leg, which was hacked off, has not yet been discovered.

A MISSING WOMAN.

A Case in Chautauqua County, N.Y., That Causes Excitement.

JAMESTOWN, Jan. 5.—Mrs. B. Larson, the wife of a farmer near Busti, Chautauqua County, after a few angry words with her husband about 10 o'clock last Saturday night, threw an apron over her head and left the house. Larson, who had returned home intoxicated a short time before, followed her. He returned alone about 2 next morning and asked for a lantern to find his wife. No trace of the missing woman can be found. She has several acquaintances in Jamestown, but they know nothing of her whereabouts. The neighbors are excited and demand investigation. Larson is well off, but frequently gets drunk and makes it unpleasant for his family. He offers a reward of $25 for his wife's discovery. The quarrel was about the knitting of a pair of mitts for the hired man, for which Mrs. Larson was to be paid. Mrs. Larson was thinly clad in a calico dress when she left and may have frozen to death.

MYSTERIOUSLY POISONED.

Two Members of a Brooklyn Druggist's Family Dead and Others Dying.

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—The family of Joseph Mauri, druggist, residing in Butler-street, Brooklyn, have been mysteriously poisoned. Two deaths have already occurred. The family consists of Mr. Mauri, his wife Carrie; Louis, aged 14, Joseph 12, Martha 10, Carrie 8, John 6, Alice 4 and Eugene 2 years old. With the exception of the mother, the whole family were taken sick on Sunday after eating. Joseph went last night to visit an aunt and died there to-day. Eugene died at home this morning, John is dying and the father and four children are very sick and are being attended by five physicians. They are unable to determine the cause of the poisoning until a post mortem examination is held.

RUN DOWN BY A TRAIN.

Remarkable Escape of a Stage-Coach Load of Passengers at London.

LONDON, Jan. 5.—This morning about 11.30, as train No. 8 from Windsor was drawing into the Richmond-street station, the driver of the Nissouri stage, not noticing that the crossing gates were down, attempted to cross the track, and did not observe the approaching train until too late. The engine struck the coach in the centre, smashing it to atoms. How the driver and the passengers inside escaped is a mystery. As it was, they managed to get off with a few scratches. One of the horses was carried for some distance on the cowcatcher and its leg broken; the other got clear.

To Report on the Knights of Labor.

PITTSBURG, Jan. 5.—Brother Augustine, a monk of the Franciscan order, was in the city this morning en route to Chicago. He arrived in this country from Austria three weeks ago, having been sent on his mission by special instructions issued from Rome by the Pope. While his special business, he said, was to institute Polish monasteries in this country and learn particularly about the condition of Polanders here, he also hinted that he would make a study of the Knights of Labor.

A $60,000 Fire.

CORNING, N.Y., Jan. 5.—Fire at 11 o'clock last evening destroyed the Brown Block, a three story brick building in the centre of the village. The first floor was occupied by the postoffice; Champeny Brothers, dry-goods; John Searl, books; Stern Bros., dry-goods. The second and third floors by Mrs. T. Clark, millinery; C. D. Sill, insurance; F. T. Treadwell, photographer; Michael Powers, tailor. Total loss $60,000; two-thirds insured. The rear walls fell while ten firemen were inside, but they all miraculously escaped. The fire burned fiercely and spread to the Daily Democrat office and threatened the Journal office.

A Fireman Tortured to Death.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 5.—It is alleged that John Schroeder, a fireman, was tortured to death on board the steamer Alameda, which arrived here from Auckland a few days ago. Schroeder, being ill, could not stand the heat of the fire-room. The engineer ordered him to go to work and when Schroeder refused the engineer ordered two men to hold the sick man up before the open furnace door. Schroeder died soon afterward. The United States Attorney will investigate the story.

Only One Man Killed.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Jan. 5.—Only one man was killed by the wreck of the "Mogul" train yesterday. His body now lies at Washburn's Morgue in this city so badly burned that identification is impossible. It was taken from the ruins of the smoking car directly behind the baggage car. It is thought, from a cap found marked "U. S.," to be that of a soldier known to have been aboard the train and who has not been seen since. Twenty persons were injured more or less seriously.

Labor and Politics in New York.

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—To-morrow night the United Labor party will hold its county convention at Clarendon Hall. The Executive Committee intends to scrutinize the credentials of every delegate, and it will suppress every member who it thinks would be a detriment to the organization. It is stated that a number of politicians are making desperate efforts to capture the organization, and considerable trouble is looked for.

Marriage of Secretary Lamar.

MACON, Geo., Jan. 5.—Secretary Lamar was married this morning at 10 o'clock at the residence of the bride by the Rev. Mr. Parks, of Sandersville, to Mrs. Wm. S. Holt, of Macon.

The Foreign Mails Arrive.

MONTREAL, Jan. 5.—The Allan mail S.S. Sarmatian, from Liverpool for Portland via Halifax, arrived at Portland at 3.45 this morning.

Snow Far South.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Jan. 5.—Several inches of snow fell in Louisiana yesterday.

After Twenty Years.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 5.—Dr. J.N. Doyle of Lincoln, Texas., was arrested here yesterday for the murder of Joseph Dentash, a barber, at Effingham, Ill., in 1866.

Earthquake Shocks in Texas.

GALVESTON, Texas, Jan. 5.—Slight earthquake shocks were felt in various parts of Texas this morning.

NOTICE TO ADVERTISERS.

Advertisers in the DAILY EXAMINER are requested to hand in their changes by 6 o'clock p.m. for the next day's paper. This will save disappointment, as it is impossible to make so many changes as are sometimes sent in on one day.

HAMILTON WANTS A CARNIVAL.

Pleaded Guilty to Larceny—Stand for Non-Removal of Snow.

HAMILTON, Jan. 5.—A proposal to hold a winter carnival here meets with widespread approval. Curlers and snowshoers will do all they can to make it a success, and the leading horsemen have promised to do all they can so far as a winter meeting is concerned. The Board of Trade will take the matter under consideration on Friday, a meeting having been called for that purpose.

Burglars broke into the store of George Ellis, corner of James and Common streets, last night and stole several bottles of liquor.

Benjamin James Forman, who was hurt at Allendale, was brought to his home in this city last night. He was caught and crushed while coupling cars, but though his injuries are severe they are not thought to be fatal.

The propeller Myles, which was sunk in Kingston harbor on Nov. 2 will be raised by the owner, Mr. Myles, probably next month. The timber to be used in the work is being purchased in this city.

Eighteen persons were fined $1 and costs each at the Police Court to-day for neglecting to clear their sidewalks of snow.

Milo Heath, the young man who was arrested yesterday for the larceny of a watch belonging to Andrew Jeffery, pleaded guilty when arraigned before the Police Magistrate this morning. The watch—an imitation gold, valued at $8—was stolen from Jeffery's stand at the fair grounds about the beginning of last October. Heath said he was drunk when he got it, and all that he knew about it was that he had it. He had since stopped drinking entirely and for ever. He was allowed to go under deferred sentence.

THE GRANDEN WILL CASE.

Arrival of William Granden's Son and Heir at London.

LONDON, Jan. 5.—Mr. Alonzo Granden, son and heir of the deceased William Granden, of this city, arrived from Australia on New Year's Day. It will be remembered several months since that the contents of a will alleged to have been made by William Granden, who died on October 3, 1886, in favor of His Lordship Bishop Walsh, leaving only $700 of an estate, said to be valued at $60,000, to his son Alonzo and two old friends who had nursed him during his illness. The will was drawn up by a law student named Dignam, and the executors alleged to have been appointed under this will were Rev. M. J. Tiernan and the student mentioned. The will was put in for probate in the usual manner, when T. H. Luscombe, barrister, acting for friends of the son Alonzo, who was in Australia at that time, immediately filed a caveat praying that the probate be not granted. Since then an administrator has been appointed in the person of Mr. H. Becher, Q.C., but beyond disposing of sundry chattels to liquidate debts nothing has been done to test the validity of the will. Both sides were awaiting the arrival of Alonzo Granden, who is here now and intends to have it thoroughly sifted before he returns home.

HOME AND FOREIGN.

The Democrats of Maine have nominated William Henry Clifford of Portland for United States Senator.

There was a slight earthquake shock at Summerville, S.C., at 8 o'clock yesterday morning. All quiet at Charleston.

The St. Clair River at Courtright is frozen over and teams cross with safety.

The Detroit River at Windsor is frozen almost solid and piled up with windrows of ice ten feet high.

Capt. Provost, late of the 65th Battalion, Montreal, has received a commission in the French army.

Port Stanley has approved of a bylaw granting $2000 bonus to John Ellison to aid him in establishing a saw mill.

The schooner R. B. Stevenson of St. Andrews has been seized for receiving her outfit in the United States and fined $600.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 6, 1887.

FOREWARNED IS FOREARMED

The indications are that a second time within the past few months, Sir John has screwed up his courage to the contemplation of the advisability of a dissolution of parliament and consequently of bringing on the Dominion elections. A covey of ministers are down now in the Maritime provinces. Hon. Mr. Foster has been stating to his friends that an immediate dissolution of parliament would be among the events of the next few days. Hon. Mr. Costigan has been advising the Maritime province friends of the administration to be ready for the fray. In Montreal Sir Hector Langevin at a dinner given in his honor a night or two ago, stated that the matter of dissolution would be a subject for the consideration of a cabinet meeting to be held soon. It is pretty certain that dissolution or an early session will be decided on at once, and the cognoscenti declare in favor of the probability of dissolution. It is well therefore for Liberals everywhere to prepare for the great struggle. Get ready for the contest at once. Reformers were in splendid fettle for the late fight in Ontario, which they so gallantly won. In general the organization was excellent, and if the campaign organization and the campaign spirit that led the Liberal party to triumph in the recent elections is maintained for a few weeks or months longer, there is no doubt that Ontario will give a great account of herself in the Dominion contest. There is great encouragement for hard work. The Dominion is looking toward the Liberal party for relief from the demoralizing and disgraceful reign of "boodleism." Political barter and sale, as a modus vivendi of a political party, is something the moral sense of Canada will not tolerate beyond certain limits, and these limits, it is safe to say, have been almost or quite reached. The administrative record of the Dominion Government for the past eight years has been one of the most significant and deplorable failures. Extravagant expenditure, piling Pillon on Ossa in the way of increasing the public debt, enormously increasing the taxation, but still shaming the country with enormous deficits, scattering the public treasure broadcast to secure political support, debauching the representatives of the people by bribes more or less direct, in fine abusing a tremendous trust in almost every possible particular. The ministry has good reason to fear the result of the general elections and the means they will resort to to secure a renewal of their lease of power will be those of desperate men, and they can only be met by perfect organization on the part of Liberals, persistent canvassing work and the intelligent employment of every legitimate means of securing at the polls a full and free expression of public opinion. Now is the time that the friends of good and honest government can turn their efforts to good advantage. Active energetic and united work for a few weeks, will be the performance of a patriotic duty, the importance of which cannot be estimated.

THE Montreal Gazette indulges in the following reflection and forecast:

"Ontario closes the series of Provincial elections this year. As certainly in each Province in which the Government has appealed to the electorate, it has been sustained. The Dominion elections are shortly to occur, and we doubt not that the rule will remain unbroken when an appeal is made to the people at large."

This is a very plain and simple way of reasoning, especially when it reaches the conclusion one desires to arrive at. But the Gazette should reflect that, in one respect, the Dominion Government forced itself as a contestant in the Provincial struggle, and made its appeal to its Ontario supporters on the ground that, in opposing the Ontario Government, they were aiding the Dominion Government. The logic of facts is fatal to the argument of the Gazette, and it requires a very hopeful spirit to see, in the result of the coming Federal elections, a parallel to the issue of the Provincial elections of the past year.

SIR JOHN'S hands must be very weak now. The Premier said, in Toronto, on the eve of the recent Provincial election, "You cannot strengthen my hands more than by turning out Mr. Mowat and putting Mr. Meredith in his place." The result didn't have a decidedly tonic effect, and the coming general Dominion elections do not promise a much better effect.

Omemee.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

The two Victorias have been gained—by the Tories—through out-landish cries, such as "Rose-Lynch Bible," "No Popery," etc., but Mr. Mowat's large majority should convince the people that Protestantism is safe yet in the hands of our worthy Premier. We hope to see the Reformers strengthened, and have no doubt they will in Peterborough, by having a press representative.

The sleighing has been excellent here for the last ten days, and was much in favor of the annual Xmas soiree, in connection with the Methodist Church, being largely attended.

The Presbyterian soiree and concert New Year's day was a grand success, realizing about $115. The singing of Miss Stevens, Peterborough, was highly appreciated by the large and mixed audience, numbering about 450 people, her excellent voice filling the large hall to such an extent as to silence the most restless, while the pronunciation of the words of her songs were easily heard.

Miss Colborne also sang with acceptance, as well as the Toronto talent and home talent.

Municipal elections resulted in the return of Dr. Cornwall, Reeve, by acclamation, and Councillors, George Lamb, Coplin Laidley, Thomas Stephenson and John McCrea.

Harvey.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS.

The election of the Reeve and Councillors for this township was held on Monday last, January 3rd. A severe contest was held between Mr. Hicks and Mr. Seymour, but Hicks gained by 17 of a majority. Those elected for councillors are as follows: Shaw, 98; Ingram, 93; Flynn, 69; Reid, 67. Fair, square canvassing won the victory.

SOIREE.

On Monday, Dec. 27th, 1886, a tea was given at Nogey's Creek, under the auspices of the Methodist congregation. At 6 o'clock a large crowd had gathered at School No. 2, to make away with the host of provisions prepared by the fair sex. After tea they resorted to the church, where their minds were feasted with wit, humor and common sense. Mr. Adam and the Indian choir did not attend, as was expected, but the Rev. Messrs. Wilson and Raley supplied the deficiency caused by Mr. Adam's absence, and the choir, organized for the occasion, filled the place of the Indian band. Proceeds about $47.

What True Merit Will Do.

The unprecedented sale of Boschee's German Syrup within a few years has astonished the world. It is without doubt the safest and best remedy ever discovered for the speedy and effectual cure of Coughs, Colds and the severest Lung troubles. It acts on an entirely different principle from the usual prescriptions given by physicians, as it does not dry up a cough and leave the disease still in the system, but on the contrary removes the cause of the trouble, heals the parts affected, and leaves them in a purely healthy condition. A bottle kept in the house for use when the diseases make their appearance, will save doctor's bills and a long spell of serious illness. A trial will convince you of these facts. It is positively sold by all druggists and general dealers in the land. Price 75 cents, large bottles. eodw4t4f

Harper's Young People.
AN ILLUSTRATED WEEKLY.

Harper's Young People has been called "the model of what a periodical for young readers ought to be," and the justice of this commendation is amply sustained by the large circulation it has attained both at home and in Great Britain. This success has been reached by methods that must commend themselves to the judgment of parents no less than to the tastes of children—namely, by an earnest and well sustained effort to provide the best and most attractive reading for young people at a low price. The illustrations are copious and of a correspondingly high standard of excellence.

An epitome of everything that is attractive and desirable in juvenile literature.—Boston Courier.

A weekly feast of good things to the boys and girls in every family which it visits.—Brooklyn Union.

It is wonderful in its wealth of pictures, information, and interest.—Christian Advocate, N. Y.

No. 2—Goods that cannot be surpassed, neither in the Midland District nor in the whole Dominion.

No. 3—That the material bought personally in Leipzig, (Ger.) is selected and acquired on better terms by means of export and import.

No. 4—That all Canadian Raw Furs are bought in great quantities direct from the trappers, affording such a selection as will give the greatest satisfaction for ordered goods.

No. 5—No guarantee is asked of us when goods are sold or ordered to be made, as our word is guarantee for truthfulness.

No. 6—That such goods are sold at the lowest possible prices.

No. 7—That the public knows, it can get furs properly repaired without being sent to Montreal or elsewhere.

No. 8—That the public acknowledges our efforts by a hearty support.

No. 9—That the advantage taken by other houses in taking orders on the pretense of being manufactured in town when such orders are sent out of town to be filled, is a fraud.

No. 10—That a guarantee given by such houses is also worthless, as only the manufacturer of such goods knows whether they are shoddy or otherwise.

The Evil Genius.

A DOMESTIC STORY.

BY WILKIE COLLINS.

To represent Bennydeck as being "tired of the sea," and as being willing to try, in place of the breezy channel, the air of a suburb of London, was to make excuses too perfectly futile and absurd to deceive any one who knew the captain. In spite of the appearance of innocence which pervaded Catherine's letter, the true motive for breaking off his cruise might be found, as Randal concluded, in Catherine herself. Her residence at the seaside, helped by the lapse of time, had restored to her personal attractions almost all that they had lost under the deteriorating influences of care and grief; and her change of name had evidently protected her from a discovery of the divorce, which must have shocked a man so sincerely religious as Bennydeck. Had her beauty fascinated him? Was she aware of the interest that he felt in her? and was it secretly understood and returned? Randal wrote to accept the invitation, determining to present himself before the appointed hour, and to question Catherine privately without giving her the advantage over him of preparing herself for the interview.

In the short time that passed before the day of the dinner distressing circumstances strengthened his resolution. After months of separation he received a visit from Herbert.

Was this man—haggard, pallid, shabby, looking at him pitcously with bloodshot eyes—the handsome, pleasant, prosperous brother whom he remembered? Randal was so grieved that he was for a moment unable to utter a word. He could only point to a seat. Herbert dropped into the chair as if he was reduced to the last extremity of fatigue. He spoke roughly; he looked like an angry man brought to bay.

"I seem to frighten you," he said.

"You distress me, Herbert, more than words can say."

"Give me a glass of wine. I've been walking—I don't know where. A long distance; I'm dead beat."

He drank the wine greedily. Whatever reviving effect it might otherwise have produced on him, it made no change in the threatening gloom of his manner. In a man morally weak, calamity (suffered without resisting power) breaks its way through the surface which exhibits a gentleman and shows the naked nature which claims kindred with our ancestor, the savage.

"Do you feel better, Herbert?"

He put down the empty glass, taking no notice of his brother's question. "Randal," he said, "you know where Sydney is."

Randal admitted it.

"Give me her address. My mind's in such a state I can't remember it; write it down."

"No, Herbert."

"You won't write it? and you won't give it?"

"I will do neither the one nor the other. Keep your seat, Herbert! fierce looks and clinched fists don't frighten me. Miss Westerfield is quite right in separating herself from you. And you are quite wrong in wishing to go back to her. There are my reasons. Try to understand them. And, once again, sit down."

He spoke sternly—with his heart aching for his brother all the time. He was right. The one way is the positive way, when a man who suffers trouble is degraded by it.

The poor wretch shrank under Randal's firm voice and steady eye.

"Don't be hard on me," he said; "I think a man in my situation is to be pitied—especially by his brother. I'm not like you; I'm not accustomed to live alone. I've been used to having a kind woman to talk to me and take care of me. You don't know what it is to be used to seeing a pretty creature, always nicely dressed, always about the room—thinking so much of you and so little of herself—and then to be left alone as I am left, out in the dark. I haven't got my wife; she has thrown me over and taken my child away from me. And now Sydney's taken away from me next. I'm alone. Do you hear that? Alone! Take the poker there out of the fireplace. Give me back Sydney, or knock out my brains. I haven't courage enough to do it for myself. Oh, why did I engage that governess! I was so happy, Randal, with Catherine and little Kitty."

He laid his head wearily on the back of his chair. Randal offered him more wine; he refused it.

"I'm afraid," he said. "Wine maddens me if I take too much of it. You have heard of men forgetting their sorrows in drink. I tried it yesterday; it set my brains on fire; I'm feeling that glass I took just now. No! I'm not faint. It eases my head when I rest like this. Shake hands, Randal; we have never had any unfriendly words; we mustn't begin now. There's something perverse about me. I didn't know how fond I was of Sydney till I lost her; I didn't know how fond I was of my wife till I left her." He paused, and put his hand to his fevered head. Was his mind wandering into some other train of thought? He astonished his brother by a new entreaty—the last imaginable entreaty that Randal expected to hear. "Dear old fellow, I want you to do me a favor. Tell me where my wife is living now."

"Surely," Randal answered, "you know that she is no longer your wife?"

"Never mind that! I have something to say to her."

"You can't do it, Herbert."

"Can you do it? Will you give her a message?"

"Let me hear what it is first."

He lifted his head, and laid his hand earnestly on his brother's arm. When he said his next words he was almost like his old self again.

"Say that I'm lonely; say that I'm dying for want of a little comfort—ask her to let me see Kitty."

His tone touched Randal to the quick. "I feel for you, Herbert," he said, warmly. "She shall have your message; all that I can do to persuade her shall be done."

"As soon as possible?"

"Yes; as soon as possible."

"And you won't forget? No, no; of course you won't forget. He tried to rise, and fell back again into his chair. "Let me rest a little," he pleaded, "if I'm not in the way. I'll go when you ask her."

Randal refused to let him go at all. "You will stay here with me; and if I happen to be away there will be somebody in the house who is almost—indeed of, you as I am." He mentioned the name of one of the old servants at Mount Morven, who had attached himself to Randal after the break-up of the family. "And now rest," he said; "and let us put this matter under your head." Herbert answered: "It's too long—[illegible]—and composed himself to rest.

CHAPTER XI.

On the next day but one Randal arranged his departure for Sydenham, so as to arrive at the hotel an hour before the time appointed for the dinner. His prospects for success in pleading for a favorable reception of his brother's message were so uncertain that he refrained—in fear of raising hopes which he might not be able to justify—from taking Herbert into his confidence. No one knew on what errand he was bent when he left the house. As he took his place in the carriage the newspaper boy appeared at the window as usual. The new number of a popular weekly journal had that day been published. Randal bought it.

After reading one or two of the political articles he arrived at the columns specially devoted to "Fashionable Intelligence." Omitting nothing for that sort of news, he was turning over the pages in search of the literary and dramatic articles, when a name not unfamiliar to him caught his eye. He read the paragraph in which it appeared.

"The charming widow, Mrs. Ormond, is, we hear, among the distinguished guests staying at Buck's hotel. It is whispered that the lady is to be shortly united to a retired naval officer of arctic fame—now better known, perhaps, as one of our leading philanthropists."

The allusion to Bennydeck was too plain to be mistaken. Randal looked again at the first words in the paragraph. "The charming widow!" Was it possible that this last word referred to Catherine! To suppose her capable of assuming to be a widow, and—if the child asked questions—of telling Kitty that her father was dead, was, in Randal's estimation, to wrong her cruelly. With his own suspicions steadily contradicting him, he arrived at the hotel obstinately believing that "the charming widow" would prove to be a stranger.

This Cut Above is the Style only.

Read the following extract from a letter of a well-known citizen of St. Catharines,—hundreds like it:

St. Catharines, Sept. 20th, 1885.

Gentlemen,—Being over 70 years of age, and over 30 years ruptured, I looked upon my case as hopeless, especially as I tried various appliances without success, among others, recently, two spring trusses made in New York State, costing me $40. Nothing would retain my Hernia. I have worn your truss over four months, night and day, with great satisfaction and comfort; even to bathe in it the rupture has never come down, it holds me perfectly secure under all circumstances. You may publish it for the benefit of other sufferers. Yours truly, Capt. B. King.

This new Spiral Spring Pad Truss has taken ten years to make it perfect; is guaranteed to hold the very worst case during the hardest work or severest strain. It will cure every child rupture and two out of every three of adults. Be warned—don't waste your money on useless appliances, but send stamp for our treatise; it contains full information, your neighbors' testimony price list and questions for you to answer. Examiner Bindery.

Merchants and business men, now is the time to call at the EXAMINER bindery and leave your orders for journals, day books, ledgers, invoice books, cheque books, and all blank books used in business. Don't wait till the moment you want to use them. All blank books last longer for not being used immediately after being finished.

Cheap Carpets, Oil Cloths, and Mats at the Golden Lion.

Something New.

Mr. F. J. Daly, the enterprising and accommodating proprietor of the Grand Central hotel, has placed a reading desk in the bar-room of the hotel, upon which are found the Toronto daily papers, New York Clipper, Spirit of the Times, and other sporting and domestic papers. The innovation will doubtless be greatly appreciated by patrons of the hotel, and will reflect still further upon Mr. Daly's reputation as a Boniface who understands his business, and knows how to cater successfully to the intellectual, as well as the alimentary wants of his large and daily increasing custom.

Time Half Past—Still Great Chances.

Two more weeks remain of the month's chances for big bargains offered by Belleghem. The offer was a bona fide one, and hundreds have taken advantage of it by purchasing the best of all kinds of furniture at 'way-down prices. And still there are big bargains for hundreds more. Belleghem's warerooms are crowded with a magnificent stock of superb furniture of every description and variety, and for the next two weeks it will be cut down to extremely low prices. Now is the time to get bargains and make home handsome and happy by buying furniture of the latest style at bottom prices. A dollar never went so far before in buying goods as it does at Belleghem's great holiday sale. Come one, come all; from hut or hall Grand goods on sight, with prices right. Bargains galore for two weeks more.

Municipal Elections.

An item in yesterday's EXAMINER, to the effect that Mr. Jas. Stenson had been elected in No. 2 Ward over Mr. T. Kelly, will bear correction. At the first count on election day it appeared that Mr. A. McNeil had secured 259 votes, J. McClelland 221, and T. Kelly and Jas. Stenson 219 each. A recount placed Mr. Kelly second with 221 votes, and Messrs. McClelland and Stenson a tie, with 219 votes to the credit of each. Then the returning officer decided that a ballot bearing three crosses opposite Mr. Stenson's name, rejected by the deputy-returning officer, was valid, thus giving Mr. Stenson the election. The returning officer has, however, left the matter open to an appeal. Mr. McClelland, the defeated candidate, was a good councillor and his services will be missed. Messrs. McNeil, Kelly and Stenson will represent the ward in the council this year. The only new councillors are Messrs. John Douglass and James Stenson.

Emphatic Denial.

Our down street contemporary and its political confederates, are and have been seeking to create the impression that Mr. Stratton is a party to the obstruction of the enforcement of the Scott Act, particular pains having been taken to connect his name in this manner with the case decided yesterday. The insinuations in this connection are utterly unfounded and any statement based on them is a deliberate and wanton falsehood. These disreputable insinuations are made with the object of creating political capital, and the attempt to connect Mr. Stratton's name with them is a part of the scheme. If the political responsibility in the premises is to be alluded to, it may be pointed out that the Mayor of the town is a good Tory, and a Tory candidate; the Chief of Police, appointed by Tory influence, is a Tory and voted for Mr. Carnegie, and the counsel for the defendant in yesterday's case is a Tory also. If Mr. Stratton can control all these gentlemen in the discharge of their duty, he has more influence than he is usually credited with. It is only necessary to allude to these facts to make unnecessary the emphatic denial, which is, however, here made, that Mr. Stratton has anything to do with the course of law in Scott Act cases.

A Big Day for the Oddfellows.

Successful Lodge of Instruction.

Yesterday, J. B. King, Esq., Grand Secretary of the Grand Lodge of the Independent Order of Oddfellows, as Grand Instructor, held a lodge of instruction in the secret work of the Order in the hall of Otonabee Lodge. A large number of members was in attendance and many visitors from adjacent districts took advantage of the opportunity. Two sessions were held, one in the afternoon and one in the evening. The afternoon meeting aroused so much interest that, as a result, a largely increased attendance was present at the evening session, considerably over 100 members having been present. The plan of instruction adopted by the Grand Instructor is so simple and practical that the best possible results are secured. After the conclusion of the evening proceedings the members present and guests adjourned to the Snowdon House, where a splendid supper was awaiting them. Mr. E. E. Henderson, D.D.G.M., occupied the chair, having on his right Mr. King, Grand Secretary, and on his left Mr. J. B. Ferris, of Campbellford. The vice-chairs were ably filled by Bro. T. Workman, N.G., Otonabee Lodge, No. 13, and Bro. W. Galley, N.G., Peterborough Lodge, No. 111. The toasts included "The Queen," "The Army, Navy and Volunteers," the latter being responded to by Bro (Major) Bell and Bro. (Capt.) Cooper.

The toast of the evening, "Our Guest," Bro. J. B. King, Grand Instructor, was proposed by the chairman, Bro. Henderson, D. D. G. M. who in the course of his remarks, paid a most emphatic tribute to the very able, instructive and effective manner in which Bro. King had discharged his important duties not only on the present occasion but in the general course of his official work. Bro. King's personal popularity throughout his jurisdiction was also gracefully referred to. These sentiments met the strongest endorsation of all the members present, all feeling that they had derived great benefit from the visit of their distinguished guest.

Bro. King, on rising to respond, was received with enthusiastic applause, and after acknowledging the toast, stated that he was always willing to do anything in his power to promote the interests of the Order with which he had been identified as Grand Secretary for 21 years continuously. He trusted the present occasion was only preparatory to the visit of the Grand Lodge to the beautiful and prosperous town of Peterborough, conspicuous for harmonious and thriving Oddfellowship, as well as commercial prosperity.

After the toast to the Grand Lodge, the vice-chairman, Bro. Workman, proposed "Our Visiting Brethren," which called forth able responses from Bro. J. B. Ferris, N.G., Campbellford Lodge, Bros. Dack and P. McMillan, Toronto; J. McGuire and W. Pringle, Belleville, and Bro. Marshall, of Walkerton Lodge, and a song from Bro. John A. Davis, of Belleville.

The "Learned Professions" called to their feet Bros. W. A. Stratton, Dr. Clarke, R. W. Errett and R. Nimmo.

"Banking Interests" was acknowledged by Bro. Lacy, P.G.

"Mercantile Interests" called up Bros. W. J. Minore, John Nugent, Jos. Mills, J. D. Tully, F. Foote, M. Long and Bro. Hendry, who gave a song.

The "Press" was responded to by Bro. Wm. Cowie.

The second vice-chairman in proposing the toast of "The Ladies," did so in felicitous style, coupling with it the names of Bro. T. Workman and Bro. Errett, who discharged their trust in a most gallant and humorous manner.

With "God Save the Queen" and "Auld Lang Syne," sung in the time honored style, closed one of the most enjoyable and profitable gatherings of the Order ever held in Peterborough.

Obituary.

On Monday Mrs. Robert Peters, of Springville, died in the 84th year of her age. Deceased was mother of Mr. Geo. Peters, librarian of our Mechanics Institute. The body was taken to Toronto by Mr. Peters Wednesday morning, where he was met at the north station by his brother and a number of friends. The remains were interred in the Necropolis. Mr. Robert Peters, husband of the deceased lady, is still alive, though deeply mourning the loss of one who has been by his side constantly for 64 years. Mr. Peters is an old soldier, having served 25 years in the British army—in the 93rd Highlanders and Royal Canadian Regiment. His regiment helped suppress the rebellion of 1838. Mr. and Mrs. Peters lived in Toronto till 12 years ago, when they moved to Springville. The deceased lady leaves a husband and two sons, and a number of grand-children and great-grand-children.

Our School Trustees.

To the Editor of the Daily Examiner.

SIR,—I have been informed, by one who ought to know, that when a motion has been offered at the Board of Trustees to make the mode of their election by ballot, some of them have opposed it, for the reason that they could not hope of being chosen otherwise than by the obsolete open vote. I cannot help thinking that this a slander, and beg to suggest that they prove this by going into line with the much improved system of voting by ballot.

To-night.

Don't fail to see the Choral Festival to-night. The Xmas trees on each side of the stage are loaded with presents, and, taken in conjunction with the band and the sight of the cheerful young faces smiling down on the audience, it will be worth looking at and hearing.

Muscular Christianity.

The trouble in Lindsay between the Salvationists and the town authorities has not yet ended. Tuesday night a detachment of the Army was praying in front of a hotel, and were requested to move on. This they refused to do, and the police undertook to arrest them. Several outsiders came to the rescue of the Salvationists, while an equal number upheld the authorities. A scrimmage took place, in which broken heads, black eyes and bloody noses became as plentiful as roses in June. Law finally triumphed, order was restored, and eight or ten of the offending parties were marched to the lock-up. This, with the 27 arrested New Year's day and the 5 locked up on Monday, makes a total of 40 arrests of Salvationists in Lindsay inside of a week. The case came up for trial at Lindsay to-day, but as there were about 75 witnesses subpœnaed, it is expected to occupy several days in hearing. Commissioner Coombs, of Toronto, and Adjutant Bolton and Captain Pople, of Peterborough, are in Lindsay watching the case.

Literary Notices.

It is believed that the success of Scribner's Magazine is unique in the history of magazines. The first (January) number was published on December 15th, the first edition being 100,000 copies. It was exhausted on the day of publication. On Saturday, December 18th, a second edition of 25,000 copies appeared, which was at once consumed, and an additional 15,000 was put to press—140,000 copies have been already sold. The demand was so great that it was impossible to keep the dealers supplied. On the day of publication, 2,000 copies were sold upon the newsstand of one of the New York hotels, nearly 500 copies were disposed of on the first afternoon of its appearance, and several of the dealers at the ferries leading from New York sold 600 copies on the first day.

The February number of Scribner's Magazine, of which 125,000 copies have been ordered as a first edition, will contain a most interesting article, by Mr. John C. Ropes, upon the "Likenesses of Julius Cæsar," with 18 portraits, one of which engraved by Mr. W. B. Closson, will be the frontispiece of the number. A new story is begun in the same number, by Mr. F. J. Stimson (J. S. of Dale), entitled, "The Residuary Legatee." The second instalment of ex-Minister Washburne's "Reminiscences of the Siege and Commune of Paris" is of the greatest interest, describing as it does the most interesting phases of the Siege.

WHY
Will people pay rent when houses and lots can be purchased on such easy terms as are offered by the undersigned. Come and inspect our work and see for yourselves how we construct our houses. Our chief aim and study is to build substantial, warm, frost and damp proof houses. I am offering good building lots, and will build solid brick houses, nine-inch walls, strapped and lathed, two stories, for less money than you can buy frame or roughcast buildings. We cordially invite those who anticipate renting or buying to inspect our work and prove for themselves that our houses are not merely built to sell. Every house I've sold gives first-class satisfaction, and I am determined that every house I build shall be a standing testimony to honest building. JOHN CARLISLE, Dorcas Street, 2nd block west of St. Andrew's Church. wd

WORKING CLASSES ATTENTION
We are now prepared to furnish all classes with employment at home, the whole time, or for spare moments. Business new, light and profitable. Persons of either sex easily earn from 50 cents to $5.00 per evening, and a proportional sum by devoting all their time to the business. Boys and girls earn nearly as much as men. That all who see this may send their address, and test the business, we make this offer. To such as are not well satisfied we will send $1 to pay for the trouble of writing. Full particulars and outfit free. Address Stinson & Co. Portland, Maine.

THE DOMINION ELECTIONS.

The Return of Sir Charles Tupper.

MONTREAL, Jan. 6.—The coming return of Sir Charles Tupper, announced in this morning's Government organs, has caused considerable excitement among politicians particularly, and much curiosity is expressed as to the meaning of his visit.

It is generally believed that he is coming back while his success as High Commissioner is fresh in the public mind, especially in connection with the Colonial Exhibition, to re-enter the Cabinet, which will probably be re-organized.

Not According to Queensbury Rules.

EDINBURG, Jan. 6.—The Marchioness of Queensbury has instituted an action for divorce against her husband, the Marquis of Queensbury. The action will be tried here next week.

The Marquis of Queensberry is 42 years of age. He was married on February 25, 1866, to Syb l, daughter of Alfred Montgomery, by whom he has had four sons and one daughter

Secretary Manning Very Ill.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 6.—A Washington despatch to the Times says: There appears to be a very general impression in Administration circles that Secretary Manning is not mending in health as rapidly nor as surely as his friends would have it appear. His difficulty in the use of his limb has not only increased, but the paralytic movement has become settled upon him. He is often slow in recognising acquaintances. It is also a fact which is not generally known that almost the entire business of the department has again been taken off the hands of Mr. Manning and devolves upon Assistant Secretary Fairchild.

Drought-stricken Texas.

FORT WORTH, Texas, Jan. 6.—The Gazette makes the following estimate of the number of destitute families in the drought-stricken region of Texas: Callahan county, 50; Parker, 150; Taylor, 200; Polo Pinto, 250; Coleman, 150; Jack, 300; Stephens, 350; Runnels, 200; Jones, 225; Shackleford, 150; Haskell, 30; Young, 150; Brown, 400; Eastland, 500; Comanche, 500; Nolan, 50; Fisher, 100; Erath, 150; Morton, 16, and Hardman 120. From several counties no figures have yet been obtained.

The Gazette says there is suffering in certain counties that demands immediate relief.

Suspected of the Murder of His Wife.

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—Ferdinand Wickemann, a German, who is employed in a brewery on Staten Island, has been arrested on suspicion of murdering his wife. Mrs. Wickemann disappeared in April last and Wickemann married another woman in less than two months. Soon after Mrs. Wickemann disappeared Wickemann set out a number of rose-bushes in his garden and it is thought he then buried the remains. An investigation is proceeding. The prisoner claims that his wife had another husband living in Bavaria, and that she deserted him.

Adrift on an Ice Floe.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Jan. 6.—John Grigsby, aged 12, went skating with a party of friends on the Ohio, 25 miles above Louisville yesterday. He went out too far and the ice broke, carrying him away on a huge cake. He called to his companions to save him, but the ice was grinding and surging so much that no skiff could reach him. The news was carried to his father who mounted a horse and followed the boy 23 miles down the river. He finally got two fishermen to row out and rescue his son, who was nearly dead from cold and fright. His escape was almost miraculous.

Tenement House Cigars.

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—Cigar dealers have commenced in a quiet way to get the tenement house system in full blast again. Three delegates from the Cigarmakers' Union to the States Assembly at Albany will be elected Saturday next, and the draft of an anti-tenement bill will be placed in their care. The convention in Albany is appointed for the 18th of this month. When the labor of the delegates is finished the proposed bill will be pushed through at an early date if possible

Fatal Explosion of Natural Gas.

PITTSBURG, Jan. 6.—A natural gas explosion at Youngstown, O., at 3 o'clock this morning destroyed the new Andrews block and four other buildings. Thomas Brannigan, aged 19 years, was cremated and several others are reported missing. The Baptist Church and Drake's livery stables are in ruins. The loss will be over $100,000.

Suicide in Paris.

PARIS, Jan. 6.—The Marquise de Roys, widow of a former member of the Chamber of Deputies, committed suicide to-day by throwing herself out of a window. She had been suffering from melancholia due to the loss of her husband.

The Imperial Institute Idea.

LONDON, Jan. 6.—The Prince of Wales will preside on January 12 at a meeting of the lords-lieutenant, mayors and other public officials from all parts of the Kingdom to discuss the proposal to establish an Imperial Institute.

Lansdowne's Refusal.

LONDON, Jan. 6.—The Marquis of Lansdowne's declination of the office proffered by the Marquis of Salisbury has been received by the latter.

A New Competitor for the Wheat Trade.

PARIS, Jan. 6.—M. Lockroy, Minister of Commerce, announces that wheat of excellent quality and superior weight has been exported for the first time by Russia from the Caucasus. Large cargoes of this wheat have been sent to Odessa, across the Black Sea from the ports of Poti and Batoum, de-tined for the Adriatic and the English Channel.

A Chap Around.

"I hope my dear, that you dont intend to go to the theater alone?" No, indeed; I never go unless I am chaperoned. "Unless what?" "Chaperoned." "That's just the way with me I always like to have a chap around.

ST. CATHARINES EXCITED.

OVER A SCANDAL THAT GREW OUT OF A FRACAS ON A TRAIN.

Gen. Smyth Assaults Rev. Oliver Booth and Drawing a Revolver Threatens To Shoot Some One—Both Gentlemen Refuse To Tell the Cause of the Trouble.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 6.—On the authority of the St. Catharines Journal on Tuesday afternoon a local paper published a statement that there was "no foundation whatever" for a report published that day concerning an attack on Rev. Oliver J. Booth of this city, formerly of St. Thomas' Church, St. Catharines, by a man named Smyth. The assumption was quite natural that it was a case of mistaken identity. Investigation has proved that there was no mistake of identity, and that the assault occurred. Interviews with the brakeman who saw the attack and wrenched the pistol from Smyth, and subsequently with Rev. Mr. Booth, fully established the fact of the assault. It was stated in the despatch that the assailant showed or indicated possession of letters criminating the clergyman in some way; that after handling Mr. Booth very roughly he drew a revolver, which the brakeman wrenched away after a hard struggle, and that he declared that he did not mean to shoot Mr. Booth but only to "put myself out of my misery." Many rumors have been afloat since to the effect that Mr. Smyth was a General on Sherman's staff in the war and that he and his wife were parishioners of Rev. Mr. Booth in St. Catharines before the latter came here, that Smyth was jealous of his wife, and coming to Buffalo on business believed Mr. Booth was taking advantage of his absence to visit Mrs. Smyth.

A reporter met Mr. Booth at Suspension Bridge yesterday afternoon on his return from St. Catharines and stated to him the nature of the reports. Mr. Booth then declined to say anything more than that the trouble was a misunderstanding and was amicably arranged. He denied any unlawful intimacy with Mrs. Smyth.

A reporter went to St. Catharines this morning and interviewed Mr. Smyth. He is Gen. Wm. Scoy Smyth, the eminent civil engineer. Mr. Smyth does not deny the statements made concerning him, but declines to disclose what the trouble was. Gen. Smyth had very little to say, but the story as told by witnesses appears to be true. Gen. Smyth married Miss Josie Hartwell, daughter of the late Col. Hartwell, about a year ago, and she was considered the belle of St. Catharines. Her beauty was of a blonde type and she had many admirers, some of whom have taken delight in sending letters to the General in which her conduct was criticised. While there may have been no reason for such a procedure, yet the fact that Mrs. Smyth was so much younger and had had so many friends may have furnished an excuse. The Smyth and the Booth families have been on visiting terms and are understood to have been very friendly. Rev. Mr. Booth was a bank clerk or a dry goods clerk in Montreal before he obtained holy orders and came to St. Thomas' Church, St. Catharines, about six years ago. Rev. Mr. Booth has a most excellent reputation and married into the wealthiest family in St. Catharines. He had always been a kindly man to his parishioners, especially women and children, according to report.

THE FALLS SUICIDE.

It was Frank Cutting, of Buffalo, Who Jumped From the Suspension Bridge.

BUFFALO, Jan. 6.—It is believed that the man who committed suicide by leaping from the railroad suspension bridge at Niagara Falls, last Monday evening, was Frank E. Cutting, of this city, who has been missing since Monday morning last. The description given by those who saw the suicide answers that of Cutting. He resided at 578 Oak-street, and was employed as bookkeeper by Samuel Newman, the tailor, corner of Church and Pearl-streets. Friday afternoon a customer came in to settle a bill, and Cutting, not being able to make the change, stepped into Fulton market to get small bills for a $20. He asked for two $5 bills as part of the change, and it was afterwards discovered that a $50 had been given him by mistake. The services of special McCabe of the third precinct were secured, and Cutting was found at a dance at New Era Hall. Cutting admitted receiving the money, returned it to the officer, and stated that he intended to restore it personally to Messrs. Stafford of Fulton Market on Monday. On that morning he suddenly left town and was next seen at the Windsor Hotel, Clifton, Ont., where he registered as Frank Ernest, using his middle instead of his last name. He went out late in the afternoon and did not return. By Tuesday morning's mail a registered letter arrived at the home on Oak-street, addressed to Miss Blanche, a sister. It was from Frank, was dated at Clifton, and was a formal good-bye, stating that he had gone, not to return to Buffalo again. With the letter was his membership card in the Ancient Order of United Workmen. Besides this there was a letter for Mr. Newman, the employer, which was immediately delivered. The envelope contained a borrowed diamond pin and bills to the amount of $3, which the young man said he had taken from the cash drawer. In the note accompanying he said good-bye, and remarked that if anything was said about the $50 bill matter, not to pay any attention to it, for it didn't amount to anything. By the same mail a member of the St. Andrew's Scottish Society received from him four or five ball tickets he had taken to sell, accompanied by the request that the proper credit might be made.

Charles Cutting, a brother, and Mr. Newman, visited the Falls yesterday and found the facts of the visit to the Windsor Hotel as stated. They had search made for the body, but without success, and returned on the evening train, having offered a reward of $50 for the recovery of the body.

Socialists Victorious.

CHICAGO, Jan. 7.—The socialistic element was victorious at the annual election of District Assembly No. 24, Knights of Labor, last night. The conservative element in this assembly is regarded as sufficiently strong, however, to defeat any exceptionally radical action.

The Head of Shanty Hill.

SCRANTON, Pa., Jan. 6.—Mrs. Sarah A. Kelly, better known as the "Bard of Shanty Hill," who has gained national fame through her eccentricities, was admitted to the Lackawanna Hospital yesterday suffering from a complication of diseases. Her recovery is doubtful.

Escaped From Imprisonment.

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—Tom Foye, the American whose imprisonment at Colon led to the United States steamer Yantic being sent there, has arrived here. He escaped from prison and has undergone great hardship while in hiding to avoid re-arrest.

Mollie Maguireism Revived.

PITTSBURG, Jan. 6.—Mollie Maguireism is reviving in Fayette County. Capt. Husted, Manager of the Dunbar Furnace stores, where Maurice Healy was murdered five years ago, has just received the regulation "death notice."

Keefe's Condition Unchanged.

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—The condition of John Roach to-night remains unchanged.

Batterine Factories Closed.

PITTSBURG, Jan. 6.—The batterine factories of C. H. Robinson & Co. in this city, and of the Pittsburg Meltine Company at Allegheny, have closed on account of the State law prohibiting the manufacture and sale of oleomargarine being declared constitutional. There is $60,000 invested in the two factories.

NOTICE TO ADVERTISERS.

Advertisers in the DAILY EXAMINER are requested to hand in their changes by 6 o'clock p.m. for the next day's paper. This will save disappointment, as it is impossible to make so many changes as are sometimes sent in on one day.

IDDESLEIGH WANTED WAR.

HE BELIEVED IN CONFRONTING RUSSIA IN BULGARIA.

Lord Randolph Churchill Did Not Believe in Such Extreme Measures and Prevented Resolution by Threatening to Resign.

LONDON, Jan. 6.—The Vienna correspondent of the Daily Telegraph says: New Year's day peace assurances appear to have fallen very flat on European financial markets and upon public opinion generally. The fact is, that such half-hearted manifestations could deceive only those optimistically inclined, or whose information was at fault. Intelligence comes from Warsaw that the Russian war office has decided to construct more forts on the Austrian frontier, to be commenced at once.

Meanwhile, the Bulgarian difficulty is making no progress, at least not in the direction of a settlement. The mooted return of Prince Alexander has made a profound impression in Russia. The Russian press is unanimous in representing it as involving a casus belli. Information comes from Sofia to-day that as the engagement of foreign officials by the Bulgarian Government has met with difficulties, they have made arrangements with the Belgian Government to secure Belgian officers to study in Belgium. In view of the improving military system in their country this scarcely looks as if the return of Russian officers to Bulgaria were anticipated.

The Porte Threatened.

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—A London special says that it is learned from a private source entirely trustworthy that the bombardment of Constantinople was threatened by Lord Iddesleigh, British Foreign Minister, should Turkey form an alliance with Russia.

The correspondent also learns Lord Randolph Churchill decided to offer his resignation three times. The first time was when Lord Iddesleigh was just taking the almost incredible step of despatching Goudie Stephen, one of the hottest of Russophobists in England, to Sofia to urge the Bulgarians to resist Russia to the last. This would have been simply throwing a lighted match into a powder barrel. The second time was when Lord Salisbury despatched a secret memorandum to Vienna offering a fighting alliance with Austria. On both of these occasions Churchill stopped the folly of the Government by threats of instant resignation.

A Chicago Tragedy.

CHICAGO, Jan. 6.—Charles Johnson, a tailor, quarrelled with his wife yesterday and she threatened to get a divorce. This crazed Johnson, and he ran to a bureau, took a revolver from a drawer and fired twice at his wife, slightly wounding her. As she sank fainting with fright and excitement to the floor, Johnson placed the weapon to his own head, fired twice and died instantly. Mrs. Johnson was not seriously hurt. Johnson was jealous.

Shot by Her Playmate.

BATAVIA, Jan. 6.—Mabel Putnam, aged 4 years, daughter of John H. Putnam, Batavia, was fatally shot yesterday afternoon by Roy Crandorf, a playmate of her own age, who had discovered his father's revolver, and was playing with it, when it was discharged, the ball lodging in her neck. She lived but a few hours.

FRIDAY, JANUARY 7, 1887.

THE DOMINION ELECTIONS.

The Dominion elections are announced for Feb. 15th, and, of course, they will take place before another session of Parliament. This course is unavoidable; even Sir John, with his well known disregard of constitutional principles, could not run counter to the very plain indications of duty incumbent on him under the circumstances. The Dominion Election Act made a considerable extension of the franchise, and as Mr. Mowat was forced under similar conditions to appeal to the practically new electorate, so has Sir John been forced to bring on the elections. No doubt Sir John has taken the present course against the wishes and supplications of the boodle brigade, which makes so large a part of his following, but he feared to yield to their wishes for another sessions' indemnity. Public opinion would resent his disregard of the important constitutional principle under which he has been compelled to act, and this resentment reacting on the respectable members of the Ministerial side of the House would perhaps prove dangerous to the stability of the Cabinet, now in a most admirable state of demoralization. Every hour and every day witnesses a weakening of the position of the Dominion Cabinet, and the longer the evil day was postponed the more precarious the chances of succeeding at the polls. Hence Sir John, driven to it by a variety of circumstances, has brought himself to the point of advising a dissolution of Parliament. He and his colleagues would rather take their chances now than risk the damaging parliamentary revelations and political reaction that would, a year hence, utterly destroy his chances. The Liberal party is ready for the fray. They have in Ontario practically beaten Sir John, for at the recent provincial elections the whole power, resources and influence of the Dominion Government were at the service of Mr. Meredith to ensure the defeat of Mr. Mowat. If these were powerless last month to give a Conservative triumph, is there any great reason to fear that they will be much more successful next month? No. With united and earnest work, and with the whole strength of the Liberal party brought to bear on the issues at the polls, Ontario, in conjunction with the majority of the provinces of the Dominion, will repeat at the polls the declaration of last year of a determination that honest Government is the right of the people of this great Dominion.

AN ENCOURAGING RECORD.

The Liberals of the Dominion enter into the coming fight—the Dominion elections—under encouraging auspices. The record for the past year has been one of continuous triumph for Liberal principles. This is the record of Liberal victories in 1886:—

Vercheres, Lotbiniere, and Drummond and Arthabaska carried at bye-elections for the Quebec Assembly.

Thirty out of forty-one seats carried in the general election for the New Brunswick Legislature.

Thirty out of thirty-eight seats carried in the Nova Scotia local general election.

A Tory majority of 539 in Chambly turned into a Liberal majority of 80.

The Liberal majority in Haldimand increased by 60.

A Tory majority of thirty in the Quebec Legislature turned into a minority of ten.

Six out of seven seats in the Prince Edward Island Legislative Council carried.

A Tory majority of seventeen in the Manitoba Legislature reduced to five.

The Liberal majority of ten or twelve in the Ontario Legislature at the 1883 election increased to a Liberal majority of at least twenty-five at the 1886 election.

"WHITHER ARE WE DRIFTING?"

The inquiry made by the Montreal Herald, an independent journal of Conservative traditions, is one that may be counsel with care and profit by every elector. The Herald says:

"Whither are we drifting? Where is it all to end? Into what frightful abyss of political and financial bankruptcy is the Dominion to be plunged ere a halt is called in the mad career of those who claim to be "governing the country? How much more misrepresentation and mal-administration will the people stand before they rise in wrath and cast out those unclean spirits that have made the honored name of Legislature a by-word in the land? How many more charters must be sold, how many more "blind shares" purchased, how many more sales of politician's influence for money or money's worth, how many more "boodle" bills must pass through Parliament, how many more railway subsidies must be distributed amongst members of the Commons and Senate, how many more licenses of timber limits, coal lands, ranches, &c., must go to members, how many more tariffs must be made and changed and re-constructed to put money in the pockets of M.P.'s and their friends, how many more monopolies established, how much more ring legislation, before the electors of Canada will rise en masse and thrust from them the unfaithful stewards who, instead of protecting the property committed to their charge, have themselves plundered it and promoted the plundering by their chief and many followers?"

Keene.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

A happy new year to the EXAMINER! Long may it live and flourish in the esteem of numberless patrons. We congratulate the editor on a political success that is very gratifying to the readers of this paper, and hope the honors he has so early won will be worn in unswerving faith to the men and principles that have placed him in this proud position.

Keene, like all the other localities, was much exercised on the occasion. But Keene is but mortal, and like other mortals, liable to many mistakes and disappointments. Of course, some have to be so; all cannot succeed; and to those who are in the minority we would say, "Remember what was left in the bottom of Pandora's box—and hope for the good times we are sure to have now Mowat has such a grand majority." More power to him!!

The number of casualties that have occurred lately, and the many deaths in our locality, have cast a shadow over the usual round of gayeties that grace winter. Still the cutter's sleighs ring cheerily on the air—day and night. On New Year's eve the club played "the auld year awa" and the new one here. The skating rink also is in full sway, and few small towns can excel our rink building. We cordially invite visitors to see and judge for themselves. Speaking of casualties that have occurred—Mrs. McCann, wife of Mr. Jas. McCann, shoemaker here, fell on the floor last Thursday about noon, or shortly after, and broke her left arm near the wrist. She had come in from outside and her shoes were icy and there was a little water on the painted floor on which she slipped. Throwing her arm back to save herself it got the blow; also the good lady was otherwise much jarred. She is doing as well as can be expected.

A little daughter of Mr. Chas. Leitch, of Asphodel, also broke her arm—by a fall in the house not long ago. She is recovering.

Mr. Geo. Weeks, shoemaker, died rather suddenly on Sunday before Christmas, after four days illness. He leaves a widow and daughter to face the cold world, and what a strange thing it is, that this poor widow is the fifteenth of that sorrowful class of society, on the street on which she lives. Fifteen widows within a mile or thereabouts on one street! in a village of say three hundred inhabitants, at an outside estimate. This village contains over twenty widows altogether, and half a dozen widowers. One good man on the street above mentioned was heard to say he would leave it, as it was not safe for married men! And there are more than half a score of widows just round this devoted spot, within a radius of three, or four miles out. Poor humanity!

Inter-Collegiate Prohibition Club.

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 5.—At yesterday's session of the National Inter-Collegiate Prohibition Club the following officers were elected: President, A. E. Jennings, Ann Arbor, Mich.; First Vice-President, H. R. Jacobs, Whitewater, Wis.; Second Vice-President, J. M. Robertson, New Wilmington, Pa.; Secretary, C. W. Herman, Syracuse, N.Y., University; Assistant Secretary, E. R. McKinney, Michigan State University.

A Wealthy Woman's Dog Bites Her.

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—Mrs. John T. Ellis of Sarlow-on-the-Sound, a well-known society lady, sailed yesterday on the Arizona for Liverpool and will go thence to Paris to be treated by Pasteur. She was recently bitten by a pet dog which showed signs of hydrophobia, and, while she does not apprehend danger, her friends think it best to take all possible precautions.

Free Trade.

The reduction of internal revenue and the taking off of revenue stamps from Proprietary Medicines, no doubt has largely benefitted the consumers, as well as relieving the burden of home manufacturers. Especially is this the case with Green's August Flower and Boschee's German Syrup, as the reduction of thirty six cents per dozen has been added to increase the size of the bottles containing these remedies, thereby giving one-fifth more medicine in the 75 cent size. The August Flower for Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint, and the German Syrup for Cough and Lung troubles have, perhaps, the largest sale of any medicines in the world. The advantage of increased size of the bottles will be greatly appreciated by the sick and afflicted, in every town and village in civilized countries. Sample bottles for 10c. remain in the same size. eodw41

CAMPBELL'S TONIC ELIXIR

This agreeable yet potent preparation is especially adapted for the relief and cure of that class of disorders attendant upon a low or reduced state of the system, and usually accompanied by Pallor, Weakness and Palpitation of the Heart. Prompt results will follow its use in cases of Sudden Exhaustion arising from Loss of Blood, Acute or Chronic Diseases, and in the weakness that invariably accompanies the recovery from Wasting Fevers. No remedy will give more speedy relief in Dyspepsia or Indigestion, its action on the stomach being that of a gentle and harmless tonic, exciting the organs of digestion to action, and thus affording immediate and permanent relief. The carminative properties of the different aromatics which the Elixir contains render it useful in Flatulent Dyspepsia. It is a valuable remedy for Atonic Dyspepsia, which is apt to occur in persons of a gouty character.

For Impoverished Blood, Loss of Appetite, Despondency, and in all cases where an effective and certain stimulant is required, the Elixir will be found invaluable.

In Fevers of a Malarial Type, and the various evil results following exposure to the cold or wet weather, it will prove a valuable restorative, as the combination of Cinchona Calisaya and Serpentaria are universally recognized as specifics for the above-named disorders.

Sold by all Dealers in Family Medicines.

A first disappointment was in store for him when he entered the house. Mrs. Ormond and her little girl were out driving with a friend, and were expected to return in good time for dinner. Mrs. Presty was at home; she was reported to be in the garden of the hotel.

Randal found her comfortably established in a summer house, with her knitting in her hands and a newspaper on her lap. She advanced to meet him, all smiles and amiability. "How nice of you to come so soon," she began. Her keen penetration discovered something in his face which checked the gayety of her welcome. "You don't mean to say that you are going to spoil our pleasant little dinner by bringing bad news?" she added, looking at him suspiciously.

"It depends on you to decide that," Randal replied.

"How very complimentary to a poor, useless old woman! Don't be mysterious, my dear. I don't belong to the generation which raises storms in teacups and calls skirmishes with savages battles. Out with it!"

Randal handed his paper to her, open at the right place. "There is my news," he said.

Mrs. Presty looked at the paragraph and handed the newspaper to Randal.

"I am indeed sorry to spoil your dramatic effect," she said. "But you ought to have known that we are only half an hour behind you at Sydenham in the matter of news. The report is premature, my good friend. But if these newspaper people waited to find out whether a report was true or false, how much gossip would society get in its favorite newspapers? Besides, if it isn't true now, it will be true next week. The author only says 'it's whispered.' How delicate of him! What a perfect gentleman!"

"Am I really to understand, Mrs. Presty, that Catherine——",

"You are to understand that Catherine is a widow. I say it with pride, a widow of my making!"

"If this is one of your jokes, ma'am——"

"Nothing of the sort, sir."

"Are you aware, Mrs. Presty, that my brother——"

"Oh, don't talk of your brother! He's an obstacle in our way, and we have been compelled to get rid o him."

"What do you mean?"

"My dear Randal, I have been obliged to treat him like a character in a novel. I have shipwrecked your brother. Vessel found in the Atlantic bottom upward—all drowned, my dear friend; all drowned."

Randal drew back a step. Mrs. Presty's audacity was something more than he could understand. "Is this woman mad?" he said to himself.

"Sit down," said Mrs. Presty. "If you are determined to make a serious business of it—if you insist on my justifying myself—you are to be pitied for not possessing a sense of humor, but you shall have your own way. I am put on my defense. Very well. You shall hear how my poor divorced daughter and my poor little grandchild were treated at Sandyseal after you left us."

Having related the circumstances, she suggested that Randal should put himself in Catherine's place before he ventured on expressing an opinion. "Would you have exposed yourself to be humiliated again in the same way?" she asked, "and would you have seen your child made to suffer as well as yourself?"

"I should have kept in retirement for the future," he answered, "and not have trusted my child and myself among strangers in hotels."

"Ah, indeed? And you would have condemned your poor little daughter to solitude? You would have seen her pining for the company of other children and would have had no mercy on her? I wonder what you would have done when Capt. Bennydeck paid us a visit at the seaside? He was introduced to Mrs. Ormond and to Mrs. Ormond's little girl, and we were all charmed with him. When he and I happened to be left together he naturally wondered, after having seen the charming wife, where the lucky husband might be. If he had asked us about Mr. Ormond how would you have answered him?"

"I should have told the truth."

"You would have said there was no Mr. Ormond?"

"Yes."

"Exactly what I did! And the captain of course concluded (after having been introduced to Kitty) that Mrs. Ormond was a widow. If I had said no, what would have become of my daughter's reputation? If I had told the truth at this hotel, when everybody wanted to know what Mrs. Ormond, that handsome lady, was—what would the consequences have been to Catherine and her little girl? No! no! I have made the best of a miserable situation; I have consulted the tranquillity of a cruelly injured woman and an innocent child—and the voice of my conscience says 'Well done, Mrs. Presty!'"

Randal decided on leaving her. "Have you done all this with Catherine's consent?" he asked, as he got up from his chair.

"Catherine submits to circumstances, like a sensible woman."

"Does she submit to your telling Kitty that her father is dead?"

For the first time Mrs. Presty became serious.

"Wait a minute," she answered. "Before I consented to answer the child's inquiries I came to an understanding with the mother, I said: 'Will you let Kitty see her father again?'"

The very question which Randal had promised to ask in his brother's interests! "And how did Catherine answer you?" he inquired.

"Honestly. She said: 'I daren't!' After that I had her mother's authority for telling her that she would never see her father again. She asked directly if her father was dead——"

"That will do, Mrs. Presty. Your defense is thoroughly worthy of your conduct in all other respects."

"Say thoroughly worthy of the course forced upon me and my daughter by your brother's infamous conduct and you will be nearer the mark!"

Randal passed this over without notice. "Be so good," he said, "as to tell Catherine that I try to make every possible allowance for her, but that I cannot consent to sit at her dinner table, and that I dare not face my poor little niece, after what I have heard."

Mrs. Presty received all her audacity. "A very wise decision," she remarked. "Your face would spoil the best dinner that ever was put on the table. Have you any message for Capt. Bennydeck?"

Randal [illegible] choice of a wife. If Catherine represented that choice but one doubt remained. Did she give him encouragement? Randal asked if his friend was then at the hotel.

Mrs. Presty smiled significantly. "Not at the hotel, just now."

"Where is he?"

"Where he is every day about this time—out driving with Catherine and Kitty."

This answer finally disposed of Randal's last doubt. He took leave of Mrs. Presty with the formality due to a stranger—he merely bowed. That incorrigible old woman treated him with affectionate familiarity in return.

"Good-by, dear Randal. One moment, before you go! Will it be of any use if we ask you to the marriage?"

Arrived at the station, Randal found that he must wait for the train. While he was walking up and down the platform, with a mind doubly distressed by anxiety about his brother and anxiety about Sydney, the train from London came in. He stood looking absently at the passengers leaving the carriages on the opposite side of the platform. Suddenly a voice that he knew was audible, asking the way to Buck's hotel. He crossed the line in an instant, and found himself face to face with Herbert.

CHAPTER XLI.

For a moment the two men looked at each other without speaking. Herbert's wondering eyes accurately reflected his brother's astonishment.

"What are you doing here?" he asked. Suspicion overclouded his face as he put the question: "You have been to the hotel?" he burst out; "you have seen Catherine?"

Randal could deny that he had seen Catherine with perfect truth—and did deny it in the plainest terms. Herbert was satisfied. "In all my remembrance of you," he said, "you have never told me a lie. We have both seen the same newspaper, of course—and you have been the first to clear the thing up. That's it, isn't it?"

"Yes."

"I wonder who this other Mrs. Ormond is. Did you find out?"

"No."

"She's not Catherine, at any rate; I, for one, shall go home with a lighter heart." He took his brother's arm to return to the other platform. "Do you know, Randal, I was almost afraid that Catherine was the woman. The devil take the thing and the people who write in it!"

He snatched a newspaper out of his pocket as he spoke, tore it in half, and threw it away. "Malcolm meant well, poor fellow," he said, referring to the old servant, "but he made a miserable map of me for all that."

EGAN'S IMPERIAL TRUSS.

Read the following extract from a letter of a well-known citizen of St. Catharines,—hundreds like it:

ST. CATHARINES, Sept. 30th, 1885.

GENTLEMEN,—Being over 70 years of age, and over 30 years ruptured, I looked upon my case as hopeless, especially as I tried various appliances without success, among others, recently, two springless trusses made in New York State, costing me $40. Nothing would retain my Hernia. I have worn your truss over four months, night and day, with great satisfaction and comfort; even to bathe in it the rupture has never come down, it holds me perfectly secure under all circumstances. You may publish it for the benefit of other sufferers. Yours truly, CAPT. B. KING.

This Cut Shows one Style only.

This new Spiral Spring Pad Truss has taken ten years to make it perfect; is guaranteed to hold the very worst case during the hardest work or severest strain. It will cure every child sure; and 98 out of every 100 of adults. Be warned—don't waste your money on useless appliances, but send stamp for our treatise; it contains full information, your neighbors' testimony, price list and questions for you to answer. An interesting lecture may be expected.

Painting it Red.

Some irreverent parties, without a proper respect for the majesty and importance of our police force, last night in passing the police station, literally "painted it red." A can of red lead, such as is used by plumbers in fitting gaspipes, was dashed over the door and window of the station while the "peelers" were out. A scrubbing bee this morning resulted in the surplus of the red stuff being washed off.

Peterborough Presbytery.

The quarterly meeting of the Peterborough Presbytery will be held in the Mill street church, Port Hope, Tuesday next.

The Presbyterial of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society, for the Presbytery of Peterborough, will be held in the Presbyterian hall, Walton street, Port Hope, on Friday next, the 11th inst. The officers and delegates will meet at 11 a.m. for the transaction of business. A meeting will be held at 3 p.m. for the reception of reports and addresses, to which all ladies are cordially invited. In the evening there will be a public meeting in the Mill street church, at 7.30 p.m., when addresses will be delivered by the Rev. Messrs. Thompson and McKenzie. Suitable music will be provided.

The Late Judge Torrance.

The funeral of the late Mr. Justice Torrance, of Montreal, took place Wednesday afternoon. Rev. E. F. Torrance, of Peterborough, nephew of deceased, attended the funeral obsequies. Rev. Principal McVicar, of the Presbyterian Theological College, delivered a very able address on the career of deceased, and extolled his character by saying that, as a citizen, Judge Torrance was universally esteemed, and justly so, because in the true spirit of Christian philanthropy, without ostentation or desire of publicity, he did all in his power to promote the success of its educational, benevolent and religious institutions. The church was filled, and the rev. principal's touching remarks made a profound impression on all present. After the service the procession was reformed, and the remains were conveyed to the Mount Royal cemetery. The funeral was attended by the members of the local bench, lawyers of the district, governors and professors of McGill University, and a vast number of citizens, besides numerous relatives of the deceased.

Five Hundred Voices

Lifted in Praise of the Redeemer—The Choral Festival—Another Pronounced Success.

Five hundred happy juvenile faces beamed down upon the audience at the Opera house last night, each little pair of eyes glistening with expectation and excitement. A pyramid of little girls, the majority of them dressed in white, chattering and laughing incessantly, was the sight witnessed by the audience, while the gallery was crowded with the much-abused typical "small boy," who vented his enthusiasm by ear-piercing shrieks and thunderous stamping of feet at every opportunity. Before proceeding with an account of the concert, however, it would be well to mention

THE TEA.

About five o'clock the children assembled at the Opera house, where a feast of good things had been prepared by Mr. Seward and a number of ladies interested in the movement, who kindly volunteered their assistance. By the time all had been fed, the concert hour had almost arrived, and the children were speedily relegated to their respective stations, all smiling and brimming over with mischievous fun and frolic.

THE CONCERT.

A good audience had assembled by eight o'clock, and shortly after that hour the proceedings began. The choruses were all well rendered and cannot be particularized. A solo and chorus, "Who is He," Mrs. Seward taking the solo part, was nicely sung. "Star of the Twilight," by three girls and chorus, was one of the nicest numbers on the programme. Ida Hill has a charming voice and bids fair to become an excellent soloist. "Bright and Cheery," by seven little boys and chorus, with whistling accompaniment by the boys, was encored, while "Hark the Hunter's Horn" with cornet solo by Mr. F. W. Miller, was an exhibition of the perfect control and training of Mr. Seward's class. There were twelve numbers on the programme, all of which were rendered with a nicety of intonation and correctness of time which is surprising in children so young, showing the careful training of a master-hand. At the conclusion of the singing stepped to the platform and, after a few appropriate remarks, expressed his pleasure at being able, on behalf of the audience and children, to tender Mr. Seward the hearty thanks of all, for his trouble and solicitude in the interests of musical instruction of the young. As a tangible proof of the genuineness of the thanks proferred, he then announced that the proceeds of the concert would be forwarded Mr. Seward as a slight reward for his untiring labor in bringing the children to such a state of perfection in singing. The proceeds will not a handsome sum. Santa Claus is due next descended an improvised chimney into the midst of the little girls and forthwith proceeded to relieve the heavily laden Christmas trees on each side of the stage of their precious burdens, which were distributed among the children amidst a perfect Babel of confusion. It was found impossible to complete the distribution that night, and those children that have not received any gift are requested to be at Mr. Seward's house next Monday evening. Every child is to receive a present. The concert was successful at almost every point, though there should have been a larger attendance. Mr. Seward is deserving the most cordial thanks of all for his zeal and devotion under the discouraging circumstances usually connected with the training of a large class of children.

REV. W. C. BRADSHAW

Personal.

Mr. Richard S. Cook left for the North-West yesterday. He has been appointed Forest Ranger under the Department of the Interior, with headquarters at Alberta.

Mr. Lucius Tuttle is appointed Passenger Traffic Manager of all the lines of the Canadian Pacific Railway and will have general charge of all passenger traffic, with office at Montreal.

Mr. A. White, general traffic manager of the G. T. R., of Toronto, is in town.

Counterfeit Bills.

Look out for counterfeit $10 bills on the Bank of Commerce. The counterfeits are easily detected when once the people are put on their guard. The principal point of difference is that the tracing in the large ten across the face of the bill has been omitted from the counterfeit, and the printing is darker in the counterfeit, particularly on the back. All the counterfeits have the name of the cashier, W. Cook, in the lower left-hand corner, while some of the genuine bills have this signature and some have not. The paper is slightly inferior, too, though not sufficiently to be detected, except by an experienced person. The counterfeits may be most easily distinguished by the omission of the tracing.

TO DEPOSITORS—Deposits are received by this Company both on current account and for periods of one year or longer. The rate of interest paid on amounts deposited on current account and which may be withdrawn by check in such sums as the Depositor may from time to time require, is FOUR per cent., either paid or compounded half-yearly, and the rate on yearly deposits is FIVE per cent.

TO INVESTORS—The five and ten year FIVE PER CENT DEBENTURES of this Company which are issued in denominations of $100, $200, $400 and $500 each, transferable by endorsement, with half-yearly interest Coupons attached, payable at the Head Office of the Company in Peterborough, or at any branch of the Bank of Toronto in Canada, afford a safe and convenient mode of investment.

The funds of the Company being invested in first mortgages on Real Estate, no better security can be offered to depositors or debenture-holders, they having a first claim or mortgage on the whole Assets of the Company, the shareholders having the second. The annual statement shows that the amount so invested was over $900,000, and on the security of real estate at least double that value.

By the laws of Ontario, Trustees, Executors and Administrators may deposit Trust Funds at the casnes which they control in this Company, and are free from all further liability, a privilege of which many have largely availed themselves.

TO BORROWERS—Money is obtainable from this Company on approved Real Estate security at the Lowest Current Rates of Interest.

The Mortgage may be repaid by yearly instalments, or otherwise as may be agreed upon, the interest ceasing at once on all amounts paid on account of the sum borrowed.

WHY
Will people pay rent when houses and lots can be purchased on such easy terms as are offered to be tendered, come and [illegible] and see for yourselves how we construct our houses. Our chief aim and study is to build substantial, warm, frost and damp proof houses. I am offering good building lots, and will build solid brick houses, nine-inch walls, stripped and lathed, two stories, for less money than you can buy frame or veneered buildings. We cordially invite those who anticipate reading or buying to inspect our work and prove for themselves that our houses are not wisely built to sell. Every house I've sold gives first-class satisfaction, and I am determined that every house I build shall be a standing testimony to honest building. JOHN CARLISLE, Dougall Street, first block west of St. Andrew's Church. wtf

WORKING CLASSES ATTENTION
We are now prepared to furnish all classes with employment at home, the whole time, or for spare moments. Business new, light and profitable. Persons of either sex easily earn from 50 cents to $5.00 per evening, and a proportional sum by devoting all their time to the business. Boys and girls earn nearly as much as men. That all who see this may send their address, and test the business, we make this offer. To such as are not well satisfied we will send one dollar to pay for the trouble of writing. Full particulars and outfit free. Address George Stinson & Co. Portland, Maine.

E. C. STABLER
CONTRACTOR & BUILDER, Peterborough, Ont. Carries a large stock of the very best selected material. Builders will find it to their advantage to give me a call. Work finished and up in good style, within specified time, and at very reasonable rates. Residence on Jas. Dixon Street. Orders by mail looked after with promptness. Parties dropping me a card in the Post Office will find me on hand. dw-6m

FILLING UP THE SENATE.

DR. CASGRAIN AND SAM. MERNER CALLED TO THE UPPER CHAMBER.

Is the Government Distributing Its Gifts Preparatory To Dissolution?—Several Civil Service Officials To Be Advanced.

OTTAWA, Jan. 7.—Two out of the three vacancies in the Senate have been filled by the appointment of Dr. Chas. Dougot Casgrain of Windsor, Ont., and Mr. Samuel Merner, ex M.P. of New Homburg, Ont., as representatives of the French and German elements respectively. One vacancy remains in Ontario, but it is said that several other seats will soon be empty and further appointments will then be made.

The Canada Gazette to-morrow will contain notice of the advancement of several Civil servants as well as the usual formal notices and names of candidates successful at the Civil Service examinations.

RAILWAY COLLISION NEAR CHICAGO.

An Express Train on the Burlington and Quincy Route With a Mishap.

CHICAGO, Jan. 7.—An accident happened this morning on the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad, near Downer's Grove, fourteen miles from Chicago. The Kaithsburg express was delayed, and a suburban train left Aurora ahead of it, but side-tracked at Naperville to let the express pass.

The latter train went by, but when two miles west of Downer's Grove it was stopped by the freight train, the engine of which had "given out."

The suburban train was following close on the express, and before it could be stopped came crashing into the sleeper. The pilot of the engine ran under the trucks with such force as to lift the car high in the air and a moment later it fell back on the engine, completely demolishing the forward part.

The passengers in the sleeper were badly scared and shaken, but no one was seriously hurt. The only injuries were those received by Riley Crook, the news agent, and Conductor Willard of the suburban train. Crook's finger was lacerated by flying glass. Willard was sitting by a window and the shock forced his head through it. He escaped with a few cuts.

THE QUEENSBURY DIVORCE CASE.

The Noble Marquis, Separated from His Wife, Lives With Another Lady.

EDINBURGH, Jan. 7.—The Marquis of Queensbury, who is being sued for divorce, has not lived with his wife for twelve years. Shortly before they began to live apart the Marquis admitted another lady into his house who became a regular inmate of his establishment. His connection with this woman is made the basis for the suit. Neither the lady nor the Marquis will deny the charge of adultery, which the unanimous makes against her husband. The case will be tried in Edinburgh because the Scotch law grants a wife a divorce for adultery alone.

Extreme Cold in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Jan. 7.—The mercury fell steadily in this city until 4 o'clock this morning, when the thermometer registered fourteen degrees below zero, and at 6 o'clock had risen to ten degrees below, and has since remained stationary, and according to the signal service reports will probably continue to do so for the next twenty-four hours. At 8a. m. Peel the thermometer stood thirty-two degrees below, while the extreme northern Minnesota and Canadian stations had not sent any reports.

Powderly Sentenced.

DENVER, Colo., Jan. 7.—The annual meeting of District No. 82, K. of L., embracing every town touched by the main line or branches of the Union Pacific Railway, which has been here in session since Monday, to-day passed resolutions endorsing every action taken by Grand Master Workman Powderly in the settlement of the southwestern and Chicago strikes, as well as his views regarding trades unions. The convention pledges its members to stand by Powderly in his work.

Secretary Lamar and His Bride.

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 7.—Secretary Lamar and his bride arrived here on Wednesday evening and were immediately driven to the executive mansion. Notwithstanding the announcement that there would be no demonstration, there was a number of the Governor's intimate friends on hand. During the whole of yesterday Mrs. Lamar was the recipient of attention from the ladies of Atlanta. A dinner was given in honor of the couple at 6 o'clock, at which a distinguished party was present.

The Reunion Conference.

LONDON, Jan. 7.—Sir. Wm. Vernon Harcourt, Sir Geo. O. Trevelyan, Mr. Morley and Mr. Chamberlain will open their reunion conference at the house of Baron Herschell next Thursday. Baron Herschell will preside. Mr. Gladstone and Mr. Chamberlain are exchanging friendly letters on the subject.

A Woman Charged with Illegal Voting.

WELLSVILLE, N.Y., Jan. 7.—The fact that Mrs. Lucy Sweet Barber of Alfred Centre voted at the last election is known far and wide among women suffragists. Mrs. Barber was arrested on Wednesday, however, on the charge of illegal voting. She was arraigned yesterday before U. S. Commissioner Angel at Belmont, and her examination was set down for next Monday. This will be a test case.

A Singular Dream Fulfilled.

PITTSBURG, Jan. 7.—Six weeks ago Frank Barclay of Bedford dreamed had a dream, in which she saw her dead body laid out in a coffin amid flowers and surrounded by sorrowing friends. She was soon to be married and was in the best of health. She could not shake off the effects of the dream, however, and a week ago was stricken down with a [illegible] and died on Tuesday.

THE HOME CLUB AND THE UNIONS.

A New York Trades Union Paper Denounces District 49.

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—The Journeymen Brewers' Union continues to wage a bitter war on the Home Club element and District 49. The official organ of the trade will to-day contain an editorial denouncing the Knights' alleged treachery and a specification of the particular acts of injustice which they are alleged to have committed. The article charges the Home Club and the Pythagoras Hall Executive with the following acts of animosity:

That they have opposed and vilified the trades-union movements in general. Especially by an opposition to establish trades-districts within the order.

That they extended only a lake-warm support to the eight hour movement of last May.

That they organized trades assemblies in unnecessary opposition to open unions, a procedure by which small assessments generally served as a catch word in order to compete with a well established and good union. Thus the capitalistic principle of cheap goods and bad quality found its way into the organization.

That trades or mixed assemblies frequently initiated scabs and suspended members of an open trades union.

That there has been unwarranted interference between an open union and its opponents among the employers of labor.

That they have, in several instances where arbitration has been applied, favored their own nests in such a way as to make the principle of arbitration, in practice, synonymous with boodle transactions.

The Lexington Murder.

BOSTON, Jan. 7.—James Edward Nowlin, who brutally murdered George A. Cudman, was arraigned in the Somerville Police Court this morning, and pleaded not guilty. He was committed without bail for trial, which will probably not take place for six months.

Arrested for Child Murder.

ST. JOHNSBURY, Vt., Jan. 7.—William F. Dinan of Wheelock, but formerly of Canada, has been arrested, charged with having murdered several of his children shortly after they were born. Dinan is a bad character.

Only Two Were Drowned.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Jan. 7.—Last evening a melancholy drowning accident occurred at Quidividi Lake. A number of people fell through the ice, and two named Whitten and Bryan were drowned. Over twenty persons were in the water at one time, but they were rescued.

Bishop Potter's Funeral.

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—The funeral of Bishop Horatio Potter took place to-day from Trinity Church and was a very impressive ceremonial. Four hundred and fifty clergymen were present.

Gladstone to Modify His Scheme.

LONDON, Jan. 7.—The Standard says that Gladstone is prepared to modify his Home Rule scheme with a view to the conciliation of dissident Liberals. According to the Standard he is willing to confine the powers of the proposed Irish Legislative body to the questions exclusively Irish which may be delegated to it.

HAMILTON MATTERS.

Accused of Burglary—Bravery Recognized —Tobogganing Accident.

HAMILTON, Jan. 7.—Daniel Hurley, a respectable looking young man about 21 years old, was arrested yesterday by Detectives Doyle and Campbell on suspicion of having been connected with the burglary at Mr. Ellis' grocery, corner James and Cannon streets. He was placed in the dock this morning, but as the prosecution was not ready, the case was adjourned until to-morrow.

Capt. Campbell, of the Beach, will be presented on Monday afternoon by Mayor McKay with the honorary testimonial of the Royal Humane Society for saving life.

Mr. John G. Pocock goes to Washington to represent Bricklayers' Union No. 1 of Hamilton, at the International Convention of Bricklayers and Masons.

Miss Mackey, who is visiting at Mr. Frank Mackelcan's, was badly hurt while tobogganing a night or two ago. The toboggan on which she was seated collided with another, and she received an ugly cut on the forehead. The young lady is progressing favorably.

Wheat advanced a cent here to-day. It is now 81½c per bushel.

A LABOR SCARE IN LONDON.

A Crowd of Unemployed Men Besiege the Government Offices.

LONDON, Jan. 7.—The West End had another labor scare to-day. Crowds of unemployed workmen assembled in front of the offices of the Local Government Board and demanded relief. Mr. Ritchie, president of the board, received a deputation from the crowd outside, but said he could promise nothing. When the crowd were apprised of this they hooted the Government and marched to Trafalgar Square, where an indignation meeting was held and resolutions were adopted protesting against the apathy of the Government. Many of the residents and shopkeepers in the vicinity of Trafalgar Square, fearing the breaking out of new socialistic riots, closed their shutters and barred their doors, but the meeting dispersed quietly.

The Express Robbers.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Jan. 6.—The Adams Express robbers, Fred Wittrocks, W. W. Haight and Thomas Weaver were taken to the penitentiary to-day. Dan Moriarty, in charge of a detective, arrived from Kansas City this morning. It is supposed he was brought here to testify in the coming trial against Fotheringham.

Dynamite Outrage in San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Jan. 6.—An attempt was made last night to blow up the cable railway on Larkin-street. A dynamite cartridge was used and the concussion was terrible, the masonry was badly shattered, the pulleys upon which the cable runs were broken and the foundation of the tunnel was cracked.

Another Tie-up Threatened.

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—It is predicted that a "tie-up" will occur in Brooklyn within forty-eight hours on the lines of the Brooklyn City Company and the Broadway New York Company, should they not recede from the position they have taken. The time-tables issued by both of these lines are obnoxious to the men.

Australia's Wheat Harvest.

MELBOURNE, Jan. 6.—The wheat harvest in Victoria is 12,000,000 bushels, an average of twelve bushels per acre. The exportable excess is 150,000 tons, or 60,000 tons over that of the preceding year.

Tosso, the Violinist, Dead.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Jan. 6.—Prof. Jos. Tosso, a celebrated violinist, died at his home in Covington, Ky., to-day, aged 55 years. He has become famous throughout the country by reason of the composition of the quaint melody, the "Arkansas Traveler."

Earthquake in North Africa.

TUNIS, Jan. 7.—The village of D'Jemal was severely shaken by an earthquake to-day. A number of houses fell down and seven persons were killed and many hurt.

The Madeira Disaster.

MADEIRA, Jan. 7.—It is officially stated that 665 persons were burned to death in the incendiary fire which destroyed the reserved enclosure in the People's Park last week.

The Snowdrops' Hours.

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—The Canadian snow storm, after spending the day in skirmishing, left for Albany at 12 to-night.

A DYNAMITE CONSPIRACY.

A LETTER FROM THE AUTHORS OF THE SAN FRANCISCO EXPLOSION.

They Have a Powerful Organization, Which Originated in Chicago, Directly After the Haymarket Affair, and They Are Going Right Forward.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 7.—The Examiner this morning published a letter from the alleged authors of the dynamite explosion of the cable road in Ninth-street on Wednesday night. The letter is written with red ink on coarse brick-colored paper, and is signed "August Nowlin." It states that the persons responsible for the explosion are members of a powerful organization which originated in Chicago directly after the Haymarket affair. The letter further states that the dynamiters have no connection with the Carmenta Union, and that the latter is utterly ignorant of who the dynamiters are. The letter concludes as follows: "We have a program laid out for a series of dynamite explosions, and shall go forward in earnest if the roads persist in refusing the carmen their just rights."

Hanlan and Gaudaur.

A paragraph recently appeared in the St. Louis Republican stating that Mr. Roche should claim forfeit of Hanlan on the half completed match with Gaudaur, the presumption being that Hanlan would start for Australia early in the spring. Under date of Toronto, December 2, Hanlan writes to the Turf, Field and Farm as follows:

It Mr. Dick Roche ever sees that $500 he made so much talk about at the St. James' Hotel last September, I have greatly overrated my ability as a sculler. I expect to row and beat Gaudaur, I might say to you that I am the only man who ever brought the championship of the world to America and held that title against all comers in this country for many years. I beat it with Beach in Australia. Wm. Beach visited England and all our scalls carriages, including Gaudaur, Elias, Towns, Hosmer and Lee, but you know George Lee, too, came to bring back to this country the championship, but I am sorry to say that it is so far off as ever. Should any of my old row up the Nepean River, N.S.W., Australia, in November, 1887, for $500 aside and the championship of the world. Yours truly,
EDWARD HANLAN.

Counsel for Havelock Smith, charged with the murder of Marshal Pigot, and now in jail at St. Thomas, have given up the idea of applying for bail, believing the prisoner will be discharged at next court.

The attendance at the medical department of the Western University, London, is steadily increasing and now amounts to fifty-five. It is proposed to erect a medical school building in the northern part of the city and the work will probably be accomplished next summer.

Geo. McCabe, who has been tried on the charge of poisoning several successive wives, was arrested at London yesterday in one of the lawyers' offices in the court house, charged with stealing a pair of boots which he had on his feet at the time of his arrest. The owner identified his property.

The foundry department of the Reliance machine works of E. P. Allis & Co., Milwaukee, was burned Thursday night. Loss $300,000, covered by insurance. Three hundred and fifty men are thrown out of work.

It is now said that the man who jumped from Susquehanna Bridge was Lieut. E. Pew, of Susquehanna, Pa. He was a wealthy ale brewer and had been in poor health. It is believed, however, by a majority of the people at the Falls that the man who made the fatal leap was Frank Cochran.

The United Labor Convention, which met in New York, adjourned yesterday morning at 1 o'clock to meet again on Thursday. The only business transacted other than that already reported was the appointment of committees on resolutions and permanent organization.

In Tennille, Ga., yesterday, J. W. Gardner awoke before day and gave a drink of whisky to his 4-year-old boy, the child being sick. Gardner then went to his work, when the child again secured the jug and drank. When the mother awoke she found the child dead, with the jug clasped to his breast.

Count Carl Frederick Guenther von Schwarzenburg, who was arrested a few days ago at San Antonio, Tex., on a charge of bigamy, has been brought over in Texas, to await the action of the grand jury. The accused is a Prussian by birth. Both his wives are residents of Texas.

INCREASE OF THE DOMINION DEBT.

The Dominion government is about to be placed on trial for its administration of the affairs of Canada for the past eight years. The most important branch of administration is that connected with the department of Finance and the manner in which mismanagement, extravagance and waste have added to the public debt, is a subject demanding the most serious consideration. The friends and defenders of the Conservative government not being able to dispute the facts of the existence of a gross debt of $221,263,089, try to evade responsibility for its creation by laying the blame upon the Reform party. Now, since the consummation of confederation the gross national debt of the Dominion of Canada has been increased by the enormous sum of $126,236,089. Of this amount $144,067,000 have been added during the currency of the administrations of Sir John Macdonald. There is however, an apparent increase of $44, 179,000, during Hon. Mr. Mackenzie's time, but there must be deducted from this the purely nominal increase of $4,500,000, caused by the discount on the loan when the rate of interest was reduced by Sir Richard Cartwright from five to four per cent—if there was an apparent increase of the debt there was a proportionate decrease in the amount payable in the way of interest—thus leaving the amount of increase in debt for which Mr. Mackenzie should be held responsible at $39,671,000. His actual amount, the sum of $32,477,000 was created by expenditure on works [illegible] when Mr. Mackenzie took office, the Conservative party having spent the [illegible] imposed by the action of his Conservative predecessors in office. The Conservative administrations are therefore responsible for the whole increase with the exception of $7,232,000. In other words the statistics can be thus briefly expressed:

Increase from 1867 to 1873, under Sir John Mac [illegible]	$97,702,000
Increase from 1873 to 1878, under Mr. Mackenzie [illegible]	39,447,000
Increase from 1878 to 1887, under the present Dominion Government	7,232,000
	144,067,000

In March last (1886) Hon. Mr. McLellan, Minister of Finance, announced that the gross debt of Canada was $221,514,000 an increase of $106,857,000 during the ninety months of the present wasteful and reckelessly extravagant administration. These facts, presented in another way, show as follows:

Average increase for each month	$1,181,744,000 00
Average increase for each day, allowing 26 working days per month	45,644 00
Average increase per hour, allowing 10 working hours in each day	4,564 00
Average increase per minute during 90 months occupancy of the treasury benches by the present Government	75 00

This is the record in money matters of the party of the present Dominion Government, and on this record among others, which will in due course be shown to be equally wicked and extravagant, they now seek a renewal of the public confidence and a renewal from the people of another opportunity to abuse the trust reposed in them. They show no signs of contrition for their past conduct, therefore there is no hope that their future course will be any more in accordance with national interests. If allowed to remain in power, nothing but rapid progress can be expected, from very bad to much worse.

THE G. T. R. Company is considering the feasibility of building a line of railway from Gravenhurst to Sault Ste. Marie, south of the C. P. R. route. This would give to them connection with the trade south of Lake Superior and westward towards St. Paul and Minneapolis. No doubt the Grand Trunk Company will be able to push on their work and to secure connections which will be of no inconsiderable advantage, commercially and otherwise, to them and to the country.

IT is now almost certain that the 90th (Winnipeg) Battalion will visit Hamilton, Montreal, Ottawa and Toronto next summer. They have been offered a special train from Winnipeg at a cost of $8,000, and that is only $10 for each member of the battalion, which is 800 strong. It would not be a bad idea, as part of Peterborough's contribution to the celebration of Her Majesty's jubilee year, to have our Kyperborean comrades in arms pay a visit to Peterborough during their sojourn in this province.

Free Trade.

The reduction of internal revenue and the taking off of revenue stamps from Proprietary Medicines, no doubt has largely benefited the consumers, as well as removing the burden of heavy manufacturing. Especially is this the case with Green's August Flower and Boschee's German Syrup, as the reduction of thirty-six cents per dozen has been added to increase the manufacturer's profits containing 8 ounces, thereby giving one fifth more medicine in the 75 cent size. The August Flower for Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint, and the German Syrup for Cough and Lung troubles have gained the largest sale of any medicines in the world. The advantage of increased size of the bottles will be greatly appreciated by the sick and afflicted, in every town and village in civilized countries. Sample bottles for 10c. remain [illegible] dwl

Bell Telephone Co., vs. Belleville Electric Light Co.

The following extract from Chief Justice Wilson's judgment in this case granting an injunction against the Belleville Electric Light Company and compelling them to remove four of their poles to the opposite side of the street from those of the Telephone Company, will be interesting as being the first decision of the kind in Canada. After referring to the statutes of the Dominion and of Ontario, under which the plaintiffs are incorporated and derive their powers, and reviewing a large mass of evidence and quoting extensively from articles in American electrical journals, His Lordship says:—"It appears the plaintiffs were in possession of the ground for the erection of their poles and that they had their poles erected about two years before the defendants put up their poles. They, however, did not give them the exclusive possession or right to use the sides of the roads on which they had placed their poles, even if they had the independent right to use the sides of the roads under the Dominion Act without the consent of the Municipal Council. It is not necessary to say whether the Dominion Act or the Provincial Act is the Act under which the plaintiffs have the right to exercise their powers, that is, whether they have the right to use the road sides for their poles without the leave of the municipality, or only with such leave according to the Ontario Act. It is sufficient to say that being in the earlier possession of the ground required for their poles, the defendants have not the right to interfere with or do any act to the injury of the plaintiffs earlier rights. The defendants would not have the right to cut down or remove the plaintiff's poles, nor to make use of them, nor to place wires or do anything else which would damage the purpose or usefulness of the poles or wires which the plaintiffs had placed there, nor to render useless or prejudice the business which the plaintiffs were and are authorized to carry on by means of those poles and wires, nor to cause danger to life or property by stringing their wires so near to those of the plaintiffs that life or property is endangered thereby. There is abundant testimony that placing the wires of these parties too near to each other (and the later erection would be the act of the wrong doer), while the instruments are in use or in electrical storms is dangerous and has not only caused danger, but has destroyed property by fire, and has destroyed human life. And the instances of such accidents are more numerous than those who do not give much attention to these matters would suppose. So numerous that in many parts of the United States special legislative interference has been urgently called for and to such an extent as to prohibit the placing of electric light wires on the same side of the road upon which either telegraph or telephone wires are strung. For although the electric wires may be a few feet distant from the others either in parallel lines or above or below the others, some accident may connect the two wires by breakage of one of them, or otherwise, that danger may be produced. So in this case it is difficult to preserve complete insulation, and that if the material used for it becomes melted through, the insulation is destroyed and the covering of the wire is no greater protection against induction than is the exposed wire. How far the defendants could be indicted, see Regina vs. Lister, Dears vs. Bell, C. C. 209; Hepburn vs. Lordon, 11 Jur. N. S 132, 2 Hem. and M. 345. I am quite satisfied there is and must be danger, from accident or neglect, to be apprehended from these two wires running parallel to each other or the one above or below the other in the proximity of the one to the other, as represented in the evidence, and that the defendants are the wrong doers in the respect, that they are the persons who, while the plaintiffs were, I may say, in possession of the ground, have placed their poles and wires in that position of danger towards the works of the plaintiffs; that not much harm has been done to the plaintiffs so far, according to their own account, is fortunate for both parties; that it may happen at any moment may reasonably be feared, but what the extent of that harm may be, either to life or property, cannot be limited or defined. The R. S. O., c. 157, sec. 59 and 70, which are part of the 45 Vic., c. 19 and 3, have some connection with this application. But independently of these general provisions the plaintiffs are entitled to relief on the general and common grounds upon which the summary protection and relief in cases of the kind are granted. The fact that the City Engineer located the defendants upon the side of the road in question will not give the defendants an indefeasible right to maintain their poles and wires as against the plaintiffs upon the side so assigned to the defendants. The plaintiffs had the prior right, they have always opposed the defendants' right to have their poles where they are, and the City Council had not the right to destroy or prejudice the privileges they had already granted the plaintiffs. I think the plaintiffs are entitled to the relief they ask and I am glad to say it cannot be a very serious matter to the defendants if the whole of the cost of transferring their wires to the other side of the road will cost only about $10. In my opinion the defendants must be ordered to remove their poles and wires to the other side of the road in question, that is to the side of the road on which the plaintiffs have not their poles and wires, and that the defendants do pay the costs of this application. The order will be in the usual form to proceed with the trial of the action to pay damages, &c. The removal to be made on or before ——."

What True Merit Will Do.

The unprecedented sale of Boschee's German Syrup within a few years has astonished the world. It is without doubt the safest and best remedy ever discovered for the speedy and effectual cure of Coughs, Colds and the severest Lung troubles. It acts on an entirely different principle from the usual prescriptions given by physicians, as it does not dry up a cough and leave the disease still in the system, but on the contrary removes the cause of the trouble, heals the parts affected, and leaves them in a perfect healthy condition. A bottle kept in the house for use when the diseases make their appearance, will save doctor's bills and a long spell of serious illness. A trial will convince you of these facts. It is positively sold by all druggists and general dealers in the land. Price 75 cents, large bottles. eodwtlf

CAMPBELL'S TONIC ELIXIR

This agreeable yet potent preparation is especially adapted for the relief and cure of that class of disorders attendant upon a low or reduced state of the system, and usually accompanied by Pallor, Weakness and Palpitation of the Heart. Prompt results will follow its use in cases of Sudden Exhaustion arising from Loss of Blood, Acute or Chronic Diseases, and in the weakness that invariably accompanies the recovery from Wasting Fevers. No remedy will give more speedy relief in Dyspepsia or Indigestion, its action on the stomach being that of a gentle and harmless tonic, exciting the organs of digestion to action, and thus affording immediate and permanent relief. The carminative properties of the different aromatics which the Elixir contains render it useful in Flatulent Dyspepsia. It is a valuable remedy for Atonic Dyspepsia, which is apt to occur in persons of a gouty character.

For Impoverished Blood, Loss of Appetite, Despondency, and in all cases where an effective and certain stimulant is required, the Elixir will be found invaluable.

In Fevers of a Malarial Type, and the various evil results following exposure to the cold or wet weather, it will prove a valuable restorative, as the combination of Cinchona Calisaya and Serpentaria gave, universally recognized as specifics for the above-named disorders.

Not satisfied with soiling in private, the greedy public appetite devours gossip in print, and wants more of it than any one editor can supply. Randal picked up the torn newspaper. It was not the newspaper which he had bought at the station. Herbert had been reading a rival journal, devoted to the same kind of luxury—in which the report of Mrs. Ormond's marriage was repeated, with this difference, that it boldly alluded to Capt. Bennydeck by name. "Did Malcolm give you this?" Randal asked.

"Yes; he and the servant next door subscribe to take it in; and Malcolm thought it might amuse me. It drove me out of the house and into the railway. If it had driven me out of my mind I shouldn't have been surprised."

"Hamfly, Herbert! Supposing the report had been true——"

"After what you have told me, why should I suppose anything of the sort?"

"Don't be angry; and do pray remember that the divorce allows you and Catherine to marry again, if you like."

Herbert became more unreasonable than ever. "If Catherine does think of marrying again," he said, "the man will have to reckon first with me. But that is not the point. You seem to have forgotten that the wounds at Buck's hotel is described as a widow. The bare doubt that my divorced wife might be the woman was bad enough—but what I wanted to find out was how she had passed off her false pretence on our child. That was what maddened me! No more of it now. Have you seen Catherine lately?"

"Not lately."

"I suppose she is as handsome as ever. When will you ask her to let me see Kitty?"

"Leave that to me," was the only reply which Randal could venture to make at that moment.

The serious embarrassments that surrounded him were thickening fast. His naturally frank nature urged him to confide to Herbert. If he followed his inclinations, in the near neighborhood of the hotel, who could say what disasters might not ensue in his brother's present frame of mind? If he made the disclosure on their return to the house he would be only running the same risk of consequences after an interval of delay, and, if he remained silent, the march of events might at any moment lead to the discovery of what he had concealed. Add to this that his confidence in Catherine had been rudely shaken. Having allowed herself to be entrapped into the deception proposed by her mother, and having thus far persevered in that deception, were the chances in favor of her revealing her true position—especially if she was disposed to encourage Bennydeck's suit? Randal's loyalty to Catherine hesitated to decide that serious question against the woman he had known, trusted, and admired for so many years. In any event, her second marriage would lead to one disastrous result. It would sooner or later come to Herbert's ears. In the meantime, after what Mrs. Presty had confessed, the cruel falsehood which had checked poor Kitty's natural inquiries raised an insuperable obstacle to a meeting between father and child.

If Randal shrank from the prospect which thus presented itself to him, in his relations with his brother, and if his thoughts reverted to Sydney Westerfield, other reasons for apprehension found their way into his mind.

He had prevailed to defer the threatened persuading Catherine to grant Sydney an interview. To perform that promise appeared to be now simply impossible. Under the exasperating influence of a disappointment for which he was not prepared, it was hard to say what act of imprudence Sydney might not commit. Even the chance of successfully confiding her to Bennydeck's protection had lost something of its fair promise since Randal's visit to Sydenham. That the captain would welcome his friend's daughter as affectionately as if she had been his own child was not to be doubted for a moment. But that she would receive the same unremitting attention while he was courting Catherine which would have been offered to her under other circumstances was not to be hoped. Be the results, however, what they might, Randal could see but one plain course before him now. He decided on hastening Sydney's introduction to Bennydeck and on writing at once to prepare the captain for that event.

Even this apparently simple proceeding required examination in its different bearings before he could begin his letter.

Would he be justified in alluding to Bennydeck's supposed relations with Catherine? Considerations of delicacy seemed to forbid taking this liberty, even with an intimate friend. If was for the captain to confirm what Mrs. Presty had said of him, if he thought it desirable to touch on the subject in his reply. Besides, looking to Catherine's interests—and not forgetting how she had suffered—had Randal any right to regard with other than friendly feelings a second marriage which united her to a man morally and intellectually the superior of her first husband? What happier future could await her—especially if she justified Randal's past experience of all that was candid and truthful in her character—than to become his friend's wife?

Written under the modifying influence of these conclusions, his letter contained the few words that follow:

"I have news for you which I am sure you will be glad to hear. Your old friend's daughter has abandoned her sinful way of life, and has made sacrifices which prove the sincerity of her repentance. Without entering into particulars which may be mercifully dismissed from notice, let me only assure you that I answer for Sydney Westerfield as being worthy of the fatherly interest which you feel in her. Shall I say that she may expect an early visit from you when I see her to-morrow? I don't doubt that I am free already to do this, but it will encourage the poor girl if I can speak with your authority."

He added Sydney's address in a postscript and dispatched his letter that evening.

On the afternoon of the next day two letters were delivered to Randal, bearing the Sydenham postmark.

The first which he happened to take up was addressed to him in Mrs. Presty's handwriting. His opinion of this correspondent was expressed in prompt action—he threw the letter, unopened, into the waste-paper basket.

The next letter was from Bennydeck, written in the kindest terms, but containing no allusion to any contemplated change in his life. He would not be able (he wrote) to leave Sydenham for a day or two. In explanation of the cause of this delay he hinted. But it might perhaps be excusable to infer that the marriage had not yet been decided on, and that the captain's proposals were still awaiting Catherine's reply.

Randal put the letter in his pocket and went out to Sydney Heights.

CHAPTER XLIII.

The weather had been unusually warm. Of all oppressive summers a hot summer in London is the hardest to endure. The little exercise that Sydney could take was, as Randal knew, deferred until the evening. On asking for her he was surprised to hear that she had gone out.

"Is she walking," he asked, "on such a day as this?"

No; she was too much overcome by the heat to be able to walk. The landlady's boy had been sent to fetch a cab, and he had heard Miss Westerfield tell the driver to go to Lincoln's-Inn-Fields.

The address at once reminded Randal of Mr. Sarrazin. On the chance of making a discovery, he went to the lawyer's office. It had struck him as being just possible that Sydney might have called there for the second time; and, on making inquiry, he found that his surmise was correct. Miss Westerfield had called, and had gone away again more than an hour since.

Having mentioned this circumstance, good Mr. Sarrazin rather abruptly changed the subject.

He began to talk of the weather, and, like everybody else, he complained of the heat. Receiving no encouragement so far, he selected politics as his next topic. Randal was unapproachably indifferent to the state of parties and the urgent necessity for reform. Still bent, as it seemed, on preventing his visitor from taking a leading part in the conversation, Mr. Sarrazin tried the exercise of hospitality next. He opened his cigar-case and entered eagerly into the merits of his cigars; he proposed a cool drink and described the right method of making it, as distinguished from the wrong. Randal was not thirsty and was not inclined to smoke. Would the pertinacious lawyer give way at last? In appearance, at least, he submitted to defeat. "You want something of me, my friend," he said, with a patient smile. "What is it?"

"I want to know why Miss Westerfield called on you."

Dr. Weir, of Oscoda, Mich. has been committed for extradition.

The increasing demand for West's Cough Syrup is evidence of its great virtue in all throat and lung diseases. Three sizes. All druggists. dwd

Miss Flim—Have you read Mr. Rattlebrain's novel? Tell me how it came out? Fogg—I suppose he had it published at his own risk.

West's Cough Syrup instantly relieves and speedily cures bronchitis, sore throat, and all throat diseases. Try it and be convinced. All druggists. dwd

A Crying Evil.—Children are often fretful and ill when worms are the cause. Dr. Low's Worm Syrup safely expels all worms. dwd

A good many fables begin "Once on a time." Oddly enough, too, when married men have been on a time they are apt to invent fables.

"Better die soon, Than live on lingeringly in pain." Better be neither, but get and take medicine that will relieve pain which is only an evidence of disease, and thus you may live on in health and happiness. If you have a cold or cough, weak or sore lungs, consumption, chronic nasal catarrh, bronchitis, impure blood or liver disease, take Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" a certain cure for these diseases. By druggists. 4dw

MOTHERS TAKE NOTICE.—West's Cough Syrup contains no opiates, opium or any minerals, and can be given to the youngest and most delicate child with perfect safety. It is an infallible cure for croup and whooping cough. A bottle should always be kept convenient, as it is always a certain cure for coughs, colds, consumption in its early stages, bronchitis, asthma, and all throat and lung troubles. 25c., 50c. and $1 per bottle. All druggists. dwd

The Rule of Three.

Maud (gushingly)—Oh, Clara, my dear, do look at my engagement ring! Won't all the girls be dying of envy? Actually three solitaires.

Fair Evidence for Everybody.

No one can doubt the great merit of Polson's NERVILINE, for it has been placed in the market in 10 cent bottles, just to give you the opportunity of testing its wonderful power over all kinds of pain. This is the best evidence of its efficiency, for every person can try for themselves. Polson's Nerviline is a positive (it cannot fail) cure for cramps, headache, colds, neuralgia, and the host of pains, that flesh is heir to. Good to take, good to rub on. Go to any drug store and buy a 10 cent sample bottle. Large bottles 25 cents. 6dw1

A Severe Trial.

"I tried all the doctors in this locality for liver and kidney troubles (which I had for years) with no benifit. Four bottles of burdock Blood Bitters cured me," says Lemuel Allan, Lisle, Ont. 2w1d

His Last Resort.

Mr. Richard Rowe, Ont., was afflicted for four years with dyspepsia. Two experienced doctors treated him. Getting discouraged he tried Burdock Blood Bitters. He states that two bottles cured him. He is doing heavy work and is as well as ever. 2w1d

The Last Year, 1886.

After the above year is ended there need be no person suffering from Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Toothache, Headache, Lumbago or any acute pain, if they only purchase a bottle of Reid Lightening, as it cures instantly. Pain cannot stay where it is used. The name is Reid Lightening. Sold by J. D. Tully Druggist. 6dw91

Cannot Be Excelled.

"I have pleasure in saying that Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam cannot be excelled for curing colds, coughs and loss of voice. It cured my brother completely." so says Ira McNeal, Poplar Hill, Ont, regarding this reliable remedy. 2w1d

Where to Find Pleasure.

An immense crowd thronged the skating rink last night, and were treated to some excellent music by the band. No better amusement could be provided for young people than a couple of hour's skating in the evening, while additional charm is lent by the inspiring strains of music from the band. The rink is well patronized, as it deserves to be.

The Week of Prayer.

At the Murray street Baptist Church Friday night, the closing meeting of the week of prayer, a fair audience assembled. Addresses were delivered by Revs. Bell and Ratcliffe. Rev. Mr. Wallace was unable to be present on account of illness. Special prayers were offered up for the success of missions in heathen lands. In Ashburnham Revs. Tovell and Torrance spoke to a fair audience on the same subject.

Cheap Dress Goods at the Golden Lion.

The German Brothers.

A fair audience greeted the first performance by the German Brothers Comedy Co. at the Opera house last night, and on the whole were well entertained. Of the opening number, a little comedy entitled "A Servant in Trouble," not much can be said. Miss May Hawley, the lady cornetist, and Mr. Fred. Winans, baritone, (both of whom appeared in Peterborough a short time ago in connection with the Japanese Colony of San San) were well received. Kittie Gilmore and Ada Gordon, two dashing young vocalists, were loudly applauded and encored, while the German Brothers, in their inimitable Vaudeville specialties, and Mr. Imro Fox, the king of magicians, in their respective departments, are without peers. Their exhibitions were first-class and received a proper recognition. The closing farce, "Mulcahey's Arrival," was very short, but intensely funny, and brought down the house. The German Brothers repeat their entertainment to-night with complete change of programme.

Church Chimes.

Rev. W. C. Bradshaw, rector of St. Luke's, will lecture on "The Church of England in its relation to the Church of Rome," to-morrow evening.

Rev. Mr. Telfer, of England, preaches in the George street Methodist Church both morning and evening.

A GRAND BONSPIEL.

At a meeting of the curlers last night, skips were appointed for the two rinks to compete in the primary competition for the Ontario tankard. The skips are Messrs. Brown and Ferguson. The Ontario tankard is presented by the Caledonian Club, which is composed of clubs in all quarters of the Dominion. These clubs are grouped in sections in order to facilitate the play. In the Midland district the following clubs are grouped, with Peterborough as convener: Brockville, Ogdensburg, Cobourg, Port Hope, Whitby, Bowmanville, Newcastle, Lakefield, Orillia, Lindsay, Keene, Bobcaygeon, and Peterborough. The winning clubs in each district "play off" for the tankard. Returns of the primary competition have to be in by Feb. 10th. It has been definitely arranged to have all the contests in this district played in Peterborough. The committee having the arrangement of dates in hand (Dr. Boucher, convener; Messrs. McClelland, Ferguson, McGill, Edwards, T. Rutherford, Attrill, President Weller and Vice-President Burnham) met this afternoon to choose teams to represent Peterborough in the bonspiel and also to fix dates for the various clubs. The result of their deliberations will be published Monday.

THE INTERNATIONAL BONSPIEL.

It is twenty-one years since the first really international bonspiel in Toronto took place. On that occasion 23 rinks a side played, the tally being, United States 478, Canada 658, a majority of 180 for Canada. This year it is expected that the great bonspiel will be participated in by 80 rinks in all, that is, 40 a side, representing no less than 320 players. It will be the biggest thing on ice that has ever taken place in America. Play will commence on Wednesday, Jan. 12th, and after the great event, matches between the visiting and home clubs will take place until the end of the week. Nearly 200 curlers from across the line will be in Toronto, to say nothing of those coming from all parts of the Province. Play will go on at the Mutual street, Moss park, Adelaide street and Granite rinks simultaneously. Major Stevenson, of Montreal, will be the umpire. Peterborough will be represented at the international bonspiel by a rink composed of: T. P. Attrill, skip; H. M. Allen, Dr. Boucher and John McClelland.

Assuming the Responsibility.

To the Editor of the Daily Examiner:

SIR—Re. CAVANAGH:—Finding that my action in reference to the late prosecution of Mr. T. Cavanagh under the Scott Act is being much canvassed on the street and elsewhere, and that it is stated, some interference by the Mayor or some other person was used to induce me to make the charge a second offence, I desire to say that such is altogether untrue. No person spoke to or attempted to influence me in anyway. I acted on the spur of the moment, thinking it better that the town should get the $100 fine and costs than that the other result should happen and the town receive nothing.

What I did was done in good faith, and if I erred or did wrongly I much regret it, and whatever may be the result, I alone am to blame.

My intention was to benefit the town, and I had no other motive in the matter.

I am, sir,
Your obedient servant,
W. H. COOPER,
Chief of Police.

Jan. 8th, 1887.

Thanks and Thoughts.

The man that hath no music in himself,
Nor is not moved with concord of sweet sounds,
Is fit for treasons, stratagems and spoils;
The motions of his spirit are dull as night,
And his affections dark as Erebus.
Let no such man be trusted. —Shakespeare.

It is certainly a most regrettable fact that the majority of Peterborough's citizens have a decided lack of appreciativeness for music—at least for the grand harmonies of nature secured by the combination of five hundred children's voices uplifted in songs of praise, else they would have turned out in larger numbers to the choral festival Thursday night. When the [proceeds of the concert, $81.23, were tendered Mr. Seward, it was thought a nice little profit would be netted him; it now turns out that the amount failed to offset the necessary expenses incurred. Mr. Seward greatly regrets that the parents of the children who took part in the concert did not better show their appreciation of a first-class choral concert, thus leaving him and his pupils in the lurch. He, however, desires to return his sincere thanks to those ladies who most kindly volunteered with donations and otherwise to help make things pleasant for the children at the afternoon tea. The ladies are certainly worthy every commendation. Those children who did not receive their presents on Thursday evening are requested to call at Mr. Sewards' house Monday afternoon, when the distribution will be completed. Mrs. Seward also desires to thank those kind friends who remembered her Thursday evening, by the presentation of a handsome fur cape.

Sale of Magazines.

The annual sale of magazines and periodicals of the Young Men's Christian Association will take place at their rooms on Tuesday evening, 11th inst., at eight o'clock,

Police Court.

SATURDAY, Jan. 8.

Jas. Bedgley charged Geo. Lipsett, sr., Geo. Lipsett, jr., and Arthur Lipsett with assaulting him in their hotel, Ashburnham, on Thursday. Adjourned till next Tuesday, on account of the illness of one of the defendants.

The charges against two young men, Redmond and Frankish, for disorderly conduct at the firemen's ball New Year's eve, were withdrawn.

Literary Notices.

"The Romance of a Forgotten Village" is the fascinating title of a delightful story of love in an old New Jersey village with which Bessie Chandler opens the Brooklyn Magazine for January—a number that is replete with the most entertaining array of bright and readable articles and poems. Ella Wheeler Wilcox sings of "The Mother-in-Law" in pleasing metre, which S. E. Archer follows with a highly interesting paper on "Some Famous Unequal Marriages." Laura C. Holloway has a gossipy description of Miss Cleveland's home-life at Holland Patent, that will be widely read as giving an inside glimpse of the home of the President's sister. A sparkling series of "Stories and Memories of Washington" is begun by Mr. Seaton Donoho, and if his succeeding papers are one-third as bright as is the present one, the series will be one of the most attractive features of coming numbers. "A Midnight Lecture" gives Rev. T. De Witt Talmage opportunity to tell a characteristic story of how he delivered a discourse at midnight.

A classmate of President Garfield describes the future President during his life at college, and how he appeared to his fellow students. Mrs. Beecher's "monthly talk" contains much common-sense in her discussion of the "Coarse Language and Free Manners" of some of our young women, and writes a second article on "Girls as Housekeepers." Rose Hartwick Thorpe, John Vance Cheney, Earl Marble, George Cooper, Sophie L. Schenck, furnish the poetry, and Rev. Henry Ward Beecher supplies four of his recent sermons revised by himself. Beside this, there are still further articles on "Winter in the Forest," "Courtship among the Indians," "Italian Singing Slaves," "The Actress' Jewels," "An Algerian Wedding," "The art of Spending money," etc., etc. The Brooklyn is withal one of our brightest magazines, and one of the cheapest: 20 cents per number, or $2.00 per year. The Brooklyn Magazine, 132 Pearl St., New York.

Otonabee.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

HIGH ZEPHYRS.

On Thursday, Dec. 23rd, being the last day of school for the year, the pupils of S. S. No. 13, Otonabee, presented their teacher, Mr. M. McClelland (who has been their teacher for the past three years), with a drifting desk, a gentleman's companion, and a copy of Burns' poems handsomely bound and illustrated, making altogether a valuable, useful and beautiful present, accompanied with the following address:

To our Teacher:

It is with feelings of deep regret we have learned that the relation which has existed between you and us as teacher and pupils is now to end.

During the several years which you have spent among us your time and energy have ever been used to further our best interests, and, therefore, we desire to place on record something of the high regard and esteem we hold for you as friend and teacher. The constant care which you have always evidenced in behalf of our welfare must ever be held in lasting remembrance.

As a token of our regard for you we make the accompanying presentation as something you may hold in pleasant recollection of the scholars of S. S. No. 13, Otonabee.

In bidding you farewell we hope, whatever the future may open out to you, that success may attend all your efforts and that the blessing of God that maketh rich, shall crown your life to the end.

Signed on behalf of the school,

Mr. McClelland replied as follows:—

MY DEAR PUPILS,—I am so overcome with the solemnity of the occasion I don't know how to express my appreciation of your token. It will ever shed your light and love upon me. It is with great reluctance I sever my connection with you as teacher. The respect, trust and security received at large and your generous tenderness, filial obedience and affectionate gratitude have far exceeded my worth and faithfulness. The jealous remembrance I dedicate to you is without end. Be diligent in your studies, for education is a companion that no misfortune can depress—at home, a friend, abroad, an introduction; in solitude, a solace, and in society an ornament.

'I must now take a kind adieu of you but let us hope we shall all meet where love and bliss immortal reign and parting is no more.

The parting of teacher and pupils through the desire of the former for further advancement in study was convincing testimony of the greatest union and affection existing mutually. A good representation of the scenes were present during the afternoon when the time was well used in testing the work of the past term by the teacher. On the following Sunday Mr. McClelland took a formal leave of Hope Sunday School where for some time his assistance has been heartily given and accepted as organist. He takes with him the good wishes of all.

WHY
Will people pay rent when houses and lots can be purchased on such easy terms as are offered by the undersigned, come and inspect our work and see for yourselves how we construct our houses. Our chief aim and study is to build substantial, warm, frost and damp proof houses. I am offering good building lots, and will build solid brick houses, nine-inch walls, strapped and lathed, two stories, for less money than you can buy frame or veneered buildings. We cordially invite those who anticipate renting or buying to inspect our work and prove for themselves that our houses are not merely built to sell. Every house I've sold gives first-class satisfaction, and I am determined that every house I build shall be a standing testimony to honest building. JOHN CARLESLE, Donegal Street, 2nd block west of St. Andrew's Church. wd

WORKING CLASSES ATTENTION
We are now prepared to furnish all classes with employment at home, the whole time, or for spare moments. Business new, light and profitable. Persons of either sex easily earn from 50 cents to $5.00 per evening, and a proportional sum by devoting all their time to the business. Boys and girls earn nearly as much as men. Those all who need employment should address, and test the business, we make this offer. To such as are not well satisfied we will send one dollar to pay for the trouble of writing. Full particulars and outfit free. Address George Stinson & Co., Portland, Maine.

THE MISERS' WEALTH

THEIR HABITATION VERY WRETCHED AND FILTHY.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 8.—A search to-day of the house where the two old men, Joseph Perry and Richard Price, were found lying dead yesterday, brought to light a large amount of hidden treasure. Perry was the one who owned all the riches. He retired from a firm of auctioneers several years ago with independent means and took Price, who was his cousin, as a companion. He was dissipated and scarcely allowed himself the necessaries of life.

In an undertaker's establishment the bodies lay to-day, ghastly in death. Their appearance was revolting, and showed a frightful condition of personal neglect. A post-mortem examination was made to-day, and the inquest will be held on Monday. This afternoon the Coroner's messenger, with three distant relatives of Perry and a lawyer began a search of the filthy old house. They began in the second story front room, and before they had proceeded far in their hunt had unearthed substantial evidences of hidden wealth. Removing a filthy coverlet from the bed, an old dirty piece of paper was found containing bank notes amounting to $127. A small parcel next discovered contained $40 in gold, an old dirty canvas bag held $600 in bright gold coin of the denominations of five, ten and twenty dollars, and $170 in bright new gold certificates were wrapped in a piece of filthy cloth. Another bed in the room was then searched, and the first thing found was $300 in fifty-dollar gold certificates wrapped in the other in old rags and paper and stuck under the corner of the mattress. An old rag tied around the bed post was found to contain $945 in gold pieces. In addition to the packages containing the money, great piles of paper were brought out in old musty boxes. They contained deeds to property, mortgages, bank books, insurance policies, ground rents and other valuable documents.

The amount of cash found footed up $2157, and the securities discovered are valued at $75,000. These discoveries bring the total amount up to about $100,000, a large sum having been found yesterday. The search to-day was only in the second story front room, and numerous speculations are made as to the probable revelations which will attend the completion of the investigation. The coroner's physician said that from the condition of the remains the men must have been dead at least four days. Doubtless they fell on the floor in a drunken stupor and then froze to death.

WIPED OUT BY CHINESE PIRATES.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 8.—Advices from Hong Kong by the steamer City of Peking say that Capt. Drake of the British steamer Normanton, which was wrecked off the Japanese coast near Kobe, entailing the loss of twenty-six Japanese passengers, has been found guilty of manslaughter in abandoning the vessel while passengers were still aboard. He was sentenced to three months' imprisonment.

The Hong Kong Mail says that the troubles on the frontier of Tonquin and China have assumed most serious proportions. News has been brought from Pakhoi to Hong Kong by the German steamer Signal that large bodies of Chinese pirates attacked the French garrison at Hakoi on November 24, and after three days' siege completely annihilated it. They also attacked Monchai with a similar result. The latter is a town ten miles from the coast on the border line of China and Tonquin. No particulars of the massacre which occurred at Monghai were given. Hakoi is about thirty miles south of Monghai on the coast. The French had a small fortification there with a garrison of sixty men under the command of Lieut. MacMahon, a nephew of Marshal MacMahon. After three days' siege only twenty-three of the garrison remained alive. These made a sortie, but no one survived. The latest information stated that the cities of Hakoi and Monghai had been fired. It is believed the same forces which captured the Boundary Commissioners perpetrated these massacres.

DEATH BY STARVATION.

An Abandoned Woman Waits Her Forty-two Days and Dies.

LOUISVILLE, Jan. 8.—Mary Harlan, a well-known woman of the town, ended a forty-two days' fast at the city hospital this morning by dying. Five years ago she was a well known milliner and did a good business. About two months ago she found herself recovering from a big spree at the workhouse. She positively refused to partake of any food, and after four days of fasting the workhouse officials sent her to the hospital. There it was the same way—she refused to eat or talk, and it was believed her reason was destroyed. Last night she beckoned the nurse to her bedside. In low tones she told her end history, and said nobody would have cause to regret her death, as she had not a relative in the world. She furthermore stated that she had starved herself to death.

THE CHILD THIEF.

THE "MAIL" AND ITS NEW DEPARTURE.

On Saturday the Toronto Mail contained a bogus notice of the dissolution of partnership with Sir John and the Conservative party. This is just what might have been expected; it is part of the plan. A few months ago Sir John uttered a lukewarm repudiation of the Mail, but ever since that time that journal has been working a his interest with more zeal than prudence. With Sir John's consent, the "No Popery" cry was raised; with his knowledge and consent, the French-Canadians and Roman Catholics were hounded in the columns of the Tory organ, and all in the interest of the Conservative party and that party's candidates in the Ontario elections. Mr. Meredith and Sir John were willing to profit by the political advantage the course of the Mail was expected to bring. Not one word of condemnation did either one pronounce against the wicked sectarian strife stirred up by it, till the story of the polls on December 28th revealed how monstrous a mistake the course of the organ had proven to be. Then the lesser sheets were instructed to cast the blame on the Mail, and that journal, in accordance with the preconcerted arrangement, cut itself loose, as it did on Saturday, from the Conservative party. So long as the "No Popery" howl of the Mail was expected to bring grist to the Tory mill in the shape of votes, so long was its course winked at by Sir John and Mr. Meredith, and so long did the other Tory organs howl in unison. Some months ago the Mail, in ostensible opposition to the traditions and record of its party, adopted the temperance platform with the expectation of capturing the votes of temperance Liberals for the Conservative party, while Sir John, by his personal influence, by the aid of interested members of his cabinet, was to retain the support of the liquor interest. Thus it was hoped to work a scheme "to dish the Grits." The Mail has proved its professions were all a sham. Not one Reform candidate, no matter how sound he was on the temperance question, did it support, and no Conservative candidate did it oppose, no matter how active and zealous an advocate of the liquor interest he might be. We have not heard the Mail say one word in favor of Mr. Cox or his candidature, nor shall we hear such a word to the end of the chapter. We shall not hear the Mail say one word in favor of any Liberal candidate, though he were a John B. Gough, a Father Matthew and a Neal Dow rolled into one, because as Conservative organ, it is bound not to injure the interests of its party.

The Mail has come out as an "independent" organ. It sets forth its programme as follows. It will side on some questions with the Reform party, and on others with the Conservatives; on others with its great self. It favors a protective tariff, manhood suffrage with an educational qualification—taking the vote from all who cannot read and write,—prohibition and, meanwhile and until it is carried, a rigorous enforcement of the Scott Act, a discussion of Canada's future with a view to ultimate separation from Great Britain, a reconstruction of the Senate, which it alleges has become a "scandal;" the reform of the civil service; development of the North-west; one law for the entire Dominion; a deprivation of the rights granted and guaranteed by the treaty of Paris (1763) to the French in Quebec; defiance of France and Great Britain if they object to our repudiation of the obligations of that treaty; the abolition of Separate Schools in Ontario and Quebec, notwithstanding the stipulation for their maintenance by the [illegible] for their federation, and [illegible] Act of Canada "rupture" that, though it is a very [illegible] Confederation." This [illegible] serious programme, and, if it [illegible] what it says it means, it means civil war. For, to attempt to deprive the French of the law guaranteed to them by solemn treaty between England and France in 1763, and by the solemn compact of the Act of Confederation in 1867, would inevitably plunge us into a vortex of trouble, the result of which would be disastrous beyond all calculation. If any Reform journal had dared to promulgate such a monstrous platform, the Mail would head all its clan in cries of treason; but, as all the loyalty is on one side, the Mail, as the Conservative organ, must not be charged with so heinous a crime. Sir John Macdonald must, indeed, be driven to desperate straits when his organ dares so desperate a game. Of a certainty this truculent platform cannot be acceptable in Quebec, and there is too much honor and loyalty in Protestant Canada to entertain for a moment proposals as dishonorable and regardless of solemn national treaties, as they are wild, dangerous and vicious. One may well ask, "whither are we drifting," when the Queen's privy counsellor in her Majesty's jubilee year, through his organ, the Mail, advocates the adoption of measures worthy of that most reckless of Romans, Catiline. But his organ is only a consistent sequel to the past record of his party. Toryism—not Conservatism—is the form of the Family Compact in 1837, and in the [illegible] of Sir John Macdonaldism in 1870 and 1885, has initiated three rebellions upon the country within half a century, and the platform he now promulgates through his organ, if carried out, will assuredly plunge the country into civil war. Every peace-loving and law-abiding citizen is called upon to inquire if this dangerous man—more dangerous in his dotage than in the hey-day of his pernicious political powers—is to be allowed to continue the criminal course he is bent on pursuing—involving the rupture of the Confederation and a war of races, which, whatever its ultimate issue, would be an unspeakable national disaster.

The Mail in its new departure professes to be independent, but it never condemns any acts of the Dominion Government, nay even damns, with faint applause, except as the mouthpiece of Sir John, and to suggest legislative changes which the latter thinks would be popular. No. While the Mail draws Government patronage; while it remains the first to publish Government secrets; While its Ottawa despatches begin with the official formula, "to-morrow's Gazette will contain, etc.;" while the salary of its editor continues to be paid out of the Tory campaign fund; while it continues to advocate the policy of the Tory party; while it refuses to condemn the darkest deeds of the present corrupt Government; while it gives a thick and thin support to every Conservative candidate and bitterly opposes every Liberal candidate; while it practically performs the functions of a party organ, it must be held to accountability, and Sir John as the head of that party must share the responsibility of the course pursued by his chief organ, the Mail. No hypocritical, half-hearted repudiations on either part can blind the intelligent public to the true relations between organ and party.

To show the utter demoralization of the Conservative camp, and its hopelessness of winning in the coming Federal elections fight, it is necessary to mention the frantic delight with which the return of Sir Charles Tupper to Canada is hailed. The question is whether Sir Charles will resign the certain glories of a ten-thousand-a-year position for the fleeting and problematical chance of a successful political career—for the almost certain chance of being a drop of new blood in a beaten political party. Every member of the present Dominion Cabinet is of such distinguished merit and ability that it would be a very difficult thing to decide as to which member should be sacrificed to give Sir Charles a place. It is a sign of infinite weakness when the party has to contemplate swapping horses when crossing the stream. Sir Charles would certainly replenish the brains of the Cabinet, but that he would supply what is much more urgently needed, a great deal of honesty, is open to doubt.

Free Trade

The reduction of internal revenue and the taking off of revenue stamps from Proprietary Medicines, no doubt has largely benefitted the consumers, as well as relieving the burden of home manufacturers. Especially is this the case with Green's August Flower and Boschee's German Syrup, as the reduction of thirty-six cents per dozen has been added to increase the size of the bottles containing these remedies, thereby giving one-fifth more medicine in the 75 cent size. The August Flower for Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint, and the German Syrup for Cough and Lung troubles have, perhaps, the largest sale of any medicines in the world. The advantage of increased size of the bottles will be greatly appreciated by the sick and afflicted, in every town and village in civilized countries. Sample bottles for 10c. remain at the same size. eodw41

CAMPBELL'S
TONIC ELIXIR

This agreeable yet potent preparation is especially adapted for the relief and cure of that class of disorders attendant upon a low or reduced state of the system, and usually accompanied by Pallor, Weakness and Palpitation of the Heart. Prompt results will follow its use in cases of Sudden Exhaustion arising from Loss of Blood, Acute or Chronic Diseases, and in the weakness that invariably accompanies the recovery from Wasting Fevers. No remedy will give more speedy relief in Dyspepsia or Indigestion, its action on the stomach being that of a gentle and harmless tonic, exciting the organs of digestion to action, and thus affording immediate and permanent relief. The carminative properties of the different aromatics which the Elixir contains render it useful as a Flatulent Dyspepsia. It is a valuable remedy for Atonic Dyspepsia, which is apt to occur in persons of a gouty character.

For Impoverished Blood, Loss of Appetite, Incompetency, and in all cases where an effective and certain stimulant is required, the Elixir will be found invaluable.

In factory of a Malarial Type, and the various evil results following exposure to the cold or wet weather, it will prove a valuable restorative, as the [illegible] of Cinchona Calisaya and [illegible] are universally recognized [illegible] the above-named disorders.

Randal flattered himself that he had made a penetrating reply simply impossible. Nothing of the sort! Mr. Sarrazin slipped through his fingers once more. The unwritten laws of gallantry afforded him a refuge now.

"The most inviolable respect," he solemnly declared, "is due to a lady's confidence—and, what is more, to a pretty young lady's confidence. The fact, my dear fellow! Must I recall your attention to what is due to the sex?"

This little outbreak of the foreign side of his friend's character was no novelty to Randal. He remained as indifferent to the inviolate claims of the sex as if he had been an old man of 80.

"Did Miss Westerfield say anything about me?" was his next question.

Slippery Mr. Sarrazin slid into another refuge—he entered a protest.

"Here is a change of persons and places!" he exclaimed. "Am I a witness in a court of justice—and are you the lawyer who examines me? My memory is defective, my learned friend. Non mi ricordo. I know nothing about it."

Randal changed his tone. "We have amused ourselves long enough," he said. "I have serious reasons, Sarrazin, for wishing to know what passed between Miss Westerfield and you—and I trust my old friend to relieve my anxiety."

The lawyer was accustomed to say to himself that he never did things by halves. His answer to Randal offered a proof of his accurate estimate of his own character.

"Your old friend will deserve your confidence in him," he answered. "You want to know why Miss Westerfield called here. Her object in view was to twist me round her finger—and I beg to inform you that she has completely succeeded. My dear Randal, this pretty creature's cunning is remarkable, even for a woman. I am an old lawyer, skilled in the ways of the world—and a young girl has completely overreached me. She asked me—oh, heavens, how innocently—if Mrs. Oriscoll was likely to make a long stay at her present place of residence."

Randal interrupted him. "You don't mean to tell me you have given her Catherine's address?"

"Buck's hotel, Sydenham," Mr. Sarrazin answered. "She has got the address down in her nice little pocket-book."

"What amazing weakness!" Randal exclaimed.

Mr. Sarrazin cordially agreed with him. "Amazing weakness, as you say. Pretty Miss Sydney knows many things more, besides the address. She knows that Mrs. Ormond is here on business relating to new investments of her money. She knows, besides, that one of the trustees is keeping us waiting. She also made sensible remarks. She mentioned having heard Mrs. Ormond say that the air of London never agreed with her, and she hoped that a comparatively healthy neighborhood had been chosen for Mrs. Ormond's place of residence. This, you see, was leading up to the discovery of the address. The spirit of mischief possessed me: I allowed Miss Westerfield to take a little peep at the truth. 'Mrs. Ormond is not actually in London,' I said; 'she is only in the neighborhood.' For what followed on this my experience of ladies ought to have prepared me. I am ashamed to say this lady took me completely by surprise."

"What did she do?"

"Fell on her knees, poor dear, and said: 'Oh, Mr. Sarrazin, be kinder to me than you have ever been yet: tell me where Mrs. Ormond is!' I put her back in her chair and I took her handkerchief out of her pocket and I wiped her eyes."

"And then you told her the address?"

"I was near it, but I didn't do it yet. I asked what you had done in the matter. Alas, your kind heart had led you to promise more than you could perform. She had wanted to hear from you if Mrs. Ormond consented to see her, and had waited in vain. Hard on her, wasn't it? I was sorry, but I was still obdurate. I only felt the symptoms which warned me that I was going to make a fool of myself when she let me into her secret for the first time and said plainly what she wanted with Mrs. Ormond. Her tears and her entreaties I had resisted. The confession of her motives overpowered me. It is right," cried Mr. Sarrazin, suddenly warming into enthusiasm, "that these two women should meet. Remember how that poor girl has proved that her repentance is no shame. I say she has a right to tell, and the lady whom she has injured has a right to hear, grief she has done to atone for the past, [illegible] she is willing to make to the one woman in the world (though she is a divorced woman) who is most interested in hearing what Miss Westerfield's life has been with that wretched brother of yours. Ah, yes, I know what the English cant is in the worst obstacle to the progress of the English nation!"

Randal listened absently; he was thinking.

There could be little doubt to what destination Sydney Westerfield had betaken herself when she left the lawyer's office. At that moment, perhaps, she and Catherine were together—and together alone.

Mr. Sarrazin had noticed his friend's silence. "Is it possible you don't agree with me?" he asked.

"I don't feel as hopeful as you do if these two ladies meet."

"Ah, my friend, you are not a sanguine man by nature. If Mrs. Ormond treats our poor Sydney just as a commonplace, ill-tempered woman would treat her, I shall be surprised indeed. May, if you like, that she will be insulted—of this I am sure, she will not return it; there is no explation that is too bitter to be endured by that resolute little creature. Her fine nature has been tempered by adversity. A hard life has been Sydney's, depend upon it, in the years before you and I met with her. Good heavens! What would my wife say if she heard me? The women are nice, but they have their drawbacks. Let us wait till to-morrow, my dear boy; and let us believe in Sydney without allowing our wives—I beg your pardon, I mean my wife—to suspect in what forbidden direction our sympathies are leading us. Oh, for shame!"

Who could persist in feeling depressed in the company of—which a man as this? Randal went home with the influence of Mr. Sarrazin's sanguine nature in undisturbed possession of him until his old servant's ghostly face confronted him at the door.

"Anything gone wrong, Malcolm?"

"[illegible] to say so, Mr. Herbert has left us."

"Left us! Why?"

"I don't know, sir."

"Is there no letter? No message?"

"There's a message, sir. Mr. Herbert came back——"

"Stop! Where had he been when he came back?"

"He said he felt a little lonely after you went out, and he thought it might cheer him up if he went to the club. I was to tell you where he had gone if you asked what had become of him. He said it kindly and pleasantly—quite like himself, sir. But, when he came back—if you'll excuse my saying so—I never saw a man in a worse temper. Tell my brother I am obliged to him for his hospitality and I won't take advantage of it any longer.' That was Mr. Herbert's message. I tried to say a word. He banged the door and away he went."

Even Randal's patient and gentle nature rose in revolt against his brother's treatment of him. He entered his sitting-room in silence. Malcolm followed and pointed to a letter on the table. "I think you must have thrown it away by mistake, sir," the old man explained, "I found it in the waste-paper basket." He bowed with the unfailing respect of the old school and withdrew.

Randal's first resolve was to dismiss his brother from further consideration. "Kindness thrown away on Herbert," he thought; "I shall treat him for the future as he has treated me."

But his brother was still in his mind. He opened Mrs. Presty's letter—on the chance that it might turn the current of his thoughts in a new direction.

In spite of Mrs. Presty, in spite of himself, his heart softened toward the man who had behaved so badly to him. Instead of reading the letter he was now trying to discover a connection between his brother's visit to the club and his brother's angry message. Had Herbert heard something said, among gossiping members in the smoking-room, which might account for his conduct? If Randal had belonged to the club he would have gone there to make inquiries. How could he get the information that he wanted in some other way?

After considering for a while he remembered the dinner that he had given to his friend Sarrazin on his return from the United States, and the departure of the lawyer to his club with a purpose in view which interested them both. It was the same club to which Herbert belonged, Randal wrote at once to Mr. Sarrazin, mentioning what had happened and acknowledging the anxiety that weighed on his mind.

Having instructed Malcolm to take the letter to the lawyer's house, and, if he was not at home, to inquire where he might be found, Randal adopted the readiest means of composing himself, in the servant's absence, by lighting his pipe.

EGAN'S IMPERIAL TRUSS.

Read the following extract from a letter of a well-known citizen of St. Catharines.—hundreds like it:

ST. CATHARINES, Sept. 26th, 1885.

GENTLEMEN,—Being over 70 years of age, and ruptured, I tested upon my case as hopeless, especially as I tried various appliances without success, among others, recently, two specimens from [illegible] York State, costing me $50. Nothing would retain my Hernia—have worn your truss over four months, night and day, with great satisfaction and comfort; even to bathe in it the rupture has never come down. It being so perfectly secure under all circumstances, you may publish it for the benefit of other sufferers. Yours truly, CAPT. R. KING.

This new Spiral Spring Pad Truss has taken ten years to make it perfect. Is guaranteed to hold the very worst case during the hardest work or severest strain. It will cure every child sure; and 80 out of every 100 of adults. Be warned—don't waste your money on useless appliances, but send stamp for our treatise; it contains full information, your neighbors' testimony, price list and questions for you to answer. When writing please mention this Paper. Address

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

And the death roll lengthens, and people wonder "who will be next?" Mr. Weekes, aged 70; Mr. Thos. Stewart, a young farmer, and his little daughter, aged half a year, perhaps; Mrs. Richard Lane, a young mother, not many years married; four funerals in a few days; and Mrs. Plunkett, of Peterborough, also buried in our cemetery on Tuesday; the cities of the dead fill fast. We are glad to leave this sorrowful subject and come to brighter themes.

Our school examinations were well sustained and showed marked progress. Mr. K. Mark, our excellent senior teacher, remains with us. We hope Miss Baptie may, too; but her scholars, fearing she would leave them, and wishing to give her a substantial idea of their regret at her loss, presented her with a handsome album by subscription and many beautiful single offerings, viz., a pretty cup and saucer, cards, vases and other tokens of affectionate regard. We will send the address next week with the school report. We also congratulate ourselves on retaining Mr. Mark, who has certainly made his mark on our school, as the progress and attainments of his pupils amply testify.

MOTIONS, ETC.

Dr. Burnham moved, seconded by Mr. Sawers, that Mr. Rowan be appointed to the department of Modern Languages at a salary of $900 per annum, from 1st January, 1887.—Carried.

Mr. A. Rutherford moved, seconded by Mr. Deane, that the vacancy caused by the retirement of Miss Johnston from the Public School be filled by making the following promotions: Miss Hall to Miss Johnston's place, Miss Keele to Miss Hall's, Miss Aldridge to Miss Keele's, and Miss Richardson as the new teacher to take Miss Aldridge's place in the West Ward school.

The Board adjourned before this motion was disposed of.

Among the Churches.

Yesterday's Sermons by Prominent Clergymen—The Authenticity of the Gospel—First Lecture of Rev. W. H. Bradshaw's Series—Rev. Mr. Telfer.

In the Charlotte street Methodist church yesterday morning the pastor, Rev. Mr. Wallace, delivered a masterly sermon on "Our Gospel's True History." The church was filled. Rev. Mr Wallace chose for his text the last verse of the 20th chapter of John:

But these are written that ye might believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God; and that believing ye might have life through his name.

The great fact of Christianity stands out absolutely before us—Christianity is here. It has been a great stream of blessing to all the nations, flowing down through all the ages, even into our time. If you ask the question, whence came it and how came it down to us? you find that the Christian Church claims to have sprung from the Lord Jesus Christ as its fountain-head, to have its origin in his life, in his words, in his miracles, in his death, in his resurrection, and in the work done after his death and ascension by his Apostles. How can the Gospel be proved? How do you prove any alleged fact of history? How do you know that Mr. Mowat and his party were, two weeks ago, triumphant in the elections? There was no one present that had counted the ballots in any one constituency. You have the evidence and testimony from those who did. You are dependent upon testimony of great events which have not come under your own personal cognizance, if you only have sufficient evidence that reaches us back reasonably near the time. We are just as sure that Alexander lived and fought and founded Alexandria as that John Wesley lived and formed the Wesleyan Church. Why? Because we have the evidence of those who lived at that time. Now, concerning Christianity, we have these books of the New Testament. We have other books outside of the Gospel. How shall we decide whether or not these Gospels are reliable history? How do you ascertain that Cæsar ever wrote the history of the Gallic war? You look back into history and there are all sorts of evidence corroborative of his statements, the references made to the book by other writers of that time, which prove to you without a doubt that Cæsar wrote the book. And that is the same kind of evidence upon which we receive the Gospel. These books were not the invention of the priests and monks of the middle ages, as infidels of a hundred years ago claimed; because we have manuscripts dating away back before the middle ages which agree on the important points with the very Gospels which we have to-day. About the age of the manuscripts there is no doubt. There are two classes of writing—the uncial hand and the cursive hand,—the former, so called from the characters being so large, was in vogue at least a thousand years ago; the latter, a running hand, is of more modern usage. There are thirty-four or thirty-five manuscripts that are of special value to scholars. There is the Alexandrian manuscript, which scholars tell us came out of the fifth century; there is another which is treasured by the Roman Catholic Church, which comes out of the fourth century; in Paris one belonging to the fifth, and in Cambridge another belonging to the sixth century; then in the convent of St Catherine, on Mount Sinai, was found a copy of the Septuagint itself, evidently dating back to the fourth century. Here you have manuscripts of within three hundred years after the death of Christ, and the argument is that they agree with one another and with the gospels, with slight variations, but there is nothing which changes radically anything belonging to the doctrines of our Saviour. You can go further back than that, to the second and third century, when many writers, Tertullian and others, have made copious references and quotations. The Bishop of Southern France, early in the second century, tells us that St. Matthew wrote his gospel in Hebrew, that Mark was the interpreter of Peter, that Luke was the companion of St. Paul, and that St. John, who leaned his head on Christ's bosom at the supper, in his old age wrote the gospel bearing his name. He was a disciple and friend of Irenæus, a martyr who died about the middle of the century. He tells how, as a child, he used to frequent the house of Apelles, who used to worship and discourse the Gospels to him as he [illegible] these from [illegible] Is it possible [illegible] removed from [illegible] have professed [illegible] taken there was no doubt what the Gospel came from John? You can go even to the end of the second century, to the records of a man named Justin, Martyr, whose quotations and references are so numerous that out of them you could reconstruct the Gospels. He says that the Gospels are read in the various churches every Sunday, and in the churches of Asia Minor and Italy there were old people that had heard of Christ from their childhood. You can go farther back still, about the year 95. From Clement of Rome you have references to the fact of our gospel as you have the distinct statement that Matthew wrote his gospel in Hebrew, and that Mark wrote down the gospel as he had received it from Peter. Here you are down almost to the date when the Apostle John died. There are in these gospels many references to the destruction of Jerusalem and the coming of the Lord, for they had so understood Jesus that he was coming directly after the destruction of Jerusalem. You can hardly suppose that if they had been written after the destruction there would have been any discussion as to the coming of the Lord. Are, then, these Gospels not to be believed? The only ground upon which men reject them to-day is that they don't believe in the miracles wrought by Christ as contained in these books. But wherever it is possible, by reference to other authorities, to verify the details of the history in the testament, it comes out from the test without one solitary doubt to be attached to its veracity or historical reliability.

First Lecture of the Series at St. Luke's.

Rev. Mr. Bradshaw's text for the first of his series of lectures on "The Church of England in her Relation to other Denominations," at St. Luke's Sunday night, was part of the 15th verse of the 3rd chapter of the first Epistle of Peter:

And be ready always to give an answer to every man that asketh you a reason of the hope that is in you with meekness and fear.

The Rev. gentleman opened by remarking that it was with a view primarily to fortify his congregation against the misrepresentations to which the church is constantly exposed that he proposed to call their attention to the position of the Church of England and her relation to other and outside churches. Referring to the subject of his lecture, Rev. Mr. Bradshow acknowledged the statement of some parties that between the English and Roman Catholic Churches there was only a paper wall—but that wall was the open Bible. He then went on to point out that the peculiar distinction between the doctrines of the two churches was, that in the case of the church of England, her members were not required to believe any doctrine which had not the Bible for its authority, while in the Roman Catholic Church not only was the Bible not accepted as infallible rule of faith and practice, but its interpretation was subject to the will of the voice of the living church, and that many of its doctrines could not only not be proved by the Bible, but were in direct contradiction to its express commands. After touching upon certain errors of doctrine and practice peculiar to the Roman Catholic Church, he concluded by pointing out the lessons Protestants could learn from their zeal, piety and devotion to the clergy manifested by members of that church. The consideration of this subject will be continued next Sunday evening.

Rev. Mr. Telfer's Sermons.

At the George street Methodist Church yesterday, Rev. A. E. Telfer, of England, a noted revivalist and lecturer, preached to large congregations. His text in the morning was the 5th verse of the 4th chapter of the Song of Solomon:—

"Awake, O north wind; and come, thou south; blow upon my garden that the spices thereof may flow out."

In the evening the text of his sermon was Revelations, 19th chap., 7th and 8th verses. The rev. gentleman is a fluent speaker and his sermons were listened to with much attention.

At St. Paul's.

In the morning the Rev. E. F. Torrance, spoke impressively on "The Young Ruler;" in the evening Rev. McKenzie, of Toronto, delivered a sermon on "Missions."

Smith.

(From a Correspondent.)

A pleasant gathering took place on Monday evening of last week at the residence of Mr. M. Sanderson, Smith, the occasion being the bidding farewell by the congregation of the Line Baptist Church to their late pastor, the Rev. A. E. de St. Dalmas, and to show, in some slight manner, their appreciation of his past labors. After a social time had been spent and full justice had been done to the good things provided by the ladies, Mr. St. Dalmas was asked to step forward, when the following address was read by Mr. Priest, the presentation of the well filled purse being made by Mr. R. N. Scott:—

Rev. A. E. de St. Dalmas;

DEAR PASTOR,—It is with sincere and heartfelt regret that we, the members of the Line congregation, are assembled this evening to take leave of you, previous to your departure to your new field of labor. We believe we express the feelings of all when we say that we are loth to part with you, but, believing that you have not taken the step that you have without prayerful consideration and the firm conviction that God is leading you, we simply bow in humble submission to the will of Him "that holdeth the seven stars in His right hand, who walketh in the midst of the seven golden candle-sticks." During the four years that you have labored amongst us, you have by your earnest zeal, your untiring labors and your faithfulness, endeared yourself to us far more than words can express. In every department of your sphere, in your ministerial, your pastoral and your social capacity you have proved yourself a true servant of God. You have faithfully sown the gospel seed, and though you have been permitted to reap some, still we feel that the harvest will yet appear, and that abundant. Also in your esteemed partner in life, who has by her many admirable qualities won a deep place in our hearts, we feel that we are losing a true friend. Rest assured, dear pastor, that though you are now leaving us, neither you nor your respected wife will be soon forgotten by us. We feel, however, that we cannot allow this opportunity to pass without expressing in some substantial manner the esteem and respect in which you are held by us. You will therefore please accept this purse, not so much on account of its intrinsic value, which we would wish had been greater, but as a slight token of our esteem. We shall ever pray that the blessing of the great head of the church may rest upon you and yours, and that when the Master shall call you hence, you may have many trophies to cast at the feet of King Immanuel.

Signed, on behalf of the congregation,

Mr. St. Dalmas, who was completely taken by surprise and deeply affected, replied, thanking the friends for this expression of their attachment, and assuring them that he would always feel a deep interest in the welfare and prosperity of the line congregation. He especially took this opportunity in speaking his farewell words, of urging upon all present who were away from it, the importance of an immediate decision, so that when that great re-union shall be we may all meet around the throne of God.

HELLO! BROWN,

"What are you looking so mad about, this morning?"

"Well, I'll tell you, Jones. I bought a very fine Tent from TURNER, and one of my friends wanted to borrow it."

"And did you lend it?"

"Well, I guess not. The last Tent I had got used up by lending. I told him to go to J. J. TURNER, the great Tent maker, and he would rent or sell him a tent."

"You did right, Brown."

"Good morning, Jones."

TO DEPOSITORS—Deposits are received by this Company both on current account and for periods of one year or longer. The rate of interest paid on amounts deposited on current account and which may be withdrawn by cheque as the depositor may from time to time require, is FOUR per cent., either paid or compounded half-yearly, and the rate on yearly deposits is FIVE per cent.

TO INVESTORS—The five and ten year FIVE PER CENT DEBENTURES of this Company which are issued in denominations of $100, $200 and $500 each, transferable by endorsement, with half-yearly interest Coupons attached, payable at the Head Office of the Company in Peterborough, or at any Branch of the Bank of Toronto in Canada, afford a safe and convenient mode of investment.

The funds of the Company being invested in first mortgages on Real Estate, no better security can be offered to depositors or debenture-holders, they having a first claim or lien upon the whole Assets of the Company, the shareholders having the second. The annual statement shows that the amount so invested was over $950,000, and on the security of real estate of more than double that value.

By the laws of Ontario, Trustees, Executors and Administrators may invest Trust funds in the stock of the Company, and are free from all liability, a privilege of which many have largely availed themselves.

TO BORROWERS—Money is obtainable from this Company on approved Real Estate security at the lowest current rates of interest.

The Mortgage may be repaid by yearly instalments, or otherwise as may be agreed upon, after instalments equivalent to either of the annual plans of payment of the stock [illegible].

IMPENDING WAR.

EVENTS THAT INDICATE THE NEARNESS OF THE STRUGGLE.

LONDON, Jan. 10.—A New York World correspondent has had an interview with a prominent diplomat here who declares that an early outbreak of war is expected in diplomatic circles in Europe. Said this personage: "Why, even here in England we are informed that Lord Salisbury intends to divert public attention from the trouble at home by inaugurating a vigorous foreign policy abroad, and military preparations are the order of the day. Several battalions of the guards have been instructed to hold themselves ready for foreign service and are being submitted to a special medical examination. Now, the guards are rarely despatched abroad, unless some extremely important campaign is in prospect. Who knows if the determination of Lord Salisbury to adopt a military foreign policy unsuited to Great Britain has not been one of the principal reasons of Lord Randolph Churchill's withdrawal from the cabinet?

"Then, the significant military intelligence which reaches us from Constantinople. Turkey is massing an enormous force in Macedonia. A fortnight ago there were over a hundred and twenty battalions of infantry and thirty-six batteries of artillery in the Macedonian provinces. This enormous concentration of troops in the present season and in the present state of Turkish finances could not have been intended for show purposes. The Turks must be looking forward to a war on the Macedonian front or, and they are not quite certain whether it may not begin before the winter is over. Moreover the intense hostility which exists between the Russian and German population renders an early war inevitable. Do you imagine the Prince Bismarck is fool enough to wait until the Czar has had time to arm his immense army with repeating rifles, and has doubled the single line of railroad at present running along the western frontier of Russia? Not only the financial and economical conditions of Russia, but also the intense and widespread discontent pervading all classes of the Czar's subjects render it inevitable that Alexander III. will soon give way to the demands of the Pan-Slavists and seek to direct public attention from internal difficulties by a popular war with Germany.

"Concerning France, it is necessary to talk. Not a day passes but that the newspapers contain accounts of the preparations which General Boulanger is making for the coming struggle. As to Austria and Italy, notwithstanding their immense financial difficulties, they are running the risk almost of national bankruptcy in their efforts to prepare for the struggle which may now break at any moment, but the commencement of which will hardly be delayed beyond April next. I do not believe in the maintenance of peace. Preparations would not have been made on such a scale and at such immense sacrifice were not the struggle more imminent than is generally supposed."

THE QUEENSBERRY SCANDAL.

The Parties to the Case Which Will Shortly be Heard at Edinburgh.

LONDON, Jan. 10.—The trial of the Queensberry divorce case at Edinburgh next week will probably be quickly concluded. It is not believed that the Marquis will make any defence. The facts against him are so plain and notorious that any attempt to do so would be little more than a farce. He is a most eccentric person, living in beautifully decorated apartments in James-street, Buckingham Gate, near the Buckingham Palace. He was educated at Eton and Cambridge, is 43 years old, and the father of five children, one of whom is a young man of 20. He is best known, of course, because of the connection of his name with the set of rules for the prize-ring of which his father was the author. The family have for many generations past been well-known for their sporting proclivities, one of the present Lord's ancestors, the last Duke of Queensberry, known by the sobriquet of "Old Q," being one of the greatest patrons of the race-course of his day. The present Marquis is a little man with a face like a coachman or jockey. He rides well, shoots like a Western hunter, and, like his father, is a patron of the prize ring and of all outdoor sports. He is also an amateur artist of considerable talent and paints exceedingly well. His apartments, which he allows but few to visit, are stored with bizarre pictures and other works of art, making altogether one of the most rare and unique collections in London. The Marquis belongs to the famous Douglas family of Scotland, his full name being John Sholto Douglas. The Marquis is an atheist and a free-thinker, and because of this was struck off the list of the Representative Peers of Scotland. His married life has long been unhappy, owing to his peculiar notions and moral delinquencies. His wife was the eldest daughter of Mr. Alfred Montgomery, who is yet, at the age of 70, a well-known and popular man about town. Of recent years the Marquis and Marchioness of Queensberry have lived together only at intervals. At present the latter has a house at No. 16 Cadogan-place, which, strange enough, is near the house inhabited by Lord and Lady Colin Campbell during several months of their unhappy married life in 1886. It is understood that Lady Queensberry, who is a most estimable person, would have brought this unhappy affair to a close long ago had she not been deterred by a dread of the publicity. It is to be tried at Edinburgh, and then probably Monday of the details will get into the London papers. There might be any number of co-respondents, as rumor says, but it is understood that only one is to be called, namely, a Hussar whom the Marquis has had living with him in his apartments in James-street for some time past.

Shooting Stopped Labor Meeting.
CHICAGO, Jan. 10.—The United Labor Party [illegible] meeting at the Arbeiter Hall on the West Side last night. The hall was packed with [illegible] people, and the meeting was addressed by [illegible] Socialistic speakers. The meeting was [illegible] when a shot was fired from the gallery. The shot was followed by a volley of shots from revolvers in the hands of [illegible] men. Pandemonium reigned for a few minutes, and then the crowd rushed for the doors. Many were trampled upon and injured. Two men were shot dead, and [illegible] others were wounded, some of them seriously.

CABINET COMPLETED.

MORLEY AND CHAMBERLAIN COMING TO AN UNDERSTANDING.

LONDON, Jan. 10.—The composition of the new Cabinet was announced this evening. Lord Salisbury is Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs; W. H. Smith, First Lord of the Treasury; G. J. Goschen, Chancellor of the Exchequer; Edward Stanhope, Secretary of State for War; Sir Henry Holland, Secretary of State for the Colonies. There is no change in the other Cabinet offices.

The Earl of Edinburgh succeeded Lord Salisbury's office of the Privy Seal. Lord Lister Knight claims that the resolution of his hereditary peerage in the sanction an excuse which he withdrawn from official life, under a strong sense of having been ill-treated. His personal friendship for him has produced his resignation only to enable Lord Salisbury to form a conservative cabinet. When the Prime Minister's efforts in that direction failed, Lord Edinburgh considered himself entitled to hold the leading portfolio.

A Card from Churchill.
LONDON, Jan. 10.—Lord Randolph Churchill, replying to an address of confidence from a Primrose League, says the signers of the address are more generous in their judgment than many Conservative Members of Parliament who have precipitately condemned him, although they have no information as to the causes of his resignation. He says he cares little whether such hasty and adverse criticism is modified or not after he has been allowed to make a public personal explanation, the approval of such persons being as worthless in their disapproval.

Chamberlain and Morley.
LONDON, Jan. 10.—The negotiations between Mr. Chamberlain and Mr. Morley are [illegible] toward an agreement on the land bill, and on the basis of Mr. Chamberlain's former proposals to limit the operations of the bill to the purchase of the smaller holdings, thus requiring a total capital, guaranteed by the Imperial Exchequer, of $50,000,000. The difference as to the functions and powers of the proposed Irish Parliament continues.

The Candidate for Liverpool.
LONDON, Jan. 10.—Ralph Neville, a barrister, has been chosen as the Gladstonian candidate for the vacant Liverpool seat in the House of Commons.

MADRID EXCITED.

The Infanta Isabella, Enlisted in the Chase, Causes Great Alarm.

MADRID, Jan. 10.—For several hours on Saturday the city was excited over sensational reports that the Infanta Isabella, a sister of the late King Alfonso, had been kidnapped or killed. The Infanta had gone out in a carriage to follow the royal huntsmen in the prado. She occupied her carriage alone and was escorted by three aides. In a remote part of the great park the carriage broke down, throwing the Infanta into a ditch. She was not hurt, although it was feared she was. It was deemed prudent for her to remain at the scene of the accident until assistance could be procured, and for this a lackey was despatched and much time was lost. In the meantime the huntsmen had gone on a great distance before they missed their royal mistress and when they discovered she was no longer with them they became greatly frightened, started a general alarm and began a noisy search. The prolonged absence of the Infanta from the castle caused uneasiness there and finally police and troops were sent out in search of her. They heard the reports which had been scattered by the frightened huntsmen and the whole country was subjected to a scouring, alarming the people and producing the most sensational stories. The lackey sent for assistance was slow, and it was 10 o'clock at night before the royal carriage was found and the truth heralded about town. What added to the general consternation during the search for the Infanta was the recollection of the recent conspiracy, ascribed to stock gamblers, for stealing the royal babe and leaving the throne without an heir.

A FIENDISH OUTRAGE.

A Man Shot at a Dance and Left to Freeze to Death.

ST. PAUL, Jan. 10.—Last night when the thermometer indicated thirty degrees below zero Edward Meagher, aged 30 years, started to walk from this city to Fort Snelling, a distance of six miles. At Meadota, a mile from Fort Snelling, he stopped in a public hall where a dance was in progress. Several of the men present were intoxicated and some of them set upon Meagher. After a quarrel shot-guns were produced and four of the half-drunken dancers helped to fill Meagher's body full of shot.

One charge took effect in his head and neck and the other in his limbs. Eight of the ruffians then bound Meagher hand and foot, and placing him unconvered in a long box sleigh, drove him three miles to the house of Justice Bryant where he was left. The man bled profusely, and as the blood flowed it froze instantly, fastening the wounded man to the boards of the sleigh. His hands, face and feet were badly frozen, and it seems almost a miracle that any life was left in him. He was brought to this city yesterday, and is now at the hospital. Justice Bryant released the assailants on their own recognizance because, he says, they told him Meagher began the fight. Meagher cannot recover.

THE CHICAGO ANARCHISTS.

They Denounce the Police, the Courts and the Military.

CHICAGO, Jan. 10.—"A grand mass meeting of the International Working Peoples' Association" was announced for yesterday afternoon at Zepf's Hall—the old Socialistic headquarters. About 100 men and one woman were present. The speeches were made entirely in German, not one word of English being spoken. A man named Otto acted as Chairman. Previous to the beginning of the speeches, he stated that the names of none of the speakers would be announced, for reasons which the audience would readily understand, and cautioned his hearers not to mention the names of those who might address them to any one unless he was a "brother."

The questions discussed were: "How Shall we Agitate?" and "The Increase of Militia and Creation of a Military Station in the very Vicinity of Chicago." These subjects were soon lost sight of, however, and the speakers proceeded to preach in violent terms against the police department, the courts, militia and other representatives of the law, as well as against capitalists, rich corporations and the "capitalistic press." During the meeting two men passed around through the audience, offering for sale copies of the "Lives of Johann Most and August Reinkanopf," and also the speeches made by the condemned anarchists.

Sabbath Observance in Montreal.
MONTREAL, Jan. 10.—At a meeting of the Protestant Ministerial Association held to-day it was decided to ask the Street Railway Company to either modify or abolish traffic on Sundays. A resolution was also adopted expressing strong disapproval of military [illegible] on Sundays and asking the military authorities that if such parades took place then they should be held at such times as not to interfere with Sunday school and Church services.

Desperate San Francisco Robbers.
SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 10.—The street car strikers yesterday afternoon attempted to blow up a dummy on the Geary-street cable road. The sandwork of the dummy was wrecked, but no one was injured. Twelve men were arrested at a distance of several blocks, and pistols were seized.

ACCIDENTS ON THE RAILWAYS.

Several Collisions on American Lines Yesterday.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Jan. 10.—John Cribbs, engineer, and Fletcher Dean, fireman, on the Pittsburg, Ft. Wayne & Chicago Railroad were terribly crushed in a collision with a train of coke cars at Manchester, near Allegheny City, last evening. Both engines were wrecked. A negligent switchman is blamed for the accident.

A Bridge Accident.
SCHENECTADY, N.Y., Jan. 10.—A New York Central freight jumped the trust at Normanville Creek, seven miles from here, yesterday afternoon, and twenty cars were thrown over the trestle into the creek, eighty feet below. The engine and forward car had crossed the trestle and escaped. The cars contained 10,000 bushels of grain and 1000 tons of coal. Two brakemen were slightly injured.

A Conductor Killed.
BALTIMORE, Pa., Jan. 10.—A crowded freight train on the Wilmington and Northern Railroad was run into by another freight near Lamoyne Station early yesterday morning, and Harry Hubert of Reading, conductor, and William B. Martin of Hoboken, a passenger, were instantly killed. The caboose, in which they were riding, was upset in the collision, and, catching fire, both bodies were burned. Henry Moor of Wilmington, a brakeman, and the firemen of the stalled trains were badly injured, but will recover. The engineer and fireman of the colliding train saved their lives by jumping from their engine. The blame is laid on the dead conductor, Hubert, who was asleep while on duty.

THE HAMILTON CARNIVAL.

Leading Citizens Take Hold of the Scheme and Are Actually Booming It.

HAMILTON, Jan. 10.—The proposed carnival is absorbing public attention at present, and leading citizens are doing all in their power to make it a success. At Saturday's meeting of the Board of Trade Mayor McKay was elected President of the Committee of Management; Messrs. George Roach, William Hendrie and Archibald Wilson, Vice-Presidents; C. R. Smith, Secretary, and George Bristol, Treasurer. Afterwards committees on illumination and fireworks, on bonspiel and skating, on railways and finance, on speeding, on printing and advertising, on procession and on reception were appointed.

This morning the finance and printing committee met at the Board of Trade rooms. Sub-committees were appointed for the purpose of obtaining subscriptions. The printing committee decided to bill all the cities and towns in Canada at once.

The carnival will be held on Feb. 2 and 3, and it is probable that the proposed trades parade will take place on the first day.

The gentlemen comprising the committees are all men of energy, and they seem determined that no lack of effort on their part will stand in the way of the successful carrying out of the scheme.

HAMILTON MASTERS.

The Amount of the Insurance on the Church of the Ascension.

HAMILTON, Jan. 10.—The total amount of insurance on the Church of the Ascension is $11,600, divided as follows: $6000 on the building, $2000 on the organ and $1600 on the church furniture. The companies interested are: London Assurance Corporation $2000, British America Insurance Company $2000, Royal Insurance Company $2000, London, Liverpool and Globe $2000. It will take about $6000 or $10,000 to replace the organ and put the interior of the church in as good condition as before. The organ originally cost about $6000, including the gas engine. Some of the church furniture was thrown down in the snow, but the bulk of it was unharmed.

SUICIDE IN MONTREAL.

A Young Man from Ogdensburg Cuts His Throat in a Drug Store.

MONTREAL, Jan. 10.—A sad case of suicide occurred this morning in L. B. Berdeau' drug store, corner of St. Denis and St. Catherine-streets. A young man named Henry Verner of Ogdensburg, N.Y., got his throat from ear to ear with a razor. He was the son of a well-known chemist, who last year removed his business from Quebec to Ogdensburg. He was a very close student and was warned against over working, but he continued at it until he commenced to show signs of mental aberration. He was about being sent home when he took his life.

THE ADMINISTRATION OF INDIAN AFFAIRS.

The Dominion government cannot escape from their responsibility for the misgovernment which brought on the Northwest Rebellion, any more than from the responsibility for the administration of Indian affairs, which resulted in the starvation of the heroes of savage customs and ensnares to the misery wrought by the unhappy revolt of the Halfbreeds. No fairer blank sheet is found on the good name of Canada than the disgraceful administration of Indian affairs in the north-west, with Sir John Macdonald as the chief head of that branch of the public service. The reports of the Department are eloquent with statements of wrongs done to the Indians, promises broken, violated Treaties, and the shameful misconduct of those appointed to official positions in the North-west; all furnishing proofs that cheating and robbing the Indians had been reduced to a science.

Instead of men of high moral standing, truthfulness and honesty being chosen to preside over the Indians of the North-west, the government selected from a swarm of camp followers those who were unfit for positions of respectability in the older Provinces, and who have since proved themselves to be dishonest, untruthful and grossly immoral. The public accounts show over $2,100,000 charged annually to Indian affairs, but a very large portion of that amount finds its way into the pockets of the hordes of official parasites who have been placed in responsible positions by the government. Flour furnished by the contractors has been stigmatized in official reports as "stinking." Trousers and shirts have been supplied "which were inferior and worn out in three or four days." (See official report of G. McPherson, Indian Agent.) Mr. McColl, Inspector of Agencies, says of the seeds furnished for the Indian farms, "The potatoes and barley were half rotten." Mr. Horeheimer, in his report of 1883, says, "A great deal of sickness has visited them lately, caused by the want of fresh meat. The Indians, under treaty 4, received in 1884-5, $15,290.92 worth of pork, and $1,236.45 worth of beef, although it is known that beef is life to the Indian of the plains, while salt pork is disease and death to him. For the salt pork the officials paid 20 to 25 cents per pound, and they could have procured all the fresh beef required for 3½ to 15 cents per pound.

In 1883-'84-'85, the Indians under Treaties Nos. 4, 6 and 7, with a total population of 12,102, and partially cultivating 4,614 acres, are charged with agricultural implements and tools amounting to the sum of $37,444, or $139 for implements for every acre cultivated. It is an outrage on common sense to ask any one to believe that those implements ever reached the Indians. A wilful misapplication was made of the money by the officials. The Indians were defrauded and the country was robbed. The Public Accounts and Indian Reports are teeming with such charges. Priests and Protestant ministers have repeatedly called the attention of the government to the immoral practices of their officials, and to the open manner in which young Indian girls, of from 13 to 16 years of age, are sold to white men at from $10 to $20 each, into a life that is worse than death, but the government has as repeatedly refused to interfere. The electors are asked to stamp with their disapproval the policy of an administration under which is flourishing such disgraceful conduct in the Indian affairs of the North-west. An evidence of the christian sentiment of the country on this subject can be secured from a perusal of the following extract from the published minutes of the late General Presbyterian Synod. At the late Session of the General Presbyterian Synod, held at Hamilton, in June, 1886, the following utterances were made in relation to the treatment of the North-west Indians by Government Agents. Rev. Principal Cavan moved:—

"That the general Assembly, whilst disclaiming all political party aims, feels bound to give expression to the convictions regarding the treatment of the Indians in the North-west by the Dominion of Canada. No judgment is here expressed on our general policy towards the Indians, and the meritorious character and services of many servants of the Government in the Indian Department are gladly recognized; but it seems to be established by irresistible evidence that in too many instances a people who are wards of the Government are being wronged and defrauded by those who are specially appointed to care for them and promote their interests; whilst flagrant immorality is too often chargeable upon public servants, as well as upon traders and other whites who come much in contact with the Indian population. That the missionary efforts of the churches are counteracted and hindered, many sufferings brought upon the Indians, and a state of dissatisfaction towards the Dominion in even, to some extent, engendered. The General Assembly would earnestly recommend to the Government of Canada the imperative necessity of at once cancelling all appointments of agents and instructors who are known to be tyrannical, unjust or immoral, and of filling their places with men of integrity, sobriety and purity. Further, the Presbyterian Church pledges itself, as far as may be in its power, to co-operate with the public authorities in promoting the moral improvement and the temporal well-being of the Indians, whilst, in common with other churches, seeking to bring them under the holy influence of the Christian religion.

A copy of this resolution, signed by the Moderator and Clerks of the General Assembly, shall be respectfully transmitted to the hon. the Minister of the Interior and to the Superintendent-General of Indian affairs.

Speaking to his motion, Rev. Principal Cavan said that the Church had to take cognizance of the whole moral province, and while excluding away from party politics, it must not ignore would not keep silence on a point where immorality was concerned. Were there any grievance in regard to the Indians of the North-West? After giving the matter the most thorough investigation and obtaining a large amount of information, put from party motives he had come to the conclusion that there was. There had been heated discussions in the Parliament of Canada on this question. As a minister of Christ who had intervened in those strife, he had read them discontent. Very serious charges had been made by the Opposition, of Galt, the Government had replied that, at least all the officials complained of had been dismissed, and that the Government was determined to prove his guilt. Then was the speech of the Rev. Hugh McKay the other evening. And there were the letters and freely expressed opinions of their esteemed superintendent, the Rev. Hugh Robertson, with whom they met and all were familiar. (Applause.) Mr. Robertson had made indictments against the Indian agents such that no Government which had a proper sense of self-respect would wish to be passed over without investigation. The Presbytery of Brandon had made a non-political deliverance on the matter, as also has done the Senate of the North-West. Rev. Dr. King had also spoken out. The testimony of these leading individuals was uniform, and it was to the effect that while there were some men among the Indian agents who were gentlemen, and men of high Christian character, unfortunately there were many who were tyrannizing the poor Indians with shameful cruelty, defrauding them in the daily rest of provisions, and irritating them with treatment which he could not describe. He could not say what proportion of the agents were unsatisfactory, but they were, he was grieved to say, too many. The resolution did not say anything in regard to putting any Government out of power. The right of a great nation, treating as we were, going out to destroy these other creatures—men and not one, and if a nation which was capable of expending $5,000,000 to do these poor creatures an irreparable wrong do its best to redress their grievances, that action was not fit to live. He was not going to take up the difficult question of the propriety of party party politics. He was not in favor of party politics, as of present constituted and under present circumstances, considered some things which were very apparent to the feelings of a Christian man. (Applause).

Rev. Robert HAMILTON seconded the motion, giving his experience of the ill-treatment of the Indians.

Rev. Mr. BALL spoke of the great immorality which was introduced among them by depraved whites. He said that Mr H. Langevin, when the matter had been brought up in the House, had refused to acknowledge the responsibility of the Government for the wrong doings and immoral conduct of their agents. He had been very much surprised to hear such a statement from the hon. Minister, and could not realize that the Government would take such a position in regard to the matter.

Rev. Principal GRANT said:—We are doing a very solemn act, and we should all deliberately endorse or approve of this motion by all rising in attestation of our own feelings on the subject. I feel that we have been guilty of a national sin, and if we do not repent we will be punished as a nation, and a worse thing will come upon us if we do not mend our doings.

The resolution was carried unanimously by a standing vote.

To that representation, like many others that have been forwarded to them, the Government paid no attention. In the administration of the Indian affairs in the North-West, Sir John Macdonald has appeared thoroughly indifferent, except to have positions of employment provided for dishonest and immoral officials, whose acts have proved the most serious obstacle in the way of the efforts of missionaries to Christianize the Indians of that territory. Not only did his indifference denote a cruel disregard for the Indian population, abhorrent to every feeling of humanity, but it retarded the settlement of the country, thus imperilling important national interests, and also interfered with the Christianizing of the Indians and the promotion of that righteousness that exalteth a nation. The facts submitted are simply additional evidence that Sir John is ever ready to sacrifice everything to the advancement of party ends.

No Money In It.

There is no money in seeing visions. It is better for a man to go out and work for his provisions.

Free Trade.

The reduction of internal revenue and the taking off of revenue stamps from Proprietary Medicines, no doubt has largely benefitted the consumers, as well as relieving the burden of home manufacturers. Especially is this the case with Green's August Flower and Boschee's German Syrup, as the reduction of thirty-six cents per dozen has been added to increase the size of the bottles containing these remedies, thereby giving one-fifth more medicine in the 75 cent size. The August Flower for Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint, and the German Syrup for Cough and Lung troubles have, perhaps, the largest sale of any medicines in the world. The advantage of increased size of the bottles will be greatly appreciated by the sick and afflicted, in every town and village in civilized countries. Sample bottles for 10c. remain at the same size. eodw41

CAMPBELL'S TONIC ELIXIR

This agreeable yet potent preparation is especially adapted for the relief and cure of that class of disorders attendant upon a low or reduced state of the system, and usually accompanied by Pallor, Weakness and Palpitation of the Heart. Prompt results will follow its use in cases of Sudden Exhaustion arising from Loss of Blood, Acute or Chronic Diseases, and in the weakness that invariably accompanies the recovery from Wasting Fevers. No remedy will give more speedy relief in Dyspepsia or Indigestion, its action on the stomach being that of a gentle and harmless tonic, exciting the organs of digestion to action, and thus affording immediate and permanent relief. The carminative properties of the different aromatics which the Elixir contains renders it useful in Flatulent Dyspepsia. It is a valuable remedy for Chronic Dyspepsia, which is apt to occur in persons of a sickly character.

For Impoverished Blood, Loss of Appetite, Dyspepsia, and in all cases wherein effects and certain stimulant is required, the Elixir will be found invaluable.

In Fevers of a Malarial Type, and the various evil effects following [illegible] the Elixir will be found [illegible]

He was enveloped in clouds of tobacco smoke—the only clouds which we can trust never to prove unworthy of our confidence in them—when Mrs. Presty's letter caught his attention. If the month had been January instead of July, he would have thrown it into the fire. Under present circumstances he took it up and read it.

"I hear no mailes, dear Randal, and I write to you as affectionately as if you had kept your temper on the occasion when we last met.

"You will be pleased to hear that Catherine was as thoroughly distressed as you could wish her to be, when it became my disagreeable duty to mention what had passed between us, by way of accounting for your absence. She was quite unable to fully her spirits, even with dear Capt. Bennydeck present to encourage her.

"'I am not receiving you as I ought,' she said to him, when we began dinner, 'but there is, perhaps, some excuse for me. I have lost the regard and esteem of an old friend, who has cruelly wronged me. From motives of delicacy (which I don't expect you to understand) she refrained from mentioning your name. You still keep your place, your unmerited place, in the captain's estimation. He asked no embarrassing questions; he was too exquisitely polite to attempt to insinuate himself into Catherine's confidence. The prettiest answer that I ever heard was the answer that he addressed to her. 'Let the true friend,' he said, 'take the place in your heart which the false friend has lost.'

"He kissed her hand. If you had seen how he did it, and how she looked at him, you would have felt that you had done more toward persuading my daughter to marry the captain than any other person about her, myself included. You had deserted her; you had thrown her back on the only friend left, thank you, Randal. In our best interests, thank you.

"It is needless to add that I got out of the way, and took Kitty with me, at the earliest opportunity—and left them by themselves.

"At bed-time I went into Catherine's room. Our interview began and ended in less than a minute. I was desirous to find if the captain had proposed marriage; her agitation sufficiently informed me of what had happened. My one question was: 'Dearest Catherine, have you said yes?' She turned shockingly pale, and answered: 'I have not said no.' Could anything be more encouraging? God bless you; good-by for the present. Arabella Presty."

Randal laid down the letter and filled his pipe again. He was not in the least exasperated; he was only anxious to hear from Mr. Sarrazin. If Mrs. Presty had seen him at that moment she would have said to herself: "I forgot the wretch was a smoker."

In half an hour more the door was opened by Malcolm, and Mr. Sarrazin entered the room.

"There are no such incorrigible gossips," he said, "as men in the smoking-room of a club. Those popular newspapers began the mischief—and the editor of one of them completed it. How he got his information I am not able to say. The small-talk turned on that report about the charming widow; and the editor congratulated himself on the delicacy of his conduct. 'When the paragraph reached me,' he said, 'the writer mentioned that Mrs. Ormond was that well-known lady, the divorced Mrs. Herbert Linley. I thought this rather too bad, and I cut it out.' Your brother appears to have been present—but he seldom goes to the club, and none of the members knew him even by sight. Shall I give you a light? Your pipe's out."

Randal's feelings at that moment were not within reach of the comforting influence of tobacco.

CHAPTER XLIII.

The garden of the hotel at Sydenham had originally belonged to a private house. Of great extent, it had been laid out in excellent taste. Flower-beds and lawns, a handsome fountain, seats shaded by groups of fine trees at their full growth, completed the pastoral charm of the place. A winding path led across the garden from the back of the house. It had been continued by the speculator who purchased the property, until it reached a road at the extremity of the grounds which communicated with the Crystal palace. Visitors to the hotel had such pleasant associations with the garden that many of them returned at future opportunities, instead of trying the attraction of some other place. Various tastes and different ages found their wishes equally consulted here. Children rejoiced in the finest playground they had ever seen. Remote walks secluded among shrubberies invited persons of reserved disposition who came as strangers and as strangers desired to remain. The fountain and the lawn collected sociable visitors, who were always ready to make acquaintance with each other. Even the amateur artist could take liberties with nature and find the accommodating limits of the garden sufficient for his purpose. Trees in the foreground sat to him for likenesses that were never recognised, and hills subsisted to unprovoked familiarities on behalf of brushes which were not daunted by distance.

On the day after the dinner which had so deplorably failed in respect of one of the guests invited to fulfill Catherine's anticipations there was a festival at the palace. It had proved so generally attractive to the guests at the hotel that the grounds were almost deserted.

As the sun declined on a lovely summer evening the few invalids feebly wandering about the flower-beds or resting under the trees began to return to the house in dread of the dew. Catherine and her child, with the nursemaid in attendance, were left alone in the garden. Kitty found her mother, as she openly declared, "not such good company as usual." Since the day when her grandmother had said the fatal words which checked all further allusion to her father the child had shown a disposition to complain if she was not constantly amused. She complained of Mrs. Presty now.

"I think grandmamma might have taken me to the Crystal palace," she said.

"My dear, your grandmamma has friends with her—ladies and gentlemen who don't care to be troubled with a child."

Kitty received this information in a very unamiable spirit. "I hate ladies and gentlemen!" she said.

"Even Capt. Bennydeck?" her mother asked."

"No; I like my nice captain. And I like the waiters. They would take me to the Crystal palace—only they're always busy. I wish it was holidays; I don't know what to do with myself."

"Take a little walk with Susan."

"Where shall I go?"

Catherine looked toward the gate which opened to the road and pointed to it out to the old man who kept the lodge.

Kitty shook her head. There was an objection to the old man. "He asks questions; he [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

All the accounts were referred to the Finance Committee, with the exception of the account of Morton, which was ordered to be paid.

FINANCE.

Mr. Davidson presented the report of the Finance Committee, which recommended payment of the following accounts:—Craig & Mooney, $91; Geo. Stethem, $4; Lockhart & Chown, $18.15; Peterborough Gas Co., $149.02; Sallsbury & Bro., $5.60; T. Whyte & Co., $3.45; Robt. White, $10.00.

Messrs. Kendry, Moore and Rutherford objected to the report on the ground that he and other members of the committee had not been notified; they did not attend and knew nothing of the report. The report was laid over till the next meeting of the Council.

SAYING FAREWELL.

Mr. Rutherford, chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee, made a verbal report, reviewing the work of the Committee for the year, in bringing the fire department to such a high standard. The fire hall had been re-floored, repaired, enlarged and furnished satisfactorily to the brigade. They had 2,000 feet of valuable hose, and with the new hook-and-ladder and salvage waggons, the brigade would be in a first-class position. The drainage of the town buildings had been attended to, and though the rate this year was large, he did not think it would be over 12½ mills in the dollar. There had been little differences between the councillors at times, but he left with no hard feelings, satisfied with his share of the work in the Council which had kept the town in such a sound financial state.

BIDDING ADIEU.

Mr. Cahill, in a few appropriate remarks, eulogistic of the services of Messrs. Rutherford and McClelland, introduced a motion, seconded by Mr. Davidson, that this council, while bowing to the popular will as expressed at the polls, desire to place on record their very sincere regret at the loss to the corporation of the services of Messrs. Rutherford and McClelland, who have rendered valuable services to the town in their respective positions as chairman of the Fire, Water and Light, Property and Charity Committees.

Before the motion was put, the MAYOR spoke feelingly of Mr. Rutherford's services in connection with the fire department, and his promptitude in attending committee meetings. The council would sustain a very serious loss by his departure. Mr. Yelland also expressed regret that Mr. Rutherford was left off the council this year, and after stating that no one at the council board was better acquainted with the business of the council than Mr. Rutherford, the motion was put and unanimously carried.

PAYING THE PAY LISTS.

Mr. Davidson moved, seconded by Mr. McNaughton, that pay list No. 1, amounting to $11.50, be paid, and that in future it be paid when certified to by the chairman of the Streets and Bridges Committee.—Carried.

THANKS TO THE PRESS.

Mr. Moore, in a few complimentary terms, introduced a motion, which was seconded by Mr. Yelland, thanking the town papers and the reporters for their services in publishing the reports of the council meetings. The motion was carried.

DISCUSSING DUTIES.

The question of replying to the letter of Mr. E. B. Edwards, Town Solicitor, brought on a heated discussion. Messrs. Moore, Yelland, Kendry and Hartley expressed their disapproval of the course of Chief Cooper in withdrawing the case, while Mr. Cahill contended that the crown solicitor was to blame. It was his duty, and not the chief's, to prove the case. Besides, it was a question whether Mr. Edwards was acting for the town in prosecuting these cases. He (Mr. Cahill) understood he was was acting for the Scott Act Association. Mr. Moore said that the police magistrate, who had complete control over the case, was the principal offender, but all were to blame, more or less.

The council adjourned without coming to any decision.

The Roarin' Game.

Curling Comments—A Bonspiel in Peterborough—The International.

It has been decided to hold the primary competition for the Ontario tankard in Peterborough on Tuesday and Wednesday, the first and second days of February, if possible.

The last rink of the President and Vice-President match was played off yesterday afternoon, as follows:—

President.	Vice-President.
D. Pellgrhem	J. D. Bastie.
F. Hankain.	R. Calcutt.
Jas. Connell.	W. Croft.
A. Hall, skip 16	A. McNeil, skip 17

The following rinks will represent Peterborough at the international bonspiel, which opens at Toronto to-morrow: Rink No. 1—J. McClelland, W. Salisbury, H. M. Allen, T. P. Attrill, skip; Rink No. 2—G. Walker, C. McGill, R. S. Davidson, W. G. Ferguson, skip. They leave for Toronto at 5.42 this evening, and are to play off 26 ends to-morrow, which will take five hours. Rinks are to be drawn at 10 o'clock to-night in Toronto. Fifty rinks of Americans and one from Ogden, minister from Canada will participate. It will be a big affair.

Personal.

Mr. M. McAuliffe, formerly of Eastmoore, the new manager of the Syrain Hotel, Atchison, Kansas, has been here on a visit to his friends for some time. Mr. McAuliffe leaves this evening by the G.T.R. and connections for his home in the far west. May his shad-

The Siege of Derry.

A Vivid Account of the Defence of Derry by Rev. A. E. Telfer, in the George street Methodist Church.

A fair audience assembled in the George street Methodist Church last night to listen to the Rev. A. E. Telfer's lecture on "The Boys of Derry." Mr. George Hilliard occupied the chair, and had sitting on the pulpit platform beside him the pastor of the church, Rev. I. Tovell. The chairman, in introducing the speaker, made a few remarks.

Rev. Mr. TELFER began his lecture by stating that during his ministry in Glasgow he had made frequent visits to Ireland, and had thus become well acquainted with the Irish character. After mentioning his lectures in Ireland, a visit to the lakes of Killarney, and several amusing incidents connected therewith, the speaker referred to the early history of Ireland, alluding to the legendary and vague character of its history to-day. Some historians claimed that the first queen of Ireland was a niece of Noah. This, the speaker said, was before the time of shillalahs. Coming down to the time of Adrian III. Pope of Rome, who had given Ireland to the English King, body, and bones, the lecturer described Derry as built on solid rock, enclosed on three sides by water, and surrounded by heavy walls and a moat, characterizing it as the finest site for a city in Great Britain, except Edinburgh. The lecturer enlarged descriptively upon the condition of Derry just prior to the siege in 1688 by the forces of James II., the Roman Catholic King of England, dwelling on the incident connected with the sudden decision of the Protestant boys to seize the keys and close the gates of the city, and the brave action of the Prentice Boys in closing the water gates. This was greeted with loud applause. The lecturer said the defenders of Derry were Christians first and Protestants afterwards; men in this country were Protestants first and then politicians. He went on to describe the horrors of the siege, the famine and pestilence, the great number of the besiegers and the handful in the city, numbering only 8,000. These were reduced every day by death at the rate of about 50 soldiers and about 100 citizens. Owing to the rocky nature of the ground upon which the city was built, no soil could be procured in which to bury the dead. The timbers of the buildings that were daily destroyed by the shells of the enemy were used to cover over the bodies. Many providential escapes were recorded. The "no surrender" oath was referred to, in which the defenders swore they would not surrender as long as there was a man left to stand upon the walls, after which the speaker dwelt upon the horrors of the famine that existed in the city. Rats, cats, dogs and horse flesh were greedily eaten, and even the hides out of tanneries and old boots and shoes were scraped and cooked, and had a marked value. Touching upon the relief of the besieged city, he related a melancholy incident whereby a gentleman named Mr. Browning, was shot down on board his vessel just under the walls, where he expected to be reunited with his wife and children, who were in the city. In concluding, after referring to the battle of the Boyne and the allegiance of the men of Derry to Prince William of Orange, the lecturer urged his hearers to be charitable and patient towards the Irish people, and predicted the time when the veil would be lifted from the eyes of their Roman Catholic fellow-citizens, and a nation would be "born in a day." He paid a glowing tribute to the Irish character, and hoped the Government would do them justice, and win back a noble and generous people to their allegiance to the Crown. He afterwards recited a poem of his own composition on the siege, which was well rendered and equally well received.

Rev. Mr. Tovell, with a few happy remarks, moved a vote of thanks to the lecturer. The chairman on rising to put the motion, gave it as his opinion that if Home Rule was granted to Ireland, it would be a retrograde movement, and would be a step towards bringing the Irish people back to the condition of things just described by the lecturer.

The motion was unanimously carried, and the meeting was closed by the audience singing the National Anthem.

St. Andrews's Entertainment.

A Delightful Success Throughout.

There was a good house at the Opera House last night to hear and witness the excellent programme of the St. Andrew's Sunday School entertainment. The programme consisted of music and tableaux. The latter, were "Two Sides of Life," "Sir Roger de Coverly;" "Love or Money" "Oriental Scene" "Bachelor's Reverie" "The Three Graces," and "Good Night." In all these the pose and grouping were excellent and some so pleased the audience that they had to be repeated. "The Good Night" scene was particularly effective. The musical programme was excellently opened by Miss Vair, in "Titania." She was in excellent voice, and on this occasion surpassed any of her previous efforts. The instrumental trio, two violins and piano) by the Misses Edmison and Prof. Doucet, was a most effective evidence of Miss Maud Edmison's powers as a violinists and her success reflects credit, not only on herself, but also on Prof. Doucet, her instructor. Miss Howden's singing added fresh leaves to her laurel wreath. In her delightful rendering of "Arditi's Waltz," sung in Italian, and in the "Morning and Evening Star," which she gave as an encore; and in her second number "Marguerite" and the encore, Tosti's "Good Bye," she scored new triumphs. Her pure, rich and sweet, though powerful voice, clear and even in all positions responding sensitively to the sentiments of her subject, coupled with distinct enunciation, and ease of execution, make Miss Howden one of Canada's most effective concert vocalists. Mr. Newbold sang two songs, "The Jester," and The "Children's Home," the latter so well that he had to respond to an encore with "The Forgotten Song." The pianoforte pieces were Miss Caven's (St. Andrews' new organist), sprightly "Tarantelle" of Heller, and the Misses Loch's excellent duet, "Robert Toi que J'aime." The vocal duet, "See the Pale Moon," by Misses Vair and Strickland was one of the most effective and pleasing numbers on the programme. Both ladies acquitted themselves in this with a great deal of credit, and their contribution was a fitting close to a successful entertainment, whose promoters, especially those concerned in the arduous labor of bringing the tableaux to a successful presentation, must recognize their reward in the success that attended their efforts.

HELLO! BROWN,

"What are you looking so mad about, this morning?"

"Well, I'll tell you, Jones. I bought a very fine Tent from TURNER, and one of my friends wanted to borrow it."

"And did you lend it?"

"Well, I guess not. The last Tent I had got used up by lending. I told him to go to J. J. TURNER, the great Tent maker, and he would rent or sell him a tent."

WHY

Will people pay rent when houses and lots can be purchased on such easy terms as are offered by the undersigned. Come and inspect our work and see for yourselves how we construct our houses. Our chief aim and study is to build substantial, warm, front and damp proof houses. I am offering good building lots, and will build solid brick houses, nine-inch walls, arranged and in bed, two stories, for less money than you can buy frame or veneered buildings. We cordially invite those who anticipate renting or buying to inspect our work and prove for themselves that our houses are not merely built to sell. Every house I've sold gives first class satisfaction, and I am determined that every house I build shall be a standing testimony to honest building. JOHN CARLISLE, Hunter and Brock Streets, 2nd block west of St. Andrew's Church. wd

ENGLISH AFFAIRS.

THE TIMES SAYS THE CABINET IS THREATENED FROM WITHIN.

LONDON, Jan. 11.—Lord Iddesleigh, replying to a communication from the Workingmen's Union regarding his resignation of the Foreign Secretaryship says: "While regretting the circumstances which rendered it, in my opinion, necessary to resign, my retirement is not due to any political differences with my colleagues. I hold as heartily as ever to the great Conservative cause."

The Cabinet Threatened from Within.

LONDON, Jan. 11.—The Times says that the Cabinet is threatened from within not from without. What is seriously to be feared is the failure of the Irish Executive to grapple with the conspiracy to prevent the payment of rent. It is only too clear from the evidence given at the trial of the Woodford tenants at Dublin that a vigorous enforcement of the law is discouraged by the Government, who cannot surely desire landlords to provide an armed force on their own behalf, yet if the Executive draw back what choice is there between this and a dangerous approach to civil war and complete victory for the Irish National League.

"God Save the Queen" Hissed.

LONDON, Jan. 11.—The inaugural meeting of the London Liberal-Radical Union was held at St. James' Hall this evening. The hall was crowded. The organist attempted to play "God Save The Queen," when a storm of hissing and hooting arose, completely drowning the cheering. There were on the platform a number of members of Parliament and other Liberals, all of whom, with the exception of Bradlaugh, rose and joined in the cheering. Bradlaugh's action was endorsed with terrific applause by the majority of the audience.

Mr. Morley made a vigorous speech, in the course of which he praised Hartington for having refused to assist Lord Salisbury in saving the political antiquities of the Carlton Club. The defection of Mr. Goschen, he said, had not caused any great refrigeration of the Liberal atmosphere, while the mutiny of its cleverest young member and its most respected old member would scarcely strengthen the Government.

During the meeting every mention of Mr. Gladstone's name was a signal for enthusiastic cheering. A letter from Mr. Gladstone was read, expressing hearty sympathy with the movement, and hoping it would aid in placing London in the foremost position as a Liberal stronghold.

"LORD" COURTENAY AGAIN.

An Impostor Who Has Traded on American Love for Aristocrats.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Jan. 11.—Some time ago a person named Charles Talbot, who represented himself as a near relative of the Earl of Shrewsbury, and a member of the Queen's Guards, arrived here. He has been having a splendid time in the city, gaining admission to the best circles. On his representation that his remittances were delayed he has borrowed a good deal of money in sums from $5 to $1000. He failed so many times to pay at the time promised that inquiries were made as to his financial condition. The climax was reached to-day when the pretended Englishman was identified as the same person who has been victimizing different persons in Norfolk, Baltimore, New York, Montreal and elsewhere. He is known as Hugh L. Courtenay, alias Lord Courtenay, alias Lord Beresford, alias Sir Henry Vane, of Her Majesty's Light Guards, as described in the police records. His indebtedness in this city is large. He represented yesterday that he had received a despatch from the British Minister at Washington asking him to come to see him, and he raised $600 on this invitation and left for other fields.

Diphtheria Epidemic.

ST. THOMAS, Jan. 11.—There are about twenty cases of diphtheria in the vicinity of Malakoff, Balaclava and Wandworth streets, and nearly a score of houses are decorated with the cards of the Medical Health Officer. The Balaclava street school has been closed. Should the disease continue to spread the Grace Methodist and St. John's Sunday schools will also be closed on Sunday next.

Half-a-dozen families in the neighborhood have from one to three children down with the malady. The most serious case, however, is that of the family of Mr. George Leakey, no less than five being down with the disease, while both Mr. and Mrs. Leakey are worn out with constant attendance upon the children.

The Case of Sproule, Hanged for Murder.

OTTAWA, Jan. 11.—The case of Sproule, who was hanged in British Columbia about two months ago, is likely to be further discussed. Sproule's counsel asked for a respite of two weeks in order to enable them to find a witness named Beaty, who it was claimed could prove Sproule's innocence. The Government refused to grant the respite, and Sproule was hanged. Now Beaty, who has turned up in California, swears that Sproule was with him fifteen miles away from the scene of the tragedy when the murder for which he was hanged was committed.

Sanitoff's Unpopularity.

PHILLIPPOPOLIS, Jan. 11.—M. Zankoff passed through this city on his way to Constantinople. A mob assembled at the depot, although a heavy rain storm prevailed, and violently hooted and hissed him. The police had great difficulty in restraining the furious people from assaulting M. Zankoff. Shouts of "down with the traitor" were uttered and showers of mud were thrown at the vehicle containing M. Zankoff.

Fire in Windsor.

WINDSOR, Ont., Jan. 11.—E. R. Tolbert's [illegible] was discovered to be on fire [illegible] and [illegible] in the [illegible] Monday morning. Fourteen families occupied the building, and all were rescued with difficulty. The building was completely destroyed. The loss is estimated at $15,000, and is covered by insurance.

BISMARCK IN DEBATE.

THE GERMAN ARMY BILL MUST BE PASSED UNAMENDED.

BERLIN, Jan. 11.—The Reichstag was crowded to-day when the Army Bill came up for second reading. After Von Moltke had finished a vigorous speech in favor of the bill, and while Baron Stauffenberg was speaking Bismarck entered the chamber, causing quite a commotion.

Bismarck, when Stauffenberg had concluded, rose to speak, and every eye was turned upon him. "The decree of all the military authorities of the empire," he said, "is only opposed by Herr Richter, Herr Windthorst and Herr Grillenberger. It was difficult to conclude the peace of Frankfort, and it is still more difficult to maintain it. A degree of intimacy and mutual confidence exists between Germany and Austria such as never existed in the period of the German Federation. We are bound to maintain peace for this quarter of the globe, but for this a strong army is required. Our relations with all powers are of the best, and our good relations with Russia are beyond all doubt. I should have considered entering upon war on account of Bulgaria as an act of treason against my country."

Prince Bismarck continued, "What is Bulgaria to us. It is all the same to us whoever governs there. The friendship of Russia is surely more important to us than that of Bulgaria. We have not allowed ourselves to be induced by anyone to make an enemy of Russia for the sake of Bulgaria. To maintain good relations among the powers is more difficult than you think. We cannot allow our efforts to be nullified by journalistic or parliamentary attacks. Our relations with France continue good. To maintain them is difficult because a long historical process must be accompanied before the feelings of the past are appeased and differences reconciled. We have done everything to endear the French to forget and forgive and we have no present ground to apprehend war with France. Neither have we any reason to fear it if it should happen. There can be no question about our attacking France, but we must protect ourselves against attacks. Under no circumstances shall we attack France, but we shall always be compelled to arm ourselves in such a manner as to be equal to the contingency of war. This is the supreme object of the Army Bill. I have firm confidence in the peaceable disposition of the French Government and a portion of the French people. Still the past teaches us that we cannot count upon peace with France as permanent. A Government may one day come into power at Paris which will make war upon us. This you must take into account. Is there in France a single paper or a single public person who says we renounce our rights to Alsace-Lorraine. The possibility of French aggression is, therefore, a sufficient motive for the bill. France is a strong and well-armed power, her army is brave and ready to fight, and we must never sit idle with our hands in our laps, however peaceful France may look for the moment. The peace of 1870 is mere child's play in comparison with what peace would be after a war in 1890. He who wishes to take the responsibility for this let him. The Federal Government will not take that responsibility, and they, therefore, submit this bill. No ground exists for placing difficulties in the way of the Federal Government in regard to the period of duration of the bill, especially in view of the fact that we have kept strictly to the text and spirit of the constitution. Understand, now, that we absolutely adhere to our demand for the septennate. We cannot give way even a hair's breadth. Do you wish to make the rise and fall of the German army depend upon majorities in the Reichstag? By doing so you change the Imperial army into a parliamentary force. You can hardly expect that the Emperor in his ninetieth year will contribute to the destruction of the work to which he has devoted the last thirty years of his life—the creation of Germany and the army of the German empire. If you believe that possible, if you awaken the slightest suspicion that these are your aims, and if you do not speedily satisfy the wishes of the Federal Government regarding the defensive powers of Germany by complete acceptance of the bill, then we prefer to deal with another Reichstag—we will enter into no further negotiations with you.

At the conclusion of his speech Bismarck was loudly cheered.

Dr. Windthorst spoke in favor of the adoption of a term of three years. On the whole he was satisfied with Prince Bismarck's view of the general situation. The Chancellor could certainly dissolve the Reichstag, but what would be gained by dissolution? What would be the use of the constitution or even the whole machinery of state if the Reichstag was existent only to signify its assent to measures submitted to it?

Prince Bismarck arose to reply. He said: "The House has heard Count Von Moltke and Dr. Windthorst. The question is whether the latter is superior to the former as a military authority. The question is, Shall our army be an Imperial or a Parliamentary force? Shall its effective strength be fixed here yearly? Now, this shall not be. To say that we wish by dissolving to secure an assembly which will always say 'yes' to everything is taking an exaggerated view. Grumbling by Parliament when demands are made for the security of the Empire is nowhere as customary as it is in Germany. Herr Windthorst, in saying that Russia is an ally, did not hit the mark. In the presence of the good relations existing between Germany and other Powers and the possibility of a war with France, I have counted upon no ally, nor can be. If the delay in passing the bill has encouraged the war party in France those persons must be held responsible who have caused the delay."

Prince Bismarck proceeded to discuss the financial aspects of the bill. He disputed the assertion that expenses would be incurred which the country would be unable to support. In conclusion the Chancellor said the Government could have no further dealings with the committee. The decision lay with the House itself. When Bismarck concluded the House adjourned until to-morrow.

THE POSITION OF FRANCE.

No Military Party Exists There and the Country Desires Peace.

PARIS, Jan. 11.—M. Floquet was to-day re-elected President of the Chamber of Deputies. In the Senate M. Sadi-Carnot, who presided, said there were two conditions essential to the prosperity of France, stability within the nation and peace abroad. The national spirit of the French people had no need to be revived, he said, by fear of any foreign power. No military party existed in France, for the army was essentially a civic body. The country desired peace, but should events occur contrary to its wishes it would prove that it had not lost time during the past fifteen years.

The Alcazar Palace at Toledo Burned.

MADRID, Jan. 11.—A fire in Alcazar Palace at Toledo on Sunday resulted in the total destruction of the building. The water supplies were very meagre, and the firemen were obliged to allow the fire to take its course, and to direct their efforts to prevent the flames from spreading to the town. During the progress of the fire three officers and seventeen men were injured, some of them severely. The palace was recently restored at a cost of $1,600,000.

A Dynamite Factory Wiped Out.

BURLINGTON, Vt., Jan. 11.—The dynamite factory at Plattsburgh, N.Y., was totally destroyed by fire and an explosion early this morning. The shock was felt here, a distance of 20 miles, the doors and windows jarring as if there was a heavy earthquake. Many hundreds of people ran into the streets. No lives were lost.

GET READY—KEEP READY.

As yet, no official announcement of the date of the Dominion election has been made, but there is every indication that the present Parliament has been dissolved. Of course, the Conservatives in the different ridings will be apprised of the date and be given ample time for organization; then the ministers will be sent up and down the country, with the hope of taking Liberals by surprise. Reformers, don't allow yourselves to be surprised. Get ready now and keep ready, for the elections, which will be brought on in a short time at the furthest. Complete every organization for the coming campaign, which will be short, sharp and, there is every reason to hope, decisive of the country's determination to cast off the thraldom of bossism and corruption. But, to secure this, every Reformer must put his shoulder to the wheel and every vote must be polled. See that this is done. Let no man depend on his neighbor. If every one springs to work, the action will be general. Organize at once. Begin work at once. Let every man make it his business to win one vote beside his own for Geo. A. Cox, John Long, and Edward Blake and honest government, and success is as certain as the sunrise. But nothing but hard and persistent work will succeed. Let it not be wanting. Begin at once!

"INDEPENDENT WITH CONSERVATIVE LEANINGS."

The Mail believes in party government, holding that party is a necessity of government. But, not having faith in either party, it is desirous of forming a new one, to be called an "independent with Conservative leanings." By this dodge the Conservative organ hopes, to secure enough of Reform votes, so that when the time for the "Conservative lean" comes, it may be able to push Sir John into power. Too, "thin," Mr. Mail, these tricks won't "go down." We know you too well—the voice is Jacob's voice, but the hands are the hands of Esau."

"The time of righteousness is now"—thus the Mail winds up its new declaration of platform—a platform which would, by force, take from Quebec the code de Forth, and their school law and the school system, guaranteed to them by the Confederation. What does this mean? Is the Confederation to be smashed because the country threatens to throw off the rule of corruption? Is it a conspiracy to throw us into a civil war? Or, is this a trick to enable Sir John and his party to hold up their hands in horror and declare aloud their abhorrence of the Mail and its doings, while all the time the arch-trickster is laughing in his sleeve and gleefully over the hope of getting the votes of all the godgrens who may rashly swallow the bait and be fished out of the Reform ranks to join Bunting, and his "independent party with Conservative leanings?"

The public will thus see how the "national policy" of the Dominion Government has reduced the shipping business of one port, and that its general effect has been of a similar cyclonic manner, sweeping Canadian shipping from the seas.

JOHNS—My dear Bunting! Delighted to see you—read your address to the public in Saturday's Mail. Too very thing. Wade, indeed, wanted independent party. Both of the parties are so corrupt—especially them Grits.

BUNTING—Exactly, Johns. My soul was vexed within me. Was at Salvation Army meetings—awakened conscience and all that. Who should know it if don't? They are corrupt rocking—they smell to Heaven—told Sir John so.

JOHNS—Did you, though? What did he say?

BUNTING—Say? Why he laughed, and said it was too funny for anything. He drew me aside, saying some one might see us, and then said, "Bunting, my dear fellow, its working beautiful; only you are too mild. Strike out boldly—independent party, and mind you, Chris', one with Conservative leanings. I'll repudiate you—I'll cry constitution, loyalty, honour, keep good faith with Roman Catholic brethren, dandle before Orangemen, and so on. But you go on and build up that independent party. Attack the French, attack their laws, their ecclesiastical influence and Separate schools. Give 'em fits. Rally all you can into your ranks, especially the loose Grits; they'll stick on to the bird time. But mind, Bunting, no bandy—not one vote of bills, not one pound of silver—none whatever, unless this noble, new and independent party has decidedly Conservative leanings. Chris, my boy, bear your ear, listen; let your watchword be:—'The time of righteousness is now.'"

JOHNS—Bunting, shake! The old man's head's level yet. I don't see that you or I would gain anything by a change of Government. While she milks, we'll stand by her. Good morning.

A Tory journal, in discussing the main issue in the coming Dominion elections, makes the very true statement that, "Let bygones be bygones." Nothing would suit the Dominion Government better than this programme, but it is one to which the Liberals cannot subscribe. We don't trust Sir John's promises, and so we have to judge him by his "bygones." The country will not be induced to forget the past record of the Dominion Government.

In the recent campaign the anti-Semites denounced the "Rats Bible," as it was called, because it excluded the whole Bible from the Public Schools. It now shows that to win dazzling the people by this cry, for it declares triumphantly that the trustees of a certain school section have discarded the Scripture Readings but substituted the Bible entire, thus fulfilling that the matter ever ends, as it always has ended, with the trustees to decide in the matter.

A MONEY KING DEAD.

Mr. H. Gould, who came to Canada with $20,000, was worth $60,000 to get Hudson Ormsby, June 6.—This morning their arrived in this city a prominent New York citizen, who registered at the Russell House under an assumed name. Within two hours after his arrival he was visited by Owen Brownell, formerly of New York, who on December 1, 1877, fled to Canada, leaving his late partner one of the Baker Street Bazaar Company, and a number of other financial men to the chagrin of New York firms. He said it was no secret that he wished to settle with all his creditors on a fair basis, and when this was done he would go back and live like an honest man. His visit was very secret, and accompanied by a detective to the door of his victim. This, he says, has been the object of his errand to return to New York within a month.

A Wealthy Cattle Dealer Missing.

BOSTON, Jan. 6.—John Ford of Watertown, a wealthy cattle-dealer, went to Albany, N.Y., on the early train yesterday, with about $600 in his pocket, to buy cattle. He should have returned home last Monday, and his friends are anxious for his safety as he has not been heard from. He has relatives in New York City.

An Audience With the Sultan.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Jan. 5.—At the Sultan's request Sir Wm. White, British ambassador, recently had two hours' private audience with His Majesty. The Sultan expressed gratification at the appointment of Sir William as ambassador, and entertained him with a cordial message to the Queen.

World-wide is the reputation of West's Cough Syrup, the truly marvelous remedy for coughs, colds, croup, whooping-cough, asthma and consumption. All druggists.

The interesting assertion comes from Paris that in the last year the dogs there killed 1,700,00 rats.

Chilblains, frosted feet, and all frost bites cured by a few applications of West's World's Wonder or Family Liniment, the magic cure. Try it. 25 and 50c. All druggists. dwd

Worms often destroy children, but Freeman's Worm Powders destroys Worms, and expel them from the system. dwd

A thoughtless old gentleman sat down, the other day, on the spar of the monsoon. His screams were frightful.

West's Cough Syrup, the most reliable remedy for all throat and lung diseases. For safety keep it always in the house. All druggists. dwd

National Pills are the favorite purgative and anti-bilious medicine; they are mild and thorough. dwd

A Traveller who was detained an hour by some mistakes, shortened his stay by making a "minute" of it. There's philosophy for you.

To remove Dandruff.—Cleanse the scalp with Prof. Low's Magic Sulphur Soap. A delightful soap for the toilet. dwd

A Dakota, man has married his mother-in-law.

Reason why you should purchase Field Lightning in preference to all remedies are: Rapid result—cures instantly. It is easily applied—no trouble—no lost time. It does not require constant use—one application is effectual. One bottle will remove more pain than any other remedy in existence. Try it for Neuralgia Toothache, Headache, Rheumatism. Sold at 25c. a bottle by John McKee Druggist. eodw2

Where Dynamiters Cost.

Chicago pays $6,000 doctors' bills for attendance on the policemen wounded by the dynamiters.

It Saved My Wife's Life.

This is the report of Princess street gentleman who had the opportunity a few nights since of testing Polson's Nerviline, the great pain cure. Be prepared for any emergency by having a bottle of Nerviline at hand. It only costs 10 cents to test it, as you can buy test bottles at any drug store. Get a ten or 25 cent bottle to-day. Sure in rheumatism, neuralgia, cramps, colic, headache. Nerviline, the cure pop pain cure. All druggists, 25 cents a bottle. eodw2

Natural Gas.

Buffalo has successfully piped natural gas a distance of nearly 100 miles, and is using it largely, for manufacturing and illuminating.

What True Merit Will Do.

The unprecedented sale of Boschee's German Syrup within a few years has astonished the world. It is without doubt the safest and best remedy ever discovered for the speedy and effectual cure of Coughs, Colds and the severest Lung troubles. It acts on on entirely different principle from the usual preparations given by physicians, as it does not dry up a cough and leave the disease still in the system, but on the contrary removes the cause of the trouble, heals the parts affected, and leaves them in a purely healthy condition. A bottle kept in the house for use when the diseases make their appearance, will save doctor's bills and a long spell of serious illness. A trial will convince you of these facts. It is positively sold by all druggists and general dealers in the land. Price 75 cents, large bottles. eodw4tf

Foul Warm Air.

In shutting the drafts out from the stable do not forget the ventilation. Cold pure air is better for the stock than warm foul air.

A Good Corn Shelter for 25c.

A marvel of cheapness, of efficacy, and of promptitude, is contained in a bottle of that famous remedy, Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor. It goes right to the root of the trouble, there acts quickly but so painless that nothing is known of its operation until the corn is shelled. Beware of substitutes offered for Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor—safe, sure and painless. Sold at druggists. eodw2

CAMPBELL'S TONIC ELIXIR

This agreeable yet potent preparation is especially adapted for the relief and cure of that class of disorders attendant upon a low or reduced state of the system, and usually accompanied by Pallor, Weakness and Palpitation of the Heart. Prompt results will follow its use in cases of Sudden Exhaustion arising from Loss of Blood, Acute or Chronic Diseases, and in the weakness that invariably accompanies the recovery from Wasting Fevers. No remedy will give more speedy relief in Dyspepsia or Indigestion, its action on the stomach being that of a gentle and harmless tonic, exciting the organs of digestion to action, and thus affording immediate and permanent relief. The carminative properties of the different aromatics which the Elixir contains render it useful in Flatulent Dyspepsia. It is a valuable remedy for Acute Dyspepsia, which is apt to occur in persons of a gouty character.

For Impoverished Blood, Loss of Appetite, Despondency, and in all cases where an effective and certain stimulant is required, the Elixir will be found invaluable.

In Fevers of a Malarial Type, and the various evil results following exposure to the cold or wet weather, it will prove a valuable restorative, as the combination of Cinchona Calisaya and Serpentaria are universally recognized as specifics for the above-named disorders.

Sold by all Dealers in Family Medicines.

Facts Regarding Our Manufacture of Furs.

No. 1—The only place in Peterborough where Furs of every description are manufactured.

No. 2—Goods that cannot be surpassed, neither in the Midland District nor in the whole Dominion.

No. 3—That the material bought personally in Leipsg, (Ger.) is selected and acquired on better terms by means of export and import.

No. 4—That all Canadian Raw Furs are bought in great quantities direct from the trappers, affording such a selection as will give the greatest satisfaction for ordered goods.

No. 5—No guarantee is asked of us when goods are sold or ordered to be made, as our word is guarantee for truthfulness.

No. 6—That such goods are sold at the lowest possible prices.

No. 7—That the public knows, it can get furs properly repaired without being sent to Montreal or elsewhere.

No. 8—That the public acknowledges our efforts by a hearty support.

No. 9—That the advantage taken by other houses in taking orders on the pretense of being manufactured in town when such orders are sent out of town to be filled, is a fraud.

No. 10—That a guarantee given by such houses is also worthless, as only the manufacturer of such goods knows whether they are shoddy or otherwise.

"I am interested about your home," she said; "I want to know what sort of place it is. Is the discipline very severe?"

"There is no discipline," he answered, warmly. "My one object is to be a friend to my friendless fellow-creatures; and my one way of governing them is to follow the teaching of the sermon on the mount. Whatever else I may remind them of when they come to me, I am determined not to remind them of a prison. For this reason, though I pity the hardened wanderers of the streets, I don't open my doors to them. Many a refuge, in which discipline is inevitable, is open to these poor sinners already. My welcome is offered to penitents and sufferers of another kind—who have fallen from positions in life in which the sense of honor has been cultivated; whose despair is associated with remembrances which I may so encourage, with the new testament to help me, as to lead them back to the religious influences under which their purer and happier lives may have been passed. Here and there I meet with disappointments, but I persist in my system of trusting them as freely as if they were my own children, and, for the most part, they justify my confidence in them. On the day—if it ever comes—when I find discipline necessary I shall suffer my disappointment and close my doors."

"Is your house open," Catherine asked, "to men and women alike?"

He was eager to speak with her on a subject more interesting to him even than his home. Answering her question in this frame of mind his thoughts wandered; he drew lines absently with his walking-stick on the soft earth under the trees.

"The means at my disposal," he said, "are limited. I have been obliged to choose between the men and the women."

"And you have chosen women?"

"Yes."

"Why?"

"Because I look upon it as a noble friendless creature than a lost man."

"Do they come to you, or do you look for them?"

"They mainly come to me. There is one young woman, however, now waiting to see me, whom I have been looking for. I am deeply interested in her."

"Is it her beauty that interests you?"

"I have not seen her since she was a child. She is the daughter of an old friend of mine, who died many years ago."

"And with that claim on you, you keep her waiting?"

"Yes."

He let his stick drop on the ground, and looked at Catherine; but he offered no explanation of his strange conduct. She was a little disappointed. "You have been some time away from your home," she said; still searching for his reasons. "When do you go back?"

"I go back," he answered, "when I know whether I may thank God for being the happiest man living."

They were both silent.

CHAPTER XIV.

Catherine listened to the fall of water in the basin of the fountain. She was conscious of a faint hope—a hope unworthy of her—that Kitty might get weary of the goldfishes, and might interrupt them. No such thing happened; no straggler appeared on the path which wound through the garden. She was alone with him. The influences of the still and fragrant summer evening were influences which breathed of love.

"Have you thought of me since yesterday?" he asked, gently.

She owned that she had thought of him.

"Is there no hope that your heart will ever incline toward me?"

"I daren't consult my heart. If I had only to consider my own feelings——" She stopped.

"What else have you to consider?"

"My past life—how I have suffered, and what I have to repent of."

"Was your married life not been a happy one?" he asked.

"Not a happy one—in the end," she answered.

"Through no fault of yours, I am sure?"

"Through no fault of mine, certainly."

"And yet you said just now that you had something to repent of!"

"I was not thinking of my husband, Capt. Bennydeck, when I said that. If I have injured any person, the person is myself."

She was thinking of that fatal concession to the advice of her mother and to the interests of her child which placed her in a false position toward the honest man who loved her and trusted her. If he had been less innocent in the ways of the world, and not so devotedly fond of her, he might, little by little, have persuaded Catherine to run the risk of shocking him by a confession of the truth. As it was, his confidence in her raised him high above the reach of suspicions which might have occurred to other men. He saw her turn pale; he saw distress in her face, which he interpreted as a silent reproach to him for the questions that he had asked. "I hope you will forgive me," he said, simply.

She was astonished. "What have I to forgive?"

"My want of delicacy."

"Oh, Capt. Bennydeck, you speak of one of your great merits as if it was a fault! Over and over again I have noticed your delicacy, and admired it."

He was too deeply in earnest to abandon his doubts of himself.

"I have ignominiously led you to think of your sorrows," he said; "sorrows that I cannot console. I don't deserve to be forgiven. May I make the one excuse in my power? May I speak of myself?"

She told him by a gesture that he had made a needless request.

"The life I have led," he resumed, "accounts, perhaps, in some degree, for what is deficient in me. At school I was not a popular boy; I only made one friend, and he has long since been numbered with the dead. Of my life at college, and afterward in London, I dare not speak to you; I look back at it with horror. My school friend decided my choice of a profession; he went into the navy. After awhile, not knowing what else to do, I followed his example. I liked the life—I may say the sea saved me. For years I was never on shore for more than a few weeks at a time. I saw nothing of society; I was for the most part in the company of Indians. The one purpose in my life associated me with a band of explorers. God forbid I should speak of what men go through who are lost on the regions of eternal ice! Let me only say it was preserved—unselfishly preserved—to profit by that terrible experience. It made a new man of me. I gained all (I hope for the better) that I am now. Oh, I feel that I ought to have kept my secret, concealed it from her, and left her

Went Riding Re-count.

The re-count of the ballots cast in the West Peterborough election contest was adjourned from Tuesday evening to Thursday, when arguments of counsel will be heard upon the few ballot papers reserved for further consideration.

Frozen Out.

Capt. Edwards, of No. 1 Company, has secured the Parlor roller rink for the drill of his company during the cold season. At the shed Monday night no drill was held by any of the companies, the gas-pipes being frozen and the building "colder than all outdoors," as one of the men put it.

St. Andrew's Concert.

Mention was inadvertently omitted in the EXAMINER'S report of the St. Andrew's entertainment of the fact that Prof. Parker played the accompaniments in his usual excellent and acceptable manner, and that the thanks of the ladies are due to him and Prof. Doucet for the valued assistance voluntarily rendered by them. The net proceeds of the entertainment are not yet known.

Keep Premiums Paid Up.

Parties holding life insurance policies should make it a point to keep their premiums promptly paid up, so that in case of death the wife and family may get the benefit of the insurance intended for their benefit. Cases might be mentioned in which neglect of this kind has resulted in loss of the whole amount, and thus caused great disappointment and regret to the widowed and orphaned ones.

At the Grand Central.

Carrying War Into the Enemy's Camp.

The Salvation Army soldiers who were arrested at Lindsay last week have since been acquitted of the charge of obstructing the streets and committing a nuisance by the police magistrate of that town, and have entered separate actions against Chief of Police Bell and the corporation of the town of Lindsay for false arrest and imprisonment and mal-treatment. One of the female officers was beaten severely about the head by a burly policeman, and afterwards, with 20 others, thrust into a small room, where there was not room enough for them to kneel down and pray, and there left in a stifling atmosphere, without any ventilation, till nine o'clock next morning. The injured Salvationists have since been under a doctor's care, and at one time it was doubtful how her case would go, but she will now likely recover. Perhaps strong feelings have been raised against the citizens of Lindsay by this affair. The Salvationists evidently have strong grounds for the action they have brought. The case against Chief Bell was continued for trial to-day; that against the town will be tried by a superior court.

Fatal Alarm.

A burning chimney in T. Cavanagh's hotel was the cause of an alarm of fire last night. No damage done.

Hotel Change.

Mr. J. Hopper, of Peterborough, has leased the Clarendon house, Hastings, formerly managed by S. W. Smith.

Peterborough and Ashburnham Horticultural Society.

Attention is specially directed to the advertisement in this issue announcing the annual meeting of the Society, to be held tomorrow evening in the Council Chamber, when it is hoped that there will be a large attendance of the members of the Society.

The International Bonspiel.

Peterborough's two rinks of curlers left last night for Toronto to participate in the international bonspiel to-day. Only 20 rinks of Americans, out of the 30 expected, arrived last night, as that of those city and town clubs throughout Ontario requested to send along two rinks in order to meet the visitors on an equal footing, only one rink will be required. Peterborough is pitted against the second rink of the Caledonian Club, of New York. They will return home to-night.

A Painful Incident.

The body of a young man named Day, who had been an artist in Buffalo, says the Toronto Globe, arrived here recently. The station agent, ascertaining that the cause of death was diphtheria, required the consent of the Medical Health Officer before allowing it to proceed further on the Grand Trunk railway. Dr. Canniff refused to grant the certificate, and the body was buried yesterday in the Necropolis. The sister of the deceased was accompanying the corpse, intending to have it carried to Lakefield, near Peterborough.

The Death of "Cæsar."

Mr. John Moore, about a week ago, purchased a decrepit old nag on the market for $1, as a sort of speculation. Good feed and tender care availed nothing in restoring the venerable equine to a condition of usefulness, and yesterday afternoon it was cast upon the tender mercies of a couple of lads, who undertook to lead the dying animal "over the hills" to a last resting-place in the snow. Half way up Smithstown Hill, "Cæsar's" strength failed, and he fell to rise no more. By the order of P. C. McGinty "Cæsar" was ruthlessly slain and buried by the wayside, where he now lies "unwept, unhonored and unsung."

Second Grand Subscription Concert.

The second of Messrs. Parker & MacDuff's series of concerts will be given in Bradburn's Opera House on Tuesday evening, Jan. 18th, when the following will take part:—Mrs. Harrison, of Hamilton, soprano; Mr. L. H. Parker, of Hamilton, solo violincello; Mr. D. B. MacDuff, solo violinist; Mr. J. S. Parker, solo piano. It is to hoped that the citizens of Peterborough who have a taste for high class musical entertainments will turn out in better numbers than they have been in the habit of doing, and prove to Messrs. Parker and MacDuff that their efforts are appreciated. It will be a first-class concert. Tickets 25 and 50 cents.

Fire at Smith's Falls (Short Line).

Progress of Boring Machine Along the Line.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Some years ago the construction of a railway was looked upon as a gigantic enterprise, which occupied from three to six years. Nowadays we have extensive roads completed in as many months. In 1861, just half a generation ago, the Victoria bridge was looked upon as a triumph of science over nature. It does not appear such a wonderful undertaking now, as it has grown small by comparison. It took six years to build this bridge, while as many months almost will suffice for the completion of the Canadian Pacific bridge near Lachine. It took two years to build the Grand Trunk bridges over the Ottawa river at Vaudreuil and St. Anne's, while the Canadian Pacific bridges at these places have been finished within six months. A short description of the work on the line may not be uninteresting. From Smith's Falls the road runs almost due east till it strikes the Grand Trunk at Vaudreuil, on the right bank of the Ottawa. From here to Montreal, a distance of 23 miles, the tracks run parallel and about 75 feet apart. The grading has all been done with great exactness, the culverts and cattle guards being of a superior description. The ties used are 9 feet long, with 8 inch face, and the rails are 24 lbs. to the lineal foot, or 4 lbs. heavier than any steel previously used on a Canadian road. This material, with the magnificent grades, will render it on the continent. The first bridge of any importance after leaving Smith's Falls is the one at Kemptville, over the Rideau river. It is completed and ready for traffic. The Vaudreuil bridge, over the right branch of the Ottawa, contains 18 piers of Terrahouse stone. These piers have concrete foundations, laid on the solid rock or hard pan below the bed of the river. The process of work followed in building the piers is interesting. A waterproof coffer dam of square timber is sunken in the river by great pressure, and the space enclosed is pumped out by an engine capable of discharging 3,000 gallons per minute. We have thus in the deep water, while the current is rushing onward, a dry space secluded from the river by this water resisting caisson, and the construction proceeds. The St. Anne's bridge, which crosses the rapids, referred to by the poet, Moore, in his Canadian boat song, also contains 18 piers. I may here state that the rapids are now a thing of the past, as locks were built here several years ago. The two bridges contain 11,000 cubic yards of stone, all quarried, shipped and laid within six months. The greatest difficulty met with at these bridges was the rocks in some places projecting within two feet of the surface. Messrs. Wm. Davis & Sons, of Ottawa, were the contractors for the mason-work. The iron-work is being put up by the Union Bridge Company, of Buffalo. The Lachine bridge contains 15 piers, built in water from 20 to 50 feet in depth, and in the face of a powerful current. There are eight spans of 240 feet, three of 276 feet, and two of 408 feet. The bridge is capable of bearing two of the heaviest consolidation engines, followed by a train load of cars of 2,000 lbs. to the lineal foot,—thus making it one of the strongest and best force-resisting bridges in the world. Messrs. Reid and Fleming were the contractors for the masonry and the Dominion Bridge Company of Hamilton erected the iron. What the Victoria bridge is to the Grand Trunk it will be to the Canadian Pacific railway. The bridge enables the national line to make connections with Halifax, St. John, New York, Boston and other points in the United States and ere long will become a thoroughfare of extensive traffic. The completion of the Short Line will shorten the distance between Toronto and Montreal by about 34 miles. The distances between Peterborough and Montreal by the C. P. R. will be shortened by 40 miles. It is probable that the road will be opened for traffic by next June.

THE FINEST ROAD FOR FAST TRAINS

VARYING DEPTHS OF THE WATER,

Vaudreuil, January 10th., 1887.

Fire at Hastings.

Correspondence of The Examiner.

HASTINGS, Jan. 11.—A fire started in this village about 1 o'clock this morning in the storehouse at the rear of Mr. Phillip Kennedy's store, and burned the sheds in connection with the Albion hotel, and also the residence of Mr. Alexander Wilson, sr. A house owned by Mr. John McGrath, of Percy, was also consumed. As far as we can learn most of the property destroyed was insured. Mr. Wilson lost the most of his furniture. It was supposed that a cow belonging to Dr. McCormack was burned, but luckily some one had the presence of mind to let her out.

LOSSES AND INSURANCE.

The losses and insurance are estimated as follows:—A. Wilson, sr., loss $2,500, insured for $1,200 in the Lancashire; John McGrath, $800, insured for $300 in the North and British Mercantile; Hotel sheds, $400, insured in the Citizens for $200; Kennedy's barn and contents $250 no insurance.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

The Public and Separate schools have again re-opened after the Christmas holidays. Mr. Reuben Beavis and Miss Jennie Jackson have charge of the Public and Miss O'Donohoe, of Lonsdon, has charge of the Separate. We wish them success in their new field of usefulness and if they will only endear themselves to both pupils and adults as their immediate predecessors have done they will make hosts of friends.

The "Clarendon Hotel" which has been closed since the late proprietor Mr. S. W. Smith left it early in December, has been re-opened by Mr. John Simpson of Peterborough. We wish him success in his new undertaking.

The village elections passed off quietly this year, the whole council having been elected by acclamation.

We congratulate Mr. John Walsh the popular reeve of Asphodel on being elected for a fourth term by a largely increased majority.

The scrutineer who appeared in behalf of the defeated candidate in the late municipal election in Asphodel had better take a Testament with him the next time he may have occasion to act in a similar capacity, if he wishes to swear electors, as it was not pleasant for them to have to wait while he hunted up over half the township to find one. Perhaps he knew no more about the election laws than he did about the defunct McCarthy License Act, of which he was inspector. Probably he thought the election laws also defunct.

Cannot Be Excelled.

"I have pleasure in saying that Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam cannot be excelled for curing colds, coughs and loss of voice. It cured my brother completely." so says Ira McNeal, Poplar Hill, Ont, regarding this reliable remedy. 2w1d

Police Court.

WEDNESDAY, Jan. 12th.

A young man named McGuigan was yesterday arrested by P. C. McGinty for non-payment of a Scott Act fine in connection with the case against Jas. Cowden. McFarlane was Cowden's bar-tender. The fine, amounting to something like $60, will likely be paid.

Thos. Mason, of Lakefield, admitted a first infringement of the Scott Act, and was fined $50 and costs.

Judgment in the case against W. H. Chamberlain, for a third offence, was reserved.

BANKERS—Bank of Toronto and Canadian Bank of Commerce.
SOLICITOR—D. W. Dumble.

TO DEPOSITORS—Deposits are received by this Company both on current account and for periods of one year or longer. The rate of interest paid on amounts deposited on current account and which may be withdrawn by check in such sums as the depositor may from time to time require, is FOUR per cent., either paid or compounded half-yearly, and the rate on yearly deposits is FIVE per cent.

TO INVESTORS—The five and ten year FIVE PER CENT DEBENTURES of this Company which are issued in denominations of $100, $200, $400 and $1000 each, transferable by endorsement, with half-yearly interest Coupons attached, payable at the Head Office of the Company in Peterborough, or at any Branch of the Bank of Toronto in Canada, afford a safe and convenient mode of investment.

The funds of the Company being invested in first mortgages on Real Estate, no better security can be offered to depositors or shareholders, they having a first claim to any sum on the whole Assets of the Company, the shareholders having the second. The general experience is that the amounts so invested will ever realize, and on the security of real estate at least double that value.

By the laws of Ontario, Trustees, Executors and Administrators may invest Trust Funds in the stocks which they control in this Company, and are free from all liability in case of loss of which many have largely availed themselves.

TO BORROWERS—Money is obtainable from this Company promptly, on the most favorable terms, and on the easiest conditions as to repayment. The Company has a large amount of money to lend on the security of Real Estate, and offers special facilities to borrowers. The Mortgages may be repaid by yearly instalments, or otherwise as may be agreed upon, with the privilege of paying off the whole or any portion of the principal at any time, on payment of three months' interest in advance. Application for loans may be made at the Head Office, or to any of the Agents.

WHY
Will people pay rent when houses and lots can be purchased on such easy terms as are offered by the undersigned. Come and inspect our work and see for yourselves how we construct our houses. Our chief aim and study is to build substantial, warm, frost and damp proof houses. I am offering good building lots, and will build solid brick houses, nine-inch walls, strapped and in best, two stories, for less money than you can buy frame or veneered buildings. We cordially invite those who anticipate renting or buying to inspect our work and prove for themselves that our houses are not merely built to sell. Every house I've sold gives first-class satisfaction, and I am determined that every house I build shall be a standing monument to honest building. JOHN CARLISLE, Dog-leg Street, 2nd block west of St. Andrew's church. wd

BISMARCK'S FIGHT.

HE MAKES ANOTHER SPEECH ON THE ARMY BILL.

BERLIN, Jan. 12.—The debate on the army bill was resumed in the Reichstag to-day. Dr. Windthorst again spoke in favor of a triennate term.

Bismarck replied. "In three years," he said, "we might be confronted with altered circumstances. To be sure it is also impossible to calculate the position of affairs seven years hence, but in that period the efficiency of the army would be secured and a compromise would be possible. At the time when so many rights and privileges were granted to the Reichstag by the constitution, there was no idea that they would lead to such miserable disputes as have now arisen."

Referring to the question of the working classes, he declared that the Government did not wish to drag it into the present discussion. He was sure that if called upon by the Emperor the workingmen of Germany would be ready at all times to come forward in defense of the fatherland. In concluding, he again assured the House that he would not abandon a hairbreadth of the bill, and must insist upon the full scope of the measure. The Reichstag then adjourned.

Prince Bismarck has long daily conferences with the Emperor with reference, it is supposed, to the position of the Reichstag. In Government circles it is believed that the division on the bill will be taken to-morrow. The Government supporters despair of the passage of the measure.

BISMARCK'S SPEECH.

Austrian and French Views of the German Chancellor's Remarks.

VIENNA, Jan. 12.—It is learned from semi-official sources that Prince Bismarck's speech in the Reichstag yesterday meets with lively recognition in Government circles, as it is thought to show that he is trying to effect an entente cordiale between the cabinets at St. Petersburg and Vienna.

French Opinion.

PARIS, Jan. 12.—The Temps says: "Prince Bismarck's speech in the Reichstag will produce a singularly reassuring effect in Europe. In response to his declarations that Germany has no intention of attacking France, France can declare that she no longer dreams of attacking Germany."

All the evening papers in Paris in their interpretation of the speech concur in attributing a pacific intention to Germany.

JEALOUS OF BOULANGER.

A Rumor That He has Retired From the Ministry Married in Paris.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—A London despatch to the Mail and Express says: The rumor of Gen Boulanger's retirement from the French Ministry, alleged to be consequent on the flat refusal of M. Goblet to lay before Parliament the bill for military credits, is believed to have been started with the view of influencing the decision of the German Reichstag on Prince Bismarck's army bill. At the same time currency has been given to the report by the undercurrent of jealousy which exists in official circles and even in the army at the important position which Gen. Boulanger has assumed in the affairs of the nation. A new cabinet combination is already being canvassed, from which Boulanger is to be excluded. Bismarck's utterances are likely to raise Boulanger still higher in popular estimation, with the result of forcing the French Government to tolerate his excesses rather than provoke an open rupture with him.

Opinion as to the result of the Reichstag debate differs considerably, but the weight of judgment inclines to the belief that yesterday's speeches will overcome the opposition of the Centre party, and that the German Government will obtain a small majority in favor of Bismarck's bill.

SOMEONE LOOSENED A RAIL.

A Train Running at a High Speed Plunges Down an Embankment.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 12.—The south bound passenger train on the Missouri Pacific, due here this morning, was wrecked near Dunbar, Neb., about midnight. The wreck was caused by the loosening of a rail by parties unknown. The train, coming at the rate of thirty miles an hour, plunged fifteen feet down an embankment and landed in a snow drift. James Deurst, engineer, was caught under the boiler and killed. Frank Henoweth, express messenger, of this city was internally hurt and may die. A lady, whose name is unknown, was badly hurt. None others were badly injured so far as known. The entire train left the track, and probably the loss of life would have been greater except for the plunge. Officials say this is the result of revenge on the engineer on account of his sticking by the company during the strike last summer, and say some of the men engaged in the strike of that time are suspected.

NEW JERSEY'S LEGISLATORS.

The Police Called to Quell a Disturbance Among Them.

TRENTON, N.J., Jan. 12.—There was a big fight in the House of Representatives yesterday. While the regular Democrats were holding their caucus and nominating final officers the Republicans and disaffected Democrats and the two Labor men, numbering thirty-one in all and constituting a majority, held a meeting in the speaker's room and nominated and elected an entire mixed ticket. Dr. Baird, the disaffected Democrat, elected speaker, then took the chair. No sooner did he seat himself than Mr. Beckwith, chairman of the Democratic caucus, tried to forcibly eject him. A general hand-to-hand conflict ensued and fisticuffs, and by Gov. Abbett, attempted to remove Terrence McDonald, the newly elected sergeant-at-arms, but were overpowered by the latter's friends. Amid the greatest excitement the speaker declared the House adjourned till to-day at 10 a.m.

A NOBLE LIFE ENDED.

LORD IDDESLEIGH VERY SUDDENLY CALLED AWAY.

LONDON, Jan. 12.—This afternoon while Lord Iddesleigh was ascending the stairs of Lord Salisbury's official residence in Downing-street, as he was about to visit the Prime Minister, he fainted. He was carried into the residence and almost instantly expired.

His Death Not Unexpected.

LONDON, Jan. 12.—Dr. Mortimer Granville, Lord Iddesleigh's physician, issued a bulletin which says: "Lord Iddesleigh has for many years past suffered with cardiac affections, which, while not placing his life in immediate peril, rendered the prospect of its sudden termination only too possible. He died of syncope. This melancholy event, although startling to those around him, has not been unforeseen by his immediate friends, and it has been anticipated by his medical attendants."

Salisbury Greatly Affected.

LONDON, Jan. 12.—The Prime Minister arrived soon after Lord Iddesleigh was taken ill, and while the doctors were trying to rally him. He is greatly affected by the death of his former minister.

Mr. Manners, Lord Salisbury's private secretary, says: "The moment Lord Iddesleigh came inside the ante-room he sank down upon a chair. I was in the next room. Hearing groans, I went into the ante-room and lifted him to the sofa. The doctors were in immediate attendance and remedies were applied, but he never spoke. He died twenty minutes after he was taken ill." His son, Hon. Henry Stafford Northcote, was sent for, but did not reach his father until ten minutes after all was over. He left later for the Fynes, in Exeter, the family seat, to tell his mother of her husband's death.

The Queen Deeply Affected.

LONDON, Jan. 12.—The Queen was deeply affected by the news of the Earl's death and immediately sent a telegram expressing her sympathy with the widow and family.

Mr. Gladstone, who always highly esteemed Lord Iddesleigh, was much affected and Mrs. Gladstone sent the following telegram: "We are sorely grieved by the news of the death of one so eminent, respected and beloved. We must reserve a more particular expression of our feelings until later."

The Physician's Statement.

LONDON, Jan. 12.—In an interview this evening Dr. Longston said: "I was summoned to Downing-street at about 3.15 p.m. On arrival I found Lord Salisbury and several gentlemen in a room with the Earl of Iddesleigh. The Earl was lying on a sofa. He was in a semi-conscious condition and excessively pale. His eyes were closed, his pulse was scarcely perceptible and his heart was still. The pallor was that of death. I applied restoratives directly, but they were without effect. I cannot say precisely when he died. If he was not dead when I arrived, he passed away soon after without a struggle.

"The Earl was older physically than he was in years. In his condition, the cold journey from Exeter yesterday was very injudicious. Without a post mortem examination I cannot say positively, but I think the deceased suffered from fatty degeneration. He might bear much fatigue and excitement without ill results. There was nothing unusual in his sudden collapse. It by no means follows that the Earl was laboring under excitement."

A Newspaper's Significant Remark.

LONDON, Jan. 12.—The Morning Post, in an article on the death of Lord Iddesleigh, says: "It is difficult to avoid the conclusion that such a serious blow may in some degree affect Lord Salisbury's Government. Lord Iddesleigh was one of the most single minded and honorable gentlemen that ever gave their life's labor to the public service."

The Daily News says: "It is not in human nature to altogether ignore the distressing circumstances which in all probability hastened Lord Iddesleigh's death, and those who are responsible for thus harrying a true loyal friend and colleague may be left to the judgment of their own consciences."

There Will be No Inquest.

The body of Lord Iddesleigh has been removed to the family residence in St. James' place. There will be no inquest, the doctors certifying that death resulted from failure of the heart's action.

Sketch of the Deceased.

Sir Stafford Northcote was born in London in 1818, graduated at Oxford at the age of 21, and was admitted to the bar in 1847. He entered Parliament as a Conservative in 1855. In 1866 he was appointed President of the Board of Trade and a member of the Privy Council, and in the following year was given the Secretaryship for India. When Disraeli was head of affairs in 1874 Northcote was called to the Chancellorship of Exchequer, and when the great leader entered the House of Lords, he became the leader of his party in the House of Commons. About a year ago he was raised to the peerage with the title of Lord Iddesleigh.

The Fishery Difficulty.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—In his report to Congress on the fishery dispute Secretary Manning says: "During the past summer, while American vessels, regularly documented, have been excluded from the hospitality and privileges of trading in Canadian ports, Canadian fishing vessels have been permitted freely to enter and use American ports along the New England coast. The hospitality elsewhere and generally extended in British ports to American commercial vessels has not been less in quality or quantity, as I am informed, than the hospitality extended to British vessels in American ports, but there is this marked difference, that while this department protects Canadian fishermen in the use of American ports the Dominion of Canada brutally excludes American fishermen from Canadian ports."

His remarks regarding the freedom with which Canadian railroad companies are allowed to enter the United States and take part in internal transportation, while the use of Canadian railways is denied to American fishermen, suggests a retaliatory policy in that direction.

They Won't Eat With Henry George.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—It is said many prominent Catholics will refuse to attend the dinner to be given on January 17 to Michael Davitt, if Henry George is present. Mr. George said yesterday he had paid for tickets for the banquet, but had since made up his mind to write to the committee that if anyone was likely to be absent on account of his presence he would not attend.

Massacre of Christians in Africa.

ROME, Jan. 12.—The Propaganda has received letters from a Catholic missionary in Uganda, Africa, in which is related the story of a massacre of native Christians there. The workers say that King Mouaga recently discovered a servant studying a catechism, and, being greatly enraged, caused the massacre of 100 negro converts. Mouaga, the missionaries say, vows that he will destroy all the Christians in his kingdom.

The Miner's Hoard.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Jan. 12.—The cash and securities thus far found in the hovel of Joseph Perry, the miner, who with Richard Price was found less week frozen to death, amount to $138,000. United States bonds, greenbacks and gold and silver were found hidden in cupboards and other places.

LIBERALS HOPEFUL.

THEY THINK THEY WILL GAIN IN A GENERAL ELECTION.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—The London correspondent of the Mail and Express is convinced that there is now a real desire on the part of Mr. Chamberlain and Sir George Trevelyan to find a modus vivendi with the Home Rule Liberals. It is generally believed that the Ministerial policy of Lord Salisbury's cabinet, as it develops itself, will do more to reunite the dissentient Liberals than any cut and dried resolutions which they might adopt among themselves. If the conferences do not lead to co-operation they will at all events promote a friendly feeling between the two sections of the opposition, and this is likely to bring about a more definite understanding in the near future. The great meeting which was held at St. James' Hall last evening will help the reunion considerably. The meeting has never been surpassed in London for enthusiasm and unanimity. The Liberals are now hopeful that they will be able to carry many of the metropolitan seats at the next general election.

No Hardship on Lansdowne's Estates.

OTTAWA, Jan. 12.—The Governor-General's military secretary denies there has been, as reported by cable, any cases of hardship arising out of rent payments on the Marquis of Lansdowne's Kerry estates. He gives the particulars of the five cases of alleged hardship reported to General Butler, an investigation into which showed the treatment of tenants to have been extremely lenient. There are about 1600 tenants on the Kerry estate.

EVEN SCANDALOUS SOURCE OF WASTE.

Of the many sources of leakage and riot, by which the public money is running to waste at Ottawa, the established organs of the government. The press should guide public opinion by honest discussion of public affairs, but if the press is corruptly subsidized by the party in power, its reliability, as a faithful critic or advocate of the course or policy of the party it supports is destroyed, and its discussion is but the purchased advocacy of a hireling. Is it possible for a newspaper to have a ghost of a claim to honesty in its criticism of the Dominion government from which it draws through gross overcharges and disgraceful favouritism the money which sustains it or adds to the gains of its proprietor? Can we believe its statements, or trust the conclusions upon political topics of a newspaper which is not only allowed but even encouraged to rob the public purse of large sums every year. As all know there are regular contractors for the Government printing who do the work at fair prices, fixed by competion by tender. Yet the ministers of the Dominion Government take work away from the regular contractors and give it, at much higher rates, to political favorites, in order to reward them for political services either performed or prospective. Let us give a few examples of the manner in which the Government have rewarded some of their most earnest advocates.

The Hamilton Spectator in one year, 1884, received $17,997.18 for job printing alone from the Government. At honest rates this would give a sufficiently handsome profit to blind the eyes and silence the tongue, but it was pointed out by a practical printer (Mr. Somerville, of Brant,) in the House of Commons, that out of the above sum there was a total excess $13,287.04 over the fair and regular price of such work! Can any one believe a political statement in that newspaper? Is not everthing political tainted which comes from such a source? The Montreal Gazette, the part property and organ of the Minister of the Interior, in 1884 received for printing and advertising over $18,000. Of this sum $9,211.15 was paid for a pamphlet on British Columbia, on which there was an overcharge of $5,805.82 over and above the ordinary business profit! No wonder that newspaper defends every job and corrupt action of the Ministry. There are small fry in the Tory press, who are equally as greedy and unscrupulous as the large newspaper sharks. Take, for an illustration, the case of the Prescott Messenger, a small sheet published in the County of Leeds and Grenville. The Government decided to publish a German emigration pamphlet, and instead of calling for tenders for the work, or giving it to one of the German printing offices in the country, they gave the work to the Prescott Messenger, which had not a letter of German type in its office. If there had been a saving of money in this course it would have been justifiable, but, on the contrary, there was enormous loss. The Messenger was paid $6,671.62 for the pamphlet, and two German printing establishments in Waterloo County calculated that they could have done the work for $1,800 and made a fair profit. In this single transaction, therefore, the Government paid out of the public funds a bribe of $5,071.65, in excess of the fair cost, to this newspaper. Many a farm in that county can be bought for that sum, which was enough to furnish that newspaper office with all its type and material, and a new steam press and engine besides. This charge was brought on the floor of Parliament by Mr. Somerville, it was not denied, and it cannot be contradicted.

The Courier de St. Hyacinthe printed the list of Civil Service employees in 1884. The Government began by supplying the job office of that paper with the type required at a cost of $3,931.02. When the work was done the proprietor sent in his bill for $8,493,98. This was submitted to the Queen's printer, a Government official, who reduced it to $7,668.74. Before passing this account, the Auditor-General, who is independent of the Government, compared it with the contract rate for departmental printing, which was the only rate he could legally allow, and cut it down to $5,831.40. This threw the responsibility of any overcharge upon the Government, but they were quite equal to the emergency, for they actually passed an order of the Treasury Board on the 15th of March, 1884, directing the payment of $7,668.74 over the head of the Auditor-General, who had certified that this was just $1,857,34 more than the lawful rate payable by the Government. (See Auditor-General's report of 1885, page vi.) This list might be extended, if space allowed, to include the Toronto Mail, the London Advertiser, the Ottawa Citizen and scores of other city and rural papers, but enough is given to show that if the Conservative journals can see no fault in the Dominion Government, they have the amplest and most solid reasons for being blind to what they do not wish to see. Electors do not trust the statements of the subsized Government organs; they are paid for concealing and distorting the truth.

Literary Notices.

A BEAUTIFUL PICTURE is that issued by the Montreal Witness in commemoration of Queen Victoria's jubilee year, and can be obtained by all subscribers to either the daily or weekly edition of that paper who remit to the publisher the trifling sum of ten cents over and above their subscriptions. We have ourselves a copy of the portrait, and are of the opinion that it will prove a great inducement to everybody to take the Witness, a journal which, without any premium at all, is well worth the money.

THE GOSPEL LIGHT, an independent religious journal published twice a month by T. G. King & Co., Orillia, comes to hand with the new year greatly improved, both in appearance and contents. It is a first-class family religious paper, and should be in every household. 50c. per annum. Sample copy sent free.

THE MESSENGER COMPANION, the new religious weekly, published at Bloomsville, Ont., at $1.00 a year, comes to hand this week enlarged to eight pages and is well filled with church news, editorials and choice miscellany. Clubbed with this journal at $1.60. Methodists, send for a free sample copy, or call at this office and see one. M. A. Jones is the publisher.

NORTHWEST REPRESENTATION.

The Act Giving the Territories Four Members Gazetted.

OTTAWA, Jan. 12.—Last night at 6 o'clock an extra of the Canada Gazette was issued and publicly distributed, as is customary. The extra contained a proclamation bringing into operation an act granting the Northwest territories representation in the Parliament of Canada, and the act was to take effect on Jan. 11. There has been no territorial representation in Parliament, and it is proposed to give the territories four members. The necessary statutory power for this course was obtained last session in both the Dominion and Imperial Parliaments. All that remained was for a proclamation to be issued by the Governor-General-in-Council, bringing the act into operation. That was done yesterday. The necessary Canada Gazette announcement was issued, only to be recalled about an hour or two afterwards. It is said this was done because through an oversight Lord Lansdowne's sign manual had not been affixed to the order-in-council.

Sproule's Brother Will Sue.

OTTAWA, Jan. 12.—Evidence has been filed with the Secretary of State showing that Robert E. Sproule, the American, who was hanged in Victoria, B.C., for the murder of Thomas Hastings, was innocent. A brother of the dead man, Frank Sproule of Works Mills, Me., has instructed counsel to begin suit against the Province of British Columbia for $50,000 damages.

Saved from the Wreck.

If the delicate organization of woman gets out of order, prompt application of remedial agents is required to save it from total wreck. In all such cases, whether to assist nature in the discharge of her functions, or to repair damages caused by diseases of special organs, there is no remedy so mild, and yet so effective, as Dr. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription," prepared at the World's Dispensary, at Buffalo, N. Y., and administered for many years to thousands of patients with the happiest result. 6dw2

CAMPBELL'S TONIC ELIXIR

This agreeable yet potent preparation is especially adapted for the relief and cure of that class of disorders attendant upon a low or reduced state of the system, and usually accompanied by Pallor, Weakness and Palpitation of the Heart. Prompt results will follow its use in cases of Sudden Exhaustion arising from Loss of Blood, Acute or Chronic Diseases, and in the weakness that invariably accompanies the recovery from Wasting Fevers. No remedy will give more speedy relief in Dyspepsia or Indigestion, its action on the stomach being that of a gentle and harmless tonic, exciting the organs of digestion to action, and thus affording immediate and permanent relief. The carminative properties of the different aromatics which the Elixir contains render it useful in Flatulent Dyspepsia. It is a valuable remedy for Atonic Dyspepsia, which is apt to occur in persons of a gouty character.

For Impoverished Blood, Loss of Appetite, Despondency, and in all cases where an effective and certain stimulant is required, the Elixir will be found invaluable.

In Fevers of a Malarial Type, and the various evil results following exposure to the cold or wet weather, it will prove a valuable restorative, as the combination of Cinchona Calisaya and Serpentaria are universally recognized as specifics for the above-named disorders.

"You can never lose me," he said. "If you will only let me be the nearest friend that a woman can have. Hear with me, dearest! I ask for so much; I have so little to offer in return; I dream of a life with you which is perhaps too positively happy to be enjoyed on earth. And yet, I cannot resign my delusion. Must my poor heart always long for happiness which is beyond my reach? Is an overruling Providence guides our course through this world, may we not sometimes hope for happier ends than our mortal eyes can see?"

He waited a moment and sighed and dropped her hand. She hid her face; she knew what it would tell him; she was ashamed to let him see it.

"I didn't mean to distress you," he said, sadly.

She let him see her face. For a moment only she looked at him, and then let silence tell him the rest.

His arms closed round her. Slowly the glory of the sun faded from the heavens, and the soft summer twilight fell over the earth. "I can't speak," he whispered; "my happiness is too much for me."

"Are you sure of your happiness?" she asked.

"Could I think as I am thinking now," he said, "if I were not sure of it?"

"Are you thinking of me?"

"Of you—and of all that you will be to me in the future. Oh, my angel, if God grants us many years to come, what a perfect life I see!"

"Tell me—what do you see?"

"I see a husband and wife who are all in all to each other. If friends come to us, we are glad to bid them welcome, but we are always happiest by ourselves."

"Do we live in retirement?"

"We live where you best like to live. Shall it be in the country?"

"Yes! yes! You have spoken of the sea as you might have spoken of your best friend—we will be near the sea. But I must not keep you selfishly all to myself. I must remember how good you have been to poor creatures who don't feel our happiness and who need your kindness. Perhaps I might help you. Do you doubt it?"

"I only doubt whether I ought to let you see what I have seen; I am only afraid of the risk of making you unhappy. You tempt me to run the risk. The help of a woman—and of such a woman as you are—is the one thing I have wanted. Your influence would succeed where my influence has often failed. How good, how thoughtful, you would be!"

"I only want to be worthy of you," she said, humbly. "When may I see your home?"

He drew her closer to him; tenderly and timidly he kissed her for the first time. "It rests with you," he answered. "When will you be my wife?"

She hesitated; he felt her trembling. "Is there any obstacle?" he said.

Before she could reply Kitty's voice was heard calling to her mother—Kitty ran up to them.

Catherine turned cold as the child touched her, eagerly claiming her attention.

The father, the living father, who had such terrible reason (if he ever knew it) to call her to account, the false position which it was her first duty to have revealed to the true lover who trusted her, who had her promise to be his wife—all that she should have remembered, all that she had forgotten in a few bright minutes of illusion—rose in judgment against her and struck her mind prostrate in an instant, when she felt the touch of her child.

Bennydeck saw the change in her. Was it possible that Kitty's sudden appearance had startled her? Kitty had something to say, and said it before he could speak.

"Mamma, I want to go where the other children are going. Susan's gone to her supper. You take me."

Her mother was not even listening. The child turned impatiently to Bennydeck. "Why won't mamma speak to me?" she asked. He quieted her by a word. "You shall go with me." His anxiety about Catherine was more than he could endure. "Pray let me take you back to the house," he said. "I am afraid you are not well."

"I shall be better directly. Do me a kindness—take the child."

She spoke faintly and vacantly. Bennydeck hesitated. She lifted her trembling hands in entreaty. "I beg you will leave me!" Her voice, her manner, made it impossible to disobey. He turned resignedly to Kitty and asked which way she wanted to go. The child pointed down the path to one of the towers of the Crystal palace, visible in the distance. "The governess has taken the others to see the company go away," she said; "I want to go, too."

Bennydeck looked back before he lost sight of Catherine.

She remained seated in the attitude in which he had left her. At the farther end of the path which led to the hotel he thought he saw a figure in the twilight approaching from the house. There would be help near if Catherine wanted it.

His uneasy mind was in some degree relieved as he and Kitty left the garden together.

CHAPTER XLV.

She tried to think of Bennydeck.

Her eyes followed him as long as he was in sight, but her thoughts wandered. To look at him now was to look at the little companion walking by his side. Still, the child reminded her of the living father; still, the child innocently tortured her with the remembrance of deceit. The faithless man from whom the law had released her possessed himself of her thoughts, in spite of the law. He, and he only, was the visionary companion of her solitude when she was left to herself.

Did he remind her of the sin that he had committed? Or the insult that he had inflicted on the woman whom he had vowed to love and cherish? No! he recalled to her the years of love that she had passed by his side; his superiority now with the happiness which she had owed to him in the prime and glory of her life. Wherein did that against the wrong which I have done to you. You have the right to reclaim him and justify him the right to reclaim me—yet. I am your child's natural ally. Forget me, if you can!

All thoughts will bear the test of solitude, sometimes only two thoughts that divide my nature between them. The [illegible] were at variance. She pleaded [illegible] merciful night, invoked Catherine to [illegible] finally given. She rose to retrace [illegible] Catherine's deserted seat. [illegible]

"I shall never see Mr. Herbert Linley again."

"Has he deserted you?"

"No. It is I who have left him."

"You!"

The emphasis laid on that one word forced Sydney to assert herself for the first time.

"If I had not left him of my own free will," she said, "what else would excuse me for venturing to come here?"

Catherine's sense of justice felt the force of that reply. At the same time, her sense of injury set its own construction on Sydney's motive. "Has his cruelty driven you astray from him?" she asked.

"If he had been cruel to me," Sydney answered, "I should not be here."

A woman was standing on the path, apparently looking at her.

In the dim light and at the distance between them recognition of the woman was impossible. She neither moved nor spoke. Strained to their utmost point of tension, Catherine's nerves quivered at the sight of that shadowy, solitary figure. She dropped back on the seat. In tones that trembled she said: "Who are you? What do you want?"

The voice that answered was, like her own voice, faint with fear. It said: "I want a word with you."

Moving slowly forward—stopping—moving onward again—hesitating again—the woman at last approached. There was light enough left to reveal her face, now that she was near. It was the face of Sydney Westerfield.

The survival of childhood, in the mature human being, betrays itself more readily in the sex that bears children. The chances and changes of life show the child's mobility or emotion constantly associating itself with the passions of the woman. At the moment of recognition the troubled mind of Catherine was instantly steadfast, under the influence of that coarsest sense which levels us with the animals—the sense of anger.

"I am amazed at your audacity," she said.

There was no resentment—there was only patient submission in Sydney's reply.

"Twice I have approached the house in which you are living, and twice my courage has failed me. I have gone away again—I have walked, I don't know where, I don't know how far. Shame and fear seemed to be insensible to fatigue. This is my third attempt. If I was a little nearer to you I think you would see what the effort has cost me. I have not much to say. May I ask you to hear me?"

"You have taken me by surprise, Miss Westerfield. You have no right to do that; I refuse to hear you."

"Try, madam, to bear in mind that no unhappy creature, in my place, would expose herself to your anger and contempt without a serious reason. Will you think again?"

"No!"

Sydney turned to go away—and suddenly stopped.

Another person was advancing from the hotel; an interruption, a trivial domestic interruption, presented itself. The nursemaid had missed the child, and had come into the garden to see if she was with her mother.

"Where is Miss Kitty, ma'am?" the girl asked.

Her mistress told her what had happened, and sent her to the palaces to relieve Capt. Bennydeck of the charge that he had undertaken. Susan listened, looking at Sydney, and recognizing the familiar face. As the girl moved away, Sydney spoke to her.

"I hope little Kitty is well and happy?"

Free Trade.

The reduction of internal revenue and the taking off of revenue stamps from Proprietary Medicines, no doubt has largely benefitted the consumers, as well as relieving the burden of home manufacturers. Especially is this the case with Green's August Flower and Boschee's German Syrup, as the reduction of thirty-six cents per dozen has been added to increase the size of the bottles containing these remedies, thereby giving one-fifth more medicine in the 75 cent size. The August Flower for Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint, and the German Syrup for Cough and Lung troubles have, perhaps, the largest sale of any medicines in the world. The advantage of increased size of the bottles will be greatly appreciated by the sick and afflicted, in every town and village in civilized countries. Sample bottles for 10c. remain at the same size. eodw41

His Last Resort.

Mr. Richard Rowe, Ont., was afflicted for four years with dyspepsia. Two experienced doctors treated him. Getting discouraged he tried Burdock Blood Bitters. He states that two bottles cured him. He is doing heavy work and is as well as ever. 2w1d

The increasing demand for West's Cough Syrup is evidence of its great virtue in all throat and lung diseases. Three sizes. All druggists. dwd

West's Cough Syrup instantly relieves and speedily cures bronchitis, sore throat, and all throat diseases. Try it and be convinced. All druggists. dwd

A Crying Evil.—Children are often fretful and ill when worms are the cause. Dr. Low's Worm Syrup safely expels all worms. dwd

MOTHERS TAKE NOTICE.—West's Cough Syrup contains no opiates, opium or any minerals, and can be given to the youngest and most delicate child with perfect safety. It is an infallible cure for croup and whooping cough. A bottle should always be kept convenient, as it is always a certain cure for coughs, colds, consumption in its early stages, bronchitis, asthma, and all throat and lung troubles. 25c., 50c. and $1 per bottle. All druggists. dwd

"What is McGregor's Speedy Cure for"? It is for dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Indigestion, Biliousness, and it is the finest blood purifier in the known world to-day.

"Does it give satisfaction?"

We cannot point to one instance where it did not.

"Where does it have the largest sale?"

Right in the city of Hamilton, where it is manufactured, there has been over one thousand dollars' worth sold in the last year retail, and the great majority of the sales are by one recommending it to another. For sale at 50c. and $1 per bottle by John McKee Druggist. eodw2

Painful.

J. R. Faithful, of Stroud, Ont., says he suffered from quinsy for several years, until cured by Haggard's Yellow Oil, which medicine is a specific for all painful complaints. 2w1d

Read the following extract from a letter of a well-known citizen of St. Catharines,—hand reds like it:

ST. CATHARINES, Sept. 30th, 1885.

GENTLEMEN,—Being over 70 years of age, and over 30 years Ruptured, I looked upon my case as hopeless, especially as I tried various appliances without success, among others, recently, two spiralean trusses, No. 1 York Brace, costing me $30. Nothing would retain my Hernia. I have worn your truss over four months, night and day, with great satisfaction and comfort; even to bathe in it the rupture has never come down, it holds me perfectly secure under all circumstances. You may publish it for the benefit of other sufferers. Yours truly, CAPT. B. KING.

This new Spiral Spring Rupture Truss has taken ten years to make it perfect; is guaranteed to hold the very worst case during the hardest work or severest strain. It will cure every child sure; and 90 out of every 100 of adults. Be warned—don't waste your money on useless appliances, but send stamp for our treatise; it contains full information, your neighbors' testimony, price list and questions for you to answer. The Daily Examiner.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 13, 1887.

LOCAL NEWS.

An Eminent Physician.

Dr. Washington, at the Grand Central hotel, on Saturday, Jan. 15th. He cures throat and lung troubles.

Curling and Skating.

The curling and skating rink is now open for both skaters and curlers. Tickets can be procured at the bookstores and at Miss Jenkins' shop, George street. tf

Great remnant sale now going on at the Golden Lion. R. Fair.

Throat and Lungs.

Dr. N. Washington, the eminent throat and lung surgeon, will be at the Grand Central hotel on Saturday, Jan. 15th, until 6 o'clock p.m., for consultation on all bronchial affections.

Skating.

The band attracted an unusually large number to the rink last night. In future, for the balance of the season, the band will be at the rink every Wednesday and Friday night of each week. Remember, band at rink Friday evening and Wednesday evening of each week. Those are the times to have special enjoyment.

Examiner Bindery.

Merchants and business men, now is the time to call at the EXAMINER bindery and leave your orders for journals, day books, ledgers, invoice books, cheque books, and all blank books used in business. Don't wait till the moment you want to use them. All blank books last longer for not being used immediately after being finished.

Still the Boom Booms.

Thousands, during the blizzardous weather of the present January, are giving Gough the glory because they are snug and warm in his unprecedentedly cheap overcoats and other cheap clothing purchased for a mere song at Gough's roaring clearing sale, now going on. Still the sale continues, the boom in bargains still booms—still the shivering multitudes throng to Gough's and go away clothed and warm—with more goods than were ever bought for the same money in Canada.

Another Railway Project.

The Oshawa Reformer says: "The best railway project we have yet heard proposed in the interests of the town is that in which some of our citizens are now moving for the construction of a railway from the Oshawa harbor to Bobcaygeon, in the heart of the lumber region, with power of extention to Kinmount, and thence in a due line north to Calendar station on the C. P. R. at Lake Nipissing. This line would cross the ridges and the C. P. R. at a very favorable point, a little east of Raglan, and will run south and east of Lake Sougog, through Cartwright and Manvers, along the wide and fertile valley of Pigeon creek to Omemee and thence to Bobcaygeon. It will connect with the C. P. R. and Midland systems, and passing through good territory in the counties of Ontario, Durham, Victoria, Peterboro' and Haliburton will enlist in its favor the parliamentary representatives of these counties and will receive municipal bonuses and command grants from both governments."

Only One Week More.

Only one week more of the month of marvellous chances referred to from time to time in these columns. Reference is made to the fact that the month of tremendous bargains in furniture—his holiday sale—promised by D. Bellegherm, has all expired but one week. For one week more the opportunity of selecting the best of all kinds of furniture from an immense and varied stock will be presented. Don't delay. Seven days with their precious freight of big bargains at Bellegherm's will soon slip by. Make hay while the sun shines—buy furniture at Bellegherm's while the offer holds good. Bellegherm promised a month of low prices. He has kept three-fourths of his promise, and hundreds have come and bought and gone away happy in the possession of superb furniture, such as cannot be bought at any other place than Bellegherm's for twice the money. Remember, only one week more of the month of big bargains. Call and see for yourselves—if you want furniture, you can't help buying.

A Night at the Slide.

It was a success—a decided success. Everybody said so. The fact was as plain and staring as a patent medicine advertisement on a high board fence. It occurred last night at the toboggan slide in Riverside Park. Lusty youth and blanketed beauty were there in full numbers. The "small boy" was there too, with both feet. They were chaperoned by the paternal Mac.) Mac. knows just how to get up a party. He covered himself with glory (and snow) last night. The slide slode magnificently. So did the toboggans. Frequently the occupants themselves went for a slide independent of their fiery steed. It was fun. Yes, lots of fun—for the spectators. The style of tobogganing has changed in Peterborough. This season a run down the chute, three twirls at the bottom, a dive into a snow bank and finally a waltz on the left ear is fashionable. It was numerously fashionable last night. Another innovation is standing in the middle of the track and allowing the next-comer to crash into your sled. That is also decidedly stylish. Still another new idea is to throw the lady full length on the toboggan and "let 'er drive." The toboggan usually drivers. Once in a while it drivers one or two more toboggans. It is exciting—but dangerous. Miss, just so. What Mac. knows about tobogganing would fill a book. At last two hours of solid fun came to an end. It ended right where the slide began. Panting, perspiring but perfectly happy, the party broke up at ten o'clock, each one thoroughly satisfied with the evening's sport.

Presbytery of Peterborough.

Meeting of the Presbytery at Port Hope—Next Meeting in St. Paul's Church, Peterborough.

The Presbytery of Peterborough met for ordinary business in the Mill street church, Port Hope, on Tuesday at 10 a.m., Rev. Mr. Sutherland in the chair. The attendance of members was large.

Among the items of public interest transacted, as reported in the Guide, were the following:

Rev. Mr. Hyde received and accepted a call from Warsaw and Dunnear, his ordination and induction to take place on Feb. 1st, at 2 p.m.

The name of the Rev. Mr. Bettie, of Campbellford, was placed on the roll of Presbytery as that of minister without charge residing within the bounds.

The Presbytery unanimously agreed to the remit discontinuing the exercise of discipline in the case of those contracting marriage with a deceased wife's sister.

The next ordinary meeting will be held in St. Paul's Church, Peterborough, on Tuesday, March 22nd, at 10 a.m.

THE W. F. M. S.

A meeting of the Presbyterian Womans' Foreign Missionary Society was held the same day in the Presbyterian Hall, Walton-st. The attendance of ladies was large. The reports for the year were of a very cheering character, indicating marked progress in the number of societies, membership and contribution. The following officers were chosen for the year:—Mrs. McEwen, of Lakefield, President; Mrs. Galbraith, of Port Hope, and Mrs. Fairbairn, of Peterborough, Vice-Presidents; Mrs. Jas. Craick, of Port Hope, Secretary, and Mrs. Henderson, of Cobourg, Treasurer.

In the evening a joint meeting of the Presbytery and W. F. M. S. was held in the Mill Street Church. Addresses were delivered by the Revs. Messrs. Thompson and McEwen, and an abstract of the annual report of the W. F. M. S. for the Presbytery, was read by the Rev. Mr. Mitchell, from which it was learned that there are now 14 societies and three mission bands within the Presbytery, a gain of 5 societies and 2 bands within the year. The membership has increased by 147. The cash contributions amount to $623, an advance on last year of $200. Clothing to the value of $300 had been sent to the destitute Indian women and children of the North-West.

The International Bonspiel.

Wholesale Victory for the Canadians—Peterborough's Two Rinks Triumphant.

At the great international curling bonspiel between the Americans and Canadians, held at Toronto yesterday, the latter, as might be expected, were victorious. Of the 29 rinks that competed, 9 were played on outside ice and the balance under cover. The total number of points scored was as follows: Canada, 790; United States, 501; majority for the Canadians, 289.

Peterborough curlers added fresh laurels to their already full wreath of victory. Following is the score:—

Caledonia, N. Y.	Peterborough.
John Graham,	John McClelland,
Jas. Birkett,	W. Salisbury,
A. Walker,	H. M. Allen,
D. Foulis, skip.....12	T. P. Attrill, skip...38

Majority for Peterborough, 21.

PETERBOROUGH VS. HAMILTON THISTLES.

Owing to the fact that so many curlers from the United States did not turn up as expected, several Canadian rinks found themselves without opponents. Among these were the second of the Peterborough and Hamilton Thistles, who made up a match between themselves and played on the Moss Park rink with the following result:—

Peterborough.	Hamilton Thistles.
G. Walker,	T. H. Stinson,
C. McGill,	A. Gauthere,
R. S. Davidson,	T. D. Walker.
W. G. Ferguson, s'p 33	H. Fairgrieve, skip....14

Majority for Peterborough, 19.

The curlers all returned home last night except Messrs. Attrill and Allen.

An Evangelist Coming.

The Young Men's Christian Association is making arrangements for a visit from Mr. Geo. H. Marsh, evangelist, of England. It is likely that Mr. Marsh will come on the 21st inst., and hold evangelistic meetings for a fortnight.

Important Scott Act Decision.

Justice Armour gave an important judgment regarding the Scott Act at Osgoode Hall, Tuesday, in the case of Queen vs. Heath. In December last a motion was made to quash a conviction against the defendant for aiding and abetting in the sale of liquor contrary to the provisions of the Canada Temperance Act. The exact offence was that he purchased the liquor as an aider and abettor. The learned judge is of opinion that a purchaser is not an aider and he quashes the conviction.

Won the Basket.

The manufacturers of Jonas' flavoring extracts, sold by Messrs. Elliott & Tierney, in order to introduce their goods to the general public, recently offered as a prize drawing a unique water set to the person buying the bottle of extract having underneath the cork a certain label. Mrs. D. J. Landy is the lucky one. The water set consists of a pitcher and several goblets of colored glass, sitting in a handsome wickerwork basket resembling, in shape, a large sunshade hat, with the rim gracefully turned up on one side. The pitcher occupies the crown of the hat, and the glasses are fastened around the rim. It is a very pretty novelty.

Straight to the Point.

Now, readers, please turn to our first page and look over the advertisement of the "irrepressible" Henderson who represents the "irrepressible" British Empire Mutual Life Assurance Company. The whole question is put in a nut-shell. Interested parties may indulge in insinuations and reflections on the character of this old reliable company and its agent in Peterborough, but friend Henderson lives and moves on in the even tenor of his way still, regardless of anything but his steady aim of placing within the reach of the people the lowest priced, most reliable, and one of the most liberal life policies in the Dominion of Canada or the United States. Go and and see him by all means, if you contemplate putting on life insurance.

Sunday Funerals.

We have been requested to publish the following resolution adopted by the Rev. gentlemen whose names are appended.

Resolved, that we discountenance Sunday funerals, and decline to attend them, unless in cases of necessity, the necessity to be determined by a physician's certificate, and request our people to make their arrangements accordingly.

Town Notes.

—The curlers are practising hard every night.

—The musical society meets regularly Monday and Tuesday evening.

—There has been a perceptible lengthening of daylight since Christmas.

—Meeting of the Royal Arcanum to-night for the installation of officers.

—Officers of Otonabee lodge of Oddfellows will be installed Monday night.

—Skating and tobogganing are largely indulged in by the young people now.

—Meeting of the Horticultural Society in the Council Chamber to-night.

—Rochester Fruit and Confectionery Store, George street, north. E. G. STONE.

—West's Cough Syrup, a sure cure for coughs, colds, croup and consumption. dwd

—The sale of the magazines of the Y. M. C. A. has been indefinitely postponed.

—For a few nights back some of the street electric lights have not been running.

—The railway trains have all been late for the last two days. Dense, blizzards.

—Call at the Rochester Fruit Store for confectionery, if you want the choicest kind.

—"Hangin' on sleighs" is a popular, but rather dangerous, sport with the small boys now.

—The Vice-Presidents side can crow over their defeat of the Presidents' party in the curling contest. It was narrowly won.

—Complaints are numerous that farmers and others do not have bells on their sleighs. An example should be made of a few.

—Last week Mr. Wm. Claxton shipped from Lindsay to England 500 bushels of clover seed and 240 firkins of butter, valued at $6,000.

—The Italian peanut man has fortified his caboose, at the corner of Hunter street, against the assaults of King Frost by adding windows.

—The largest hog of the season was weighed by Mr. Doherty, market clerk, Saturday. It weighed 616 pounds, and was raised by Mr. Crawthers, of Harwood.

—Despite the by-law recently passed by the Town Council to prohibit "coasting or tobogganing on the public streets," the youths of Smithtown Hill are daily offenders against the law.

—In the case of Hatton vs. Bertram, interesting to people in this vicinity, judgement was given in Toronto, declaring that 10 acres pass under the will as part of the estate of Walkerfield; expenses for building house to be paid out of residuary estate.

The Partial and Perfunctory Snow Plough.

To the Editor of the Daily Examiner:

DEAR SIR,—Can you say why so much apparent partiality is shown by the corporation snow ploughs?

Some of the principal sidewalks seem to be neglected. Take Hunter street, for instance; the plough has not been ran up either side, for some time; the result is that the snow has become packed down in a narrow track and when a thaw comes the slush will be knee deep.

Traces of the plough are to be seen on some cross streets, upon which but one or two houses are, and but little traffic. This should be remedied by the proper authority.

It was stated in one of the papers, at the commencement of the winter, that the snow by-law was to be rigidly enforced by the police, but alas, alas, like many others, it has become, practically, a dead letter.

What about the number of sleighs that are driven through the streets without bells on the horses? The revenue of the town would be considerably increased if the police did as they should do, and arrest offenders—perhaps the Chief will see to this before anyone is run down and injured!

It is to be hoped the Council will appoint a thoroughly competent Street Inspector, so that many needed improvements may be made on the streets.

Yours truly,
CITIZEN.

Peterborough, Jan. 13th, 1887.

The Lock Works.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

DEAR SIR.—Mr. James Stevenson, the Conservative Candidate for the Dominion Parliament, stated in my hearing to-day "that he had erected the building for the Peterborough Lock Works and was giving that company the use of it for a long term of years for nothing,—(that is, that he was not receiving any rent whatever for the building,) with the sole object in view of encouraging manufacturing industries in Peterborough.

Will you kindly say through your columns whether Mr. Stevenson's statement was correct or not and oblige

Yours truly,
A VOTER.

Peterborough, Jan. 12th.

[We have made enquiries from a gentleman who is a director of the Company, and he informs us that the Lock Works Company pay Mr. Stevenson $1000 per year for the use of the building and the power for driving the machinery. The value of the power supplied may be placed (at the outside figures) at from $150 to $200—leaving say, $800 as annual rental for the building. Our correspondent will thus see how much ground there is for Mr. Stevenson's assertion, and how great evidence it affords of his disinterested efforts to foster the manufacturing interests of Peterborough.—ED. EXAMINER.]

A Correction.

To the Editor of the Daily Examiner.

SIR,—I notice a paragraph in your paper last evening which states that about a week ago I bought "a decipit old nag" on the market as a sort of speculation, and that it died on my hands. This statement is entirely incorrect. The horse was bought by a farmer in Otonabee who brought him to my place to be cared for and fed by me until he called for it. Unfortunately the speculation didn't prove to be a good one, and finding that the animal was so aged and infirm as to be positively useless, he deemed it more humane to end its life and put it out of misery. I don't myself speculate in "decrepit old nags," and hoping you will give the above space in your paper, I am

Yours truly,
JOHN MOORE.

[NOTE.—Our reporter was informed by a member of the police force, and deeming the authority reliable, the item was published. We hope the above correction will relieve Mr. Moore of any stigma which the paragraph may have attached to his name.—Ed. EXAMINER.]

Annoying Detention.

During the noon hour to-day a long train of flat cars stood on the G. T. R. track at the Charlotte street crossing, completely blocking traffic for, as a disgusted driver asserted, fully half an hour. This is probably an exaggeration, but the fact is, the train stood there while a large number of teams accumulated on both sides of the track, unable to cross. The law, it is understood, only allows a train to occupy the track in this manner for five minutes. If engineers and conductors are so careless of the public convenience, the authorities should take some means to awaken them from this dream of indifference.

TO DEPOSITORS—Deposits are received by this Company both on current account and for periods of one year or longer. The rate of interest paid on amounts deposited on current account, and which may be withdrawn by check in such sums as the depositor may from time to time require, is FOUR per cent., either paid or compounded half-yearly, and the rate on yearly deposits is FIVE per cent.

TO INVESTORS—The five and ten year FIVE PER CENT DEBENTURES of this Company, which may be issued in denominations of $100, $200, $400 and $1000 each, bearing interest at the rate of five per cent. per annum, payable at the Head Office of the Company, Toronto, or at any Branch of the Bank of Toronto in Canada, afford a safe and convenient mode of investment.

The funds of the Company being invested in first mortgages on Real Estate, no better security can be offered to depositors or debenture holders, they having a first claim or lien upon the whole Assets of the Company, the shareholders having the security of the uncalled capital over and above that amount as invested year after year, and on the security of real estate of latest double that value.

By the laws of Ontario, Trustees, Executors and Administrators may deposit Trust Funds of the estates which they represent in this Company, and are free from all Trust liability, a provision of which many have already availed themselves.

TO BORROWERS—Money advantageously loaned from this Company on approved Real Estate security at the lowest current rates of interest, repayable at the option of the borrower, either in full at the end of any year, or by instalments, to extend over a period of [illegible] years, the interest [illegible]

Applications for loans, and for the purchase of Debentures, may be made at the Head Office, Toronto, or at any Branch of the Bank of Toronto.

WHY
Will people pay rent when houses and lots can be purchased on such easy terms as are offered by the undersigned, come and inspect our work and see for yourselves how we construct our houses. Our chief aim and study is to build substantial, warm, frost and damp proof houses. I am offering good building lots, and will build solid brick houses, nine-inch walls, strapped and lathed, two stories, for less money than you can buy frame or veneered buildings. We cordially invite those who anticipate renting or buying to inspect our work and prove for themselves that our houses are not merely built to sell. Every house I've sold gives satisfaction, and I am determined that every house I build shall be a standing testimony to honest building. JOHN CARLISLE, Lonsdale Street, 2nd block west of St. Andrew's Church. wd

WORKING CLASSES ATTENTION
We are now prepared to furnish all classes with employment at home, the whole time, or for spare moments. Business new, light and profitable. Persons of either sex easily earn from 50 cents to $5.00 per evening, and a proportional sum by devoting all their time to the business. Boys and girls earn nearly as much as men. That all who see this may send their address, and test the business, we make this offer. To such as are not well satisfied we will send one dollar to pay for the trouble of writing. Full particulars and on sent free. Address George Stinson & Co. Portland, Maine.

THE ARMY BILL.

BISMARCK VIGOROUSLY ADVOCATING THE MEASURE.

BERLIN, Jan. 13.—The debate on the Army Bill was resumed in the Reichstag to-day. Prince Bismarck again spoke. He said he regretted that he had been prevented from listening to Herr Richter's speech denying that the German Liberal press attacked the Chancellor's Bulgarian policy. Germany intervened in Bulgaria, Prince Bismarck said, solely to prevent the execution of the conspirators who were implicated in the plot against Prince Alexander, so that the maintenance of peace might be unimpeded.

The Chancellor, as an instance of the instability of press opinion, quoted from the Vossische Zeitung and the Germania, and continued: "The papers ask us even to use our soldiers to bar Russia's road to Constantinople. To do this would, perhaps, be in England's interest, but we have a difficult task to maintain peace and act permanently as moderator between two powers. In years to come if Russia attacks us, then we must and shall defend ourselves to the last drop of blood. As matters stand Russia has no cause to attack us, nor have we any cause to attack Russia. It is just as little conceivable that the Poles would involve us in war with Russia, for it would be very doubtful whether they would profit by a Russian victory. I fail to understand how the same party should on the one hand seek to involve us, while on the other hand they would refuse or curtail the means of war." Dr. Windthorst, replying, again pointed out that a proper interpretation of the constitution was at variance with the Chancellor's ideas of political economy policy.

Prince Bismarck, rising abruptly, retorted, "In the Constitution it is plainly set forth that the Emperor fixes the effective strength of the army. If the Reichstag should not grant those means for the army which we consider necessary, the King of Prussia would still have the resource of appealing, with every confidence to the Prussian Diet, which would, no doubt, grant the required means. We wish to preserve; you wish to encroach. We retain our old domains; you seek to acquire new privileges and rights you do not now possess."

Alluding next to the attacks on his economic policy, Bismarck said the fact that the national prosperity had advanced by it could not be disposed of by denials. In concluding he said: "If the Government finds it cannot get on with the present Reichstag, certainly it will not abandon constitutional ground in dissolving the body."

Gen. Von Schellendorff, Minister of War, followed, opposing the view of Herr Richter that the bill had been introduced solely with the object of lessening the number of officers and men who are now on an indefinite leave of absence.

A motion to close the debate was agreed to, and the House adjourned until 1 o'clock to-morrow, when a division on the bill will be taken.

The Opposition Determined.

BERLIN, Jan. 13.—At a meeting of progressists' members of the Reichstag held yesterday evening it was decided to support the centre in voting for a triennate term as the duration of the Army Bill. There is not a symptom of weakening on the part of the opposition or of its being inclined to go beyond the triennate term. A small number of the nobility, who are members of the centre, will vote with the Government, but their support is not likely to affect the fate of the bill.

THE MONTREAL TELEGRAPH CO.

Shareholders' Annual Meeting—The Agreement With the Great Northwestern.

MONTREAL, Jan. 13.—The annual meeting of the Montreal Telegraph Company was held this afternoon, the President, Andrew Allan, in the chair. The annual report was submitted and adopted. At the request of the President, Thomas Workman moved a motion, which was carried, authorizing the incoming directors to take such steps as they deemed right for the enforcement of the agreement with the Great Northwestern Company of Aug. 17, 1881. Some discussion took place, in which some of those present called the Great Northwestern Company to account for alleged bad service. Some of the shareholders present attempted to shoulder the responsibility of the agreement of 1881 on the then directors, but it was shown that the directors of that time were opposed to the amalgamation and that the shareholders were alone responsible for it. Thomas Workman said it had been stated in the street that the dividend would arrive in a day or two, but the President replied that he knew nothing of it. The following directors were elected: Andrew Allan, Hector Mackenzie, Wm. Cassels, Jame Joseph and Wm. Wainright, the two latter replacing John Crawford and John Sterling. Andrew Allan was re-elected President.

No List of Shareholders.

MONTREAL, Jan. 13.—A feature of the annual meeting of the Montreal Telegraph Company to-day was that the annual report was presented without the list of shareholders. This is the first time this has taken place for seven or eight years. Various interpretations are put on this, one is that 23,000 shares are held on the street on margin.

Russia's Financial Condition.

LONDON, Jan. 13.—A St. Petersburg despatch says: The budget for the past year has just been published. It shows a deficit of £5,222,662. Extra expenditures amounted to £1,600,000 and expenditures for railway and harbor made it £6,816,312. The Minister of Finances attributes the continued commercial crisis to the unavoidable reduction of public and private incomes resulting from the depression. He considers it impudent to increase the present taxes or to levy new ones, as there are reasonable probabilities sufficient to lessen the deficit. He proposes to defray £2,671,688 for extraordinary expenditures by means of a loan.

THE DEAD STATESMAN

THE QUEEN HAS LOST A VALUED AND TRUSTED FRIEND.

LONDON, July 13.—The unfortunate fate of Lord Iddesleigh has excited sympathy everywhere. The newspapers extol him, and some of them make very uncomplimentary comments on the treatment the dead man received at the hands of the Prime Minister. In this respect the St. James Gazette says: "It cannot be said Lord Iddesleigh was murdered. It is no crime to be a young man in a hurry. It is no crime to push a man from the stool on which you believe you would make a better figure. Perhaps some of his assailants will now feel remorse, and especially those to whom he was a joke, not one of whom was worthy to unloose his shoes."

The Queen's Regret.

LONDON, Jan. 13.—The Court Circular says: The Queen received with the sincerest regret the sad news of the death of Lord Iddesleigh. She is deeply concerned at the great loss the country has sustained. She herself has lost a valued and trusted friend and counsellor, for whom she and her family entertained a true personal regard.

Service to be Held in Westminster.

LONDON, Jan. 13.—The funeral services will be held on Tuesday at Pynes. On the same day a special service will be held in Westminster Abbey, which will be attended by the diplomatic corps and the leading members of the various political parties.

POLITICAL AFFAIRS IN ENGLAND.

A Conference Between Gladstonites and Liberal Unionists.

LONDON, Jan. 13.—The political conference between Gladstonites and Liberal Unionists took place at the residence of Sir Wm. Vernon Harcourt to-day. Those present were Sir Wm. Vernon Harcourt, John Morley, Baron Herschel, Joseph Chamberlain and George O. Trevelyan.

The conference adjourned till Friday.

The Plan of Campaign.

LONDON, Jan. 13.—It is believed in political circles that the Government intends to introduce in Parliament a bill dealing with the Nationalist anti-rent plan of campaign.

Mr. Goschen's Address.

LONDON, Jan. 13.—Mr. Goschen has issued an address to the electors of the Exchange division of Liverpool. He maintains that he is still a Liberal and that he rallied to the support of the Government under the influence of deep conviction that the duty of men of all parties was to close up their ranks in the face of the common danger threatening the existence of the United Kingdom. He says he believes that a majority of Englishmen are less willing than ever to surrender any portion of the kingdom to the advocates of the plan of campaign. The Unionists have been able to avert separation and catastrophe, but unwearied patience and unflinching courage are necessary to maintain the victory. The defence of the union is the supreme consideration. The country cannot allow the discontent of 3,000,000 inhabitants of the kingdom to reduce to impotence over 30,000,000.

A PRIEST IN CHAINS.

The Barrier That Confronted an Evicting Landlord.

DUBLIN, Jan. 11.—At Rossmanagher, County Limerick, to-day, a landlord named Destierre attempted to evict a tenant named Frost, who owed him more than £700 for rent. The police, followed by a large crowd of people, upon arriving at Frost's house found it barricaded, and outside the front entrance a huge pile of stones. In front of this pile, and securely bound to it by chains, was Father Little, the parish priest.

The police surveyed the scene and found that the priest had been chained in such a manner that entrance to the house could not be forced without disturbing him. This they were disposed to do, but the crowd threatened to assault the police if they laid hands on the priest, and finally became so demonstrative that the police drew their batons and charged upon the people. The priest, still chained to the pile of stones, vehemently denounced the landlord, who had accompanied the police to the house, and Destierre finally agreed to settle the matter by allowing Frost to purchase his holding on the basis of eighteen years' rental.

A MESSAGE FROM IRELAND.

The National League Dinner At Cincinnati Interrupted.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 13.—The session of the Executive Council of the National League of America closed to-night. The following cable was received by President Fitzgerald:

DUBLIN, Jan. 13.—A cruel eviction crusade has been in progress in Kerry for several days past. The agents and bailiffs are using paraffine oil and setting fire to the houses as each family is evicted. Scores of families are homeless.
T. HARRINGTON, M.P.,
Secretary Irish National League.

The reading of this despatch created a bitter feeling, received as it was in the midst of a banquet tendered the members of the Executive Council of the league. The following was sent in reply:

"Despatch received. The issue was anticipated, and the Executive Council of the Irish American League, with the hearty approval of the principal Irish-American citizens of Cincinnati, bid you meet it undismayed, and pledge you an unyielding support in the conflict."

THE RELIEF OF EMIN BEY.

Stanley Proposes to Reach Him by the Congo Route.

LONDON, Jan. 13.—Henry M. Stanley, after his reception at the Guildhall to-day, was tendered a banquet at the Mansion House. Among those present were the Baroness Burdett-Coutts, Cardinal Manning, Lord Wolseley, Baron Napier of Magdala, and Generals Chelmsford and Graham. Mr. Stanley, in an address to the assemblage, said he had decided to take the route by way of the Congo River as the best and most expeditious for the relief of Emin Bey. A passage might be forced by other routes, but he pointed out that after the caravans had passed along them all these routes would be closed, while the Congo would always be open. The expedition will leave London January 20.

THE WORK OF EVICTION GOES ON.

The Houses Burned as Soon as the Tenants Are Ejected.

DUBLIN, Jan. 13.—Bailiffs continued the work of evicting tenants on the Winn estate in Kerry yesterday, burning the houses as fast as the occupants were ejected. The dispossessed tenants belong to the poorest class and are in great distress.

Messrs. O'Connor, Tanner and Condon, Members of Parliament, attended a meeting of tenants at Mitchellstown to-day to discuss with the tenants their course with reference to ejectment write served upon them. A bailiff who was present was hustled and rolled in the mud, escaping with difficulty.

Poultry Show at London.

LONDON, Jan. 13.—The Ontario Poultry Show has been held here this week, and there is the largest number of fowls ever exhibited at one time. The local association in London gave their visiting brethren an oyster supper. The judging was done by scoring, and the following gentlemen officiated: Messrs. S. Butterfield, Amherstburg; L. J. Jarvis, London; W. Cooper, Hamilton, and W. H. Doel, Toronto.

THE NEW YORK CANADIAN CLUB.

A Proposition to Call it the British-Canadian Club Voted Down.

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—The regular quarterly meeting of the Canadian Club was held last night, presided over by Mr. John Paton, banker. A proposition to change the name of the club to the British-Canadian was voted down unanimously. This decision was reached after an animated discussion, and was very gratifying to those Canadians who desired an independent existence for the club and its operations. Large additions have recently been made to the club membership and its progress and usefulness are now well assured. The initiation fee after April 1 will be $25, but non-resident members are still admitted at $5 for initiation and $5 per annum for dues. The privileges of the club are being largely availed of by residents of Canada who desire headquarters in New York.

A Murder That Followed a Dance.

MOUNT HOLLY, N.J., Jan. 13.—A week ago William Agnew of Palmyra went home from a ball with his wife, and after a few words picked up a rocking chair and dealt her several blows on the head, crushing in her skull. He then carried her upstairs to bed, and she died that night. Since then the body has lain in the room undiscovered, and Agnew remained about the house and slept in the same room with the murdered woman until yesterday, when the body was discovered. Agnew was arrested and confessed, saying he committed the deed while drunk, and that he was prompted by jealousy.

Hanged for Murder.

NORRISTOWN, Pa., Jan. 13.—John M. Wilson was hanged here this afternoon for the murder of Anthony W. Daly.

Sir Charles Tupper Sails for Canada.

LONDON, Jan. 13.—Sir Charles Tupper, Canadian High Commissioner, sailed to-day for Canada.

PROTECTION AND PARTIAL-ITY.

The defenders of the so-called "national policy" modestly assert that they are well aware it is not a perfect measure. It is not only not perfect, but in many respects perfectly iniquitous, in that that it is, as Sir John would say, "jug-handled," and unfair, giving monstrous privileges to favored manufacturers and making the people roundly pay for them. Take, for instance, the course of the Government in fostering the pig-iron industry—a sort of paternal compensation to the Londonderry Iron and Steel Company for driving their pig-iron to the wrong market. The Montreal Herald thus tells the incidents of this "dicker";

"The Londonderry Iron and Steel Company set out to make pig iron. To assist the operation, the Government taxed all the consumers of pig iron throughout the Dominion,—that is to say, the great bulk of the people,—$2.24 Customs duty per long ton, for the benefit of this single corporation. The company represented that this was not enough, and the Government then gave them a bounty,—that is to say, paid them in cash out of the public treasury,—$1.68 for every long ton of pig iron manufactured by them, making $3.92 per ton in the shape of protection. And the Government assistance did not end here. The company have secured from the Government a remarkably low rate of freight. Many well-informed persons believe that the Government are carrying the coal which the Company consume and the pig iron and bar iron which they produce at rates that are really below cost. To what extent the public treasury is cooled in this connexion it is impossible to say, but we have no doubt that a considerable sum is dropped. Altogether, the works are heavily bonused at the expense of the people, and still it is alleged that they are not successful, and that higher duties and bounties are looked for and will be provided. How this may be we cannot, of course, say, but as all events, whether the Company has succeeded or not, the Government's action has succeeded in creating serious embarrassment to many deserving merchants. The Government have been acting on the principle that they are justified in using their political power and their control of legislation to put money in the pockets of certain persons, even if they have to ruin the long established and once flourishing business of certain other persons. They have acted on the principle whenever "political exigencies" called for such discrimination. The cool, matter of fact manner in which this one-sided action has been applied, the total disregard of the financial consequences of their legislation and their favoritism on men who have long followed legitimate commercial enterprises—many of them built up only after many weary years of application and industry and worry—is more heartless than anything that could have been imagined. While experiments have been tried in the hope of galvanizing into life some moribund commercial speculation here or there, they have been conducted at the cost of the ruin of legitimate enterprises, long set blished and once flourishing. It is not surprising that, within as well as without the Government ranks, there is stern resentment in view of the collapse of honorable businesses sacrificed to purely political considerations. Men who will continue to support the Government that have ruined them, might well rank among the angels; but we do not find any disposition on the part of those who have been smitten on one cheek to turn the other to receive similar punishment. Quite the reverse.

ADMITTING ITS CLIENT'S GUILT.

Speaking in reference to the cause of the North-west rebellion, the Toronto Mail, Sir John's personal organ, discharged its conscience by the following outburst of truth. Referring to the Half-breeds, the Mail of July 8th, 1885, says:—

"Had they (the Half-breeds who rose against Ottawa tyranny) had votes, like white men, or if, like the Indians, they had been numerous enough to command respect and overawe red tape, without doubt, the wheels of office would have revolved for them; but being only Half-breeds, they were put off with an eternal promise, until patience ceased to be a virtue.

"We repeat again that the departmental sycophancy under which such callous and cruel neglect of the rights of a portion of the community was possible, was wrong, and should be censured."

Life Insurance.

The Late John S. McLachlan's Policies.

Canadian Trade Review.

Considerable discussion has lately taken place in insurance circles, and in the public press, on the question of paying to the family of the late Mr. John S. McLachlan the several insurances on his life, which, as a prudent business man, he had from time to time effected in various companies, and amounting in the aggregate to the sum of $42,133 70. Under ordinary circumstances the death of a well known citizen leaves no room for insurance companies to dispute the payment of their policies, and it is to the credit of the companies doing business in Canada that few insurance claims have ever been contested, the companies generally vieing with each other in making prompt payments.

The circumstances surrounding the death of Mr. McLachlan are of a nature, however, to open the door to complaints disposed, to delay and even to dispute the payment of the claims against them, and the public will watch with interest, and no doubt lay to heart the action of the different companies, in a case where, while the circumstantial evidence of death is clear, the direct proof is for the moment wanting.

The case may be briefly stated as follows: About the middle of November last, Mr. McLachlan, who was a keen sportsman, left Montreal with some friends for a few days shooting on the islands in the St. Lawrence, near Somerstown, and being anxious to engage in his favorite recreations, proposed to proceed to one of the islands while a high wind was blowing, none of his party, however, was willing to incur risk with him. Mr. Sumner, a young gentleman who accompanied another party, offering to go with Mr. McLachlan, the two left together in a small skiff, the wind increasing in violence after their departure until great fears were entertained for their safety. Unfortunately these fears were too well founded, for the gentlemen did not return to their headquarters, and on search being made a part of their skiff was found in the river, while some of the property of the unfortunate sportsmen was found on the islands. Diligent and long search was made for the bodies, but without success, the stormy season of the year, the nature of the current, and other circumstances making it probable that the bodies may never be recovered.

The insurance companies interested are these, as we have stated, brought face to face with a temptation to delay and even resist the payment of a claim, where the moral evidence of death is clear, but where the legal evidence may be wanting. No one who knew Mr. McLachlan will for a moment believe that he is still living. His circumstances, his family relations, and the loss of his companion furnish abundant evidence of his death.

Under these circumstances it appears to us the insurance companies interested have only one course to pursue, and that is to pay the respective claims against them, taking such security as they may think necessary to protect them against a possible but most improbable contingency. And we are pleased to note that the Sun Life, the most largely interested company, has already paid over to Mr. McLachlan's heirs the sum of $17,120 70, and the Dominion Safety Fund of St. John, N. B., the sum of $2 000. We notice that the energetic manager of the "Citizen's," who is ever ready to draw his sword in defence of his company, states that they do not consider the "proofs of death sufficient as they are now sworn." It is to be hoped that his Board of Directors, who are clear-headed business men will not damage their company by demanding impossible evidence. The "Sun," promptly by the light of its own rays, has been quick to see its duty in this case and any ill-natured remarks of its contemporaries of the press will only add to its popularity.

Business men and others who insure their lives for the benefit of those who are dear to them have two thoughts ever uppermost in their minds, the one having reference to the solvency of the company in which they are insured, and the other the feeling of security that no technicality arising from the manner or manner of death will delay or prevent the payment of the amount of insurance, which, in many cases, is the main dependence of those bereaved of their natural protectors. While, however, approving heartily of the action of the Sun Life Company, we have no sympathy with those journals which are ever ready to seize upon an occasion of this kind to question the integrity and disparage the administration of those companies who do not meet their demands in the way of advertisements, and whose persistent attacks and demands have become an intolerable nuisance.

A Slanderous Writer.

PARIS, Jan. 13.—Mme. Rataszi, the famous intriguante, female diplomat and writer, has left Frenoff territory to avoid a sentence of ten days' imprisonment for slander. The libel suit was brought by certain members of leading Spanish families on account of statements reflecting upon them in Mme. Ratazzi's recent book upon Madrid society.

British Troops Leaving Egypt.

(From a Correspondent.)

The annual Christmas tree of the Indian Church on the Rice Lake reserve was held on Thursday evening, the 6th inst.

These entertainments have usually attracted considerable attention and have always been well attended, but this last surpassed all others in every respect. The house was more than filled, it was simply packed, and many could not gain admittance at all. The trees looked very nice and were laden with all sorts of things, mainly of the useful rather than the ornamental order. The school children gave a pleasing entertainment of song and recitation.

The Indian choir sustained their excellent reputation in the singing of several anthems in a creditable manner. It is doubtful if there is a better choir in the country.

One of the most pleasing features of the evening was the presentation of an address and purse of $30 to the pastor of the church, Rev. Edward Cragg, from Mr. Jas. Gilkespie and others.

A very enjoyable evening was spent. About $36 was realized at the door.

CAMPBELL'S
TONIC ELIXIR
This agreeable yet potent preparation is especially adapted for the relief and cure of that class of disorders attendant upon a low or reduced state of the system, and usually accompanied by Pallor, Weakness and Palpitation of the Heart. Prompt results will follow its use in cases of Sudden Exhaustion arising from Loss of Blood, Acute or Chronic Diseases, and in the weakness that invariably accompanies the recovery from Wasting Fevers. No remedy will give more speedy relief in Dyspepsia or Indigestion, its act on on the stomach being that of a gentle and harmless tonic, exciting the organs of digestion to action, and thus affording immediate and permanent relief. The carminative properties of the different aromatics which the ELIXIR contains render it useful in Flatulent Dyspepsia. It is a valuable remedy for Atonic Dyspepsia, which is apt to occur in persons of a gouty character.
For Impoverished Blood, Loss of Appetite, Despondency, and in all cases where an effective and certain stimulant is required, the Elixir will be found invaluable.
In Fevers of a Malarial Type, and the various evil results following exposure to the cold or wet weather, it will prove a valuable restorative, as the combination of Cinchona Calisaya and Peruvian Barks are universally recognized as specifics for that above-named disorder.

No mother doesn't live who could have resisted the tone in which that question was put. The broken heart, the love for the child that still lived in it, spoke in accents that even touched the servant. She came back; remembering the happy days when the governess had won their hearts at Mount Morven, and, for the moment at least, remembering nothing else.

"Quite well and happy, miss, thank you," Susan said.

As she hurried away on her errand she saw her mistress beckon to Sydney to return and place a chair for her. The nursemaid was not near enough to hear what followed.

"Miss Westerfield, I regret what I said to you just now; I ask you to pardon me." With those words Catherine pointed to the chair. "I am ready to hear you," she resumed—"but I have something to ask first. Does what you wish to say to me relate only to yourself?"

"It relates to another person as well as to myself."

That reply, and the inference to which it led, tried Catherine's resolution to preserve her self-control as nothing had tried it yet.

"If that other person," she said, "means Mr. Herbert Linley——"

Sydney interrupted her in words which she was entirely unprepared to hear.

"I shall never see Mr. Herbert Linley again."

"Has he deserted you?"

"No. It is I who have left him."

"You!"

The emphasis laid on that one word forced Sydney to assert herself for the first time.

"If I had not left him of my own free will," she said, "what else would excuse me for venturing to come here?"

Catherine's sense of justice felt the force of that reply. At the same time, her sense of injury set its own construction on Sydney's motive. "Has his cruelty driven you away from him?" she asked.

"If he had been cruel to me," Sydney answered, "do you think I should have come here to complain of it to you? Do me the justice to believe that I am not capable of such self-degradation as that. I have nothing to complain of."

"And yet you have left him?"

"He has been all that is kind and considerate; he has done everything that a man in his unhappy position could do to set my mind at ease. And yet I have left him. Oh, I claim no merit for my repentance, bitterly as I feel it! I might not have had the courage to leave him—if he had loved me as he once loved you."

"Miss Westerfield! You force me to tell you that you are the last person living who ought to a lude to my married life."

"You may perhaps pardon the allusion, madam, when you have heard what I have still to say. I owe it to Mr. Herbert Linley, if not to you, to confess that his life with me has not been a life of happiness. He has tried, compassionately tried, to keep his secret sorrow from discovery, and he has succeeded. I had long suspected the truth, but I only saw it in his face when he found the book you left behind you at the hotel. Your image has, from first to last, been the one living image in his guilty heart. I am the miserable victim of a man's passing fancy. You have been (you are still) the one object of a husband's love. Ask your own heart if the woman lives who could say what I have just said, unless it was true?"

Catherine's head sank on her bosom; her helpless hands lay trembling on her lap. Overpowered by the confession which she had just heard—a confession which had followed closely on the thoughts inspired by the appearance of the child—her agitation was beyond control; her mind was unequal to the effort of decision. The woman who had been wronged—who had the right to judge for herself and to speak for herself—was the silent woman of the two!

It was not quite dark yet. Sydney could see as well as hear.

For the first time since the beginning of the interview she allowed the impulse of the moment to lead her astray. In her eagerness to complete the act of atonement she failed to appreciate the severity of the struggle that was passing in Catherine's mind. She alluded again to Herbert Linley, and she spoke too soon.

"Will you let him ask your pardon?" she said. "He expects no more."

Catherine's spirit was aroused in an instant. "He expects too much!" she answered, sternly.

Sydney saw her mistake, and tried too late to set it right.

"It is my misfortune if I have taken a liberty," she pleaded; "pray don't treat me as if it was my fault. I dare not ask you to alter your opinion——"

"Do you dare look the truth in the face?" Catherine interposed. "Do you remember what sacred ties that man has broken? what memories he has profaned? what years of faithful love he has cast from him? Must I tell you how he poisoned his wife's mind with doubts of his truth and despair of his honor, when he basely deserted her? You talk of your repentance. Is there no sympathy for Me in your repentance?"

Sydney silently submitted to reproach, silently endured the shame that finds no excuse for itself.

Catherine looked at her, and relented. The noble nature which could stoop to anger, but never sink to the lower depths of malice and persecution, restrained itself and made amends. "I say it in no unkindness to you," she resumed. "But when you ask me to forgive, consider what you ask me to forget. It will only distress us both if we remain longer together," she continued, rising as she spoke. "Perhaps you will believe that I mean well when I ask if there is anything I can do for you?"

"Nothing!"

All the desolation of the lost woman told its terrible tale in that one word. Invited to rest herself in the hotel, she asked leave to remain where she was; the mere effort of rising was too much for her now. Catherine said the parting words kindly. "I believe in your good intentions; I believe in your repentance."

"Believe in my punishment!" After that reply no more was said.

Behind the trees that clothed the view at the further extremity of the lawn, the moon was rising. As the two women lost sight of each other's side by side, separated beautiful, hostile as those who enter the garden.

THE END.

was the sense of fatigue. Unconsciously, mechanically, the girl rested as a tired animal might have rested. She saw nothing, heard nothing; the one feeling of which she was conscious was a dull aching in every limb. The moon climbed the heavens, brightened the topmost leaves of the trees, found the recess in which Sydney was hidden, and covered it tenderly with radiant light. She was too weary to sleep; too weary even to shade her face when the moonbeams touched it. While the light still strengthened, while the new minutes still followed each other unheeded, the one influence that could rouse Sydney found her at last—set her faint heart throbbing—called her prostrate spirit to life again. She heard a glad cry of recognition in a child's voice:

"Oh, Sydney, dear, is it you?"

In another instant her little pupil and playfellow of former days was in her arms.

"My darling, how did you come here?"

Susan answered the question. "We are on our way back from the palace, miss. I am afraid," she said, timidly, "that we ought to go in."

Silently resigned, Sydney tried to release the child. Kitty clung to her and kissed her; Kitty set the nurse at defiance. "Do you think I am going to leave Syd now I have found her? Susan, I am astonished at you!"

Susan gave way. Where the nature is gentle, kindness and delicacy go hand in hand together, undisturbed by the social irregularities which beset the roadway of life. The nursemaid drew back out of hearing. Kitty's first questions followed each other in breathless succession. Some of them proved to be hard, indeed, to answer truly, and without reserve. She inquired if Sydney had seen her mother, and then she was eager to know why Sydney had been left in the garden alone.

"Why haven't you gone back to the house with mamma?" she asked.

"Don't ask me, dear," was all that Sydney could say. Kitty drew the inevitable conclusion: "Have you and mamma quarrelled?"

"Oh, no!"

"Then come in-doors with me."

"Wait a little, Kitty, and tell me something about yourself. How do you get on with your lessons?"

"You dear foolish governess, do you expect me to learn my lessons when I haven't got you to teach me? Where have you been all this long while? I wouldn't have gone away and left you!" She paused; her eager eyes studied Sydney's face with the unrestrained curiosity of a child. "Is it the moonlight that makes you look pale and wretched?" she said. "Or are you really unhappy? Tell me, Syd, do you ever sing any of those songs that I taught you, when you first came to us?"

"Never, dear!"

"Have you anybody to go out walking with you and running races with you, as I did?"

"No, my sweet! Those days have gone by forever."

What True Merit Will Do.

The unprecedented sale of Boschee's German Syrup within a few years has astonished the world. It is without doubt the safest and best remedy ever discovered for the speedy and effectual cure of Coughs, Colds and the severest Lung troubles. It acts on an entirely different principle from the usual prescriptions given by physicians, as it does not dry up a cough and leave the disease still in the system, but on the contrary removes the cause of the trouble, heals the parts affected, and leaves them in a purely healthy condition. A bottle kept in the house for use when the diseases make their appearance, will save doctor's bills and a long spell of serious illness. A trial will convince you of these facts. It is positively sold by all druggists and general dealers in the land. Price 75 cents, large bottles. sodw&f1d

ST. CATHARINES, Sept. 30th, 1885.

GENTLEMEN,—Being over 70 years of age, and over 30 years afflicted, I looked upon my case as hopeless, especially as I tried various so-called without success, among others, recently, two spring trusses manufactured in New York State, costing me $40. Nothing would retain my Hernia. Having worn your truss over four months, night and day, with great satisfaction and comfort; even to bathe in it the rupture has never come down. It holds me perfectly secure under all circumstances. You can publish it for the benefit of other sufferers. Yours truly, CAPT. S. KING

This new Spiral Spring Pad Truss has taken ten years to make it perfect; is guaranteed to hold the very worst case during the hardest work or severest strain. It will cure every child not past 10 or over 50 of adults. Be warned—don't waste your money on useless appliances, but send stamp for our treatise; it contains full information, your neighbors' testimony, price list and question-form sent to answer. LOCAL NEWS.

Adjourned.

The Salvation Army trials in Lindsay have been enlarged till Wednesday of next week.

A Paucity of Police Pointers.

The police magistrate and the court officials took a half holiday this morning. There was not a single case on the docket.

No Meeting.

The meeting of the Royal Arcanum which was to have been held last night had to be indefinitely postponed, owing to the absence of several prominent officers.

Sprained his Ankle.

Mr. Wm. Ross, of the Oriental hotel, stepped into an open cellar-way Wednesday and sprained his ankle. He will be laid up for a few days.

Curling and Skating.

The curling and skating rink is now open for both skaters and curlers. Tickets can be procured at the bookstores and at Miss Jenkins' shop, George street. tf

Great remnant sale now going on at the Golden Lion. R. Fair.

Band of Hope.

Band of Hope will meet this (Friday) evening at half-past seven o'clock, over Geo. Stethem's hardware store. Mr. R. Mason will instruct the members in military and broom drill.

Throat and Lungs.

Dr. N. Washington, the eminent throat and lung surgeon, will be at the Grand Central hotel on Saturday, Jan. 15th, until 6 o'clock p.m., for consultation on all bronchial affections.

The Criminal Record.

During 1886 there were about 400 criminal cases disposed of at the Police Court. At least one-third of this number were Scott Act cases. A report in detail will probably be presented at the meeting of the Town Council Monday night.

Slaughter sale of wool goods at the Golden Lion. R. Fair.

The Recount.

In the matter of the recount in connection with the West Peterborough elections, the proceedings have been adjourned till Saturday afternoon, when His Honor, Judge Weller, will give decision on the ballots reserved, the arguments thereon having been heard.

It Won't be Ready.

The new organ of the George street Methodist Church will not be ready for use, as expected, on Sunday next. The ornamental pipes and several stops are en route from Boston, but have been unavoidably delayed by the snowstorms.

Spoed the Plough.

A prominent citizen of Peterborough this morning telephoned to police headquarters to have the snow plough sent up to his residence, in order to open a passage through the immense snowbanks that block the street. He declared he was unable to leave the house on that account.

Examiner Bindery.

Merchants and business men, now is the time to call at the EXAMINER bindery and leave your orders for journals, day books, ledgers, invoice books, cheque books, and all blank books used in business. Don't wait till the moment you want to use them. All blank books last longer for not being used immediately after being finished.

Disproving a Statement.

There are at present only three bodies in the vault of the Little Lake Cemetery—two adults and one child. Such a record for the first fortnight of the new year and the last fortnight of the old year, or since the ground has been frozen up, for a town of 10,000 inhabitants, goes far to disprove the statements which are in circulation in reference to the prevalence of fatal contagious diseases.

A Chestnut.

The post office officials are worried to death almost by the innumerable inquiries of "how late is the train?" and "is the mail in yet?" This morning the following notice was posted up conspicuously in the office pro bono publico:—

"We are getting private telephone and telegraph wires in connection with all the leading railways of America, and when they are completed (next fall), we will be in a position to give any information as to whether trains are on time, or if not, whether blocked by snow or off the track, stopped by cycle cars, Indians or floods. Please wait till wires are complete."

Some Yankee Weather.

We think we have respectably severe winter weather in "little frozen Canada," as our Yankee cousins are fond of dubbing this great nation, but a former Peterboroughonian sends a copy of the Aitkin Age, a Minnesota paper, which states that on Friday Jan. 7th, the thermometer at Aitkin dropped to 60° below zero, and frost-bitten fingers, toes and noses are rather a drug in the Minnesota market. This weather is much colder than that of our Canadian North-West. A meridial Providence has so deflected the isothermal lines that the greater part of our North-west country, though lying several degrees north of the 49th parallel, enjoys much warmer winter weather than the Northern states of the American Union. The American eagle spends on the subject preventation, but it does not show much inclination to flap over the superior arctic qualities of Yankee winter weather.

Horticultural Affairs.

First Annual Meeting of the Peterborough and Ashburnham Horticultural Society.

The first annual meeting of the Peterborough and Ashburnham Horticultural Society was held in the town Council Chamber last evening at 8 o'clock.

There were present: Mr. J. H. Roper, President, in the chair; Rev. V. Clementi, J. Burnham, M.P., Jas. Stevenson, F. J. Lewis, Secretary, Dr. Burnham, Rev. W. C. Bradshaw, T. A. Hay and G. M. Roger.

The minutes of the last (inaugural) meeting were read by the Secretary, after which he read the following report:

FIRST ANNUAL REPORT of the Directors of the Horticultural Society of the town of Peterborough:

GENTLEMEN,—Early last year it was thought desirable by the directors of the Peterborough Horticultural Society to invite (under the provision set out in the Agricultural and Arts Act) the village of Ashburnham to unite with it, and so form a stronger society, hoping thereby to increase general interest in the operations of the same. Accordingly a public meeting was called by the Mayor of Peterborough and the Reeve of Ashburnham, to be held in the town Council Chamber in Peterborough, on the 19th day of April, 1886. Said meeting was held and was well attended by residents of both places; the Mayor occupied the chair. After organization it was agreed to form a society, to be called the Horticultural Society of the town of Peterborough and the village of Ashburnham. The following officers were elected:—

PRESIDENT.—J. H. Roper.

FIRST VICE-PRESIDENT.—James Stevenson.

SECOND VICE-PRESIDENT.—John Burnham, M.P.

TREASURER.—F. J. Lewis.

SECRETARY.—J. D. Collins.

DIRECTORS.—Rev. V. Clementi, Rev. W. C. Bradshaw, Messrs. John McClelland, D. W. Dumble, J. R. Stratton, Geo. A. Cox, W. VanEvery, Dr. Geo. Burnham, and Col. H. C. Rogers.

One practical result of the foregoing was a largely increased number of members, (being in all 99, whose names appear in the schedule hereunto annexed). Under the continued supervision of our worthy Mayor the work of improvement on the grounds of the Court House Park has been carried on with pleasing results. Too much praise cannot be given to Mr. Stevenson for his unwearied and continuous interest manifested in many ways in the improving of the grounds and in promoting, in general, the interests of the Society, all of which is highly appreciated.

The committee appointed to wait upon the Town Council did so, and succeeded in obtaining a grant of $300, which, however, was inadequate, even with the county and government grants, to enable the Society to prosecute work which should be done, and it is hoped that the present Council, when waited upon, will feel disposed to respond even more liberally than their predecessors.

During the year the county council, pleased with the improvements made, ordered and completed a flight of wooden steps from the stone steps above the fountain to the entrance gate in front of the Court House, which has added much to the appearance and convenience of that part of the park. During the summer months the Fire Brigade band performed choice selections on Friday evenings, which, judging from the crowds who attended, were highly appreciated.

The Water Company have kindly contributed a gratuitous supply of water for the fountain and grounds, which has been duly appreciated.

The Electric Light Company has also liberally placed the necessary apparatus in the park and gratuitously lighted the grounds when requisite, thereby adding much to the pleasure and comfort of the public generally.

Considerably injury was done to the grounds last season by horses and cows tramping over the grass and flower beds, although in three instances the owners were discovered and fined. It is to be regretted that animals should be allowed, in defiance of the by-law, to wander about and damage property. In addition to the foregoing we have to regret that some of our citizens (old and young) do not take the interest it was hoped would be manifested in assisting the Society in preserving the grounds from injury; as for instance, we may mention walking over flower beds and up and down the terraces, and in wet weather walking on the soft sod on either side of the walks, thereby destroying it.

The annual exhibition was held in the Water-st. Roller Skating Rink on the 7th Sept., which we regret to say was far short of what we reasonably expected it would have been from the increased membership and extension of the Society. A pleasing addition was the rendering of a well selected vocal and instrumental programme under the kind and gratuitous direction of Mr. Parker.

By reference to the Treasurer's statement it will be seen that the balance in his hands is $102.07 after paying, amongst other claims, prize money to the amount of $141.75. There were 312 entries, being 45 less than the previous year.

While by this statement a balance is shown to be in our Treasurer's hands, your Directors must not omit to state that the Society is indebted to Mr. Stevenson to the extent of $350 for work done and paid for by him.

In conclusion the Directors again hope that their hands may be better than ever sustained during the coming season by the public generally, thereby encouraging them to continue their efforts towards further improvements for the good of their fellow citizens who, without doubt, derive great benefit and pleasure therefrom.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

J. D. COLLINS, Secretary. J. H. ROPER, President.

PETERBOROUGH, Jan. 13th, 1887.

On motion of Mr. Burnham, seconded by Rev. W. C. Bradshaw, Messrs. G. M. Roger and T. A. Hay were appointed auditors of the treasurer's statement.

The auditors retired for a few minutes to examine the accounts, during which the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:—

PRESIDENT—J. H. Roper.

1ST VICE-PRESIDENT—John Burnham, M.P.

2ND VICE-PRESIDENT—Jas. Stevenson.

TREASURER—F. J. Lewis.

SECRETARY—J. D. Collins

DIRECTORS—Dr. Burnham, John McClelland, D. W. Dumble, Rev. V. Clementi, J. R. Stratton, M.P.P., Dr. Halliday, Rev. W. C. Bradshaw, A. McNeil, Col. H. C. Rogers.

The auditors reported having examined the accounts and found everything correct. The reported as audited was then received and adopted, as follows:—

DEAR SIR,—Herewith I beg to hand you statement of the above Society for your audited balance on hand of $102.07 as per accompanying bank pass book and vouchers.

Yours faithfully,
F. J. LEWIS, Treas.

Moved by Mr. Burnham, M.P., seconded by Mr. T. A. Hay, that in the opinion of this meeting the adoption of the Public Parks Act in the town is desirable, and that the directors be requested to take the necessary steps to procure the adoption of said Act.—Carried.

Mr. T. A. Hay moved, seconded by Mr. F. J. Lewis, that the directors of the Society take into consideration the formation of a juvenile branch of the Society at a reduced membership fee, with a view to cultivating a taste for horticulture among young people. —Carried.

The meeting then adjourned.

Frozen.

The Charlotte street skating rink was flooded last night and in consequence the ice is in prime condition to-day. The band will be at the rink to-night.

Waylaid by Robbers.

A Scarboro' cattle dealer, named Purdy, on Wednesday sold a drove of cattle in Peterborough and went to Toronto to bank the proceeds of the sale. That night he was waylaid and knocked down by a couple of Toronto toughs and robbed of $10. Purdy had banked the money during the day, so they did not get what they expected.

East Durham Reformers.

A Reform convention will meet in Millbrook shortly to select a candidate to contest the constituency in the Liberal interest at the coming Dominion election. Dr. Orges and A. Wood, of Millbrook; Mr. Elliott, of Hope; Mr. Preston and Mr. S. S. Smith, of Port Hope, are mentioned in connection with the candidature.

Curling Notes.

Mr. W. G. Ferguson left town this morning for Toronto to play in the bonspiel between rinks representing Sterling (Scotland) (Scotland) and Lancashire (England.)

A couple of rinks of the Peterborough club were to have gone to Keene to-day to play a return match with the club of that village, but were detained on account of the heavy snowstorm. It is not definitely known when the match will be played.

A match was played at the Granite Rink, Toronto, yesterday, between Peterborough and Thamesville curlers, resulting in a victory for the latter by a score of 15 to 5. Peterborough rink was composed of Messrs. W. Salisbury, H. M. Allen, T. P. Attrill, skip, and another. The Peterborough curlers have returned home.

A curling contest was begun at the Charlotte street rink this afternoon between rinks of Peterborough and Lakefield curlers. Following are the names:

Lakefield.	Peterborough.
T. J. Bird,	D Belleg em,
J. Curtis,	J. B P stland.
Geo Cochrane,	R. S. Davidson,
R. C. Strickland, s'p.	A. Mo ell, skip.

The Storm of the Season.

The storm which began last night about nine o'clock and continued with furious persistence till noon to-day, may be recorded as the most violent of the season. The snow fell fast, and, driven by a violent gale, formed immense drifts. The country roads which were previously, in many places, badly drifted, are now, at many points, impassable. The railways were more or less seriously affected. There was, up to noon, no passenger communication between town and Toronto. The morning train from town went as far as Lindsay and returned on the line of the Toronto express, which did not get farther than Little York. The track is blocked since last night between York and Scarborough by a snow-bound freight train. All freight trains are cancelled to-day. On the Grand Junction branch the morning expresses got through behind time. Conductor Stanton's train was preceded from Belleville by a snow plough. At Hastings it was only twenty minutes late, and crossed Conductor Morris' train at Keene. The snow plough only came as far as Ashburnham and proceeded to Lakefield, leaving Conductor Stantons' train to "go it alone" for the rest of the distance. Hoc labor, hoc opus erat. The train of course had to back into town, and the drifts on the crossings were such obstructions that it took the train an hour to get from Hilliard's to the station, an hour and a half late. All freight trains on the C. P. R. are cancelled to-day. The early express got through all right, but the mid-day train east was an hour and a half behind time. It is expected that the 6:42 train will arrive on time this evening. Had not both roads had warning of the approaching storm and made preparations for it, the detention of trains would have been much greater.

Personal.

Mr. John Garvey, of London, has been in town for two or three days.

Mr. E. E. W. McGaffey, for some time manager for Dundas & Flavelle Bros., Lindsay, has come to Peterborough where he takes a responsible position in the house of Fairweather & Co. The Warder says that at a meeting of the Lindsay Y. M. C. A. held on Tuesday evening it was unanimously resolved to place on record the association's high appreciation of the valuable services of Mr. McGaffey. In the furnishing the rooms especially and in the works of the association generally Mr. McGaffey was a leading light and his departure was felt to be a serious loss.

Reply to "Citizen."

To the Editor of The Daily Examiner:

DEAR SIR,—I observed in yesterday's addition of your paper a communication from one who signs himself "Citizen," wherein it is stated that the snow plough has not been run up either side of Hunter street for some time.

I wish to give the above statement an emphatic and public denial. I have been regularly in the habit of running the snow plough up and down Hunter street whenever necessary and as early as possible. I am prepared to prove this by several reliable citizens who live on Hunter street, and who declare themselves perfectly satisfied with the way in which I discharge my duties.

Hoping you will give the above space in your columns, I am

Yours truly,
T. SMITH.

Letters Respecting the Lock Works.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

DEAR SIR,—I notice a letter in your paper of the 13th instant, from a correspondent, enquiring into the correctness of a statement alleged to be made by James Stevenson, Esq., "that he had erected a building for the Peterborough Lock Works, and was giving that company the use of it for a long term of years for nothing, with a sole object in view of encouraging manufacturing industries in Peterborough." I also notice your remarks below the above-mentioned letter, and would say that the director referred to must be very ignorant of the company's business transactions, or a great pervertor of the truth.

I wish to inform you and the public that the one thousand dollars rental referred to as paid to me for the use of the second story of the main building, of the foundry, of the cooke shed and yard room of the premises I leased from Mr. Stevenson in 1881 for a period of ten years, together with power for running machinery, and steam for heating the premises leased from me, and the new building occupied by them.

In regard to the value of the power supplied being only worth about $150 to $200 per annum, I would say that the power used by the company is from 12 to 15 horse power, besides, with the supply of steam required to heat two rooms 90 x 30 and one 70 x 35 seven months in the year, also steam for plating and lacquer room and use of fan for iron foundry, with power to run same.

The above figures will not buy fuel to heat the rooms.

The rental of one thousand dollars is an agreement with me, for which I consider I give full value and has nothing to do with the new building or Mr. Stevenson's interest therein.

Yours truly,
WM. H. LAW.

Central Iron Bridge Works. Jan. 14th, 1887.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

DEAR SIR,—With reference to a statement made by a correspondent signing himself a "Voter," in your issue of the 13th inst., that Mr Stevenson had stated "that he had erected a building for The Peterborough Lock Works and was giving the Company the use of it for a long term of years for nothing I beg to say that it is substantially correct.

Regarding the lease from Mr. Law, I have read his letters addressed to you this day, and, so far as the company is concerned, it correctly sets forth the terms of our agreement, and that agreement was entered into by the directors at a meeting held in the company's office on the 11th of October, 1886.

Yours truly,
THOMAS BROOKS.

WHY
Will people pay rent when houses and lots can be purchased on such easy terms as are offered by the undersigned, come and inspect our work and see for yourselves how we construct our houses. Our chief aim and study is to build substantial, warm, frost and damp proof houses. I am offering good building lots, and will build solid brick houses, nine-inch walls, stripped and lathed, two stories, for less money than you can buy frame or veneered buildings. We cordially invite those who intend erecting or buying to inspect our work and prove for themselves that our houses are not merely built to sell. Every house I've sold given satisfaction, and I am determined that every house I build shall be a standing testimony to honest building. JOHN CAMLLELL, Hospital Street, 2nd block west of St. Andrew's Church. wd

WORKING CLASSES' ATTENTION

SEALS TRANSFERRED.

SALISBURY'S NEW CABINET TAKES THE OATH OF OFFICE.

LONDON, Jan. 14.—The conference of Gladstonites and Liberal Unionists, began at Sir William Vernon Harcourt's residence yesterday, has been adjourned until Parliament meets. This was done because some of his confreres have engagements to address political meetings in different parts of the country, and cannot spare time to continue the discussion of the differences in party.

The Seals of Office Transferred.

LONDON, Jan. 14.—At the Ministerial Council held at the Queen's residence at Osborne to-day, the seals of office were transferred to the new members of the Cabinet and to those who had changed office, and the Ministers kissed the Queen's hand as she formally notified them of their appointments.

Chamberlain Unaltered.

LONDON, Jan. 14.—Notwithstanding rumors to the contrary, there is reason to believe that Chamberlain has not wavered in his conviction that the land problem is the root of the Irish controversy.

Churchill Explains Again.

LONDON, Jan. 14.—Lord Randolph Churchill, in a letter explaining his resignation from the Cabinet, says his object was to secure economy combined with efficiency, and that he will gladly co-operate with any one in an endeavor to induce or compel the House of Commons to revert to the better financial principles which prevailed before 1874. He continues: "If economy is unpopular in Downing-street we must make it popular. Calamities incalculable will rise if the present system of lavish, uncontrolled expenditure be allowed to continue."

Mr. Gladstone thinks this letter does honor to Lord Randolph, and he offers the latter a chance to again raise the flag of economy.

A QUEER STORY FROM PARIS.

Statement Concerning an Alleged Child of the Late Prince Imperial.

LONDON, Jan. 13.—The Paris Figaro publishes a long article concerning an alleged liaison of the late Prince Imperial of France with a young English woman. The story professes to be the correct and substantial version of facts, which have only hitherto been circulated as rumors. According to the latter the Prince was represented as having a secret marriage, the exact facts of which his family have been unable to clear up since his death. The Figaro asserts that he was never married, but that he left an illegitimate son as the result of his intimacy with the English girl in question. The truth of the whole matter, according to the Figaro, is that while the Prince was living in England he one day met a handsome young girl in a railroad train, and made her acquaintance in the way that such acquaintances are sometimes made, without, however, revealing his identity. The acquaintance immediately ripened into a warm attachment, and the two were together a great deal in London. At the time the Prince often visited London and had rooms at Dumont's, a French hairdresser. Dumont was reported to be deeply attached to him, and the room used by the Prince remains to this day just as he left it. He had great freedom there, entertained his friends as he pleased, and the inference is that he met his young English mistress there. One day when he and she were walking along the streets she spoke of the remarkable similarity between his face and that shown in the photographs of the Prince Imperial which were displayed everywhere in the shop windows. He blushed and said he had been told that before. When he was just ready to depart for Zululand, where he subsequently lost his life, he came near revealing his identity in the midst of the emotion by which he was overwhelmed, but he restrained himself and only said he was going on a long journey. When the news of the Prince's death reached England his picture was exhibited more than ever, and the young girl he had left to mourn his inexplicable absence took one of these pictures to Dumont and asked him if it was not a picture of her absent lover. He had to confess it was. In the meantime a son had been born, and this the mother carried in her arms to Camden House, Chislehurst, where the ex-Empress Eugenie lived. But she was thrust out, no heed being given to her story, and in her humiliation and distress she embarked for Australia, where she and her offspring now live.

Dumont denies that a woman came to him with a photograph after the Prince's death, or that he ever met a young woman at his establishment.

Hamilton's Message to the Queen.

HAMILTON, Jan. 14.—Last evening Mayor McKay cabled to Her Majesty as follows:

"To the Queen's Most Excellent Majesty:

The citizens of the City of Hamilton, Canada, present their congratulations to Your Majesty on attaining the fiftieth year of your reign.

(Signed) ALEX. McKAY, Mayor."

This morning he received this cablegram in reply:

"Her Majesty thanks you and your fellow-citizens for your kind and loyal congratulations.

(Signed.) POWERFUL."

A Bad Week for Failures.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—The business failures occurring throughout the country during the last seven days, reported to Dun, Wiman & Co. to-day by telegraph, number for the United States 294, and for Canada 28, or a total of 322. This is the largest number of failures reported in any week since January, 1886, but not larger than is expected at this season. In the corresponding week of last year, ending January 13, 1887, there were 352 failures.

The Jubilee Trade Boom.

LONDON, Jan. 14.—The return for the jubilee year sets forth that all nations will be called around the United Kingdom. The yachts will start from the Thames and will be required to keep Great Britain and Ireland on the port hand. The Duke of Edinburgh, the Duke of Connaught, the Duke of Cambridge, the Duke of Teck

ANOTHER LEASE OF THE DEPARTURE.

The Mail's declaration of independence is something the public cannot generally understand, which is, perhaps, not to be wondered at, for it is probable that nobody, except the principal parties to the conspiracy, know exactly what the game is. One thing, however, may be depended upon: the object is to promote the success of the Conservative candidates at the coming general elections. It is urged by many that the means adopted do not promise to secure the end aimed at. However, Sir John and his chief confidants seem to be satisfied with their being able to bring about the desired results, and if they are satisfied, the general public has no cause for complaint. The game is a deep one, and one of the ways in which the Mail's bogus clamour of independence is to be utilised, is apparently the using it as a means of Sir John getting the credit of suggesting reforms for which Mr. Blake and his party have long contended. For instance, Sir John foreshadowed through his organ, the Mail, months ago, his intention of repealing the Dominion Franchise Act, for the purpose of diminishing the Opposition, if not securing the support of the Liberals. In the Mail's most recent "independent" "break," it promises for Sir John the reconstruction or abolition of the Senate, the reform of the civil service, and the development of the North-west. No one suspects Sir John of being sincere in these indirect promises, but little does he care what may be thought of his sincerity—he is far above such paltry considerations—so long as he can detach many unthinking Liberals from their party, long enough to secure their votes. After his promises, made through his organ the Mail, have had their effect, the question of keeping them will trouble Sir John very little. At present he is fishing for votes, quite indifferent as to the quality of bait he uses, so long as the gudgeons rise to the hook. That Liberal must be very obtuse if he allows himself to be deceived by the Mail's pretended independent position. Its pretended advocacy of prohibition is just as sincere as the declarations of its latest platform. All are designed to benefit Sir John at the coming elections. The mode may seem an unhopeful one, but desperate diseases require desperate remedies.

Up to the present we hear nothing of Sir John having repudiated the Mail. No doubt the Premier is preparing an extra strong dose of repudiation this time, and when it does come it will probably be pitted with loopholes to allow the distinguished wriggler to escape his repudiation when political exigencies require his doing so.

It is generally conceded that the date of the Dominion election has been decided upon by the Ministers of the Cabinet; but this date is subject to the approval of Sir Charles Tupper who is returning to Canada to take an active part in politics. He is expected to arrive at Halifax on Sunday, and after two or three days' stay at Halifax and in Cumberland county, he will join Sir John and then a final decision will be arrived at. It will be impossible for the Government to postpone the elections later than February without assembling Parliament.

The Sun Life, Versus Wriggling Insurance Companies.

(Canadian Trade Review).

That a deliberate attempt was made by certain insurance companies doing business in this city, to form a combination for the purpose of taking advantage of a technicality in order to avail themselves of a pretext for not paying the amounts due, under the policies held by them on the life of the late Mr. John S. McLachlan, of this city, there can be no more doubt, than there is of the fact that the body of Mr. McLachlan is at the bottom of the St. Lawrence river. This embryo combination, conceived for the purpose of repudiating the McLachlan claims, on the ground of flimsy technicalities, met with an abrupt and swift miscarriage, through the instrumentality of the Sun Life Assurance Company, of this city, which refused to avail itself of the miserable pretext which any one horse company could bring forward, in such cases as the drowning of Mr. McLachlan, were it so disposed to try and wriggle out of meeting its responsibilities. Not only did the Sun Life refuse to enter into the combination, but with commendable promptitude its managing director, Mr. E. Macaulay, paid to Mr. Wm. McLachlan, on Tuesday last, the sum of $17,130.70, covering in full the amount of his brother's policies. This action has the proper ring, and we ask for no better proof of a first-class insurance company than that furnished by the Sun Life, in the case of the drowning of Mr. John S. McLachlan. This company has shown itself above taking advantage of technicalities, or the inability of heirs to comply with each and every detailed requirement, called for in a life insurance policy, in order to repudiate an honest claim. We learn that one of the wriggling companies is endeavoring to sneak out of the payment of its McLachlan policy, by even a meaner pretext than calling for the "production of the body." Personally, we do not know Mr. Macaulay from Adam, nor anyone connected with his company, but from his actions, we know sufficient of him, to recommend the Sun Life Assurance Company to our readers, as the right kind of an insurance company in which to take life risks.

THE DEBATING SOCIETY.

At the meeting of the Debating Society on Friday evening, Mr. T. N. Lee presided in the absence of the President and Vice-President. The following were elected officers of the society for the ensuing month: President, Mr. F. J. Young; Vice-President, Mr. J. Godfrey; Secretary-Treasurer, Mr. Thos. N. Lee. The subject of debate for next evening is, "Which has the pen or sword, done the most for civilization."

EDUCATIONAL.

Several of the young men in the village are desirous of having a night school established during the winter months. The project is a laudable one and the young men should take advantage of the opportunity to improve themselves.

SCHOOL HOUSES NEED REPAIRS.

The trustees should have the school houses repaired at once, as it is unfit for children to study in. The people of the section wish to have it repaired at once, before some of the children are frost bitten.

The Posts McColl and Massie.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

DEAR SIR,—In a special number of the Kingston Whig there was printed a few weeks ago, in connection with a sketch of the poet MacColl, a production of my own, entitled "Where is Evan?" The publication of this piece was without my sanction or authority. Of this, however, I would not complain had not some one, with more assurance than good taste, altered several lines, rendering them severely literal and somewhat ridiculous; one line especially is made to limp like some wounded creature, the accent being thrown upon the wrong syllables.

But the evil did not end here, the lines being copied by several papers, your own among the number; and for this reason I send you a correct copy trusting you will give it a place in your valuable paper and oblige Yours truly,

J. MASSIE.

Keene, Jan. 11th 1887.

WHERE IS EVAN?

[Epistle to the Bard of Loch Fyne, Evan MacColl, Kingston, written in consequence of getting no word from him for six weeks after writing to him. By Dr. Massie, Keene, Ont.]

Say, Kingston, tell us where is Evan?
Thy bard o' pure poetic leaven!
And is he sti'l amang the livin'?
Or plumed supernal,
As ta'en a jink and aff to heaven,
Thereoning eternal!

Or, if within your bounds you find him,
A' bruised and broken skiffu' bind him;
Or stark, or'clair, O I cawdn' mind him,
Thy darling chiel!
And dinna let him look behind him
Until he's weel.

But if he's gane, ah, woes to me!
His like we never mair shall see,—
Nae servile, whinging cool was he,
Led by a string,
But noble, gen'rous, fearless, free,
His song he'd sing.

Hech, sirs! we ill could bide to lose him,
For should the warld vindictive toss him
Or ony hussie dare to boss him,
Clean gyte he'd set her:
The deil himsel' he dar'dna cross him,—
Faith, he fear'd better!

Let ony man, o' ony station
But wink at fraud, or wrang the nation,
E'en gowd, nor place, 'tower nae temptation
To stic a chiel,—
He'd shortly settle their creation,
And drub them weel.

Or let them say't, be't high or low,
Auld Scotia ever met the foe,
That laid her in the du ft' low,
'Tis then you'd see him!
Professor George still ru s the blow
MacColl did gie him.*

Is history in Fiction's grip,
Does Falsehood let her bloodhounds slip?
See Evan's castigating whip,
And patriot scorn!
Macaulay, laid up n his hip,
Admits the corn.†

Does English critic meanly itch,
To cast old Ossian in the ditch,
And trail his laurels through the pitch
Of mind benighted:
Our bardie gies his lugs a twitch
And sees it righted.‡

In a' this warld, there's no a skellam,
Nor silly self conceited bellum,
But Evan, lad, wad bravely tell 'em,
The honest truth;
E'en, if he kend that they should fell 'im,
Without ruth.

Ye feathered things in mourafu' tune,
Come join my weesome, doleful croon;
Ye dogs that bay the silv'r moon,
Your sorrow show it;
And a' ye tearfu' sts na swoon,
Bewail our poet.

What though this grasping world, and hard,
May barely grant him just reward,
Still shall his genius, blissful starred,
Enrgent shine,
And endless ages praise the bard
Of fair Loch Fyne.

*Referring to a lecture by Professor George of Queen's University, in which he spoke of the conquest of Scotland by Cromwell; MacColl replied by a satirical poem in which he lashes George

†See MacColl vs. Macaulay in MacColl's works."

‡Referring to a speech by an Englishman, delivered at a St. Andrew's dinner in Kingston, in which the orator spoke of the Celtic Homer as the "Fabled Ossian" and which was resented by MacColl in a biting satire.

Loss of the Celtic Monarch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—The Monarch Line steamer Celtic Monarch, from Cardiff for Philadelphia, was abandoned at sea on Jan. 2. Her passengers and crew were saved.

Celtic Monarch was a screw steamship of 2014 tons register and belonged to the Monarch Line of London. She was built at Newcastle in 1879 and left Cardiff Jan. 2 for Philadelphia. The despatch announcing her loss came from London. The date of her foundering (Jan. 2) is probably an error.

Montreal's Mayoralty.

MONTREAL, Jan. 12.—At a meeting of the Mayoralty Committee, held to-night, F. W. Henshaw, the chairman, tendered his resignation. It was decided to lay the names of Gen. Ohilds, J. Hodgson and W. H. Kerr, along with Hon. J. J. C. Abbott's, the present nominee, before another meeting of citizens to be held on Saturday night.

A Suit for Damages Dismissed.

MONTREAL, Jan. 12.—Judge Cimon to-day dismissed an action for $6000 damages taken by George Mulligan of Toronto against J. M. Fortier of this city for false arrest on a capias. His Honor held that there had been good grounds for Mulligan's arrest.

The Coal Handlers' Strike.

MOUNT CARMEL, Pa., Jan. 11.—The strike of the coal handlers at the shipping points resulted to-day in the suspension of operations at Bellmore Mines, Logan, Centralia, and all other collieries in the district dependent solely upon the Lehigh Valley Railway for cars. Two thousand men are thrown out of employment.

The Inter-Oceanic Canal Project.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Jan. 11.—The Senate in secret session has passed a resolution advising the President to enter into negotiations with Nicaragua for concessions for an inter-oceanic canal. The resolution was vigorously opposed by a minority of the Senate.

CAMPBELL'S
TONIC ELIXIR

This agreeable yet potent preparation is especially adapted for the relief and cure of that class of disorders attendant upon a low or reduced state of the system, and usually accompanied by Pallor, Weakness and Palpitation of the Heart. Prompt results will follow its use in cases of Sudden Exhaustion arising from Loss of Blood, Acute or Chronic Diseases, and in the weakness that invariably accompanies the recovery from Wasting Fevers. No remedy will give more speedy relief in Dyspepsia or Indigestion, its action on the stomach being that of a gentle and harmless tonic, exciting the organs of digestion to action, and thus affording immediate and permanent relief The carminative properties of the different aromatics which the Elixir contains render it useful in Flatulent Dyspepsia. It is a valuable remedy for Atonic Dyspepsia, which is apt to occur in persons of a gouty character.

For Impoverished Blood, Loss of Appetite, Despondency, and in all cases where an alterative and certain stimulant is required, the Elixir will be found invaluable.

In Fevers of a Malarial Type, and the various evil results following exposure to the cold or wet weather, it will prove a valuable restorative, as the combination of Cinchona Calisaya and Serpentaria are universally recognized as specifics for the above-named disorders.

THE OLD CHURCH YARD.

SERMON BY LAYMAN.

(Written for The Examiner.)

There is nothing which can create such feelings of sorrow as the sight of the old church yard. Nothing which can more strongly remind us of our own mortality and of the shortness of our own lives. Nothing which can produce greater sadness than to walk among the graves of old generations of people, long since passed away, and whose bodies crumble but dust, which one breath of air would forever remove. I have, in my youth, often passed by the burial places of those who first settled in this country, then eighty to ninety or a hundred years ago. They occupied some hillside or some lowly valley. Little remained to tell where their resting place really was, save their remembrance by the descendants of these old people, whose days were also drawing to a close, and who would shortly be laid at rest by their side. The sight of any church yard is a solemn sight and should teach us all a useful lesson. There lie our fathers and mothers, our brothers and sisters and oftentimes our own children as well. It is a constant reminder that the time is drawing near, and perhaps much nearer than we imagine, when life will be past and we too will be laid at rest. But the modern church yard is quite different from the place of burial of the early settlers, who were often buried in some great lonesome place, where they have remained and will continue to remain until the resurrection, when they will stand before the Judgement Seat and receive their reward. How little the present generation knows of the toils and hardships and dangers which beset the path of those who settled in this country a hundred years ago. The land was then covered with one vast unbroken wilderness, filled with wild Indians, who had no friendship for the white man, and who looked upon their presence as boding them no good. Although not generally hostile, these untamed savages were considered dangerous and had to be conciliated. And woe to the white man who offended them, for the hatchet flew through the air with unerring aim. And no one dared to complain. And so it was that our forefathers had to pass their early settlement here. And when anyone died he was laid quietly away in some secluded spot, which now, in many cases, would be hard to find. I remember hearing, when I was a boy, a person say that when he landed in Port Hope, upwards of a hundred years ago, he found scarcely one white man there, but he said the whole country was swarming with Indians. He said the white people had to be very careful what they said and did, lest the Indians should kill them. He told how one of the few settlers incurred the anger of some Indians one day, and how he ran for his life to his log house, and how, just as he was rushing through the door, a tomahawk, thrown by one of the Indians, just grazed his head and lodged in the log beside him. He told how another white man was shot and killed in a wood close by, and how they buried him privately and dared say nothing about it. He said the white settlers had to leave their doors unfastened, and how, during the night, Indians would come in and help themselves to what they could find, which was not much, and how they had to keep quiet and dare not complain. He told how the people had to carry what little wheat they could raise in open boats all the way to Kingston to get ground into flour, and how when they returned they used to meet their children miles down the lake shore waiting for them to return. What person of the present day could go through such trials and difficulties as these? Our present position of comfort and prosperity is due, in a large measure, to the exertions and sacrifices of our hardy forefathers, who made the beginning in all the improvements which have since taken place, and to whom nothing was too difficult or too formidable for them to undertake. They may be said to have taken their lives in thousands when they first settled in this country, and we have evidences enough to show what privations they must have endured, and evidences enough to prove the great benefits which they have conferred upon the land of their adoption. But the Indians were not their only enemies. The wild beasts were very numerous and very bold, and they inflicted great damage among the scattered settlers. Cattle and sheep were frequently destroyed, and men's lives were sometimes taken as well. A case is mentioned of a powerful man, on his way home one night through the woods, being attacked by a band of wolves and killed after a desperate struggle with his axe, and how the next day his bones were found at the foot of a large tree, around which he went, swinging his axe and killing several of the wolves. Another case is related of a man who went to the barn close by, and while standing in the open door was suddenly sprung upon by a wild cat, which, apparently feeling sure of its prey, jumped backwards and forwards, amusing itself as a cat plays with a mouse. But the man, watching his opportunity, suddenly ran for the house near by, and just managed to get in as the wild beast was at the door. These are isolated instances, but they serve to show the danger to which these early settlers were exposed. And now they are all gone to another and, it is to be hoped, a better home. Their once active bodies were long since placed in the lonely burying ground, and it would be difficult, at this late day, to tell where many of them were laid. When I was a boy I often passed the place where some of these old pioneers were buried. It was upon the top of a high hill by the roadside, which fell abruptly to the south, and there they lay, with nothing to mark the spot save some old pickets which were barely standing, as if to keep watch over the remains below. These hardy people, men and women, gave their lives to the making of homes in the wilderness, and some of their descendants to-day are enjoying the fruits of their labours, little thinking, and perhaps little caring for those who have gone before. But bye and bye, when their time draws nigh, the recollection of those old people will come up before them, and then they will appreciate their services and kindnesses more than they ever did before, and as their lives draw nearer and nearer to a close they may feel a desire to visit the old graveyards where they were laid at rest, some of them upwards of a hundred years ago, and when they look upon their remains they will think of the long time ago, and they will derive some consolation from memories and hope to see once more the spirits of the long departed ones in that world to which they are now hastening. It is a sad sight to look upon an old grave yard. The mind goes far, far back, to a time when pride and selfishness were unknown, and when the people, living at long distances from each other, felt and truly and were only too glad to meet each other and others company. It was a great relief to their solitude and to enable [illegible]

Free Trade.

The reduction of internal revenue and the taking off of revenue stamps from Proprietary Medicines, no doubt has largely benefitted the consumers, as well as relieving the burden of home manufacturers. Especially is this the case with Green's August Flower and Boschee's German Syrup, as the reduction of thirty-six cents per dozen has been added to increase the size of the bottles containing these remedies, thereby giving one-fifth more medicine in the 75 cent size. The August Flower for Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint, and the German Syrup for Cough and Lung troubles have, perhaps, the largest sale of any medicines in the world. The advantage of increased size of the bottles will be greatly appreciated by the sick and afflicted, in every town and village in civilized countries. Sample bottles for 10c. remain at the same size. eodw41

Catarrh of Years' Standing Cured.

N. WASHINGTON, M. D., Throat and Lung Surgeon, Toronto.

DEAR SIR,—I am pleased to be able to state to you that I am now free from Catarrh. It is almost incredible that in so short a time I could have been cured of Catarrh, which has affected my health for years. A little over two months ago I took treatment from you, and to-day the Catarrh is entirely cured. Your treatment is simply a marvel. I will heartily recommend any of my friends personally, and would suggest to all thus troubled the advisability, of consulting you immediately. Accept my many thanks.

Yours, etc., J. F. DUNN, C. P. R. Agent, Peterborough, Ont.

EGAN'S IMPERIAL TRUSS.

This Cut Shows our Style only.

Read the following extract from a letter of a well-known citizen of St. Catharines,—hundreds like it:

ST. CATHARINES, Sept. 30th, 1880.

GENTLEMEN,—Being over 70 years of age, and over 30 years ruptured, I looked upon my case as hopeless, especially as I tried various appliances without success, among others, recently, two expensive trusses manufactured in New York State, costing me $16. Nothing would retain my Hernia. I have worn your truss over four months, night and day, with great satisfaction and comfort; even to bathe in it the rupture has never come down, it holds me perfectly secure under all circumstances. You may publish it for the benefit of other sufferers. Yours truly, CAPT. B. KING.

This new Spiral Spring Pad Truss has taken ten years to make it perfect; is guaranteed to hold the very worst case during the hardest work or severest strain. It will cure every child ever; and 80 out of every 100 of adults. Be warned—don't waste your money on useless appliances, but send stamp for our treatise; it contains full information, your neighbors' testimony, price list and questions for you to answer. When writing please mention this paper. Address

Curling Kernels.

The match between Lakefield and Peterborough rinks yesterday afternoon resulted in a victory for the home rink by a score of 24 points to 14.

The home curlers object, most properly, to the match played in Toronto on Thursday, being dubbed, as it was by the Toronto papers, Peterborough vs. Thamesville, as the rink supposed to represent Peterborough was not a representative one by any means, only two from this town, Messrs. Attrill and Allen, being in the contest. The other two gentlemen who completed the rink were outsiders. What with strange stones, poor ice and two outsiders, it is not to be expected that "Peterborough" would have won. Mr. W. Salisbury was in Toronto at the time but did not play. Peterborough curlers, who downed professional rinks such as the Hamilton Thistles and New York Caledonians, are more than a match for Thamesville.

A match was began at the rink this afternoon between juvenile curlers of Lakefield and Peterborough. At 2.20 the Peterborough lads were 4 points ahead. Following are the teams:—

The Lock Works Rental Question.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

DEAR SIR,—I notice in your last evening's edition the letters of Messrs. Law and Brooks respecting my letter re the Lock Works, a day or two before. How do you make their assertions co-inside with your remarks appended to my letter? I think I can see through their little game myself, but the public, who may be interested in the matter, may be glad of an explanation.

Yours truly,
A VOTER.

Peterborough, Jan. 15th.

[By reference to the letters of Mr. Law, alluded to above, it is to be seen that the latter stated that the thousand dollars rental "is paid to me (Mr. Law) for the use of the second story of the main building, of the foundry, coke shed and yard room of the premises I leased from Mr. Stevenson in 1881 for a period of ten years, together with power for running machinery and steam for heating the premises leased from me and the new building occupied by them." It will be noticed that the company deals in a most liberal manner with Mr. Law, who is practically renting the upper portion of the said building to the Lock Works Company. The Lock Works only use the second and third stories of the new building, the first floor being used by Mr. Stevenson—or Mr. Law, the names for practical business purposes being interchangeable, according to circumstances—and it would seem that the thousand dollars paid is an exceedingly liberal sum, especially by comparison. Take, for instance, the building occupied by Mr. Forsyth on Dickson's Race. It is 75 x 33 feet, three stories in height, and for the use of this space, and for the use of 40-horse-power, all that is paid is $500 per year. Mr. E. B. Wilson, of the Woollen Mills, for $300 a year, has the use of a building about 60 x 40, three stories high, and any amount of power required. If therefore the Peterborough Lock Works Company pay Mr. Law, $1,000 for the services mentioned they are paying too much. The heating item should not really be taken into account. The Lock Company put in the steam heating apparatus, and the heat is supplied by the exhaust steam, which, it is simply just to say, really costs nothing. The $1,000 rental is, it would seem, practically paid to Mr. Stevenson, though ostensibly to Mr. Law, and his letter and that of Mr. Brooks do not more than nominally contradict the explanations appended to the first letter of "Voter," for, in whatever way the payment is disguised, the $1,000 rental is, in fact, paid, and in view of that and in the face of the above comparisons it is difficult to understand how the Lock Company is indebted to Mr. Stevenson for free rental, as is currently reported about town. Does any business man think that $1,000 a year is not an extravagant sum to pay for all the space and power used by the Lock Works Company? While, not desiring to belittle the share Mr. Stevenson had in assisting to establish the Lock Works in Peterborough, we do not think that he is justified in claiming to give the company free rent when the company are paying at least full value for all the space, accomodation and advantages they are receiving, and when it is well known that even superior accomodation could be obtained for the same money, elsewhere.

It is due to the gentleman from whom we obtained the information used in our answer to the questions in "Voter's" first letter, to say that, when we put the question to him, if it was true that Mr. Stevenson was providing the Lock Works Company with premises free of rental, his reply was:

"No; the Company are paying $1,000 per year for rental, power and heating, and the power required for running such light machinery should not be worth over two hundred dollars per year."

Supposing, from what we had heard, that Mr. Stevenson was providing the premises, we naturally assumed that it was he who was getting the rent. The information that our correspondent wanted was this—is the Lock Company, through Mr. Stevenson's liberality, enjoying free rental? The public are now in a position to answer that question.]

The Scott Act in Peterborough.

In Peterborough, says the Globe of to-day, two alleged hotelkeepers, recently convicted and fined for selling liquor contrary to the Scott Act there in force, pleaded not guilty on the ground that they had leased the hotel premises to other persons and had retired from business. The sales of liquor were very clearly established in both cases, but as the liability is not so clear, the convictions are to be brought before the court at Osgoode Hall upon certiorari.

—Thos. Casey, Elm street, town, had his leg seriously but not dangerously bruised in Brodie's woollen mills Thursday. Dr. Kincaid attended.

—Port Hope pastors and Board of Education are squabbling over the matter of religious instruction in schools. The ministers say it is greatly needed.

—West's Liver Pills, the standard remedy for liver complaint, dyspepsia, indigestion and sick headache. 30 sugar-coated pills, 25c. All Druggists. dwd

—Mr. John Dickson left here on Monday morning, says the Minden Echo, for Peterborough to resume his studies. He carries with him the good wishes of a large circle of friends in this village.

—A Belleville Tory invested in a large stock of brooms election night; when the wires became loaded with Grit returns, the situation changed, and he sold back his brooms at a sacrifice.

BANKERS—Bank of Toronto and Canadian Bank of Commerce.
SOLICITOR—D. W. Dumble.
TO DEPOSITORS—Deposits are received by this Company both on current account and for periods of one year or longer. The rate of interest paid on amounts deposited on current account and which may be withdrawn by check in such sums as the depositor may from time to time require, is FOUR per cent., either paid or compounded half yearly, and the rate on yearly deposits is FIVE per cent.
TO INVESTORS—The five and ten year FIVE PER CENT DEBENTURES of this Company which are issued in denominations of $100, $200, $400 and $1000 each, free of executors' commission, with half-yearly interest Coupons attached, payable at the Head Office of the Company in Peterborough, or at any branch of the Bank of Toronto in Canada, offered a safe and convenient mode of investment.
The funds of the Company being invested in first mortgages on Real Estate, no better security can be offered to depositors or debenture holders, they having a first claim or mortgage on the whole Assets of the Company, the shareholders having the second. The general stringency proves that the amount so invested was over $600,000, and on the security of real estate at least double that value.
By the laws of Ontario, Trustees, Executors and Administrators may deposit Trust Funds of the estates which they manage in this Company, and are free from all further liability, a privilege of which many have largely availed themselves.
TO BORROWERS—Money is obtainable from this Company on approved Real Estate security at the Lowest Current Rates of Interest.
The Mortgages may be repaid by yearly instalments, or otherwise as may be agreed upon, the interest coming at once on all sums loaned from the amount of the rent borrowed.
Applications may be made either to the Head Office, or to any of the Agents.

WHY
Will people pay rent when houses and lots can be purchased on such easy terms as are offered by the undersigned. Come and inspect our work and see for yourselves how we construct our houses. Our chief aim and study is to build substantial, warm, frost and damp proof houses. I am offering good building lots, and will build solid brick houses, nine-inch walls, strapped and lathed, two stories, for less money than you can buy frame or veneered buildings. We cordially invite those who anticipate renting or buying to inspect our work and prove for themselves that our houses are not merely built to sell. Every house I've sold gives first-class satisfaction, and I am determined that every house I build shall be a standing testimony to honest building. JOHN CARLISLE, Donegal Street, 2nd block west of St. Andrew's Church. wd

WORKING CLASSES ATTENTION
We are now prepared to furnish all classes with employment at home, the whole time, or for spare moments. Business new, light and profitable. Persons of either sex easily earn from 50 cents to $5.00 per evening, and a proportional sum by devoting all their time to the business. Boys and girls earn nearly as much as men. That all who see this may send their address, and test the business, we make this offer. To such as are not well satisfied we will send one dollar to pay for the trouble of writing. Full particulars and outfit free. Add ess George Stinson & Co., Portland, Maine.

HOUSE DISSOLVED.

THE DOMINION ELECTIONS TO BE HELD ON FEBRUARY 22ND NEXT.

The Cabinet, After a Four Hours' Session on Saturday, Advises His Excellency the Governor-General to Dissolve the Fifth Parliament of Canada.

OTTAWA, Jan. 16.—His Excellency the Governor-General has dissolved the Fifth Parliament of Canada.

The writs will be issued at once for the forthcoming elections.

Nomination Day, February 15.

The nominations will be held throughout the Dominion on February 15 next.

Polling Day, February 22.

Polling day will be on February 22 next.

Decided at a Lengthy Cabinet Council.

The dissolution was decided upon at a Cabinet Council on Saturday. The session was a lengthy one, lasting from 2 p.m. till 6. Sir John remained at the meeting till 4.35, when he went to Ernescliffe. Everything was settled, however, before he withdrew.

Gossip of the Event.

The Ministers have their various duties in connection with the campaign assigned them, and they will leave for their respective provinces at once. Hon. John Carling left for London on Saturday night.

Sir Charles Tupper, whose arrival in the country is anxiously awaited by the Government, is spoken of as the new Minister of Finance.

If the new House is called together shortly after the elections it will get to work about the usual time, toward the end of February.

The Voters' Lists Completed.

The new voters' lists are all now completed, and the dissolution is for the purpose of giving representation to the 250,000 newly enfranchised voters created by the late Franchise Act. The Administration waited until the lists were all ready.

A Railway Dispute Settled.

The Government, by an order-in-council, have at last effected a settlement of a much-vexed railway question in Nova Scotia. They agreed to give the Western Counties Railway $500,000 to complete a gap in their line from Annapolis to Digby, in consideration of which the company are to build the piece of road mentioned, relinquish all rights to the Windsor Branch and withdraw a suit for $300,000 damages lately entered. The Government sell the company an annuity equal to 4 per cent. for twenty years on $3,200,000, but the whole fund is to be deposited with the Government to be paid out for the purpose specified.

AMERICAN SCHOONERS SEIZED.

Two Fishing Boats Held for Infraction of Customs.

OTTAWA, Jan. 15.—The Fisheries Department were yesterday advised of the seizure near St. Andrews, N.S., of two fishing schooners, the Jeanette and Maggie Mitchell, by the cruiser Gen. Middleton. The charge is infractions of customs and fisheries regulations. The vessels have been handed over to the Collector of Customs at St. Andrews. On inquiry at the Customs Department further facts were ascertained. It appears these vessels are among the number that have obtained Canadian certificates of registry, but are owned either wholly or in part by citizens of the United States residing as Eastport, Me. These owners seem to think because they have a Canadian registry they are entitled to all the privileges of Canadian fishermen, and also to obtain everything necessary for a fishing voyage, outfits, etc., and place the same on board their vessels and go in and out of Canadian ports without either reporting at the custom house or paying duty on such of their goods as may be dutiable. The extent to which these fraudulent transactions have prevailed in that vicinity renders decisive action by the customs department necessary; not only for the protection of the fisheries, but of Canadian revenue as well.

HAMILTON AFFAIRS.

A Case of Heartless Neglect—The Snow Blocked Streets—Fall of a Stable.

HAMILTON, Jan. 16.—At the Police Court yesterday George and Mary Watt, living at No. 70 Hughson-street north, were charged with neglecting a child left in their care. Sergeant Prentice said the child was found in a cold room lying on a bundle of rags, while Watt and his wife were sleeping comfortably in a warm bed. The child's feet were both frozen and presented a horrible appearance. The case was adjourned until Tuesday, the child to be taken to the hospital, where it can have proper medical attendance.

Over one hundred men are employed by the Board of Works levelling the streets and removing the snow from the gutters to prevent a flood in case of a thaw.

A stable on Mary-street belonging to the O'Reilly estate collapsed yesterday morning owing to weight of snow on the roof. There were a man and a horse in the building at the time, but they were got out without being injured.

At the meeting of the Bricklayers' Union held on Friday night, the retiring Treasurer, D. R. Gilkens, was presented with an easy chair and a complimentary address.

EXCITED GERMANS.

THE PREPARATIONS FOR THE ELECTIONS ACTIVELY PROCEEDING.

BERLIN, Jan. 15.—The dissolution of the Reichstag has taken no party unawares. Preparations for a new election have been actively proceeding ever since the decisions of the Military Commission showed that the defeat of the Government was inevitable. The number of seats likely to be severely contested is estimated at fifty. Of these thirty-six are held by Progressists and fourteen by the Centre party. All the other seats are considered to be firmly held. The fourteen seats of the Centre party which are imperilled are situated in Southern Germany and were formerly held by the National Liberals. The Government may win them back under the pressure of patriotic excitement which is running high in the Southern States; but the general opinion continues to be against the chances of the Government's obtaining a majority. Whatever may be the result, the Government will adhere to the original demands. If the coming Reichstag confirms the decisions of the last one, Prince Bismarck may ignore that body and apply to the separate Legislatures to sanction an increase of the army. This course is indicated in the passage of his speech in which he reminds the Reichstag that the Emperor is always able, as King of Prussia, to appeal with confidence to the Prussian Parliament for the means of guarding the Fatherland. Or he may try for a period to rule without a budget, trusting in the end to obtain a vote of indemnity. The elections will be watched with the most intense interest where the contests are expected to turn on narrow majorities.

SUICIDE AT WINDSOR.

The Extraordinary Manner of an Aged Woman's Death.

DETROIT, Jan. 16.—John McClinden, who resides on Sandwich-street, Windsor, has been in the employ of Hiram Walker & Son for over twenty years. About three weeks ago he was taken sick, and has been at the point of death ever since. His wife, who is over 60 years of age, waited on him constantly night and day. The old man, it appears, is a fretful patient and told his wife frequently that he was going to die. On Friday, when the doctor visited the house, he found a bloody bandage around Mrs. McClinden's throat and noticed blood on the bed and floor. She explained all these circumstances by saying that she had a cold and was troubled with bleeding of the nose. This same story was told to the neighbors who noticed the blood and the bandage.

Early yesterday morning a son who lives in the house with the old people roused some of the neighbors and told them that his mother was dead. They found her lying on the floor in a pool of blood with her throat cut from ear to ear. Her husband, who lay in the same room, said she got out of bed to get something for him and stumbled in the dark, striking her head against a chest in the corner of the bedroom. She neither rose to her feet nor spoke. He was too weak to get up to help her, but managed to waken his son, who gave the alarm.

It is thought that during the day the old woman tried to cut her throat with a razor, as a clean cut was found across her throat from ear to ear. Her courage evidently failed. This accounts for the bandage and the blood on the floor and bed. When she fell, weak from loss of blood, her throat struck the sharp edge of the chest. The razor cut was torn open, and death ensued.

The son says the only reason he can give for his mother's suicide is that she was worn out and discouraged by waiting on his father. The latter cannot live, as his shock has given him a relapse. Coroner Lambert satisfied himself that there was no foul play in the case and decided not to hold an inquest.

THE ANARCHIST'S BRIDE-ELECT.

August Spies to Marry an Accomplished Young Woman of Chicago.

PITTSBURG, Jan. 15.—Miss Nina Clarke Van Zandt of Chicago, who is soon to be married to August Spies, the condemned Anarchist, is well-known to many Pittsburg people, having formerly visited here. She is a grand-daughter of W. B. Clarke, who was one of the most prominent lawyers in this section, and lived in Beaver. Her mother's sister is still living here. She married John Arthur, who died some years ago. He was a wealthy manufacturer and left a large fortune in real estate and personal property, which went to his widow. She resided in Oakland and her father, Wm. B. Clarke, resides with her. As she has no children, Miss Van Zandt has been regarded as her heiress, and visited her frequently. She was among the guests at the marriage of Miss Walker, the sister-in-law of Mr. George Westinghouse, and was very much admired because of her beauty and accomplishments. Mr. Van Zandt, the father of the young lady, is connected with the well-known Moorehead family of this city, being, it is said, a nephew of the late Gen. James K. Moorehead, after whom he was named. It is reported that the marriage with Spies may divert the expected Pittsburg inheritance of Miss Van Zandt into other channels.

CAUSED BY A BROKEN RAIL.

Cars Filled With Passengers Brought Upon Their Sides, but no One is Hurt.

WESTMINSTER DEPOT, Mass., Jan. 16.—The western express on the Fitchburg Railroad, due in Boston at 3 p.m., was wrecked this afternoon about 4 o'clock at Westminster by a broken rail west of the depot. The train consisted of three Pullman sleepers, a passenger coach, smoker and baggage car. The engine, baggage car and one sleeper went over the rail safely. The sleeper "Ladoga" was completely over-turned, and was dragged one-eighth of a mile on its side. The sleeper "Newcastle" was smashed in at the forward end, the passenger coach was twisted sideways off the track, but the smoker did not leave the track. Six freight cars on a side track were sent over on their sides, and the two main tracks were completely blockaded. No one was seriously injured, and beyond a few slight bruises all the passengers escaped.

The Girl Capsets of the Maggie Sailing.

VICTORIA, B.C., Jan. 15.—The schooner Maggie Dalling, a small craft sailing in the interests of the Alaska Commercial Company and hunting seals near the Pribaloff Islands, went ashore in Behring Sea on the night of the 10th. She was commanded by Calm McDonald, the pretty 18-year-old daughter of a former captain, who died about six months ago, and had a crew of two men. One of the men was washed overboard before the schooner struck, and the remaining sailor, after a hard struggle, managed to reach land. In the morning a relief party put out for the wreck to find the form of Calm McDonald hanging over the wheel, where she had been crushed to death by a falling spar.

Death of "Old Probs."

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—General W. B. Hazen, chief signal officer, U.S.A., died in this city at 8 o'clock last evening. He had been ill since Thursday, but no danger was apprehended until this afternoon.

Gen. Hazen's death was due to diabetic coma. He suffered from diabetes for some years, but of late had improved in health and strength and hopes were entertained of his complete recovery. Mrs. Hazen, who is in France, has been notified by cable and will return immediately to America.

Fatal Fire at New Westminster.

NEW WESTMINSTER, Jan. 15.—The Arlington Hotel was burned early this morning. George Campbell, formerly of Sherbrooke, Que.; Rufus Brown, formerly of Hastings, Que., and Thomas McKay, formerly of Osgoode, Ont., were burned to death.

A LADY'S TONGUE.

IT AGGRAVATES LORD SALISBURY'S GREAT DIFFICULTIES.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—The Salisbury Cabinet, if not in extremes, is floundering about in the deepest waters the storm tossed ministerial craft has ever yet attempted to navigate. The personal relations of the Marquis of Salisbury and Lord Randolph Churchill are growing more and more angry daily. Lady Salisbury, the most ambitious woman in London, who has played a prominent part in the quarrel from the beginning, aggravates the situation by her violent tongue. She has carried the quarrel from the proper sphere of politicians to the drawing rooms of the highest London society, and wages implacable war, not only against Churchill himself, but all connected with him by family, social or party ties. Lord Randolph and his relatives are not the kind of people to submit to treatment of this character in silence. The late Chancellor of the Exchequer openly denounces Lord Salisbury as the greatest coward in Europe, and prophesies that he (Churchill) will be Prime Minister of England within the next six months.

The Government's Programme.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—A London despatch says: The Cabinet at its meeting to-day rearranged the Government program for the approaching session of Parliament. The proposed reform of the rules of procedure will still hold the precedence of all other matters in the Government proposals. This will be followed by the English Local Government Bill and the Irish Land Measure, which later will be simply an extension of the Ashbourne Act. No special legislation will be offered with regard to Ireland, either to increase the Imperial power in the way of coercion or to deal with the Home Rule question. The presence of Mr. Goschen in the Ministry, while it intensifies the coercive tendencies of the Cabinet in its relations to the Irish, has confirmed, on the other hand, to very cautious methods in dealing with the war between landlords and tenants.

GEORGE'S DEFENCE OF McGLYNN.

Davitt Says it Has Injured Rather Than Benefited the Priest.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 15.—Michael Davitt said to-day as regards the case of Dr. McGlynn and Henry George: "Mr. George has injured the cause of the man whom he was most anxious to save. I have no doubt as all of his sincere admiration of Dr. McGlynn, but, after the appearance of this extraordinary article of his, I think if I were in the position of the worthy Doctor I would say: 'Save me from my friends.' Now that he has declared himself in this way it becomes the painful duty of myself and others of Mr. George's warmest admirers to disassociate ourselves entirely from the unwarranted attack which he has thought fit to make upon the Catholic Church."

McGlynn Will Go to Rome.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—Dr. McGlynn has finally decided to go to Rome, and will leave early in February.

The excommunication served so long uplifted by Archbishop Corrigan has fallen, and Dr. McGlynn has been succeeded in his duties as pastor of St. Stephen's Church by Father Arthur I. Donnelly.

Archbishop Corrigan Won't Speak.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—Archbishop Corrigan was yesterday besieged by reporters who desired to interview him in regard to the charges made by Henry George in his second attack upon the Catholic Church. The Archbishop said the charges made by Mr. George were "simply ridiculous." Further than that he could not be prevailed upon to speak.

Father McGlynn's Successor.

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—Rev. Dr. Donnelly, regarded here so long as the founder and builder up of the great St. Michael's Parish, has been assigned to and has accepted the pastorate of St. Stephen's church, made vacant by the retirement of the Rev. Dr. McGlynn.

STANLEY'S EXPEDITION.

Four Hundred Applications from Persons Wishing to Serve on His Staff.

BRUSSELS, Jan. 15.—Mr. Henry M. Stanley arrived here to-day and had a long and touching farewell interview with the King. The expedition for the relief of Emin Bey will start on the 20th inst. Mr. Stanley has received 400 applications from persons wishing to serve on his personal staff. There were originally only five vacancies, however, and these had already been filled. Mr. Stanley in an interview said that it was not true that the British Government had subscribed largely to the costs of the expedition. Mr. Stanley returned to London this evening. He will hold a consultation with Mr. Jumbar at Cairo.

THE DEAD STATESMAN.

Lord Iddesleigh's Remains Removed to His House in Exeter.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—The remains of the Earl of Iddesleigh were removed to-day to his late home in Exeter, Devonshire. A large number of persons gathered along the route to the railway station and manifested much sympathy. The blinds of many houses were drawn and flags were flying at half-mast.

His Brains Dashed Out.

DETROIT, Jan. 16.—Louis F. Dohmstreich, 36 years old and a member of the firm of F. King & Co., brewers, met with a fatal accident at 1.30 yesterday afternoon. While driving north on Beaubien-street, between Croghan and Macomb streets, his horse became frightened and ran away. In turning east at the intersection of Macomb and Beaubien streets the cutter was overturned and Mr. Dohmstreich hurled against a tree. The force was such as to literally crush the skull, and Mr. Dohmstreich was instantly killed.

London Money and Stock Market.

LONDON, Jan. 16.—Discount was quiet during the past week at 2½ and 3. The Stock Exchange rate for loans until next account is 5½. Business on the Stock Exchange during the week was inactive. English railway securities were firmer under the influence of the sharp advance of pig iron and satisfactory dividends. American railway securities were dull and irregular, closing yesterday with general depression, due partly to the report of the passage of the Interstate Commerce Bill.

Man Ashore on a Peg.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—The Dublin packet Banshee with 200 persons on board ran on the rocks at Holyhead. There was great alarm among those on the vessel, but she floated off after being aground for three hours. The steamer Eleanor, while trying to render assistance to the Banshee, also ran on the rocks, where she remains fast. There was a heavy fog at the time the accident occurred.

The Leader's Summons.

LONDON, Jan. 16.—W. H. Smith, First Lord of the Treasury, and Conservative leader in the House of Commons, has sent a circular to the supporters of the Government asking them to make every effort to attend the opening of Parliament as they will be invited to proceed directly to the consideration of questions of great importance.

Bull Fighting in France.

PARIS, Jan. 14.—A bull fight took place at Landais to-day. The exhibition was witnessed by 10,000 spectators. The toreadors appeared in Spanish costumes and many of them were tossed by the infuriated beasts, but sustained no injury. The exhibition elicited but little enthusiasm.

THE DOMINION ELECTIONS.

A telegraphic despatch from Ottawa, published elsewhere, confirms the statement made in these columns ten days ago, that the Dominion Elections would be held on Feb. 15th,—nominations on Feb. 15th, and polling on Feb. 22nd. We have only to repeat what we at that time urged upon all Reformers in the West and East Ridings to complete organization and enter heartily upon the work of redeeming both ridings. It can be done, and the only condition necessary is hard and unremitting work from now till February 22nd. Let organization be completed and active work be entered upon AT ONCE.

THE PUBLIC DEBT.

Our industrious contemporary the Hamilton Times has an able article dealing with the public debt. In its outset it is shown how ingeniously Hon. Mr. Foster, who has been pleading the cause of the Government in the Maritime Provinces, conceals the real amount of the net public debt. The Times says:

Mr. Foster owned up to a gross debt of $264,000,000 and a net debt of $196,000,000 on July 1st, 1885, but excused himself from giving any later figures, on the plea that "as a Minister of the Crown he was precluded "ed from discussing the figures for the last "fiscal year until they had been laid before "Parliament." That is all nonsense. If the figures showed a decrease of debt, or even a standing still, Mr. Foster would not be afraid to use them. In the session of 1886, on March 1st, Hon. Mr. McLellan, Minister of Finance, reported to the House of Commons as follows:

The gross debt on the 1st of March, 1886, without deducting the assets of $78,787,287, was $283,314,582.

On the 3rd of March, Mr. McLellan said that the net public debt was $203,922,695.

On the 5th of March, 1886, Mr. McLellan stated that the increase of the net public debt from March 1st, 1885, to March 1st, 1886, was $15,806,422.

Surely Mr. Foster was at liberty, without any breach of etiquette, to quote the figures pronounced to Parliament by his colleague, the Minister of Finance, instead of sticking to a statement 9 months older, in which the net debt was put $12,500,000 lower. Mr. Foster might have mentioned, also, had he desired to tell the truth, that the net debt of the Dominion was increased by $10,000,000 in the settlement with the Canadian Pacific railway, when an asset of $30,000,000 was wiped out by a repayment of $20,000,000 in cash and a portion of the land grant. Even if no money had been spent for public works and subsidies chargeable to capital, since March 1, 1886, the $10,000,000 above mentioned and the two deficits in revenue, amounting to seven or eight millions, would have to be added to the net debt, bringing it up to at least $225,000,000, instead of the $196,000,000 on which Mr. Foster takes his stand. The Times goes on to point out the error in the Hon. Mr. Foster's statement when he asserted that of Canadas' debt not a dollar was incurred for destroying human life and says:

Mr. Foster exhibits some skill at juggling with figures, but he would have a hard time explaining where the money came from to pay the rebellion expenses, if it did not come out of borrowed money, that is, if it was not added to the debt. It is true that rebellion expenses were charged to revenue, but it is also true that there were large deficits in both the fiscal years 1884-85 and 1885-86. In other words, expenditure exceeded revenue, in the former year by $2,940,059 and in the latter year by upwards of $5,000,000. The Government certainly paid the rebellion expenses. There were only two funds from which to obtain the money, the proceeds of ordinary revenue collections and the proceeds of loans. The former were insufficient, as the public accounts show; the latter had therefore to be drawn upon.

An Ottawa correspondent states that with the view of making the Civil Service vote solid, the Government has passed an Order-in-Council directing that the monthly salaries of the inside service officials shall be paid upon the 15th of each month—that is to say, the salaries of these officials will be paid two weeks before they become due. The salaries for January will be paid on Saturday, and those for the next month on the 15th of February. This is equivalent to a gift of two weeks' salary to every official in the inside service, including the Cabinet Ministers, and is but a repetition of what was done a few days before the general election of 1882. But surely such transparent attempts at bribery will not succeed a second time. The outside service are ignored in this distribution of public money. What the Ministers want is to hold Ottawa at all hazards.

As the Globe points out, there is a public debt of more than $1,000,000 on every constituency in Canada. The greater part of this, it is to be noted, has been put on by men who could not earn a thousand dollars a year "financing" for any business concern in Canada.

Out of 225,000 votes polled at the Ontario Provincial general elections, the Reform majority is 10,212. This is nearly treble the largest bona fide majority ever obtained by a political party in Ontario.

Burns' Anniversary.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Sir,—I am pleased to see that steps are being taken by the St. Andrew's Society of this town to celebrate Burns' birthday this year. I hope that Scotchmen will shake off their apathy and apparent indifference for these passing events that should endear them to their native land, by uniting solidly on this occasion. Is it to be said of us that Scotchmen are so fast becoming absorbed into Canadians that all recollections of the dear old land of their ancestors are in danger of being quenched altogether? If not, then let all Scotchmen—those who have grown grey since they left their native shores, as well as those whose memory of the heather hills they left behind them may be more verdant—give a right willing, helping hand to honor their immortal bard, Robert Burns. The meeting on Tuesday night should be an enthusiastic one.

Yours truly,
PETERBURG.

Apsley.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

The election excitement is now over, and the people's hearts rejoice to see their old, true and reliable friend returned by an handsome a majority; it would have been much larger—how had not a number of names been omitted from the voters' list. The Conservative candidate made a big mistake in the choice of his company, or he may have made a better run, his canvassing friend has but very few friends left in this section, and a smaller patriot could not have been found in the ranks.

More power to him, for he is a brick of a boy.

MONTREAL'S MAYORALTY.

The English-speaking Citizens Hold a Noisy Meeting.

Montreal, Jan. 16.—Another meeting of English-speaking citizens for the purpose of nominating a candidate for Mayor was held in Queen's Hall last night. J. L. Morris, advocate, presided, and although he did perhaps as well as anyone could have done under the circumstances, the meeting was a very noisy one. A motion was made that Hon. J. J. C. Abbott receive the nomination, and an amendment followed that ex-Ald. George Childs should be a candidate. After a lively discussion, which lasted for about two hours and was characterised by noisy and vigorous interruptions, the chairman put the amendment and asked for a show of hands. The result appeared to be in favor of Mr. Childs, although the chairman's decision was otherwise. The meeting broke up amidst the greatest tumult. It is understood that Hon. Mr. Abbott will be a candidate.

When True Merit Will Do.

The unprecedented sale of Boschee's German Syrup within a few years has astonished the world. It is without doubt the safest and best remedy ever discovered for the speedy and effectual cure of Coughs, Colds and the severest Lung troubles. It acts on an entirely different principle from the usual prescriptions given by physicians, as it does not dry up a cough and leave the disease still in the system, but on the contrary removes the cause of the trouble, heals the parts affected, and leaves them in a purely healthy condition. A bottle kept in the house for use when the diseases make their appearance, will save doctor's bills and a long spell of serious illness. A trial will convince you of these facts. It is positively sold by all druggists and general dealers in the land. Price 75 cents, large bottles. sodw41tf

Sure Cure For Rheumatism

Rheumatism

Having proved that Hagyard's Yellow Oil, as a Rheumatic Medicine, no doubt has largely benefitted the consumers, as well as relieving the burden of heavy contributions. Recently is this the case with Green's August Flower and Boschee's German Syrup, as the reduction of thirty-six cents per dozen has been added to increase the size of the bottles containing these remedies, thereby giving one-fifth more medicine in the 75 cent size. The August Flower for Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint, and Germ. Syrup for Cough and Lung troubles have, perhaps, the largest sale of any medicines in the world. The advantage of increased size of the bottle will be greatly appreciated by the sick and afflicted, in every town and village in the United States. Sample bottles for 10c. cents is the same size. sodw41

LUMINOUS

ALARM CLOCKS.

The Handiest thing in the World Can be seen as well in the Dark as the Light.

EVERYBODY should have One.

R. W. MUNCASTER.

THE EVIL GENIUS.

By WILKIE COLLINS.

Kitty laid her head sadly on Sydney's bosom. "It's not the moonlight," she said; "shall I tell you a secret? Sometimes I am not happy, either. Poor papa is dead. He always liked you—I'm sure you are sorry for him."

Astonishment held Sydney speechless. Before she could ask who had so cruelly deceived the child, and for what purpose, the nursemaid, standing behind her chair, warned her to be silent by a touch.

"I think we are all unhappy now," Kitty went on, still following her own little train of thought. "Mamma isn't like what she used to be. And even my nice captain hasn't a word to say to me. He wouldn't come back with us; he said he would go back by himself."

Another allusion which took Sydney by surprise! She asked who the captain was. Kitty started as if the question shocked her. "Oh, dear, dear, this is what comes of your going away and leaving us! You don't know Capt. Bennydeck."

The name of her father's correspondent! The name which she vaguely remembered to have heard in her childhood! "Where did you first meet with him?" she inquired.

"At the seaside, dear."

"Do you mean at Sandyseal?"

"Yes. Mamma liked him—and grandmamma liked him (which is wonderful)—and I gave him a kiss. Promise me not to tell! My nice captain is going to be my new papa."

Was there any possible connection between what Kitty had just said and what the poor child had been deluded into believing when the spite of her father? Even Susan seemed to be in the secret of this strange second marriage! She interfered with a sharp reproof. "You mustn't talk in that way, Miss Kitty. Please put her off your lap, Miss Westerfield; we have been here too long already."

Kitty proposed a compromise. "I'll go," she said, "if Syd will come with me."

"I'm sorry, my darling, to disappoint you." Kitty refused to believe it. "You couldn't disappoint me if you tried," she said, boldly.

"Indeed, indeed, I must go away. Oh, Kitty, try to bear it as I do!"

Entreaties were useless; the child refused to hear of another parting. "I want to make you and mamma friends again. Don't break my heart, Sydney! Come home with me, and teach me, and play with me, and love me!"

She pulled desperately at Sydney's dress; she called to Susan to help her. With tears in her eyes, the girl did her best to help them both, "Miss Westerfield will wait here," she said to Kitty, "while you speak to your mamma. Say yes," she whispered to Sydney; "it's our only chance."

The child instantly exacted a promise. In the earnestness of her love she even dictated the words. "Say it after me, as I used to say my lessons," she insisted. 'Say 'Kitty, I promise to wait for you.'"

Who that loved her could have refused to say it? In one form or another the horrid necessity for deceit had followed and was still following that first worst act of falsehood—the elopement from Mount Morven.

Kitty was now as eager to go as she had been hitherto resolute to remain. She called for Susan to follow her, and ran to the hotel.

"My mistress won't let her come back—you can leave the garden that way." The maid pointed along the path to the left and hurried after the child.

They were gone—and Sydney was alone again.

At the parting with Kitty, the measure of her endurance was full. Not even the farewell at Mount Morven had tried her by an ordeal so cruel as this. No kind woman was willing to receive her and employ her now. The one creature left who loved her was the faithful little friend whom she must never see again. "I am still innocent to that child," she thought—"and I am parted from her forever!"

She rose to leave the garden.

A farewell look at the last place in which she had seen Kitty tempted her to indulge in a moment of delay. Her eyes rested on the turn in the path at which she had lost sight of the active little figure hastening away to plead her cause. Even in absence, the child was Sydney's good angel still. As she turned away to follow the path that had been shown to her, the relief of tears came at last. It cooled her burning head; it comforted her aching heart. She tried to walk on. The tears blinded her—she strayed from the path—she would have fallen but for a hand that caught her and held her up. A man's voice, firm and deep and kind, quieted her first wild feeling of terror. "My child, you are not fit to be by yourself. Let me take care of you—let me comfort you, if I can."

He carried her back to the seat that she had left, and waited by her in merciful silence.

"You are very young to feel such bitter sorrow," he said, when she was composed again. "I don't ask what your sorrow is; I only want to know how I can help you."

"Nobody can help me."

"Can I take you back to your friends?"

"I have no friends."

"Pardon me, you have one friend at least—you have me."

"You? A stranger?"

"No human creature who needs my sympathy is a stranger."

She turned toward him for the first time. In her new position she was clearly visible in the light. He looked at her attentively. "I have seen you somewhere," he said, "before now."

She had not noticed him when they had passed each other at Sandyseal. "I think you must be mistaken," she answered. "May I thank you for your kindness? and may I hope to be excused if I say good-night?"

He detained her. "Are you sure that you are well enough to go away by yourself?" he asked, anxiously.

"I am quite sure!"

He still detained her. His memory of that first meeting at the seaside hotel reminded him that he had seen her in the company of a man. At their second meeting she was alone and in tears. Sad experience led him to form his own conclusions. "If you won't let me take care of you," he said, "will you consider if I can be of any use to you, and will you call at that address?" He gave her his card. She took it without looking at it; she was confused; she hardly knew what to say. "Do you doubt me?" he asked—sadly, not angrily.

"Oh, how can I do that! I doubt myself. I am not worthy of the interest you feel in me."

"That is a sad thing to say," he answered. "Let me try to give you confidence in yourself. Be you at Montreal when you receive this letter?"

"To-morrow," he resumed, "I am going to see another poor girl who is alone in the world like you. If I tell you where she lives will you ask her if I am a person to be trusted?"

He had taken a letter from his pocket while he was speaking, and he now tore off a part of the second leaf and gave it to her. "I have only lately," he said, "received the address from a friend."

As he offered that explanation, the sound of a child's voice, raised in anger and entreaty, reached their ears from the neighborhood of the hotel. Faithful little Kitty had made her escape, determined to return to Sydney—had been overtaken by the maid—and had been carried back in Susan's arms to the house. Sydney imagined that she was not perhaps alone in recognizing the voice. The stranger who had been so kind to her did certainly start and look round.

The stillness of the night was disturbed no more. The man turned again to the person who had so strongly interested him. The person was gone.

In fear of being followed Sydney hurried to the railway station. By the light in the carriage she looked for the first time at the fragment of the letter and the card.

The stranger had presented her with her own address! And when she looked at the card the name was Bennydeck!

CHAPTER XLVII.

More than once on one and the same day the captain had been guilty of a weakness which would have taken his oldest friends by surprise if they had seen him at the moment. He hesitated.

A man who has commanded ships and has risked his life in the regions of the frozen deep is a man formed by nature and taught by habit to meet emergency face to face, to see his course straight before him, and to take it, lead him where it may. But nature and habit, formidable forces as they are, find their master when they encounter the passion of love.

At once perplexed and distressed by that startling change in Catherine while she had observed when her child approached her, Bennydeck's customary firmness failed him, when the course of conduct toward his betrothed wife which it might be most becoming to follow presented itself to him as a problem to be solved. When Kitty asked him to accompany her nursemaid and herself on their return to the hotel he had refused because he felt reluctant to intrude himself on Catherine's notice until she was ready to admit him to her confidence of her own free will. Left alone, he began to doubt whether delicacy did really require him to make the sacrifice which he had contemplated not five minutes since. It was surely possible that Catherine might be waiting to see him, and might then offer the explanation which would prove to be equally a relief on both sides. He was on his way to the hotel when he met with Sydney Westerfield.

To see a woman in the sorest need of all that kindness and consideration could offer, and to leave her as helpless as he had found her, would have been an act of brutal indifference, revolting to any man possessed of even ordinary sensibility. The captain had only followed his natural impulses, and had only said and done what, in nearly similar cases, he had said and done on other occasions.

Poverty and Distress.

That poverty which produces the greatest distress is not of the purse but of the blood. Deprived of its richness it becomes scant and watery, a condition termed anæmia in medical writings. Given this condition, and scrofulous swellings and sores, general and nervous debility, loss of flesh and appetite, weak lungs, throat disease, spitting of blood and consumption, are among the common results. If you are a sufferer from thin, poor blood employ Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery," which enriches the blood and cures the grave affections. Is more nutritive than cold liver oil, and is harmless in any condition of the system, yet powerful to cure. By druggists. 6dw3

GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY

CURES ALL HUMORS,

from a common Blotch, or Eruption, to the worst Scrofula. Salt-rheum, "Fever-sores," Scaly or Rough Skin, in short, all diseases caused by bad blood are conquered by this powerful, purifying, and invigorating medicine. Great Eating Ulcers rapidly heal under its benign influence. Especially has it manifested its potency in curing Tetter, Head Rash, Boils, Carbuncles, Sore Eyes, Scrofulous Sores and Swellings, Hip Joint Disease, White Swellings, Goitre, or Thick Neck, and Enlarged Glands. Send ten cents in stamps for a large treatise, with colored plates, on Skin Diseases, or the same amount for a treatise on Scrofulous Affections. "THE BLOOD IS THE LIFE." Thoroughly cleanse it by using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and good digestion, a fair skin, buoyant spirits, vital strength, and soundness of constitution, will be established.

CONSUMPTION,

which is Scrofulous Disease of the Lungs, is promptly and certainly arrested and cured by this God-given remedy, if taken before the last stages of the disease are reached. From its wonderful power over this terribly fatal disease, when first offering this now celebrated remedy to the public, Dr. Pierce thought seriously of calling it his "Consumption Cure," but abandoned that name as too limited for a medicine which, from its wonderful combination of tonic, or strengthening, alterative, or blood-cleansing, and nutritious, pectoral, and restorative properties, is unequaled, not only as a remedy for consumption of the lungs, but for all

CHRONIC DISEASES OF THE Liver, Blood, and Lungs.

If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have sallow color of skin, or yellowish-brown spots on face or body, frequent headache or dizziness, bad taste in mouth, internal heat or chills, alternating with hot flashes, low spirits and gloomy borebodings, irregular appetite, and coated tongue, you are suffering from Indigestion, Dyspepsia, and Torpid Liver, or "Biliousness." In many cases only part of these symptoms are experienced. As a remedy for all such cases, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has no equal.

For Weak Lungs, Spitting of Blood, Shortness of Breath, Bronchitis, Severe Coughs, Consumption, and kindred affections, it is a sovereign remedy.

Send ten cents in stamps for Dr. Pierce's book on Consumption. Sold by Druggists.

PRICE $1.00, OR 6 BOTTLES FOR $5.00.

A Lecture on "The Stars."

Mr. J. H. Long, M.A., Principal of the Collegiate Institute, will deliver his interesting lecture on "The Stars" in St. John's church school house on Thursday evening, Jan. 20th. This absorbing subject is treated by Mr. Long in a most entertaining and instructive manner. Admission 20 cents, children 10 cents.

George Street Church Organ.

The new organ of the George street Methodist Church was used in connection with public worship the first time yesterday, morning and evening. The congregation were delighted with the decided improvement and the feelings of the choir and organist over the great change, are better imagined than described. Though the organ is still incomplete, Prof. Jacques had for the first time an opportunity of displaying the high powers as an organist he possesses, giving several selections, in fine style. When the remaining stops arrive and the organ is complete it is contemplated to give a recital.

Young People's Association.

Yesterday after Sunday School at the George street Methodist Church, the adults remained for a few moments to consider a proposition made by the pastor, Rev. I. Tovell, to form a Young People's Association, for mutual improvement and the carrying on of Christian work. Those present seemed to heartily concur with the idea, and a committee was appointed to prepare a constitution and set of by-laws, to be submitted to a general meeting to be held Wednesday night. The committee are: Messrs. J. W. Flavelle, H. S. Griffin, E. R. Wood, A. Scott; Mrs. Wilson, Miss Allen and Miss Lizzie Sanderson; Rev. Mr. Tovell, chairman. Another proposition made by the pastor was to bring Mr. John B. Clark, the "boot-black orator," to town to deliver a couple of his popular lectures. Mr. Tovell said he had taken upon himself the responsibility of securing the above-named lecturer for two nights, Jan. 31st and Feb. 1st, feeling sure that the young people would heartily co-operate with him in making the venture a success. A number of young ladies and gentlemen were then appointed to canvass the town with tickets, which are placed at a very low figure—15c. for one lecture, or 25c. for both. Mr. Clark is meeting with gratifying success wherever he lectures, and there is no reasonable doubt that his reception in Peterborough will be equally hearty.

Police Court.

MONDAY, Jan. 17th.

William Moore was charged by Mr. Thos. Beavis, Licenses Inspector, with an infraction of the transient traders by-law. Mr. Moore has for some time been auctioning off goods in the store lately occupied by Mr. W. Millar as a shoe shop without a license. The defence entered a lease of the premises to Mr. G. Carton, late of the Bon Marche, and the sale was conducted in his name, he being an old resident of the town, and not requiring any license. The case was dismissed.

An old man named Jas. Keaven, of Port Hope, who is believed to be dying, was sent to gaol this morning to be cared for.

Infidelity Laid Bare.

Rev. Mr. Wallace's Masterly Discourse on the "Inadequacy of All Skeptical Accounts of the Origin of the Gospel."

In the Charlotte street Methodist church yesterday morning Rev. Mr. Wallace preached an eloquent and impressive sermon on the above subject. Previous to the sermon the rite of baptism was administered to a couple of infants.

After referring to his discourse of last Sunday morning, touching the proofs and evidences of the authenticity of the Gospels, and, inasmuch as in these days one of the main objections in the hearts and minds of many thoughtful people, to a belief in the Gospels, consists in its miracles, the reverend gentleman proceeded: "I ask you this morning to take one step further in this argument and consider the inadequacy of all skeptical accounts of the origin of the Gospel. The Gospel has come to us evidently from an early time, with its teaching and beautiful story of divine interposition for the salvation of men, with its glorious picture of the incarnate Redeemer who so loved the world that he gave himself for that world. Records show that the story still touches the deepest hearts and moves and moulds the grandest lives. We have before us the Christian church with all its solemn services, and its rites, and its institutions. We have Christian history, which comes to us through its long heroic struggle, from persecution, from martyrdom and from final defeat into the sunshine of part victory to-day, and whole victory to-morrow. We have all these things, and how are we to account for them? It will not do for us simply to say that mankind is easily moved by novelties. You may as well say, if a man asks you as to the origin of the great gulf stream, that water is easily moved. Nay. Men will not be satisfied with any such easy and flippant answer as to the origin of that greater stream, that stream of thought, of life, of knowledge, of world-wide influence which sweeps on through the ages and which still flows on to-day. There are some men who abuse Christianity because they do not and will not believe in miracles. As a German has put it, "We now know what Christ is not, or what he did not do, namely, anything superhuman or natural." Taking that for granted, in the first place then their task is to account in some other way than the Gospel way for the origin of Christianity. Leave out all that is superhuman or supernatural, leave out the miracles, then how do you account for the growth of Christianity and the power of the Church. Some say that the Gospel owes its origin to downright deception. That is old, downright infidelity, which is comparatively little heard of to-day. Now, then, if there be a deception, who is the deceiver? Is Christ the deceiver? Can you gather good fruit from a bad tree? Is it possible that He, from whom has come the grandest system of morality the world has known, was an immoral man? Who are the deceived? The followers of Christ? Is it possible that conscious hypocrites and charlatans could have invented a character, so pure and spotless as the character of Christ? If you leave out of account the facts of the life and death and resurrection of Christ, if you say that His disciples knew Christ was never such a man as they painted him, it is impossible for us to suppose that this little band of Galileans, who set out to revolutionize the whole world, could have undertaken or contemplated this task unless in their hearts there was an absolute assurance that the Christ whom they preached had lived and died for their sins and risen again for their justification. All theories of deception, either on the part of Christ or His disciples, effect their own ruin from the weight of their own absurdities. Here's another form of objection, that while those who wrote the Gospel were perfectly sincere there was an exaggeration, an enthusiasm, a fanaticism which may account for the miracles of the Gospel. Whose? Was it Christ's? Some say yes. They say Christ was a good man and was teaching a good doctrine of morality, but through his success he became intoxicated, and began to have visions and dreams, and towards the close of his career he became unreliable. Any such misrepresentation makes the simple mistake of confounding Jesus Christ with Judas of Galilee and other men like him, who had dreams and visions. You can't believe that He was a fanatic, who sat upon the mountain side and preached to his disciples. You can't believe that he was a fanatic, who looked men through and through with clear, wise judgement, not only upon their thoughts, but upon their deeper motives. You can't believe that He was a fanatic, the serenity of whose spirit was never ruffled, even before Pilate or upon the cross. Were the disciples fanatics? Is it true that the disciples, after the death of their Master who had taught them, began to write down the story of His life in all good faith, but unconsciously mingled with it superstition and myth? That there was a man named Christ Jesus who lived and died, and lived in the main a life such as depicted here, who wrought no miracles and laid no claims to divinity, as the Rationalists assert? Many years ago in Germany these Rationalists believed there was a Christ, and the absurd results to which they attained in accounting for the wonders of His life, are the best reputation of the whole idea from which their belief sprang. For instance, they say that the light which shone around the shepherds at Bethlehem was doubtless from a meteor or a lantern somebody was carrying by. Then as to Christs' walking on the sea, they say He just walked along the sea shore or on a high land overlooking the sea. And they look upon the turning of the water into wine as a joke. The wine was ready and it was brought in just at the right time—as a joke. And when he brought eyesight to a man, the disciples forgot to mention that He had an efficacious eye salve; and that when He raised from the dead, he merely recovered from a swoon. These have produced a marvelous story which has taken men's hearts captive. Believing in miracles is an easier operation than believing in the Rationalists. I don't care if your views have always been against Christianity, if you look at these Gospels and read them quietly as you would read any other book, you must come to the conclusion that it is a simple, direct narrative, and not the narrative of men who were wild fanatics and mingled with the story their own exaggerated views; and you cannot eliminate the miracles from that story without destroying the whole fabric. If you take them out you have nothing left which explains itself. Strouss, the greatest of these recent skeptics, admits that if the Gospels are true history, the miracles can't be eliminated from them; but to him they are entirely incredible. There was, no doubt, a good man named Christ, who lived in the main the life indicated in these Gospels, and at His death His followers began to weave out of their own anxious consciences many ideas concerning Him which they took from the Old Testament idea of the Messiah; that you have in these Gospels nothing more than an aggregation of beautiful myths and stories of Jesus Christ; the whole story of Christ is in the imagination of those disciples and their followers. He discards all idea of deception, but says that they wrote mainly from their own imaginations. Strauss says miracles cannot be submitted to reason, and the conception of myths is a means by which we can eliminate miracles from the Gospel. Is it not preposterous? Myths belong to pre-historic ages and are dreams of nations in childhood. The age of Christ was not the early dawn of history, but it was at history's high noon that Christ lived and worked and died, among a people who were the most intelligent people of the time. These Gospels are corroborated in every respect. The writing of myths must necessarily take a long time. The beautiful stories of Homer concerning the Trojan war took shape at least two hundred years after the war—if there ever was such a war. The efforts of men who don't believe is to shove the Gospels away from the time of Christ as far as they can, and to confound their origin with the Apocryphal Gospels. To-day you will not find many men who will risk their [illegible] authority upon the skeptical hint now at least of these records, and who will not go to Jerusalem and [illegible] in the first century. Back of all the Gospels you have four joining opinion of Paul, in which the life of Christ is brought to light, and these epistles were written within about ten years of the death of Christ, and they show to us that at least the most astounding of myths was implicitly believed, and made the very foundation of Christian preaching by the Apostle Paul himself. Is it possible that the myth of Christ's life, death and resurrection could have taken shape in ten years? If they had not had a solid basis of fact upon which they preached the Gospel, their enemies would surely have found fault with those facts. Yet they didn't try to gainsay the facts, but to account for them. Theodore Parker has parodied the whole theory of the origin of the Gospel. He says, according to this mythical theory, the American declaration of independence has a very suspicious air. It was signed in a city with a very mythical name—Philadelphia—the city of brotherly love. And when it was signed in a mythical year and on the fourth day of the month of July, 1776, which is got by multiplying three fours by four. There are four public departments for political purposes in the United States, and then three Presidents, two of whom signed this declaration, died on the fourth day of the fourth month. Then the declaration has a mythical tone, and lacks historical corroboration. There was a great Mexican historian who makes no mention of it. Then you find that slavery existed among the American people long after 1776, and that would have been impossible unless the whole declaration of independence were a myth. You can disprove any fact of history upon this theory by which the infidels try to disprove the Gospels."

The speaker went on to say that the mythical theory of the origin of Christianity amounts to this, that the church created Christ; that there was no Christ until the church was 100 to 150 years old, as it created Christ for its own purposes. Then the question was, how was the church originated? Who created the church that has lived, without any foundation, for so many hundred years? He concluded by leaving the matter with his hearers for their earnest and thoughtful consideration, feeling certain that after a reasonable and unprejudiced consideration they would come to the conclusion that the story of the Gospels was a true one, that there were no myths connected with it, and that Christ really lived, died and was resurrected for their justification

The New Town Council in Session—An Army of Applicants—Reports and Accounts.

At the first meeting of the new Town Council this morning at 11 o'clock, the councillors elect were all present except Mr. Kendry, who came in later on.

Mayor Stevenson made a brief inaugural speech, of the usual style and calibre, in which he referred to the Scott Act fine question, and clearing his skirts of all responsibility in connection with the discharge of any delinquent police official, by stating that he had authority only to suspend during the investigation of the charges laid against the policemen.

The following additional applications for the position of Street and Bridge Inspector were received, and referred to the Committee on Appointments: Robert Pope, Robert McClelland, James Might, John Brown, Thos. Parrington, James Russell, Joseph H. Yelland, James Bradley.

The following accounts were referred to the Finance Committee:—

H. Willis and M. O'Brien, carting	$ 2 00
John Hackett, dry goods	28 95
Fitzgerald & Stanger, repairs	1 70

Messrs. James Stratton, and John J. Hall were appointed auditors for the ensuing year.

The chairman of the Finance Committee reported, recommending payment of the following accounts:—

W. H. Cooper, (Darcy case)	$ 5 00
Geo. Stethem	4 08
Salsbury & Co	5 80
Craig & Mooney	91 40
Peterborough Gas Co	149 03

J. W. Flavelle	7 15
G. T. R.	91 35
Metropolitan Grocery Co.	67 [illegible]
Peterborough Water Co.	60 [illegible]

The report was adopted.

The chairman of the Court of Revision reported that at the last meeting of the court there were present, Messrs. Moore, (chairman) Menzies and Davidson. The report recommended that John Newton's taxes be remitted; that the dog taxes of Mrs. Mary Miller and A. Morton be remitted; J. H. Bailey, statute labor; Edward Duff, for Barnardo Home, T. Radcliffe, Catherine Daly, Thomas Kent, Margaret Bird, Wm. Appleyard and Mary Ritchie, less school tax; the petition of Henry Edmison could not be touched; Frank Smith, half tax to be remitted, provided the landlord is not the person to whom the tax is to be paid; G. F. Warde, that cheque issue to Mr. Warde for taxes for assessment on $300 for year and on $500 for six months, if already paid; if not paid, the same to be remitted; we do not interfere with the matter of 5 per cent additional for non-payment on December 1st; on the petitions of Elias Burnham, Rev. Father Conway, Peter Hamilton, A. E. Dixon, Michael Bolton, the court considers that it is not by law now permitted to interfere, and that it is not in any case allowed to remit the school rate.

Mr. Cahill—moved, seconded by Mr. Davidson, that the following be a committee to strike standing committee, to report this evening:—Messrs. McNeil, Moore, Davidson, Kendry, Menzies, Yelland, Douglass and Kelly.—Carried.

Messrs. Jas. Stevenson and J. B. Stratton were appointed High School trustees.

The Council then adjourned till this evening at 2:30.

SUN LIFE ASSURANCE CO. OF CANADA.

Gross Life Business for 1886, - - - $3,540,000.

EXTRACT FROM MONTREAL WITNESS, DATED DECEMBER 31st, 1886:—

THE LATE MR. McLACHLAN.

AN INSURANCE COMPANY'S PROMPT SETTLEMENT.

We have been asked by Mr. McLachlan to publish the following, and do so in view of the exceptional public interest taken in the case mentioned:—

To R. Macaulay, Esq., Managing Director of the Sun Life Assurance Company:—

DEAR SIR,—I have much pleasure in acknowledging the payment by you of $17,135.72, being the amount due under the policies held by your Company on the life of my brother, the late John S. McLachlan. A company's character is tested when an opportunity arises in which it has the power to take advantage of a technicality or inability (as I, the present executor) to comply with every condition and requirment, so as to occasion delay and expense, and perhaps finally defeat a just and honest claim. There is no doubt in the mind of any reasonable man that my brother and Mr. Sumner were unhappily drowned and the affidavit produced abundantly support this; but although a careful search has been made, the bodies may never be recovered owing to the swiftness of the current and the low temperature of the water. It would, indeed, be a hardship if any company were, under the circumstances, to demand technical proofs which, from the very nature of the case, it is impossible to furnish. I have great pleasure in certifying to the honorable and liberal manner in which your Company has acted in regard to the claim. As soon as your board of directors was aware that the accident had really happened, you gave every facility for a prompt settlement. You have been the first of the companies interested to pay, and I thank you for the kind and satisfactory manner in which you have met me.

W. McLACHLAN.

The Dominion Safety fund, we understand, has also paid its policy of $2,000. The Sun Life has taken from the executors of Mr. McLachlan a personal bond to refund the amount of insurance with six per cent per annum compound interest, should he ever turn up alive. Mr. J. S. McLachlan had in all $42,130.70 insurance on his life, and other companies resist the claims.

WHY
Will people pay rent when houses and lots can be purchased on such easy terms as are offered by the undesigned. Come and inspect our work and see for yourselves how we compete our houses. Our chief aim and study is to build substantial, warm, frost and damp proof houses. I am offering good building lots, and will build solid brick houses, nine-inch walls, strapped and lathed, two stories, for less money than you can buy frame or veneered buildings. We cordially invite those who anticipate renting or buying to inspect our work and prove for themselves that our houses are not merely built to sell. Every house I've sold gives first-class satisfaction, and I am determined that every house I build shall be a standing testimony to honest building. A DETECTIVE'S WORK

RECOVERY OF GOODS STOLEN FROM THE G.T.R. COMPANY.

LONDON, Jan. 17.—Detective McCarthy of the Grand Trunk Railway has recently succeeded in tracing up and recovering a quantity of goods stolen from the company. About two months since a case of gloves and two cases containing boots and shoes were stolen from the Grand Trunk Railway freight shed at Berlin. Detective McCarthy visited the village of Breslau on Tuesday last, and while in that place observed a stranger who wore a pair of gloves answering the description of those stolen. He accosted the man, and learned that the gloves had been obtained from one Homyre, whose premises he proceeded to search. In the woodshed was piled up some three cords of wood, which he removed, and buried beneath this he discovered some gloves and a portion of the boots and shoes. Homyre was arrested and taken back to Berlin, after which the officer, acting upon information obtained by him, proceeded to take into custody a section man named Dillon. In the tool house used by Dillon he found several blocks of wood, and, as the ground beneath presented the appearance of having been recently disturbed, he proceeded to dig into it, and found a barrel filled with gloves. In the cellar of one Ferdinand Schölling he found a quantity of gloves and a hat, which had been stolen from the Grand Trunk Railway cars at Breslau, and he also recovered from several other parties gloves that had been purchased from the thieves. Homyre and Dillon were remanded and Schölling was held as a witness.

HAMILTON AFFAIRS.

Sudden Death in the Street—The Right to Collect Tell Disputed.

HAMILTON, Jan. 17.—An old man named Owen Lavelle, living in East Hamilton, dropped dead this afternoon about 1 o'clock at the corner of Blake and Main streets. He was walking with a man named Griffin when he suddenly stopped and began to vomit, and in a few moments stumbled and fell to the ground, dying almost immediately. He was 75 years of age.

J. M. Williams, County Registrar, is a breeder of fancy fowl, and has, or rather had, a great many in his hennery. Saturday night the place was broken into by thieves who carried off forty valuable fowl.

The recount of ballots in Ward No. 7 sustains the election of Ald. James Dixon, and the judge has given a certificate to that effect.

At the Police Court to-day a number of milkmen were charged with having refused to pay toll to the Hamilton and Milton Road Company. This case, it is thought, will settle the question whether or not the company has power to collect toll on the roads. Hearing was adjourned for a day.

BURNED TO DEATH IN A CAR.

The Charred Remains of Four Men Found in a Car After a Fire.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Jan. 17.—At 2.15 a.m. today, as a special freight train of nineteen cars, loaded with cotton, was putting into Paducah, Ky., one of the cars was discovered to be on fire. It was the fifteenth car back from the engine, and had been taken on, locked, at Memphis. The engineer backed the train on to a side track, and the crew endeavored to extinguish the flames. All they succeeded in doing, however, was to prevent the fire from spreading to the other cars. While removing the debris of the burned car four dead bodies, charred beyond recognition, were discovered. They are supposed to have been tramps, but whether white or black it is impossible to say. The men must have entered to their horrible fate through a window in the end, which could have been opened from the outside.

THE GRANTON POISONING CASE.

A Belief That the Children Came to Their Death by Rat Poison.

LONDON, Jan. 17.—Further particulars regarding the Granton poisoning case states that a powerful rat poison was kept in the house where the children had access to it, and it is believed that this poison was by some means conveyed into the cup in which the medicine was administered. One of the children was given a powder out of this cup and died in a very few minutes, while the other who drank a dose of salts out of the same vessel only lingered half an hour. Dr. Laing states that in his surgery the strychnine was kept in a bottle on a shelf, far removed from where the powder or salts was kept, and it was impossible for the poison to become mixed with the drugs by accident. The medicine of which the children partook has been sent away for analysis.

A Necklace of Pearls.

New York Letter in Chicago Tribune.

There was a new opera and a new necklace for the fashionable people to see this week. The opera was "Merlin," and it was well enough in its way. The triumphant article was the famous string of pearls which had once belonged to the Empress Eugenie and been worn by her in the days of the French monarchy. Even in those days of royal glitter in Paris this jeweled thing shone so brightly as to dazzle beholders accustomed to lavish adornments. It consists of 346 Oriental pearls, set in a golden chain, and it was valued then at about $150,000. Napoleon's widow put it into a safe deposit vault in Paris on her retirement to Chiselhurst, and there it lay until the recent sale of her useless effects. William K. Vanderbilt and his wife were in the French capital, and they purchased it at $130,000. They bought other things from the Eugenie collection—mostly household embellishments—and these will be displayed at next week's reopening of the Fifth-avenue residence. Mrs. Willie Vanderbilt put on the necklace for the opera. It was worn across the top of her head, thence down the back of her coiffure to her neck; which it encircled, with enough left to hang down on her bosom. Not a singer on the stage, and hardly a dowager, [illegible] Mrs. Van-

EMPEROR'S REGRETS

THE REJECTION OF THE ARMY BILL SADDENED EMPEROR WILLIAM.

BERLIN, Jan. 17.—Emperor William, receiving the president of the Prussian Landtag to-day, referred to the dissolution of the Reichstag and the rejection of the Army Bill. "The rejection of this measure, so important for the preservation of peace to Germany," the Emperor said, "has deeply saddened me. After so many happy days have been vouchsafed to me in my old age, especially after completing so many years of service in the army, the rejection of the bill impressed me deeply and most painfully. It is impossible from a military point of view to regard the three years' term proposed by the majority of the Reichstag, as sufficient. I hope the bill will be passed in the near future."

Must be Ready to Go Home.

LONDON, Jan. 17.—Several Germans in England have received telegrams from the German Consulate in London requesting them to be ready to return to Germany at twenty-four hours' notice and report for duty.

The Prussian Diet.

BERLIN, Jan. 17.—In the Upper House of the Prussian Diet to-day the address in reply to the speech from the throne was referred to a committee of ten.

Herr Besler, National Liberal, declared that the Nationalists would unanimously support the address, frank as the impressions were of what the Emperor had said in expressing patriotic sorrow for the action of the Reichstag. He hesitated, however, to endorse the opinions of the address.

Baron Solemacher, in moving the address, hoped the committee would succeed in removing all cause of hesitation.

Herr Bennigsen has consented to resume the leadership of the Nationalists, and will seek re-election to the Reichstag. Herr Miquel will also be a candidate. Both have endorsed the electoral appeal approved by the Nationals yesterday. Herr Bennigsen will probably stand for the District of Hanover, which he formerly represented.

WAR PREPARATIONS IN AUSTRIA.

Hospital Nurses to be Increased and Supplies Contracted for.

VIENNA, Jan. 17.—The Government continues to hasten its preparations for war. Orders have been issued instructing the Red Cross Society to raise the staffs of the hospitals under its management to their full strength, and to quadruple the number of beds in those institutions. Large contracts have been made for provisions deliverable to the War Department in March. The railway officials, who were recently summoned to Vienna to consult with the Government respecting the transportation of troops in the event of the mobilization of the army, have just reported that the preparations then decided upon have been completed.

The Newfoundland Fisheries.

PARIS, Jan. 17.—In the Senate to-day Admiral Veron complained of attacks made upon the rights of French fishermen in Newfoundland waters, and he instanced the case of a St. Malo vessel which had been forbidden to fish.

M. Flourens, Minister of Foreign Affairs, replied that the case of the St. Malo vessel was now the subject of inquiry; that the Government intended to enforce respect for existing treaties, and had sent the necessary orders to the commanders of the French naval station.

A French Secret Service Fund.

PARIS, Jan. 17.—In the Deputies to-day Premier Goblet spoke in support of the Secret Service fund. He opposed the creation of a committee to have control over the fund, and demanded a vote of confidence.

An amendment to reduce the Secret Service fund and appoint a committee of control over it was rejected by a vote of 278 to 220. The credit was then adopted.

Stanley's Expedition.

LONDON, Jan. 17.—Henry M. Stanley said to-day that the Emin Bey relief expedition would go by way of Zanzibar; that the enterprise would cost $100,000, and that it would leave Zanzibar composed of 1000 men. Of these eight would be English and the rest natives of Zanzibar. Stanley said he expected that news of the progress of the expedition would reach Europe by January.

Royalty's Growing Unpopularity.

LONDON, Jan. 18.—At a meeting at Oldham yesterday, the Mayor presiding, a motion to ignore the Queen's jubilee was carried, whereupon the Mayor said that there were enough present in favor of a celebration to warrant his going on with preparations for the event. A great uproar ensued, the Mayor being roundly hissed and booted.

Important Business Forthcoming.

LONDON, Jan. 17.—Lord Salisbury has sent circulars to the Conservative peers expressing the hope that all will be present on the occasion of the opening of Parliament, as important business will immediately be laid before the House of Lords.

Gladstone Braves the Storm.

LONDON, Jan. 17.—Although this was one of the coldest days of the winter Mr. Gladstone this morning walked from Hawarden House to the village to attend early prayers.

Heavy Snowstorms in Scotland.

LONDON, Jan. 17.—Heavy snowstorms prevail over the western portion of Scotland. In some places the storms are so violent that outdoor labor is suspended.

Evictions in Donegal.

DUBLIN, Jan. 17.—A numerous contingent of constables has arrived at Letterkenny, County Donegal, to protect the sheriffs in evicting fifty tenants.

The Spanish Cortes.

MADRID, Jan. 17.—The Cortes was reopened to-day. No speech from the throne was received, Premier Sagasta simply reading the decree convoking the Chamber.

Earthquake Shocks in France.

MARSEILLES, Jan. 17.—Earthquake shocks were felt to-day at Montpellier and at several other towns in the north of France.

Generous Miners.

LONDON, Jan. 17.—The Pontypool miners have decided to allow the masters $7500 to enable them to reopen their works and employ men.

Mrs. Logan's Home.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—The citizens of Chicago having contributed $13,000 to a fund for the payment of incumbrances resting upon the home of Mrs. Logan in this city, Col. Parker to-day called on her, and, obtaining from her a check on Riggs & Co., paid off the notes. Later in the day he presented to Mrs. Logan the cancelled notes, and she now owns the house known as "Calumet Place," on Columbia Heights, free from all incumbrances.

Cold in the Northwest.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Jan. 17.—The worst snowstorm of the season visited Minnesota and Dakota yesterday and last night. Specials from Pierre and Bismarck, D.T, state that trains are abandoned. The thermometer was shown 14 degrees below zero.

A Terrible Battle With Fists.

The McAuliffe-Gilmore fight was witnessed by only 43 men at $25 per head and lasted 1 h. 30 m. McAuliffe is 21 years old, 5 feet 6¾ inches, weighed 132½ pounds. Gilmore is 5 feet 7 inches tall and scaled within an ounce or two of his opponent. Further details of the battle are to hand, which show it to be one of the most terrible on record.

The sixteenth round was marked by desperate struggles on the part of Gilmore to obtain an advantage, but McAuliffe was not to be denied, and, fighting with the coolness of a veteran, he offset Gilmore's attacks and the latter again began to wear away. Then the Penetanguishene boy again forced matters, and up to the twentieth round pounded Gilmore in a most terrible manner. The Canuck was then very weak and was at the mercy of his opponent. McAuliffe was in no hurry to finish his task, however, but sought to wear Gilmore out rather than knock him insensible. In the twenty-third round Gilmore rushed forward, but was sent sprawling on the floor by a terrific right-hander. He gamely struggled to his feet and was again sent back just as the round ended. The twenty-fourth, twenty-fifth, twenty-sixth and twenty-seventh rounds saw McAuliffe pound Gilmore all around the ring, using left and right hands with great power. The Toronto lad was almost exhausted, but strove to stem the tide, but in vain. His hands were very heavy, and he had scarcely strength enough to raise his fists as he staggered around. Again did McAuliffe forbear putting in the finishing blow, seeming to have pity on his antagonist. In the twenty-eighth round Gilmore could scarcely walk to the scratch. He was bleeding profusely and was exceedingly groggy and gave McAuliffe a fine opening for a knock-out blow. The champion took due deliberation and then sent in a swinging right-hander on the jaw. Gilmore staggered back, threw up his hands and fell like a log, unconscious on the floor. The timekeepers waited until ten seconds had elapsed, and then, as Gilmore gave no signs of regaining his senses, McAuliffe was declared the winner. McAuliffe was attended by his brother Con, while Gilmore was seconded by Arthur Chambers of Philadelphia and George Koester of Montreal.

The Montreal Gazette has this to say concerning the fight: The contest took place in a loft, badly lighted, and with a most uneven floor, out of which holes had been cut at some time for posts, the places being filled with sawdust. The poor light and floor were, of course, against the man who relied on his feet action and cleverness to counterbalance the weight. The fight, according to the referee, Al Smith, was the best of over a hundred which he had referred, the spectators agreeing that it was the most stubbornly contested ever seen. Instead of losing friends, Gilmore has gained them, Mr. Harry Phillips, his backer, and A. Maloney, who also put up money heavily on Gilmore, agreeing that they do not regret their money, for it was the gamest struggle for the other side's greenbacks that they had ever seen. Mr. Phillips has matched Gilmore against the winner of the Carney-McAuliffe fight, and is willing to bet anything that he can beat any man in the world who weighs 139 pounds right before the fight. The management of Gilmore by his second was said to be faulty, as he held him back till he was too weak to do any damage. McAuliffe is said to be a splendid specimen of a pugilist, and Gilmore says he is undoubtedly the best of all he ever stood before, but he is satisfied he has the beating of him in him. An hour after the fight McAuliffe was stone blind. The Boston papers in their account give Gilmore credit for being one of the gamest men that ever stepped into a ring. Gilmore will meet any man at 133 in the world on the turf, and his backers are willing to lose $5000 to the man who can defeat him.

A Brecon Man Killed by the Cars.

BARRIE, Jan. 17.—Thos. Alford, aged 50, of Beeton, was found dead on the railway track by a section man this morning a short distance north of Tioga on the Collingwood Branch of the Northern and Northwestern Railway. Appearances indicate his having been run over and instantly killed by Saturday night's express as the body shows a bad fracture of the skull; one leg was off and was frozen stiff.

HOME AND FOREIGN.

Rain fell for forty hours in Montana, and the cattle are beyond danger.

Eleven and a half inches of snow fell at Brattleboro, Vt., yesterday.

THE DUTY OF THE ELECTORS.

Sir John Macdonald has shuffled a good deal before he could bring himself to trust his fortunes again in the hands of the electors, whose judgment he has such grave reasons to dread. The past record of his government is one on which he can not hope to secure the endorsation of the people of Canada. He himself knows that the intelligent and patriotic electors cannot be expected to approve of a course of wickedly reckless financial administration, which has increased the public debt from 93 million dollars in 1867 to 295 millions of dollars to-day, and which has increased the annual expenditure from 23 millions of dollars in 1878 to 39 millions of dollars in 1886; that they can not approve of a policy of corrupting the representatives of the people by distributing amongst them immense areas of the public domain; by giving them immense subsidies out of the public purse, more or less directly, in order to secure and retain their support, thus striking directly at the very root of responsible government, and destroying the usefulness of representative institutions; that his grossly overt and mischievous interference with the working of Confederation by, on the one hand, attacking the rights of the provinces, and, on the other hand, giving undue concessions to other provinces in order to take revenge for opposition or to secure their support, cannot be approved of; that the corrupt means, used in a multitude of ways, to secure support, are means that tend to waste the public treasure and debauch the persons thus appealed to, to lower the general tone of morality and to do away with that "righteousness which exalteth a nation." Sir John feels that his course carries with it its own condemnation, and he is adopting every means in his power to shirk the discussion of his acts. He is raising false, misleading and mischievous issues; he is setting race against race, raising the banner of discord and endeavouring to import into politics the most dangerous of elements, religious strife. He is doing all this to divert discussion from the acts of his administration. In Ontario he is appealing to the bigotry and baser passions of ultra-Protestants through his paid organ the Mail; in Quebec he is using means to excite the French and Roman Catholics against their Protestant fellow citizens; not that he cares a jot for Protestantism or any other form of religion, but he is willing, in order to snatch a momentary triumph, to arouse passions that will not die for years, and which will be a perpetual source of friction, heart burning and destruction of harmony amongst a people of mixed races and religions. But the people must not allow him to do this; the indictment against his administration is a weighty one and Sir John and his following must be made to plead to it; on it they must be either condemned or acquitted. He must not be allowed to bedevil the issue by raising a mist of race or religious matters. Let the Dominion Government be judged on its merits, and there is no question but that the verdict will be swift and decisive.

The auditors, Messrs. John J. Hall and James A. Hall, reported having examined the accounts and found them correct.

The Secretary read the following report:—

To the Members of the Little Lake Cemetery Co.

Your Directors beg to present the following Report for the year 1886:—

As will appear by the Treasurer's balance sheet the receipts of the year from ordinary sources have been about the same as for the preceding year, while the expenditure has been somewhat less, but during the preceding year a debenture for $1,000 was converted into cash, thus swelling the receipts.

The sale of lots and graves with the improvements thereon amounted to $1519, vault fees $17.25, and money received for labour in different ways, $968.20, making the total receipts from these sources $2494.45, as against $2,580.67 last year. There is still due for sale of lots $250, and for work $126. The interest received, $115.90, brings the total receipts up to $3687.44.

The expenditure includes the large amount of $1692.92 on account of the new grounds and the ordinary expenditure $1778.03, in all $3670.95, showing a small balance of $3.51 over drawn. Against this, however, are the amounts still due for lots sold and work done, $476, leaving a substantial margin in favour of the company, and all of which would have been collected but for the fact that the work was kept up so late this fall and the Superintendent was subsequently unable owing to severe family affliction to attend to the collections.

The work done on the new grounds during the year shows to good advantage. The building of the new fence, the removal of the old fence, the levelling of the ground, the draining that has been done, have involved a considerable expenditure. In the purchase of the land and the work done last year there was laid out $2266.75; in work this year, tile and draining and other items, $1092.92; making the total cost of the ground till date $4359.67. The purchase and planting of ornament trees and extension of the waterworks system will probably bring the cost of the new grounds when completed up to about $6000. Against this the Company has 1202 lots worth on an average $60 apiece, or $36,060 in all, leaving a balance to the good of over $34,000.

The Superintendent's report shows the details of the work done by him. The fence built by Thomas Irvin, the lowest tenderer therefor, at $491.65, and $301.26 was expended for tile purchased by your Directors.

There remains still to be considered by the incoming directors the necessity of extending the system of waterworks to the new grounds and the planting of ornamental shade trees. For this purpose provision has been made in the survey, an allowance of 4 feet being left on each side of the avenues running through it.

The old part of the cemetery has been, as usual, carefully attended to, and its handsome appearance continues to attract favorable comment. Trees are reported to be still needed in it about the same number of lots as in the new. The company may now be congratulated on having one of the best and most handsome cemeteries in the Province.

JOHN J. LUNDY,
President.
J. EDWARDS,
Sec.-Treas.

Dated Jan. 17th, 1887.

Superintendent Kelly's report was then read, as follows:—

To the President and Directors of the Little Lake Cemetery Company:

GENTLEMEN,—I beg leave to report that the receipts and expenditures at the Little Lake Cemetery from the first of January, 1886, to the first of January, 1887, were as follows:—

Receipts.

For sale of lots	$1,575 00
For sale of single graves	56 00
Vault fees	17 25
Improvement on lots	129 00
Removals	30 00
Digging graves, etc.	322 00
Miscellaneous work	354 20
	$2,484 45

Due on Account.

For sale of lots	$ 200 00
" sundry work	102 00
" digging graves	32 00
	334 00
	$2,818 45

Expenditure.

Paid superintendent's salary	$ 285 00
" for labor, etc.	1,695 55
	$1,980 55
Balance of assets over expenses	$ 838 00

Total number of interments during 1886, 145.

In presenting my usual annual report I need scarcely refer to the large amount of work that has been done during the year as you have watched its progress from time to time.

I might however, refer to the large amount of drainage that has been done—some three thousand three hundred and fifty feet—the greater portion of which is laid with tile, the balance being built of stone which I am satisfied will prove efficient and the stones would in any case have to be removed from the grounds.

There has been some thirteen hundred lo improved during the year which are near all staked and measured off. The whole of the ground has been seeded and the terraces have all been sodded which involved a very large amount of labor.

The road outside the Cemetery which was in a bad condition has been ditched and boulevarded for quite a distance and is now in good shape and constantly used by the public.

A piece of crib work 200 feet long has been built outside the Cemetery on Crescent Street. In this connection I would respectfully suggest that you urge the Town Council to undertake the prosecution of this work around the lake, for as I have before pointed out the sooner it is done the less it will cost.

I would also direct your attention to the purchase of ornamental trees which should be planted as early next spring as possible.

I might add that there has been expended for labor this year the sum of $817.76, over last year the whole of which was expended on the new grounds and as there over 1200 lots available, say at $30 per lot amounting to $39,000, would leave a large balance in favor of the company over the expenditure, and purchase money.

All of which is respectfully submitted,

JOHN KELLY,
Superintendent.

January 17th 1887.

The three reports were adopted.

The election of Directors for the ensuing year was then proceeded with, Messrs. J. J. Hall and H. Deane acting as scrutineers. The ballot-casting resulted in the election of Rev. V. Clementi, John Burnham, M.P., G. M. Roger, Hon. R. Hamilton, Chas. Stapleton, Henry Deane, J. J. Landy, James Stevenson and Judge Dennistoun.

Mr. Kingan suggested that Mr. E. B. Edwards be asked to examine into the statutes and see if the present mode of electing Directors by ballot cannot be changed by the officers of this Society, the present system being too slow. The suggestion was put in the form of a motion and carried.

The meeting then adjourned.

Have You thought about It.

Why suffer a single moment when you can get immediate relief from all eternal or external pains by the use of Polson's Nerviline, the great pain cure. Nerviline has never been known to fail in a single case: it cannot fail, for it is a combination of the most powerful subduing remedies known. Try a 10 cent sample bottle of Nerviline You will find Nerviline a sure cure for neuralgia, toothache, headache. Buy and try. Large bottle 25 cents, by all druggists. 6dw3

Reason why you should purchase Fluid Lightening in preference to all remidies are: Rapid result—cures instantly. it is easily applied—no trouble—no lost time. It does not require constant use—one application is effectual. One bottle will remove more pain than any other remedy in existance. Try it for Neuralgia Toothache, Headache, Rheumatism. Sold at 25c. a bottle by John McKee Druggist. ecdw3

Fine Grain.

The substitute of inferior articles and the taking off of nauseous dosage from Proprietary Medicines, no doubt has largely benefitted the consumers, as well as relieving the burdens of home manufacturers. Especially is this the case with Green's August Flower and Boschee's German Syrup, as the reduction of thirty-six cents per dozen has been added to increase the size of the bottles containing these remedies, thereby giving one-fifth more medicine in the 75 cent size. The August Flower for Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint, and the German Syrup for Cough and Lung troubles have, perhaps, the largest sale of any medicines in the world. The advantage of increased size of the bottles will be greatly appreciated by the sick and afflicted, in every town and village in civilized countries. Sample bottles for 10c. remain in the same size. eodw1

Invisible but Instantaneous.

All pains or aches will be instantly removed by a few drops of Fluid Lightning applied over the affected parts. No time lost; no nauseous medicine needed; no poulticing or using greasy liniments. It will not blister or discolor the skin. Sold at 25c per bottle by John McKee Druggist. Sufferers from Neuralgia assure us that they never fear it when their house contains a bottle of Fluid Lightning. eodw3

The Deaf made to hear

"After eight years suffering from deafness so bad that I was unable to attend to my business, I was cured by the use of Hagyard's Yellow Oil. With gratitude I make this known for the benifit of others afflicted." Harry Richards, Toronto. 2w3d

Worms often destroy children, but Freeman's Worm Powders destroys Worms, and expel them from the system. dwd

A Lucky Escape.

Mrs. Cyrus Kilborne, of Beamsville, Ont, had what was thought to be a cancer on her nose, and was about to submit to a cancer doctor's operation, when she tried Burdock Blood Bitters, which effected a radical cure. This medicine cures all blood diseases. 2w3d

Left by himself he advanced a few steps mechanically, on the way by which Sydney had escaped him—and then stopped. Was there any sufficient reason for his following her and intruding himself on her notice? She had recovered, she was in possession of his address, she had been referred to a person who could answer for his good intentions; all that it was his duty to do had been done already. He turned back again, in the direction of the hotel.

Hesitating once more, he paused half way along the corridor which led to Catherine's sitting-room. Voices reached him from persons who had entered the house by the front door. He recognised Mrs. Presty's loud, confident tones. She was taking leave of friends, and was standing with her back toward him. Bennydeck waited, unobserved, until he saw her enter the sitting-room. No such explanation as he was in search of could possibly take place in the presence of Catherine's mother. He returned to the garden.

Mrs. Presty was in high spirits. She had enjoyed the festival; she had taken the lead among the friends who accompanied her to the palace; she had ordered everything and had paid for nothing, at that worst of all bad public dinners in England, the dinner which pretends to be French. In a buoyant frame of mind, ready for more enjoyment if she could only find it, what did she see on opening the sitting-room door? To use the expressive language of the stage, Catherine was "discovered alone"—with her elbows on the table, and her face hidden in her hands—the picture of despair.

Mrs. Presty surveyed the spectacle before her with righteous indignation visible in every line of her face. The arrangement which bound her daughter to give Bennydeck his final reply on that day had been well known to her when she left the hotel in the morning. The conclusion at which she arrived, on returning at night, was expressed with Roman brevity and Roman eloquence in four words:

"Oh, the poor captain!"

Catherine suddenly looked up.

"I knew it," Mrs. Presty continued, with her sternest emphasis: "I see what you have done in your face. You have refused Bennydeck."

"God forgive me, I have been wicked enough to accept him!"

Hearing this, some mothers might have made apologies, and other mothers might have asked what that penitential reply could possibly mean. Mrs. Presty was no matron of the ordinary type. She welcomed the good news without taking the smallest notice of the expression of self-reproach which had accompanied it.

"My dear child, accept the congratulations of your fond old mother. I have never been one of the kissing sort (I mean, of course, where women are concerned), but this is an occasion which justifies something quite out of the common way. Come and kiss me."

Catherine took no notice of that outburst of maternal love.

"I have forgotten everything that I ought to have remembered," she said. "In my vanity, in my weakness, in my selfish enjoyment of the passing moment, I have been too supremely happy even to think of the trials of my past life, and of the false position in which they have placed me toward the man whom I ought to be ashamed to deceive. I have only been recalled to a sense of duty, I might almost say to a sense of decency, by my poor little child. If Kitty had not reminded me of her father——"

Mrs. Presty dropped into a chair; she was really frightened. Her fat cheeks trembled like a jelly on a dish that is suddenly moved.

"Has that man been here?" she asked.

"What man?"

"The man who may break off your marriage if he meets with the captain. Has Herbert Linley been here?"

"Certainly not. The one person associated with my troubles whom I have seen to-day is Sydney Westerfield."

Mrs. Presty bounced out of her chair. "You—have seen—Sydney Westerfield?" she repeated, with emphatic pauses which expressed amazement, tempered by unbelief.

"Yes; I have seen her."

"Where?"

"In the garden."

"And spoken to her?"

"Yes."

"Mrs. Presty raised her eyes to the ceiling. Whether she expected our old friend "the recording angel" to take down the questions and answers that had just passed, or whether she was only waiting to see the hotel that held her daughter collapse under a sense of moral responsibility, it is not possible to decide. After an awful pause the old lady remembered that she had something more to say, and said it.

"I make no remark, Catherine; I don't even want to know what you and Miss Westerfield said to each other. At the same time, as a matter of convenience to myself, I wish to ascertain whether I must leave this hotel or not. The same house doesn't hold that woman and Me. Has she gone?"

"She has gone."

Mrs. Presty looked round the room. "And taken Kitty with her?" she asked.

"Don't speak of Kitty!" Catherine cried, in the greatest distress. "I have had to keep the poor, innocent, affectionate child apart from Miss Westerfield by force. My heart aches when I think of it."

"I'm not surprised, Catherine. My granddaughter has been brought up on the modern system. Children are all little angels—no punishment—only gentle remonstrance—'don't be naughty, dear, because you will make poor mamma unhappy.' And then mamma grieves over it and wonders over it when she finds her little angel disobedient. What a fatal system of education! All my success in life; every quality that endeared me to your father and Mr. Presty; every social charm that has made me the idol of society, I attribute entirely to judicious correction in early life, applied freely with the open hand. We will change the subject. Where is dear Bennydeck? I want to congratulate him on his approaching marriage." She looked hard at her daughter, and mentally added: "He'll live to regret it!"

Catherine knew nothing of the captain's movements. "I have something to say to him, and I don't know where he is."

Mrs. Presty still kept her eyes fixed on her daughter. Nobody observing Catherine's face, and judging also by the tone of her voice, would have supposed that she was alluding to the man whose irresistible attractions had won her. She looked ill at ease and she spoke sadly.

"You don't seem to be in good spirits, my dear," Mrs. Presty gently suggested. "No lovers' quarrel already, I hope?"

"Nothing of the kind."

"Can I be of any use to you?"

"You cannot be of the greatest use. But I know only too well you would refuse."

Was that Mrs. Presty's first sense of uneasiness? Her self-satisfaction was not to be disturbed by trifles. She was not to be daunted by a refusal. She was ready to do anything for her daughter—except to make a sacrifice.

"Try me, Catherine."

"What is it?"

Catherine steeled her courage.

"You know what it is as well as I do," she said. "Capt. Bennydeck believes that I am free to marry him. Unless I set it right, you might help me to tell him the truth."

"What!!!"

That exclamation of horror and astonishment was loud enough to have been heard in the garden. If Mrs. Presty's hair had hung all her own, it must have stuck itself stood on end.

Catherine quietly rose. "We won't discuss it," she said, with resignation. "I knew you would refuse me." She approached the door. Her mother got up and resolutely stood in the way. "Before you commit an act of downright madness," Mrs. Presty said, "I mean to try if I can stop you." "Go back to your chair."

Catherine refused.

"I know how it will end," she muttered, "and the sooner it ends the better. You will find that I am quite as determined as you are. A man who love me as he loves me, is a man whom I refuse to deceive."

"Let's have it out plainly," Mrs. Presty insisted. "He believes your first marriage has been dissolved by Death. Do you mean to tell him that it has been dissolved by Divorce?"

"I do."

"What right has he to know it?"

"A right that is not to be denied. A wife must have no secrets from her husband."

Mrs. Presty hit back pointedly.

"You're not his wife yet. Wait till you are married."

"Never! Who but a wretch would marry an honest man under false pretenses?"

"I deny the false pretenses! You talk as if you were an impostor. Are you, or are you not, the accomplished lady who has charmed him? Are you, or are you not, the beautiful woman whom he loves? There isn't a stain on your reputation. In every respect you are the wife he wants and the wife who is worthy of him. And you are cruel enough to disturb the poor man about a matter that doesn't concern him! You are fool enough to raise doubts of you in his mind, and give a reproach to cast in your teeth the first time you do anything that happens to offend him! Any woman—I don't care who she may be—might envy the home that's waiting for you and your child, if you're wise enough to hold your tongue. Upon my word, Catherine, I am ashamed of you. Have you no principles?"

(To be Continued.)

Poverty and Distress.

That poverty which produces the greatest distress is not of the purse but of the blood. Deprived of its richness it becomes scant and watery, a condition termed anæmia in medical writings. Given this condition, and scrofulous swellings and sores, general and nervous debility, loss of flesh and appetite, weak lungs, throat disease, spitting of blood and consumption, are among the common results. If you are a sufferer from thin, poor blood employ Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery," which enriches the blood and cures the grave affections. Is more nutritive than cold liver oil, and is harmless in any condition of the system, yet powerful to cure. By druggists. 6dw3

NICHOLL'S HOSPITAL.

Mr. McNeil moved, seconded by Mr. Kendry, that in view of the fact that a large number of ratepayers having expressed themselves as very much dissatisfied with the management and costliness of the Nicholls Hospital; resolved, that a special committee, consisting of Messrs. Moore, Davidson, Kendry, Douglass, McNeil and the Mayor, be appointed to investigate into the workings of the hospital, and recommend to this council such amendments to the Act incorporating the same as they in their judgment may deem meet.

Mr. Menzies thought the town should not pay $5,000 a year, and they should know what were the prospects of a reduction of assessment for next year. Had he known what an expensive affair it would have been he would have never voted for it. He favored the appointment of a committee of investigation.

Mr. Moore objected to acting on the committee, because he was sure no satisfactory result would ensue. Mr. Menzies should have thought about the cost of the hospital before it was accepted. All regrets now came too late. The cost of the Nicholls Hospital was not $5,000 a year, but about $2,000. A committee could do little or no good; the town was bound to the hospital by an Act of Parliament, which could not be gainsayed. A detailed report of the expenditure of the hospital should be presented.

Mr. Kendry believed that the matter needed enquiry into. He had understood that Mrs. Nicholls would endow the hospital and it would not cost the town a cent. He had voted for it on that ground. He thought the resolution was a move in the right direction.

Mr. McNaughton on rising reproached Mr. Moore for his remarks reflecting upon the Council of 1885, and suggested that Mr. Moore didn't know every point of the law yet.

Mr. Moore called Mr. McNaughton to a point of order. These remarks were base, idle, and mean insinuations.

Mr. McNaughton, continuing, stated that at the time the matter was first brought up he had opposed it, but was laughed at; now it was seen that he was right. He supported the motion.

Mr. Douglass said he was on that committee who waited upon Mrs. Nicholls, who had given them to understand that the town would never be called upon for more than $700 or $800 a year, but they had really been called on for three or four times that amount. A doctor had told him the other day that he thought in future it would not cost over $1,500.

Mr. Hartley coincided with Mr. Moore in his demand for a detailed statement of the expenditure, and also contended that the town should have more than one representative on the Board. The way to bring the affair to a climax was to refuse to pay out any money until such a statement was presented. He favoured the appointment of the committee.

Mr. Moore presented some figures showing that the "outlook was not so blue" as stated. What with the reduction of the town's share and a probable grant from the Government, the expense would not be so great.

Mr. Kendry asserted that the expenses of the hospital would double rather than decrease in the future, inasmuch as the first few months there were no patients while now the number was increasing. If the expense to the town could not be controlled, they might better go to the people and secure control over it.

Mr. Cahill was in favour of the motion. The investigation could do no harm.

Mr. Yelland thought they should be careful in treating the matter. The hospital was given in good faith by Mrs. Nicholls, and they should treat her views with deserving courtesy. He felt certain that Mrs. Nicholls would continue the endowment of the hospital. He favoured the appointment of the committee.

The motion was put and declared carried.

CRESCENT STREET.

Mr. Cahill presented a memorial to be forwarded to the Governor-General in Council, relative to the preservation of Crescent street from the encroachments of the water of Little Lake, which had been fully discussed at previous meetings. The memorial asked for an appropriation for dredging the lake during the coming season. The memorial received its three readings and was finally signed and passed.

Chief Cooper's report, which appears in another column, was read and ordered to be filed.

Mr. Moore introduced a memorial to the government for an amendment to the land assessment Act. He explained that a man having a large tract of vacant land, say 30 or 40 acres, in the outskirts of the town, his land is assessed as town property; while a man owning a ten acre lot is assessed for [illegible] requesting that all lands within the corporation be placed upon an equal footing, was signed and passed.

COMPLAINTS.

Mr. Moore stated that complaints were numerous, that the police did not enforce the by-law providing for bells on sleighs, and also that the snow plough did not get around till noon sometimes, even on George Street.

Messrs Kendry and McNaughton held that the snow plough did its work well, but as Mr. Smith had some 50 miles of streets to cover, it could not be expected that he could go over it all in an hour or two.

The Council then adjourned for two weeks.

The Nicholls Hospital.

Annual Meeting of the Trust—Bill of the Expenses.

At the first annual meeting of the Nicholls Hospital Board, held in Mr. Pousette's office yesterday afternoon, there were present:—Mr. R. Hall, chairman; Messrs. C. McGill, R. S. Davidson, J. McClelland, Jas. Stratton, J. W. Flavelle and Mr. Manson. Mr. A. Young acted as secretary.

The treasurer's balance sheet was presented as follows:—

BALANCE SHEET.

Endowment		Assets	$15,000 00
Loan	$15,000 00	Ontario Bank	591 24
Interest on Deben-tures	15 41
Revenue and expe'd'ture	635 83
	$15,591 24		$15,591 24

A statement of the revenue and expenditure of the Trust was presented and referred to a committee composed of the chairman, secretary and treasurer, to be itemised and prepared for publication.

The appointment of officers was then proceeded with, resulting as follows:—Mr. R. Hall, chairman; Mr. Manson, secretary; Mr. C. McGill, treasurer.

The following committees were appointed:

FINANCE COMMITTEE—Messrs. Davidson, Pousette and Stevenson.

PROPERTY COMMITTEE—Messrs. Stratton, McClelland and Davidson.

SUPPLY COMMITTEE—Messrs. Flavelle, McClelland and Cox.

The Trust Board then adjourned till Thursday afternoon.

Report of Crimes and Misdemeanors for Peterborough During 1886—A Decrease of Crime.

At the Council meeting Monday night Chief of Police Cooper presented the following report which explains itself:—

To the Mayor and Council of Peterborough:—

GENTLEMEN,—I beg to submit herewith the report of cases tried at the Police Court during the year 1886

In all there have been 357 cases tried, an increase of 60 as compared with the preceding year, but deducting the 110 cases tried for breaches of the Scott Act there is an actual falling off of 50 cases, which speaks well for a growing town.

There is almost a total absence of any of the most serious crimes, there having been only four committals outside of our county gaols, namely, two to the Reformatory and two to the Central Prison.

During the year the police have been successful in ridding the town of all houses of prostitution and considerably abating the nuisance caused by loafers congregating on the corners of our principal streets.

There are many other reforms which the police would have undertaken during the year had their time not been so fully occupied with serving summonses, subpœnas, attending court and other business in connection with the enforcement of the Scott Act, but when it is remembered that between three and four thousand summonses and subpœnas have been served during the year, you will understand that they have not been idle.

The revenue derived from the police court this year will be the largest in the history of the town, owing, no doubt, to the many and heavy fines imposed for violations of the Scott Act. I had considerable difficulty in collecting these fines, which was mostly done under warrants of distress and committment. Six persons were sent to gaol for non-payment of fines, four of whom served out their time and two paid their fines and were afterwards released. The collection of these fines was not only a difficult but a delicate matter, and the utmost care had to be exercised to prevent further litigation. The slightest false step would have precipitated the corporation into serious law suits, which would have resulted in heavy losses to the town.

I would respectfully call your attention to the necessity of amending some of the town by-laws, in order to meet the requirements of our rapidly increasing population, notably the snow by-law and that affecting carters and draymen.

Appended is a detailed list of the cases tried at the police court during 1886, as compared with those of 1885.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

W. H. COOPER,
Chief of Police.

"The Perfection of Art."

What the Newspapers Say of Wilson Day and His Dramatic Company.

The newspapers are teeming with flattering notices of the excellent dramatic talent comprised in Mr. Wilson Day's Dramatic Co., which opens a two week's engagement at the Opera house here on Monday next, Jan. 24th, in the famous comedy entitled "Uncle Daniel; or, the Messenger from Jarvis Section." Of the manager, Wilson Day, the Belleville Intelligencer says:—"His versatility is unbounded. To see this talented gentleman lose his identity in every character he assumes is the perfection of art." The Ontario, speaking of the able leading lady, remarks that "Miss Osborne impressed her auditors more than favorably, for she carried her parts to a successful finale that won her golden opinions. Her facial expressions are splendid and perfect, and her acting throughout masterly." Then of little Annie Bird, the Ottawa Free Press asserts: "Little Annie Bird beamed upon the audience between acts like a ray of sunshine and with her captivating manner fairly entranced her audience, and the enthusiasm over this wonderful child is daily upon the increase. The general verdict is that she is the greatest phenomenon of the age. She danced the highland fling last night in a manner that fairly turned the heads of those present." Speaking of the company in general these papers "have praise" [illegible] an ensemble to [illegible] and [illegible] seem here. One of the most commendable features of this talented company is the perfect manner in which everything is costumed that they play." The company plays at popular prices, 10 and 25c.

West Peterborough Election.

The Re-count Contended—Mr. Stratton's Majority 33.

The re-count, before Judge Weller, of the ballots cast in the West Peterborough Provincial Election of Dec. 28th, was concluded to-day, his Honor giving his decision on certain reserved points. During the proceedings Mr. W. H. Moore appeared for Mr. Carnegie, and Mr. W. A. Stratton and Mr. Dumble for Mr. Stratton. All the ballots were gone over and certain ones laid aside for argument. After argument and consideration of authorities quoted, His Honor summed up, giving Mr. Stratton 1,555 ballots, and Mr. Carnegie 1,522, leaving Mr. Stratton's majority 33, or one more than the total given in the official returns—but really one less, for when properly added up, the returning officers' totals of ballots gave Mr. Stratton a majority of 34 instead of 32, as generally understood.

The following rulings were made by His Honor:—

Ballots counted as good:

All ballots with number on back, put there by deputy returning officer.

All ballots without initials of deputy-returning officer.

All ballots on which the mark had not lost the semblance of the cross.

All ballots with cross in the division containing candidate's name.

Ballots marked with several lines crossing each other.

Those with cross for each candidate, with one crossed out.

The ballots held as bad:—

Those marked on back only.

Those with an x made with curved lines, thus x.

Those marked with a single line and no attempt to make a cross.

Those with the name of voter written on them.

Those with a cross for each candidate.

Effects of the Storm.

Yesterday's blizzard blocked up the railway traffic again and this morning the trains were very irregular. The morning G. T. R. express for Toronto from Port Hope did not go by way of Peterborough, but via Millbrook and the old line. The 7.05 train from Peterborough met it at Millbrook. The morning express from Toronto was an hour and a half late. On the Grand Junction Conductor Stantou's train arrived half an hour late. The Lakefield train left to-day on the arrival of the Toronto express. The C. P. R. trains were also delayed considerably.

THE BEST PAPER

you can possibly have in your family is the MONTREAL "WITNESS," which gives more profitable and interesting reading matter, has more fearless and intelligent editorials, and is, in all respects, one of the most reliable and newsy journals on this continent. There are, now-a-days, unfortunately, but too few newspapers that can be admitted into the sanctity of the family hearth, but the "WITNESS" is one of the few. Though full of enterprise in the matter of news, it never admits into its columns anything that could possibly injur the mind of even the youngest of its readers, while its Question and Answer Department, in which queries on all subjects of general interest are replied by competent authorities, renders it of the greatest possible value to all its subscribers. To commemorate the fiftieth year of Queen Victoria's reign over the British Empire the publisher of the "WITNESS" are given to all subscribers to that paper—either new or renewing—who send ten cents in addition to their subscription, a magnificent

PICTURE OF HER MAJESTY.

This fine potrait is highly spoken by many prominent Canadians who have already received it, and consider it a worthy likeness of our noble Queen.

The yearly subscription to the "DAILY WITNESS" $3.00, and to the "WEEKLY WITNESS" $1.00, an additional 10cent sto be in either cases it the picture be desired.

Send in your subscriptions without delay to JOHN DOUGALL & SON, MONTREAL.

The "NORTHERN MESSENGER" is ever gaining in popularity, and is still "THE CHEAPEST ILLUSTRATED PAPER PUBLISHED." Prizes of books and money are given to those who canvass for it. Price only 30c. a year, with reductions to clubs. Sample copies sent to any who may request them. JOHN DOUGALL and SON, MONTREAL.

A good paper for the family is the "WEEKLY MESSENGER," which gives the current news in a concise form, together with illustrated stories. The small sum of 30c. will secure a copy for twelve months.

SUN LIFE ASSURANCE CO. OF CANADA.

Gross Life Business for 1886, - - - $3,540,000.

EXTRACT FROM MONTREAL WITNESS, DATED DECEMBER 31st, 1886:—

THE LATE MR. McLACHLAN.

AN INSURANCE COMPANY'S PROMPT SETTLEMENT.

We have been asked by Mr. McLachlan to publish the following, and do so in view of the exceptional public interest taken in the case mentioned:—

To R. Macaulay, Esq., Managing Director of the Sun Life Assurance Company:—

DEAR SIR,—I have much pleasure in acknowledging the payment by you of $17,130.70, being the amount due under the policies held by your Company on the life of my brother, the late John S. McLachlan. A company's character is tested when an opportunity arises in which it has the power to take advantage of a technicality or inability (as in the present case) to comply with every condition and requirement, so as to occasion delay and expense, and perhaps finally defeat a just and honest claim. There is no doubt in the mind of any reasonable man that my brother and Mr. Sumner were unhappily drowned, and the affidavi s produced abundantly support this; but although a careful search has been made, the bodies may never be recovered owing to the swiftness of the current and the low temperature of the water. It would, indeed, be a hardship if any company were, under the circumstances, to demand technical proofs which, from the very nature of the case, it is impossible to furnish. I have great pleasure in certifying to the honorable and liberal manner in which your Company has acted in regard to the claim. As soon as your board of directors was aware that the accident had really happened, you gave every facility for a prompt settlement. You have been the first of the companies interested to pay, and I thank you for the kind and satisfactory manner in which you have met me.

W. McLACHLAN.

The Dominion Safety fund, we understand, has also paid its policy of $2,000. The Sun Life has taken from the executors of Mr. McLachlan a personal bond to refund the amount of insurance with six per cent. per annum compound interest, should be ever turn up alive. Mr. J. S. McLachlan had in all $42,130.70 insurance on his life, and other companies resist the claims.

WHY
Will people pay rent when houses and lots can be purchased on such easy terms as are offered by the undersigned. Come and inspect our work and see for yourselves how we construct our houses. Our chief aim and study is to build substantial, warm, frost and damp proof houses. I am offering good building lots, and will build solid brick houses, nine-inch walls, strapped and lathed, two stories, for less money than you can buy frame or veneered buildings. We cordially invite those who anticipate renting or buying to inspect our work and prove for themselves that our houses are not merely built to sell. Every house I've sold gives first-class satisfaction, and I am determined that every house I build shall be a standing testimony to honest building. LAW ON THEIR SIDE.

THE IRISH LANDLORDS WANT SOME SORT OF SATISFACTION.

LONDON, Jan. 18.—The Liberal and Irish Nationalist Clubs of London are arranging to hold a great public meeting at St. James' Hall, to express indignation at the cruelty and inhumanity shown in the recent evictions on the Winn estates at Glenbeigh, County Kerry, Ireland. Right Hon. James Stansfield will preside.

The Evictions Proceeding.

LONDON, Jan. 18.—A special correspondent at Glenbeigh, County Kerry, who is investigating the evictions on the Winn estates, telegraphs that 150 policemen and bailiffs started for Coomastom, a wild and almost inaccessible glen, to evict the occupants of nine houses, the only dwellings in the neighborhood. The peasantry learned of their approach and removed the usual means of crossing the stream near the glen, and which was swollen by the recent storms. This delayed the evictors in doing their work, as the police, rather than wet their feet by fording the stream, preferred to make a long detour. Then the peasant women, who rejoiced in the trouble they had caused the police and bailiffs, carried the reporters and others who were friendly to the tenants across the stream on their backs. The police with much difficulty finally succeeded in climbing the glen. Then with fixed bayonets they proceeded to the houses amid the groans of the people and ordered them to be vacated. Several of them have already been emptied. The work of eviction is proceeding. After the tenants leave the houses are levelled with crowbars. The burning of vacated dwellings has been abandoned owing to Government pressure on the landlords.

Exciting Scene in Limerick.

DUBLIN, Jan. 18.—Exciting scenes were witnessed to-day near Caherconlish, County Limerick, the occasion being the eviction of Edmond O'Grady, a tenant on the Gabbett estates. Information was conveyed to O'Grady that a force of policemen, numbering 180, and bailiffs, under command of Capt. Plunkett, was coming to evict him and he prepared to give them a warm reception. With the assistance of the neighbors he cut down trees and shrubbery, with which he barricaded the house. Then O'Grady and about twenty of his friends proceeded to the upper story of the house, cut away the staircase behind them and stationed themselves at the windows to await the coming of the enemy.

The evicting party soon put in an appearance and stormed the house with sledge hammers and bayonets. Ladders were placed against the walls, upon which policemen and bailiffs swarmed, but the defenders threw boiling water upon their assailants and hurled the ladders to the ground. The attacking party advanced repeatedly upon the house and were as often repulsed. The contest lasted fully three hours.

Ultimately a hole was cut in the upper floor, through which some of the policemen crawled, while others covered the occupants of the house with rifles, threatening to fire if the slightest hostile movement was made. The eviction was then effected and several persons were arrested.

During the excitement crowds of people gathered about the house and cheered the defenders. For this display of sympathy they were repeatedly charged upon by the police and vigorously clubbed. A number of policemen and citizens were injured in the affray.

ENGLISH POLITICAL AFFAIRS.

The Closure Initiative Transferred to the Leader of the House.

LONDON, Jan. 18.—The leading proposal of the Government in regard to reform of procedure in the House of Commons is to transfer the closure initiative from the speaker to the leader of the House, upon whose motion a bare majority shall be sufficient to decide for the closure.

The Negotiations With Chamberlain.

LONDON, Jan. 18.—A sharp divergence exists between Sir William Vernon Harcourt and John Morley with reference to the negotiations with Mr. Chamberlain. Harcourt wants Gladstone to concede a form of compromise on the Home Rule question that will be acceptable to Chamberlain. Morley is opposed to making such a concession. Harcourt threatens, in the event of the collapse of the negotiations, to secede.

Fire in a Telegraph Office.

MONTREAL, Jan. 18.—About 7 o'clock to-night a fire broke out in the machine shop of the Montreal Telegraph Company, in the building on the corner of St. Francois Xavier and St. Sacrament streets. The fire made its way up a stairway to the upper story where the instrument room of the company is located. The firemen were promptly on hand, and spreading tarpaulins over the instruments and electrical apparatus, saved them from injury. The greatest damage was done in the upper stories where the floors were burned through in places, and the roof badly wrecked. The fire was put out in about an hour and the operators resumed work about 8 o'clock. The damage done is considerable, but the loss is covered by insurance.

The "Long Lost Heir" Swindler.

LONDON, Jan. 18.—George Franklin Anderson, who describes himself as an American solicitor, aged 37 years, and residing at the Hotel Metropole, was charged in the Police Court to-day with obtaining large sums of money by fraudulent means from Charles Deakin of Susquehanna, Pa. Anderson pretended to be engaged in recovering property in England belonging to the ancestors of Deakin and had succeeded in swindling him out of $20,000. Anderson was remanded.

A Grand Sight in the Heavens.

PHELPS, N.Y., Jan. 18.—Prof. Brooks of Red House Observatory reports the observation of a magnificent parhelia this afternoon. On both sides of the sun were bows of prismatic colors and the sun appeared double with rays like the uneven outstretching of wands and downcasts. Behind the sun [illegible]

FLOOD AT CORNWALL.

AN ICE-JAM CAUSES THE RIVER TO OVERFLOW ITS BANKS.

CORNWALL, Jan. 18.—There have been several ice shoves here this winter, and the water has been unusually high in consequence, but not sufficient to cause any uneasiness. Last night, however, about midnight, the ice jammed again and the water rose very rapidly. Towards morning it flowed over the canal bank, running up the streets to First-street, a distance of 200 yards. The alarm was given about 6 a.m., fire bells rang, and hundreds of people were aroused and went to work to save the inmates of the buildings, which were flooded. Boats were procured. They were shoved through the icy water, which was freezing quickly. The thermometer marked several degrees below zero, and a terrible snow-storm raged. The Stormont cotton mills, which are situated between the canal and the river, were completely surrounded with water, the boiler being submerged and an immense amount of machinery and stock also. At the Canada cotton mill, woollen mills and Mack's flour mill, which are in the extreme east end of the city, the rise of water was a little late and the hands had all got to work. The flood burst in the doors and those employed in the lower stories had to fly for their lives. In the Canada cotton mill two men were supposed to have been caught by the water in the machinery room. Curtis Deruchie and Frank Bergeron. They went back to look after their tools, and Deruchie got out after great exertion, but Bergeron has not been seen since, and it is feared he has been drowned. All the mills were submerged to a depth of fully fifteen feet, the magnificent weaving room of the Canada cotton mill, the largest in Ontario, being at least a foot deep, with the quantity of stock in process of manufacture very large, and the loss is tremendous, not to speak of the machinery, much of which is wrecked by the raising of the floors. It is too soon to estimate the damage, but it will run up high into the thousands.

In rear of the town there was also flood water backing up Fly Creek and inundating the surrounding country for hundreds of yards in either direction. The scenes in the flooded district are heartrending. Many houses are under water above the second story, and the unfortunate inmates, unable to get out, were standing knee-deep in icy water. Relief parties were organized, and, with the aid of boats and lumber, managed to extricate the people and convey them to places of safety. Quite a number of horses and cows were drowned in their stables, there being no time to reach them.

As a large proportion of those summarily driven from their homes are laboring people, there will be great distress, especially as it must be some time before the mills are in full running order again. Steps are being taken to organize a relief committee to attend to the most urgent cases. The river itself presents a magnificent sight. The ice is piled up in huge masses, some towering to the height of many feet and glittering like diamonds in the bright sunshine. At this hour, 12 noon, the water has receded, being a foot or more lower than its highest mark, but there is no certainty that another flood may not occur.

HAMILTON BRIEFS.

Found in a Dry Goods House—Nearly Frozen to Death.

HAMILTON, Jan. 18.—An old man named William Fagin was found by a farmer this morning near the Mountain View Hotel with both hands and feet frozen. He was taken down to Hunt's livery stable and the police notified, and they had him removed to the city hospital. Fagin got drunk last night and wandered around in the bitter cold until he became stupefied, and would no doubt have perished had he not been discovered in time. The hospital authorities do not think he will lose any of his limbs.

A fire occurred in Wetherall's dry goods store from some unknown cause last night, and although it was quickly subdued damage to the extent of $2000 was done by water and smoke. The loss is covered by insurance.

Coroner Dr. Woolverton held an inquest at the Delta this morning in the case of Owen Lavelle, who dropped dead at the corner of Main and Blake streets yesterday afternoon. The jury decided that the deceased came to his death from natural causes.

CRUELTY TO A CHILD.

A Hamilton Man Committed for Trial for Illusing an Adopted Boy.

HAMILTON, Jan. 18.—The case against George Watt, charged with neglecting to support a child he had adopted, was taken up at the Police Court this morning. The evidence showed cruel illusage of the child by Watt. A man who lived at Watt's place swore the little boy had been compelled to sleep on a mat in a back bedroom, far from any fire and with scarcely any covering. While sleeping there he had had both his feet frozen.

Other witnesses testified similarly. Dr. Osborne, under whose charge the little sufferer is, said that he could not tell what the final result would be, but thought that the child will lose all the toes on the right foot and probably two of the left. His body was in a filthy condition when he was taken into the hospital.

The Magistrate committed the prisoner for trial, fixing the bail at $600.

PANIC IN A THEATRE.

Twelve Women and Five Youths Trampled to Death.

LONDON, Jan. 18.—A frightful accident happened here this evening. The Hebrew Dramatic Club gave an entertainment at a theatre in Princess-street, Spitalfields, which was attended by about 500 persons, mostly Jews. Some one in the gallery, doubtless for a joke, shouted "Fire." The gas was immediately turned off at the meter, and a terrible panic ensued. The people rushed in a solid mass for the doors, and numbers were trodden under foot. When the panic had subsided it was found that twelve women and five youths had been trampled to death and many others injured.

FIRE IN OTTAWA.

The Theatre Royal and Canadian Institute Burned.

OTTAWA, Jan. 18.—The Theatre Royal and Canadian Institute were burned here this evening. The fire started about 7 p.m. in the Theatre Royal from the stage scenery as the company were preparing to play "Fanchon." Loss on buildings over insurance, $25,000. In the Institute were many valuable books and papers, which were for the most part destroyed. The company lose all their costumes and personal effects. The cause of the fire is at present unknown.

The Opium Trade.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—The House Committee on Foreign Affairs to-day agreed to report favorably the Senate bill to prohibit the importation of opium into the United States by Chinese, or into China by citizens of the United States.

AUGUSTA, Me., Jan. 18.—The Legislature to-day balloted for United States Senator. Eugene Hale was re-elected.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Jan. 18.—The Legislature balloted for and elected C. B. Farwell as United States Senator this forenoon. Mr. Farwell succeeds to the place made vacant by Gen. Logan's death.

HARTFORD, Conn., Jan. 18.—J. P. R. Hawley was re-elected Senator to-day.

ST. PAUL, Jan. 18.—The Legislature to-day voted for Senator. The Senate stood: Davis, Rep., 33; Doran, 14. The House stood: Davis 79, Doran 26.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 18.—Gen. James A. Beaver was inaugurated Governor to-day and M. S. Quay elected United States Senator.

LANSING, Mich., Jan. 18.—Stockbridge (Republican) was elected United States Senator to-day.

Cardiff Holds His Own Against Sullivan.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Jan. 18.—Six thousand persons witnessed the six-round glove fight between John L. Sullivan and Patsy Cardiff to-night. Both were in fine condition, Sullivan weighing about 215 and Cardiff 195. Five and one-half ounce gloves were used. It was 10.26 when time was called.

In the first round Sullivan made a rush which Cardiff avoided, and he savagely attacked Sullivan. The men clinched, but soon broke away, and the remainder of the round was spent looking for an opening, which was not found. In the second round Sullivan rushed with short arm fighting, but neither men secured an effective hit. In the third round Cardiff struck a heavy blow on Sullivan's cheek and jumped away. Sullivan then struck at Cardiff. The latter retaliated, and, suddenly recovering, struck Sullivan two light blows in the face. In the fourth round neither struck a blow nor make a lead. In the fifth round Sullivan led. Cardiff dodged and they clinched. The round was devoid of results. In the sixth round, Cardiff led and pushed Sullivan to the ropes. Sullivan led and Cardiff dodged. Again Sullivan led and Cardiff cleverly avoided the blows and the contest ended.

Sullivan did not get in one blow. The referee decided the contest a draw. Manager Sheedy explained that Sullivan broke a bone in his arm in the first round by striking a stake.

A Toronto Jeweler Injured.

KINGSTON, Jan. 17.—An accident of a peculiar nature happened to Augustus Kleiser, importer of watch tools and materials, Toronto, whereby he received serious and painful injuries while traveling between Renfrew and Arnprior last week. The car on which he was traveling had been detached from the train and was standing on a side track. The rest of the train came to connect with it again, but in doing so quite a collision occurred, throwing Mr. Kleiser, who happened to be walking down the aisle, heels-over-head over four or five seats. He fell striking his breast heavily on the iron part of the seat and injuring himself internally.

SALISBURY & CO.
MISS KARCH.

The Daily Examiner.

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 19, 1887.

IT COMES HIGH.

The honor of being ruled or rather misruled by the Conservative politicians in Dominion matters comes rather high in more ways than one. It has frequently been shown that the public debt has been growing enormously under Conservative rule till it now amounts, if we take into account the accumulation of the last few months, to about two hundred and eighty five million dollars, more than a million dollars to each riding in the Dominion—a million of dollars for each member of Parliament and the few thousands of people he represents. With all the taxation this debt brings—with all the pinching and saving it imposes upon the people who have to pay it—for the people have to contribute in taxes about thirty eight millions a year—our rulers live in regal luxuriousness. While Hon. Messrs. Blake and Laurier travelled through Ontario recently and paid their way out of their own pockets like honest citizens, the Ministerial Combination must needs travel at the expense of the people—in a special car—the jaunty Jamaica, fitted up in the most luxurious manner, supplied with edibles and drinks of the most costly and epicurean character—all paid for out of the public purse. Within reasonable limits it is permissable that the travelling expenses of Ministers of the Crown when travelling on official business, should be paid by the public. But it is time to object when half a dozen ministers invade a province, with the object of helping Mr. Meredith overthrow the best government this country or any other country ever had, and take their election expenses out of the public chest. We don't know yet what the enormous bill for the stumping tour of Dominion Ministers will be, but we can judge that it will be a pretty penny, from the actual cost recorded in official documents of Sir Alexander Campbell's trip to British Columbia a few years ago. Below are the items as found in the Auditor-General's official report :—

C. P. Railway supplies for car Cumberland	$ 782 26
Porter on official car and supplies	235 38
Porter	499 05
Electric apparatus	49 00
Two new wheels	37 65
Painting	100 79
Carpets	55 62
Dry goods	56 63
Hardware	30 45
Fittings	385 00
China	51 50
Repairs	21 82
Uniform for conductor	22 00
Conductor's cap	5 75
	$2,381 78

If the people choose to pay out their hard earned money for such purposes they may do so, and they will have to do so, so long as they by their votes endorse the policy of the Dominion Government, which, by its reckless extravagance and wasteful expenditure, is fast running the country the way of bankruptcy. The salaries of Dominion ministers is $8,000 per year—twice as much as thousands of men have to live on and support large families for the same length of time, and it is certainly not taking a mean view of matters to demand that ministers in receipt of such an income should pay for their food and drinks and railway tickets like honest citizens. A countless horde of parasites—the example set by Cabinet ministers—are sucking the life blood out of the country, and it is high time that the rule of honesty should come to the rescue and leave some money to meet the expense of legitimate public services. Since 1878 the present Conservative Government have directly and indirectly squandered enough public money on themselves and political favorites, in bribery and unholy subsidies, to finish the whole Trent Valley Canal from the mouth of the Severn to Trenton.

MR. BLAKE AND THE TARIFF.

The reiteration of Hon. Mr. Blake's statement that he and his party, if entrusted with power, would take no steps to "smash" the National Policy, is like a bombshell in the Conservative camp. They see by his manifesto of 1882, re-asserted in 1886, that Mr. Blake holds that it is impossible, consistently with the demands of the public service for revenue, to lower the general rate of taxation, and the protective tariff, as it exists in the main, must be maintained. The Conservatives claim that the N. P. is not a perfect measure, and in this Mr. Blake agrees with them. But the latter holds that the incidence of taxation is unfair, and he is in favor of adjusting the taxation so that manufacturing industries will be assisted by the reduction of the taxes on raw materials which place many manufacturers at a disadvantage. He declares that, if desirable, immediate Free Trade is out of the question. Those who fear that the return of Mr. Blake to power will upset our present "national policy" of taxation and bring national calamity, will find Mr. Blake's recent deliverance on the subject interesting and re-assuring. In his speech at Toronto Mr. Blake said :—"As the election approaches you find, notwithstanding the pledge of 1882 as to the results of a fresh lease of power, the cry is raised again, "The tariff is in danger! To save the tariff you must once again return the Conservatives to office." If it be so that it is necessary to give the Conservative party a third lease of power in order to save the tariff, all I can say is that this is an acknowledgement that the principal pledge made by the Government at the last election has not been fulfilled, and that they have failed to accomplish the promise on which they were returned. (Great applause.) I desire to refer very briefly to the attitude of the Liberal party upon the question of the tariff. It has been grossly misrepresented. In 1882 I stated my views upon that subject in the most formal manner, by means of the address I issued to the electors of West Durham, as a manifesto to the country; by the principles then laid down I still abide. I said :—

You know well that I do not approve of needless restrictions on our liberty of exchanging what we have for what we want, and do not see that any substantial application of the restrictive principle has been or can be, made in favor of the great interests of the merchants, the laborer, the farmer, the lumberman, the shipbuilder, or the fisherman. But you know also that I have fully recognized the fact that we are obliged to raise yearly a great sum, made greater by the obligations imposed on us by this Government; and that we must continue to provide this yearly sum mainly by import duties, laid to a great extent on goods similar to those which can be manufactured here; and that it results as a necessary incident of our settled fiscal system that there must be a large, and, as I believe, in the view of moderate protectionists, an ample advantage to the home manufacturer.

Our adversaries wish to present to you an issue as between the present tariff and absolute free trade.

That is not the true issue.

Free trade is, as I have repeatedly explained, for us impossible; and the issue is whether the present tariff is perfect or defective and unjust.

I believe it to be in some important respects defective and unjust.

We expressed our views last session in four motions, which declare that articles of such prime necessity as fuel and breadstuffs should be free; that the sugar duties should be so adjusted as to relieve the consumer from some part of the enormous extra price he is now liable to pay to a few refiners; that the exorbitant and unequal duties on the lower grades of cottons and woolens should be so changed as to make them fairer to the masses, who now pay on the cheapest goods taxes about twice as great in proportion as those which the rich pay on the finest goods, and that the duties on such materials as iron, which is in universal use, should be reduced, so as to enable the home manufacturer, to whom it is a raw material, to produce a cheaper article for the benefit of his home consumer, and the encouragement of his former trade.

I believe that by changes of the character I have indicated, monopoly and extravagant prices would be checked, a greater measure of fair play and justice to all classes would be secured, and the burden of taxation would be better adjusted to the capacity of the people who are to pay. Depend upon it, a day will come when by sharp and bitter experience we shall learn the truth; and many who even now applaud, will then condemn these particular incidents of the tariff.

My reference there to the fiscal and financial limitations of our condition has increased force to-day, for since that time enormous sums have been added to the public debt, enormous sums have been added to the annual charge, and notwithstanding the great taxation, a larger deficit than we have ever known since Confederation has signalized the last financial year. Therefore the execution even of those measures of readjustment which I suggested in that address, and which we had proposed in Parliament in the preceding session, would be found much more difficult to-day by reason of the changed condition of affairs. We have no longer a surplus to dispose of—we have a large deficit and a greatly increased scale of expenditure to meet. And it is clearer than ever that a very high scale of taxation must be retained, and that manufacturers have nothing to fear. I then declared that any readjustments should be effected with due regard to the legitimate interests of all concerned. In that phrase, "all concerned," I hope no one will object to my including as I do the general public. In any readjustment I maintain that we should look especially to such reduction of expenditure as may allow of a reduction of taxation, to the lightening of sectional taxes, to the lightening of taxes upon the prime necessaries of life and upon the raw materials of manufacture, to a more equitable arrangement of taxes which now bear unfairly upon the poor as compared with the rich, to a taxation of luxuries just so high as will not thwart our object by greatly checking consumption, to the curbing of monopolies in cases where by combination or otherwise the tariff allows an undue and exorbitant profit to be exacted from consumers, and to the effort—a most important point—to promote reciprocal trade with our neighbors to the south. (Great applause.) That is a modest programme, you may say, but I believe it to be an extensive programme, representing the full measure practicable of attainment, and which can be fulfilled only by much expenditure of time and thought, after full investigation, careful inquiry, and ample consideration of details and of the bearing of each proposal, with the advantage of all those materials for forming a judgment on details, which are available only to men in office."

HYPOCRITICAL CONGRATULATION.

The local Conservative organ goes into ecstacies over the fact that the Dominion Government was "too thoughtful to fix a date (for the elections) that would disfranchise new voters through the lists being incomplete." It evidently forgets that in this riding some three or four hundred voters will be disfranchised through the necessity of using the voters' list of 1885. A better and more honest subject of congratulation might have been selected, say, for instance, the return of the "Great Stretcher" or the establishment of a new independent party with "Conservative leanings."

Sunday Funerals.

To the Editor of the Daily Examiner.

DEAR SIR,—Having noticed in your daily issue of Jan. 12th, an article signed by the clergymen of the town, by which we see a resolution has been passed, that in the future they decline to attend Sunday funerals unless the necessity of a funeral be determined by a physicians' certificate. Now, Sir, I was astonished that such a resolution should be passed by clergymen who are in reality paid servants of the people. Do they mean to say that they as a body are independent of the people? Now, Sir, I consider that our ministers are the servants of the people, and are paid for being so. As far as holding a service over the dead is concerned, it is, in my opinion, of little or no consequence. And if in the future our clergymen refuse to attend to the burying of our dead on the Sabbath, should we consider it necessary, we may dispense with their services, and bury as the Quakers do—in silence.

Free Trade.

The reduction of internal revenue and the taking off of revenue stamps from Proprietary Medicines, no doubt has largely benefitted the consumers, as well as relieving the burden of home manufacturers. Especially is this the case with Green's August Flower and Boschee's German Syrup, as the reduction of thirty-six cents per dozen has been added to increase the size of the bottles containing these remedies, thereby giving one-fifth more medicine in the 75 cent size. The August Flower for Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint, and the German Syrup for Cough and Lung troubles have, perhaps, the largest sale of any medicines in the world. The advantage of increased size of the bottles will be greatly appreciated by the sick and afflicted, in every town and village in civilised countries. Sample bottles for 10c. remain in the same size. eodw41

Invisible but Instantaneous

All pains or aches will be instantly removed by a few drops of Fluid Lightning applied over the affected parts. No time lost; no nauseous medicine needed; no poulticing or using greasy liniments. THE EVIL GENIUS.

By WILKIE COLLINS.

She really meant it! The purely selfish considerations which she urged on her daughter were so many undeniable virtues in Mrs. Presty's estimation. She took the highest moral ground, and stood up and crowed on it with a pride in her own principles which the primate of all England might have envied.

But Catherine's rare resolution held as firm as ever. She got a little nearer to the door. "Good-night, mamma," was the only reply she made.

"Is that all you have to say to me?"

"I am tired, and I must rest. Please let me go." Mrs. Presty threw open the door with a bang.

"You refuse to take my advice," she said. "Oh, very well, have your own way! You are sure to prosper in the end. These are the days of exhibitions and gold medals. If there is ever an exhibition of idiots at large, I know who will win the prize."

Catherine was accustomed to preserve her respect for her mother under difficulties, but this was more than her sense of filial duty could successfully endure.

"I only wish I had never taken your advice," she answered. "Many a miserable moment would have been spared me if I had always done what I am doing now. You have been the evil genius of my life since Miss Westerfield first came into our house."

She passed through the open doorway—stopped—and came back again. "I didn't mean to offend you, mamma—but you do say such irritating things. Good-night."

Not a word of reply acknowledged that kindly meant apology. Mrs. Presty—vivacious Mrs. Presty of the indomitable spirit and the ready tongue—was petrified. She, the guardian angel of the family, whose experience, devotion, and sound sense had steered Catherine through difficulties and dangers which must have otherwise ended in utter domestic shipwreck—she, the model mother, had been stigmatized as the evil genius of her daughter's life by no less a person than that daughter herself! What was to be said? What was to be done? What terrible and unexampled course of action should be taken after such an insult as this? Mrs. Presty stood helpless in the middle of the room, and asked herself these questions, and waited and wondered and found no answer.

An interval passed. There was a knock at the door. A waiter appeared. He said: "A gentleman to see Mrs. Ormond."

The gentleman entered the room and revealed himself.

Herbert Linley!

CHAPTER XLVIII.

The divorced husband looked at his mother-in-law without making the slightest sacrifice to the claims of politeness. He neither offered his hand nor made his bow. His frowning eyebrows, his flushed face, betrayed the anger that was consuming him.

"I want to see Catherine," he said.

This deliberate rudeness proved to be the very stimulant that was wanted to restore Mrs. Presty to herself. The smile that always meant mischief made its threatening appearance on the old lady's face.

"What sort of company have you been keeping since I last saw you?" she began.

"What have you got to do with the company I keep?"

"Nothing whatever, I am happy to say. I was merely wondering whether you have been traveling lately in the south part of Africa, and have lived exclusively in the society of Hottentots. The only other explanation of your behavior is that I have been so unfortunate as to offend you. But it seems improbable—I am not your wife."

"Thank God for that!"

"Thank God, as you say. But I should really be glad (as a mere matter of curiosity) to know what your extraordinary conduct means. You present yourself in this room uninvited, you find a lady here, and you behave as if you had come into a shop and wanted to ask the price of something. Let me give you a lesson in good manners. Observe; I receive you with a bow, and I say: 'How do you do, Mr. Linley.' Do you understand me?"

"I don't understand you—I want to see Catherine!"

"Who is Catherine?"

"You know as well as I do—your daughter."

"My daughter, sir, is a stranger to you. We will speak of her, if you please, by the name—the illustrious name—which she inherited at her birth. You wish to see Mrs. Ormond?"

"Call her what you like. I have a word to say to her, and I mean to say it."

"No, Mr. Linley, you won't say it."

"We'll see about that! Where is she?"

"My daughter is not well."

"Well or ill, I shan't keep her long."

"My daughter has retired to her room."

"Where is her room?"

Mrs. Presty moved to the fireplace, and laid her hand on the bell.

"Are you aware that this house is a hotel?" she asked.

"It doesn't matter to me what it is."

"Oh, yes, it does. A hotel keeps waiters. A hotel, when it is as large as this, has a policeman in attendance. Must I ring?"

The choice between giving way and being disgracefully dismissed from the hotel was placed plainly before him. Herbert's life had been the life of a gentleman; he knew that he had forgotten himself; it was impossible that he could hesitate.

"I won't trouble you to ring," he said, "and I will beg your pardon for having allowed my temper to get the better of me. At the same time it's to be remembered, I think, in my favor, that I have had some provocation."

"I don't agree with you," Mrs. Presty answered. She was deaf to any appeal for mercy from Herbert Linley. "As to provocation," she added, returning to her chair without asking him to be seated, "when you apply that word to yourself, you insult my daughter and me. You provoked? Oh, heavens!"

"You wouldn't say that," he urged, speaking with marked restraint of tone and manner, "if you knew what I have had to endure——"

Mrs. Presty suddenly looked toward the door. "Wait a minute," she said, "I think I hear somebody coming in."

In the silence that followed, footsteps were audible outside—not approaching the door beneath, but retiring from it. Mrs. Presty had apparently been mistaken. "I'm," she said, resignedly, permitting the person who had intruded on her to proceed.

He really had something to say for himself, and he said it with sufficient energy. He had been in the wrong when he threatened to take his child away from her mother by force of law; but had he not been punished when his wife obtained her divorce, and separated him from his little daughter as well as from herself? (Mr.; John Presty failed to see it; if anybody had suffered by the divorce, the victim was his injured daughter.) Still patient, Herbert did not deny the injury; he only submitted once more that he had suffered his punishment. Whether his life with Sydney Westerfield had or had not been a happy one, he must decline to say; he would only declare that it had come to an end. She had left him. Yes, she had left him forever. He had no wish to persuade her to return to their guilty life; they were both penitent, they were both ashamed of it. But she had gone away without the provision which he was bound in honor to offer to her; she was friendless, she might be in a condition of poverty too dreadful to be contemplated—and that was indeed a bitter reflection to the man who had misled her. (Mrs. Presty decided on stopping him there. She had heard more than enough of Sydney already.)

"I see nothing to be gained," she said, "by dwelling on the past; and I should be glad to know why you have come to this place to-night."

"I have come for two reasons. One of them is to see Kitty."

"Quite out of the question."

"Don't tell me that, Mrs. Presty! I'm one of the wretchedest men living, and I ask for the consolation of seeing my child. Kitty hasn't forgotten me yet, I know. Her mother can't be so cruel as to refuse. She shall fix her own time and send me away when she likes; I'll submit to anything. Will you ask Catherine to let me see Kitty?"

It was impossible to consent to this—and equally impossible to mention the reason for refusing. Unwillingly, to do her justice, Mrs. Presty paused over without reply the just request, the touching request, that had been addressed to her.

"You have two reasons for coming here," she reminded him. "What is your other reason?"

He declined to be ignored in that way. "Will you ask Catherine to let me see Kitty?" he repeated.

"I can't do it."

He got up from his chair. His face presented the same expression which Mrs. Presty had seen on it when he first entered the room.

"When I came in here," he said, "I told you I wished to speak to Catherine. It doesn't matter. I have got the information I wanted—and got it from you."

"I don't understand you."

(To be Continued.)

Poverty and Distress.

That poverty which produces the greatest distress is not of the purse but of the blood. Deprived of its richness it becomes scant and watery, a condition termed anæmia in medical writings. Given this condition, and scrofulous swellings and sores, general and nervous debility, loss of flesh and appetite, weak lungs, throat disease, spitting of blood and consumption, are among the common results. If you are a sufferer from this, poor blood employ Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery," which enriches the blood and cures the grave affections. Is more nutritive than cod liver oil, and is harmless in any condition of the system, yet powerful to cure. By druggists. 6dw3

RUPTURE CURED IN FROM 20 TO 90 DAYS BY WEARING EGAN'S IMPERIAL TRUSS.

This Cut Shows one Style only.

Read the following extract from a letter of a well-known citizen of St. Catharines,—hundreds like it:

ST. CATHARINES, Sept. 20th, 1885.

GENTLEMEN,—Being over 70 years of age, and over 30 years ruptured, I looked upon my case as hopeless, especially as I tried various appliances without success, among others, recently, two springless trusses made in New York State, costing me $40. Nothing would retain my Hernia. I have worn your truss over four months night and day, with great satisfaction and comfort; even to bathe in it the rupture has never come down, it holds me perfectly secure under all circumstances. You may publish it for the benefit of other sufferers. Yours truly, CAPT. B. KING.

This new Spiral Spring Pad Truss has taken ten years to make it perfect; is guaranteed to hold the very worst case during the hardest work or severest strain. It will cure every child born; and 80 out of every 100 of adults. Be warned—don't waste your money on useless appliances, but send stamp for our treatise; it contains full information, your neighbors' testimony, price list and questions for you to answer. When writing please mention this paper. Address from a common Blotch, or Eruption, to the worst Scrofula. Salt-rheum, "Fever-sores," Scaly or Rough Skin, in short, all diseases caused by bad blood are conquered by this powerful, purifying, and invigorating medicine. Great Eating Ulcers rapidly heal under its benign influence. Especially has it manifested its potency in curing Tetter, Rose Rash, Boils, Carbuncles, Sore Eyes, Scrofulous Sores and Swellings, Hip-Joint Disease, White Swellings, Goitre, or Thick Neck, and Enlarged Glands. Send ten cents in stamps for a large treatise, with colored plates, on Skin Diseases, or the same amount for a treatise on Scrofulous Affections. "THE BLOOD IS THE LIFE." Thoroughly cleanse it by using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and good digestion, a fair skin, buoyant spirits, vital strength, and soundness of constitution, will be established.

GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY

CURES ALL HUMORS,

CONSUMPTION,

which is Scrofulous Disease of the Lungs, is promptly and certainly arrested and cured by this God-given remedy, if taken before the last stages of the disease are reached. From its wonderful power over this terribly fatal disease, when first offering this now celebrated remedy to the public, Dr. Pierce thought seriously of calling it his "Consumption Cure," but abandoned that name as too limited for a medicine which, from its wonderful combination of tonic, or strengthening, alterative, or blood-cleansing, anti-bilious, pectoral, and nutritive properties, is unequaled, not only as a remedy for consumption of the lungs, but for all

CHRONIC DISEASES OF THE Liver, Blood, and Lungs.

If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have sallow color of skin, or yellowish-brown spots on face or body, frequent headache or dizziness, bad taste in mouth, internal heat or chills, alternating with hot flashes, low spirits and gloomy forebodings, irregular appetite, and coated tongue, you are suffering from Indigestion, Dyspepsia, and Torpid Liver, or "Biliousness." In many cases only part of these symptoms are experienced. As a remedy for all such cases, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has no equal.

For Weak Lungs, Spitting of Blood, Shortness of Breath, Bronchitis, Severe Coughs, Consumption, and kindred affections, it is a sovereign remedy. Send ten cents in stamps for Dr. Pierce's book on Consumption. Sold by Druggists.

The Carnival STAR is to be some forty odd mammoth pages, with five plate supplements, each worthy of a frame, and each good value for the cost of the whole paper.

A Boon to Horsemen.

Mr. Porter Robinson, of Bridgenorth, is agent for "Brewster's Safety Rein Holder." This is a perfect and simple device easily attachable to the dashes of buggies, carriages, express wagons, farm wagons, cutters, sleighs or any sort of vehicle. By its use the lines are securely held and can be fastened by it or detached in a moment. Thus the numerous accidents and injury to reins resulting from their falling and being trampled under the horses feet are done away. These rein-holders are made in three different styles. Every driver of a horse should have one of them. Apply to Mr. Porter Robinson, Bridgenorth.

Bobby Burns' Birthday.

Special Meeting of St. Andrews' Society—Arrangements Completed for Celebrating the Bard's Birthday—"It's Gould to be Merry and Wise."

The approaching anniversary of the birthday of the poet Burns—Jan. 25th—will be, as present appearances indicate, celebrated by the Scots of Peterborough, in a manner becoming the warm place the memory of

"The Lad that was born at Kyle," holds in every Scotchman's heart. At a special meeting of the St. Andrews' Society held on Tuesday evening, there was a large and enthusiastic gathering of the clans to receive the report of the committee appointed to make preliminary arrangements for the due and proper observance of the day. The President, Mr. Thos. Menzies, occupied the chair. The report of the committee was read and unanimously adopted. The report stated that satisfactory arrangements had been made with Mr. A. P. Morgan, of the Morgan House hotel, to furnish an elaborate supper, and that Prof. MacDuff, solo violinist, had kindly volunteered his services in the way of furnishing Scottish music to flavor the programme of toasts, songs and speeches, which will be prominent features of the occasion.

The celebration committee was appointed, consisting of Messrs. T. Menzies, president, chairman; R. H. D. Hall, Jas. Alexander, Jas. Hendrie, D. D. Galletly, and the secretary, W. Menzies.

With such a committee, and with Peterborough Scotchmen showing unusual interest in the forthcoming anniversary, there is no doubt that the supper on the 25th will be an occasion long to be remembered.

Invitations have already been issued, and tickets, as will be seen by advertisement elsewhere, are procurable at all the bookstores or from any member of the celebration committee.

Scott Act Squibs.

The Scott Act case against Thos. Dunn was concluded this morning. Inspector Cochrane testified to finding three bottles and a jug of liquor in Mr. Dunn's restaurant, upon which a prima facie case was made out. Mr. Edmison, who appeared for the defendant, asked an enlargement in order to procure witnesses who sampled the liquor and would testify that it was not whisky. The magistrate held that as Mr. Edmison had not seen fit to summon any persons for the defence, the case would not be re-opened for that purpose or enlarged. Mr. Edmison, he said, was not taken by surprise as to the nature of the evidence or the witnesses for the prosecution, and he should have looked after that in the first place. A fine of $100 and costs was administered, the first offence being proven. Mr. Wood appeared for the prosecution.

John McFarlane, arrested a few days ago for non-payment of a Scott Act fine, has since paid the amount, about $60.

The following item appears in the record of business transactions at Osgoode Hall, Toronto, Tuesday:—

QUEEN v. SNOWDON.—Stone (Peterborough) moved, for the return of a writ of certiorari, for an order nisi to quash a conviction under the Canada Temperance Act. Granted.

St. Paul's Organ Recital.

On Friday evening, Jan. 28th, a grand organ recital will be held in St. Paul's Church. A splendid programme has been prepared, consisting of organ solos by Prof. Parker—selections from the best masters—solo singing and choral selections, rendered by a well-trained choir of 32 voices. This promises to be the organ recital of the season, and the only one to be held in St. Paul's during the present winter. Tickets, 25 cents—to be had at the principal bookstores.

Useful remnants of every kind (cheap) at R. Fair's. GOLDEN LION.

Chemong Matters.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

DEAR SIR,—I was talking to one of the Indians from Chemong Indian village, and I asked about matters in that village, and he said, among other things, that there was considerable dissatisfaction in some respects. He stated that the good New England Company had sent a school teacher there to teach the children, but he was afraid the latter would not learn much from the said teacher, as he devotes great attention to farming. He has bought about twenty head of cattle, which have to find pasturage on the reserve. The teacher experiences considerable trouble in getting on with his many irons in the fire. Already he has lost quite a number of teaching days getting goods to sell to the Indians. The Indians are longing for an agent like the Rev. Mr. Roberts, who was one of the best agents, to look after the schooling of the young Indians, instead of having a teacher who requires another to look after him. Worst of all, the teacher (who is required to act as agent also) told the Indians that four acres is all that is allowed each man, and outside of that, the Indians have no right to anything, which the Indians understand to mean, that they cannot pasture their cattle and horses outside of their little lots, and even cannot cut a stick of wood for their own use, and that the company could spell this place, Chemong, and drive all the Indians out to-morrow if they chose. The Indians are living at present under very discouraging conditions and they think that if the company knew the real state of affairs they would speedily see it remedied.

Yours truly,
NEIGHBOUR.

Correspondence of The Examiner.

Since Mr. Duff has began to buy grain here, he has shipped about thirty carloads, ranging from 500 bushels to 900 bushels per car. Twelve cars of wheat were shipped to Liverpool. Of all the grain brought here this fall and winter, that of Mr. John Grady, Sr., was the heaviest. It was spring wheat and weighed 64 pounds to the bushel and his barley 52 pounds to the bushel. Beat this who can.

North Smith Dairy Co.

Mr. M. E. Sanderson, Secretary, sends the following to the EXAMINER for publication:

The North Smith Dairy Co. held their annual meeting in their factory on the 11th inst., when the report of the secretary showed considerable improvement in the business as compared with last year, yielding to the patrons about $22 per standard cow (of 300 lbs. of cheese) to those who drew their own milk. The directors were pleased to be able to declare a dividend of 14 per cent. on the paid up stock. Messrs. Robt. H. Braden, Wm. A. Graham, Milson Blewett and M. E. Sanderson were re-elected directors, with James Northy, Esq., taking the place of the retiring director. M. E. Sanderson was again appointed president by the board.

THE BEST PAPER

you can possibly have in your family is the MONTREAL "WITNESS," which gives more profitable and interesting reading matter, has more fearless and intelligent editorials, and is, in all respects, one of the most reliable and newsy journals on this continent. There are, now-a-days, unfortunately, but too few newspapers that can be admitted into the sanctity of the family hearth, but the "WITNESS" is one of the few. Though full of enterprise in the matter of news, it never admits into its columns anything that could possibly injur the mind of even the youngest of its readers, while its Question and Answer Department, in which queries on all subjects of general interest are replied by competent authorities, renders it of the greatest possible value to all its subscribers. To commemorate the fiftieth year of Queen Victoria's reign over the British Empire the publisher of the "WITNESS" are given to all subscribers to that paper—either new or renewing—who send ten cents in addition to their subscription, a magnificent

PICTURE OF HER MAJESTY.

This fine potrait is highly spoken by many prominent Canadians who have already received it, and consider it a worthy likeness of our noble Queen.

The yearly subscription to the "DAILY WITNESS" $3.00, and to the "WEEKLY WITNESS" $1.00, an additional 50 cent etc be in either cases it the picture is desired.

Send in your subscriptions without delay to JOHN DOUGALL & SON, MONTREAL.

The "NORTHERN MESENGER" is ever gaining in popularity, and is still "THE CHEAPEST ILLUSTRATED PAPER PUBLISHED." Prices of books and money are given to those who canvass for it. Price only 30c. a year, with reductions to clubs. Sample copies sent to any who may request them. JOHN DOUGALL and SON, MONTREAL.

A good paper for the family is the "WEEKLY MESSENGER," which gives the current news in a concise form, together with illustrated stories. The small sum of 60c. will secure a copy for twelve months.

SUN LIFE ASSURANCE CO. OF CANADA.

Gross Life Business for 1886, - - - $3,540,000.

EXTRACT FROM MONTREAL WITNESS, DATED DECEMBER 31st, 1886:—

THE LATE MR. McLACHLAN.

AN INSURANCE COMPANY'S PROMPT SETTLEMENT.

We have been asked by Mr. McLachlan to publish the following, and do so in view of the exceptional public interest taken in the case mentioned:—

To R. Macaulay, Esq., Managing Director of the Sun Life Assurance Company:—

DEAR SIR,—I have much pleasure in acknowledging the payment by you of $17,130.70, being the amount due under the policies held by your Company on the life of my brother, the late John S. McLachlan. A company's character is tested when an opportunity arises in which it has the power to take advantage of a technicality or inability (as in the present case) to comply with every condition and requirement, so as to occasion delay and expense, and perhaps finally defeat a just and honest claim. There is no doubt in the mind of any reasonable man that my brother and Mr. Sumner were unhappily drowned, and the affidavits produced abundantly support this; but although a careful search has been made, the bodies may never be recovered owing to the swiftness of the current and the low temperature of the water. It would, indeed, be a hardship if any company were, under the circumstances, to demand technical proofs which, from the very nature of the case, it is impossible to furnish. I have great pleasure in certifying to the honorable and liberal manner in which your Company has acted in regard to the claim. As soon as your board of directors was aware that the accident had really happened, you gave every facility for a prompt settlement. You have been the first of the companies interested to pay, and I thank you for the kind and satisfactory manner in which you have met me.

W. MCLACHLAN.

The Dominion Safety fund, we understand, has also paid its policy of $2,000. The Sun Life has taken from the executors of Mr. McLachlan a personal bond to refund the amount of insurance with six per cent per annum compound interest, should he ever turn up alive. Mr. J. S. McLachlan had in all $42,130.70 insurance on his life, and other companies resist the claims.

SOLICITOR—D. W. Dumble.

TO DEPOSITORS—Deposits are received by this Company both on current account and for periods of one year or longer. The rate of interest paid on amounts deposited on current account and which may be withdrawn by check in such sums as the depositor may from time to time require, is FOUR per cent., either paid or compounded half-yearly, and the rate on yearly deposits is FIVE per cent.

TO INVESTORS—The five and ten year FIVE PER CENT DEBENTURES of this Company which are issued in denominations of $100, $200, $400 and $1000 each, transferable by endorsement, with half-yearly interest Coupons attached, payable at the Head Office of the Company in Peterborough, or at any Branch of the Bank of Toronto in Canada, afford a safe and convenient mode of investment.

The funds of the Company being invested in first mortgages on Real Estate, no better security can be offered to depositors or debenture-holders, they having a first claim or mortgage on the whole Assets of the Company, the shareholders having the second. The annual statement shows that the amount so invested was over $950,000, and on the security of real estate at least double that value.

By the laws of Ontario, Trustees, Executors and Administrators may deposit Trust Funds of the estates which they control in this Company, and are free from all further liability, a privilege of which many have largely availed themselves.

TO BORROWERS—Money is obtainable from this Company on approved Real Estate security at the Lowest Current Rates of Interest.

The Mortgage may be repaid by yearly instalments, or otherwise as may be agreed upon. Interest ceasing at once on all amounts paid on account of the sum borrowed.

Applications may be made either to the Head Office, or to any of the Agents.

WHY
Will people pay rent when houses and lots can be purchased on such easy terms as are offered by the undersigned. Come and inspect our work and see for yourselves how we construct our houses. Our chief aim and study is to build substantial, warm, frost and damp proof houses. I am offering good building lots, and will build solid brick houses, nine-inch walls, strapped and lathed, two stories, for less money than you can buy frame or veneered buildings. We cordially invite those who anticipate renting or buying to inspect our work and prove for themselves that our houses are not merely built to sell. Every house I've sold gives first-class satisfaction, and I am determined that every house I build shall be a standing testimony to honest building. WEAK TRAMPLED ON.

FEARFUL STRUGGLE AT THE SPITALFIELDS THEATRE.

LONDON, Jan. 19.—The hall in Princes-street, Spitalfields, where a fatal panic occurred last night, is a favorite resort for the Jews of that part of London. Entertainments have been given there every night for a long time. Last evening a benefit performance was given and the place was crowded. During the progress of the play a man and woman quarrelled in the street outside, and near the main doorway of the hall. The man used violence and the woman screamed. Her cry was heard by a passer-by, who misunderstood it and shouted "Fire." The woman's screams and the cries of "fire" were heard inside and at once created a panic, the audience, numbering 500, rising in a body and rushing pellmell for the main entrance. The audience was almost entirely composed of Jews. The manager of the Hebrew Dramatic Club, which was giving the entertainment, was on the stage when the panic began. He perceived at once that there was no good reason for it and did all in his power to allay the excitement and to afford all possible facilities for the exit of the people. The hall has a number of entrances and he had them all thrown wide open and called on the people, when they would not remain, to divide and use all the doorways, but they paid no attention to him. In fact, many of them construed the manager's earnestness into proof that there was a fire and increased their exertions to get out. The whole crowd, as if with one impulse, made for the main entrance. It happened that among those who first reached it were a number of women and children, who had been occupying some of the rear seats. They were overborne by strong men attempting to pass them, and as the women and children fell at the doorway they tripped up others, who were crushed down by the rush of the frantic crowd. It took but a few minutes to empty the house and the alarm was so thorough that not a soul among the entire audience refrained from the struggle to get out.

When the people after reaching the street ascertained the facts of the situation a scene of great disorder ensued, caused by the discovery that numbers were missing. Then a rush back was made. This however was stopped at the main entrance by the police who had arrived and assumed control. Seventeen corpses were found inside the theatre near the door. They were all torn, crushed and disfigured. It was found that of the dead, twelve were women, three were boys, one was a girl and the other a man. The remains were almost unrecognizable.

Eye-witnesses say that the way the strong men who got uppermost in the struggle at the door crushed and trampled on those who fell down was indescribably brutal. It is stated that a number of infants carried in their mothers' arms, and clung to through all the panic, were also crushed or smothered to death, and that a number of others were fatally injured. The scene during the attempted return of the crowd was painful in the extreme. Persons remained at the doorway all night waiting to have their dead restored to them, and the lamentations of the women were heart-breaking. The police have been giving a number of contradictory stories about the cause of the panic. One statement is that thieves started the cry of fire for the purpose of getting an opportunity to despoil the many rich Jewesses in the hall of the costly jewels they bore on their persons.

The hall to-day resembles a disordered auction room. Broken furniture, crushed toys, children's hats, broken bottles, orange peel, actors' wigs and shreds of clothes lie scattered over the floor. There are many blood spots on the backs of chairs as well as on the floor. Every here and there ghastly knots of hair are clinging to the furniture. Several escapes were made through the windows, most of which are badly smashed. The bodies were found at the bottom of the stone stairs leading to the gallery. Here a terrible struggle took place between the front of the crowd rushing from the main floor and the leaders of the throng which rushed down the gallery stairs. The faces of the dead were distorted with agonized expressions. The clothes were completely torn from the bodies of some of the victims.

A little girl, since identified as Eva Marks, was found lying at the bottom of a pile of dead. Her lower limbs were bare, and the upper part of her dress was torn to shreds, showing that she had fought hard for life.

A man named Harris Goldberg says he went to the gallery of the hall, accompanied by his wife and family. They all sat together. The play was a melodrama called the "Spanish Gypsy Girl." During the performance some boys, in order to obtain a better view of the stage, climbed up and exposed gas pipe that ran along the wall. This strained the pipe and started a leak. Mr. Goldberg placed his handkerchief over the leak. Some one shouted "turn off the meter." This shout was raised simultaneously with a cry of alarm from one of the actors on the stage. Then the people in the gallery rose and rushed headlong down the stairs. Mr. Goldberg's wife was torn away from him and trampled to death. His six-year-old son jumped upon the heads of the packed mass and escaped by running over them.

The managers are not to blame for the disaster. The passage from the hall to the street entrance is ten feet wide where the struggle occurred and the doors swung both ways. There are several minor exits from the gallery—three besides the staircase. The disorder arose not from the crowding of the passage, but from the frantic efforts of the people in the gallery to force their way down the crowded stairs. The men and women in front were driven headlong into the passage, where they met the excited occupants of the pit and there was a hopeless block.

INUNDATED CORNWALL.

A Large Portion of the Town Still Under Water.

CORNWALL, Jan. 19.—Considerable anxiety was felt in Cornwall last night owing to the ice shoving. The water, however, is gradually receding, and by day light it was seen it had dropped two or three feet. The still leaves a large portion of the town under water, however, and there will have to be a drop of ten feet more before the work of getting the mills in order can be commenced. The people who were turned out of their houses have all been provided for in the [illegible] and there is no suffering.

HAMILTON MATTERS

Address by a Toronto Lady—Meeting of Hamilton Presbytery.

HAMILTON, Jan. 19.—Among those who delivered addresses at the meeting of the Presbyterian Women's Foreign Missionary Society last night was Mrs. Harvie of Toronto. She spoke at considerable length on mission work, giving interesting statistics to show its growth and development and recalling a number of incidents which illustrated the fact that the work done was of a lasting character, and that the good resulting from it could not be estimated. A collection amounting to $20.61 in aid of the funds of the association was taken up.

At the meeting of the Hamilton Presbytery yesterday a remit in regard to marriage with a deceased wife's sister was taken up. It is couched in the following terms: "The discipline of the Church shall not be exercised in regard to marriage with a deceased wife's sister, aunt or niece." The remit was approved by a large majority of the members present. Some disapproved of it on the ground that the Church had in its standards a clause to the effect that such marriages were incestuous. They expressed the opinion that the clause should be amended before the Presbytery approved of the remit.

HENRY GEORGE AND THE CHURCH.

His Writings Have Not Been Condemned at Rome.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 19.—The Sun has a special from Rome which says: "Much astonishment is expressed in ecclesiastical circles at the statement circulated in the United States that Rome has condemned the teachings of Henry George and that Dr. McGlynn has been censured for advocating them. It is authoritatively stated that George's teachings have not ever been examined by the Propaganda, and it is, therefore, evident that they have not been condemned nor their advocacy censured. Dr. McGlynn has many warm friends in Rome, and the construction put on the summons to come to Rome is deprecated as a mischievous error.

LITERARY WOMEN.

The Strange Superstitions and Selfish Sense of Them Have.

From the N. Y. Mail and Express.

"It is said that actresses have superstitions and vagaries in a more marked degree than any other woman," said an old litterateur to a Mail and Express writer. "But that is a fallacy which should be exploded; it does them a great injustice. Literary women have more oddities than any other class. New York is the home of a majority of women who desire to live by their pen and in no other city can they be studied to better advantage. Many of them believe in theosophy, transmigration of the soul into animals, pantheism, Mohammedanism, atheism, evolution and many other isms that place them out of the pale of Christianity. But they are not orthodox even in what they profess to believe and have many queer ideas and notions in connection with their religious faith. Now I know a young woman who at times is a charming writer, who imagines that her soul several hundred years ago inhabited the body of a great general. Her theory is that the soul never goes to another world and becomes a spirit, but merely leaves the casket or body of one person at death to find a home in another just born. By this means the immortality of the soul is explained. Her idea is that at times, by some freak, the soul or life principle in a dog goes into the body of a man and produces a monster. No man, she argues, can ever become immortal until his soul has been refined and purified by inhabiting for several centuries the body of a woman. The inconsistency of such a belief is apparent, but no amount of arguing can convince her that nature works on a more original soul plan than the one she believes in. This woman is practical outside of this crotchet.

"People can be great and have peculiar beliefs. Gen. Stonewall Jackson thought that eating black pepper gave him rheumatism in his left leg. Another literary woman, who perhaps is destined to make a stir within a few years, is an out-and-out atheist. Yet she goes to church and believes that number thirteen is a bad number; that to turn back when once started on a journey is not good luck, and that when the left ear burns a friend is talking about her. She can begin with Aristotle and Plato and by ingenious reasoning show that these worthy ancient philosophers were simply beautiful talkers and did not believe what they preached. She thinks Empedocles the wisest man of the ancients, because he jumped into the crater of Vesuvius to make his followers think he had ascended to heaven. Madame Blavatsky converted several to her belief in theosophy and they still relate wonderful things of that disciple of Gautama.

"One woman who can turn out three or four bright articles per day, firmly believes that she has already been in the nirvana state for over a thousand years and has just come upon earth for a brief period before going back again. She asserts that Edwin Arnold, the author of the 'Light of Asia,' is a seer and held spiritual communication with Gautama in order to get inspiration to write the 'Great Renunciation.' This woman has children and they attend Sunday school regularly. The father, however, is orthodox and thinks Gautama and his nirvana a humbug. Many female writers, especially those who drop into poetry, imagine they receive spiritual inspiration from authors who have been long dead. I could mention one whose name is frequently in the papers, who firmly believes she receives material aid from the other world. Strange, too, with this belief she is not at all superstitious about signs or omens. She has been sadly duped by several notorious mediums whom the press has exposed, yet she has faith in the ability of certain persons to trot a ghost out at any moment when the lights are turned down and the audience are away from the stage. I attribute many of the eccentricities in female writers to the fact that they try to keep up their physical animation by the free use of stimulants. A gentleman had a daughter who was writing a novel. She grew paler and thinner every day, but seemed to have a wonderful amount of animation at times, especially about the time she sat down to write. He was at a loss to account for it, as she took little exercise. One day his wife confessed to him that the daughter was using stimulants freely to assist inspiration. She said the daughter had read that Ouida, who was almost a skeleton, used stimulants to get up steam to finish a novel, and why not emulate that successful writer? The stimulant rock I advise all women writers to avoid. Have your sums, your superstitions, your omens and your vagaries, but shun liquor inspiration. The names of these women? Oh, no, I would betray confidence if I divulged their names."

The Castor Bean in America.

From the Savannah News.

Few persons, perhaps, in this section are aware of the extent of the cultivation of the castor bean in portions of this country. Its prominence as a crop in Illinois is due to the repeated failure of the wheat crop, which it has in a measure superseded. The plant is a native of Egypt, Africa, and its chief nursery in this country is Egypt, Ill. It attains a height of about four feet in Southern Europe and America, but in India reaches the size of a tree. It was known to and used by the ancients. The Greeks called it crotos. The Counties of Jefferson and Franklin, Illinois, claim the largest acreage devoted to it. In Southern Illinois a territory of over 20,000 acres is given up to its cultivation. To pay expenses and yield a fair remuneration it must bring at least $1.25 per bushel. Last year it sold on an average of $1.40, and farmers were encouraged. The same kind of soil that is favorable to wheat and corn serves for the bean. It requires a sandy loam, and is said to be ahead of clover in its fertilizing qualities.

Little Tidies About the House.

From the New York Commercial Advertiser.

A dainty spread for a baby's bed is of cream serge with pink clover blossoms strewn over it. The border is edged with pink and white cord.

A table-cover of gray-blue satin sheeting has a flight of swallows embroidered across it. The birds are worked in the natural colors and form an effective decoration.

A pretty bag for holding dusters is of cream linen, embroidered with disks in various colors. The top of the bag is faced with turkey-red, and the drawing-strings are of pink and green ribbon.

A cream plush table-cover has the border and the centre of Indian embroidery applied with gold thread in tapestry stitch. The lining is pale-blue satin, and a tassel fringe with all the tints that are found in the embroidery finishes this rich cover.

Downing a Boss.

From the Wall-street Daily News.

A striking Baltimore bricklayer who had been idle four months was around rubbing his hands the other day, and when some one asked him what had happened he replied:

"We've downed our boss."

"How?"

"Why, we struck for $4 per day last summer, and he wouldn't pay it. But we've finally got him."

"Will he pay your figures?"

"Oh, no, but he's had to abandon his annual trip to Europe this year for want of money. Tell you what, capital has got to come to it and don't you forget it."

St. George's Training College for Women, opened in Edinburgh last month, is organized upon the plan of the Maria Grey Training College in London. The college aims at giving professional training to women who are already well educated, and an entrance examination (except in special cases), or the possession of certain specified certificates, is among the conditions of admission. Lectures are given in preparation for the Cambridge Teachers' Examination, and the students are admitted to practice in several Edinburgh schools.

In Memory of Iddesleigh.

LONDON, Jan. 18.—Memorial services in honor of the late Lord Iddesleigh were held to-day in Westminster Abbey. The Duke of Cambridge, Prime Minister Salisbury, many representatives of the nobility and a throng of prominent members of all political parties were present.

SALISBURY & CO.
MISS KARCH.

The Daily Examiner.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 20, 1887.

A DUBIOUS ENDORSER.

The Mail, for an "independent" journal, shows a most decided "leaning" in all things towards the Conservative party, and loses no opportunity of endorsing the actions of the Dominion Government, no matter how blameworthy, and of singing its praises sotto voce, while aloud it raises the hollow and hypocritical cry of independence. In face of all the facts of which the public have been placed in possession, as to the terrible course of misrule that resulted in the North-west rebellion, the Mail has the brassy assurance to speak in terms of praise of a pamphlet issued by Hon. Thomas White, Minister of the Interior, claiming to show that unjust treatment of the Half-breeds had nothing to do with provoking the rebellion. To give force to the pamphlet, Sir David Macpherson prefaces it with a letter, in which the illustrious Munchausen makes the following astonishing statement: "The extracts given from documents of record in the Department of the Interior clearly prove that neither by acts of omission nor commission did the Government of Sir John Macdonald do aught to provoke just discontent, much less rebellion amongst the Half-breeds. I need hardly say that, during the time I was Minister or acting-Minister of the Interior, no Half-breed was disturbed or threatened with disturbance in the occupation of his land. The story circulated by the Opposition, that I had urged the Prince Albert Colonization Company to eject the Half-breeds from the company's allotment of land, is one of those slanders of which so many are fabrications by those writers for the Grit press, who are well described by the Presbyterian Review as men who 'write lies to earn their bread and butter.'" To make clear how fitting an endorser Sir David is of the facts of a pamphlet issued under the authority of Mr. White, who originated and and enunciated the doctrine—remarkable even in this corrupt political age—that political exigencies justify lying, indubitable proof is given below. The doctrine has, doubtless, been largely applied in the preparation of Hon. Mr. White's pamphlet, and Sir David Macpherson's endorsation shows that he has become a convert to the same way of thinking. His express statement is contradicted by the sworn word of Mr. D. Gilmour, of Trenton, at the meeting of the Dominion Committee on Privileges and Elections, April 14th, 1886. The following extract is from the report:—

DAVID GILMOUR, sworn:

By Mr. Edgar—

422. Did Mr. White (not Hon. Thomas White, but he of Hastings) render any assistance while you were at any of those meetings, or tried to do so? Yes, we went to see the Minister of the Interior—Mr. White, Mr. Sutherland, Mr. Faulkner, and myself.

423. With reference to the affairs of the company? Yes.

424. What did you do? We wanted to see if we could either get the land or get the Indians off it.

426. Did you succeed? No, we did not. We were told we had it in our power to put them off. That is all the satisfaction we got.

427. Who told you that? The Minister, Hon. Mr. Macpherson.

If the contents of Hon. Mr. White's pamphlet are as full of contradictions of fact as its knightly endorsation, its ex parte statements must be accepted with a huge pinch of salt. The evidence of the Dominion Government's criminal maladministration which provoked the North-west rebellion is so direct and crushing, and it seems so necessary to break the force of it, that one Minister of the Cabinet should huddle together a mass of misleading misstatements and that another should swear to it. Even the personal organ of Sir John, the Mail, used strong language in asserting the guilt of the Government in the matter of dealing with the grievances of the Half-breeds. The Mail of July 8th, 1885, said:

"Had they (the Half-breeds who rose against Ottawa tyranny) had votes, like white men, or if, like the Indians, they had been numerous enough to command respect and overawe red tape, without doubt, the wheels of office would have revolved for them; but being only Half-breeds, they were put off with an eternal promise, until patience ceased to be a virtue.

"We repeat again that the departmental system under which such cruel neglect of the rights of a portion of the community was possible, was wrong, and should be censured."

Hon. Mr. MacPherson has a good deal of doubt cast on his word in his endorsation of Hon. Mr. White's political pamphlet.

THE most careful calculation, says the Globe, of probabilities, gives strong ground to believe that Geo. A. Cox will be returned for West Peterborough. Mr. Cox has been a credit to Peterborough, and it will show a sad want of appreciation of his intelligence, integrity, and ability if that constituency gave a majority for Stevenson. We have nothing to say against Mr. Stevenson as a private citizen, but there is no comparison between the two men. Mr. Cox has made himself a name in the country. Let his friends leave no stone unturned to secure his election.

Referring to the systematic course of bribery followed by the Dominion Government in its administration of public affairs, Rev. Principal Grant thus forcibly speaks:—"We must choke bribery, or be choked. Pacific scandals or the insolent purchase of a Province with the intent to purchase the country, local railways to purchase counties in detail, blind shares or the purchase of members of Parliament, have all been defended. AS WELL DEFEND SODOM

ADMITTING ITS CLIENT'S GUILT.

Speaking in reference to the cause of the North-west rebellion, the Toronto Mail, Sir John's personal organ, discharged its conscience by the following outburst of truth. Referring to the Half-breeds, the Mail of July 8th, 1885, says:-

"Had they (the Half-breeds who rose against Ottawa tyranny) had votes, like white men, or if, like the Indians, they had been numerous enough to command respect and overawe red tape, without doubt, the wheels of office would have revolved for them; but being only Half-breeds, they were put off with an eternal promise, until patience ceased to be a virtue.

"We repeat again that the departmental system under which such cruel neglect of the rights of a portion of the community was possible, was wrong, and should be censured."

COUNCIL MEETING.

The first regular meeting of the Council elect for 1887 was held in the Council Chamber on Monday evening, Jan. 17th.

Dr. Bell, the village Clerk, reported that R. C. Strickland had been elected Reeve, and Wm. Cox, Jas. Moore, S. Henderson and Jas. Watson had been elected Councillors and that each had taken the declaration of office and qualification. Thereupon the Reeve took the chair and called the Council to order all being present but Wm. Cox.

The minutes of the last meeting being read it was moved by Jas. Moore, seconded by S. Henderson, that the resolution passed at last meeting granting Donald McLean a remit of half his taxes on the mill destroyed by fire, be amended by changing the sum of $22.00 to $44.00 being the whole amount of taxes.

The motion was carried and the minutes as amended passed.

A communication from the lady Superintendent of the Nicholls Hospital in regard to George Hamblin, and applications from Harry Pearson and Alex. Richardson asking to be appointed Assessor, and from County Treasurer were received.

Moved by Coun. Watson, seconded by Coun. Moore, that the Clerk and Coun. Henderson be a committee to look after the case of George Hamblin now in the hospital in Peterborough with power to take such action as they may judge proper.—Carried.

Moved by Coun. Henderson, seconded by Coun. Watson, that this Council buy what gravel is required to finish grading Queen and Bridge streets from Mr. Harrigan.—Carried.

Moved by Coun. Moore, seconded by Coun. Watson, that an order be drawn on the Treasurer for the sum of $20.00 in favor of M. Harrigan on gravel account.—Carried.

Moved by Coun. Henderson, seconded by Coun. Moore, that John Simpson be paid 50 cents extra to open all the paths in the Corporation required.—Carried.

Moved by Coun. Moore, seconded by Coun. Henderson, that the Clerk notify Mr. Cochrane that this Council expects him to collect the amount yet due on licenses as per their agreement with him.—Carried.

Moved by Coun. Henderson, seconded by Coun. Moore, that the Clerk is hereby instructed to try and rent that part of the Council building not in use by the Council.—Carried.

A By-law appointing Messrs. W. J. Wallace and C. J. Bloomfield Auditors for 1887 received its several readings, was passed, signed and sealed by the Reeve and Clerk.

Moved by Coun. Moore, seconded by Coun. Watson, that this Council do now adjourn to meet at the call of the Reeve.—Carried.

BAND CONCERT.

The Forester Band intend to give a concert in the P. C. A. Hall, on Feb. 3rd. They are going to a great deal of expense and trouble to make it one of the best ever held in the village, and hope to have a good turn out to aid them, especially as the object is to help raise funds to purchase two new instruments which are required. Since the band was first able to appear in public they have been very generous, playing whenever or wherever wanted without any remuneration, and the least the people of the village can do is to give them a bumper house.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

At a meeting of the Lakefield District Orange Lodge, held in the Orange Hall, Lakefield, on Tuesday, Jan. 11th, the following officers were elected for 1887:—

Bro. James Moore		District Master
" Sidney Hunter	Deputy	" "
" Wm. Edwards		District Chaplain
" Wm. Dunsford		" Secretary
" Samuel Harris		" Treasurer
" Wm. Irwin		" Lecturer
" Thos. Eastland		" D. of C.

LAKEFIELD SCHOOL.

Great complaints are being made of the crowded state of all the rooms in the Public School, three pupils being wedged into seats which are only meant for two, a proceeding which not only makes the children uncomfortable, but also prevents them attending to their studies as they should, an injustice alike to both pupils, teachers and parents.

If the trustees do not see their way clear to build an addition to the present school, could they not rent a place for a few years and remove the younger children to it. The old B. C. Church would make a good place if it could be secured; it is central, plenty of ground for play room, is in a quiet situation, with sidewalks leading to it from every direction. The Salvation Army could still use it at night and in case they had a field day meeting, could easily secure the P. C. A. hall. Our trustees will have to take action soon for they will only make matters worse by delay, and in the meantime the children and teachers are suffering. So wake up, gentlemen, and do justice to the little ones.

Free Trade.

The reduction of internal revenue and the taking off of revenue stamps from Proprietary Medicines, no doubt has largely benefitted the consumers, as well as relieving the burden of home manufacturers. Especially is this the case with Green's August Flower and Boschee's German Syrup, as the reduction of thirty-six cents per dozen has been added to increase the size of the bottles containing these remedies, thereby giving one-fifth more medicine in the 75 cent size. The August Flower for Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint, and the German Syrup for Cough and Lung troubles have, perhaps, the largest sale of any medicines in the world. The advantage of increased size of the bottles will be greatly appreciated by the sick and afflicted, in every town and village in civilised countries. Sample bottles for 10c. remain in the same size. eodw41

"The newspapers were not mistaken, Mrs. Presty, when they called Catherine a widow. I know now why my brother, who never deceived me before, has deceived me about this. I understand the part that your daughter has been playing—and I am as certain as if I had heard it, of the devilish lie that one of you—perhaps both of you—must have told to my poor child. No, no; I had better not see Catherine. Many a man has killed his wife and has not had such good reason for doing it as I have. You are quite right to keep me away from her."

He stopped; he, too, looked suddenly toward the door. "I hear her," he cried. "She's coming in!"

The footsteps outside were audible once more. This time they were approaching; they were close to the door. Herbert drew back from it. Looking round to see that he was out of the way, Mrs. Presty rushed forward—sure open the door in terror of what might happen—and admitted Capt. Bennydeck.

CHAPTER XLIX.

The captain's attention was first attracted by the visitor whom he found in the room. He bowed to the stranger, but the first impression produced on him did not appear to be of the favorable kind, when he turned next to Mrs. Presty.

Observing that she was agitated, he made the customary apologies, expressing his regret if he had been so unfortunate as to commit an intrusion. Trusting in the good sense and good breeding which distinguished him on other occasions, Mrs. Presty anticipated that he would see the propriety of leaving her alone again with the person whom he had found in her company. To her dismay he remained in the room, and, worse still, he noticed her daughter's absence and asked if there was any serious cause for it.

For the moment Mrs. Presty was unable to reply. Her presence of mind—or, to put it more correctly, her ready audacity—deserted her when she saw Catherine's husband that had been and Catherine's husband that was to be meeting as strangers, and but too likely to discover each other.

In all her experience she had never been placed in such a position of embarrassment as the position in which she found herself now. The sense of honor which had prompted Catherine's resolution to make Bennydeck acquainted with the catastrophe of her married life might plead her excuse in the estimation of a man devotedly attached to her. But if the captain was first informed by a person who was a perfect stranger to him that he had been deceived, what hope could be entertained of his still holding himself bound by his marriage engagement? It was even possible that distrust had been already excited in his mind. He must certainly have heard a man's voice raised in anger when he approached the door—and he was now observing that man with an air of curiosity which was already assuming the appearance of distrust. That Herbert, on his side, resented the captain's critical examination of him was plainly visible in his face. After a glance at Bennydeck, he asked Mrs. Presty "who that gentleman was."

"I may be mistaken," he added, "but I thought your friend looked at me just now as if he knew me."

"I have met you, sir, before this." The captain made the reply with a courteous composure of tone and manner which apparently reminded Herbert of the claims of politeness.

"May I ask where I had the honor of seeing you?" he inquired.

"We passed each other in the hall at the hotel at Sandyseal. You had a young lady with you."

"Your memory is a better one than mine, sir. I fail to remember the circumstance to which you refer."

Bennydeck let the matter rest there. Struck by the remarkable appearance of embarrassment in Mrs. Presty's manner—and feeling (in spite of Herbert's politeness of language) increased distrust of the man whom he had found visiting her—he thought it might not be amiss to hint that she could rely on him in case of necessity. "I am afraid I have interrupted a confidential interview," he began, "and I ought perhaps to explain——"

Mrs. Presty listened absently; preoccupied by the fear that Herbert would provoke a dangerous disclosure, and by the difficulty of discovering a means of preventing it. She interrupted the captain.

"Excuse me for one moment; I have a word to say to this gentleman." Bennydeck immediately drew back, and Mrs. Presty lowered her voice. "If you wish to see Kitty," she resumed, attacking Herbert on his weak side, "it depends entirely on your discretion."

"What do you mean by discretion?"

"Be careful not to speak of our family troubles—and I promise you shall see Kitty. That is what I mean."

Herbert declined to say whether he would be careful or not. He was determined to find out, first, with what purpose Bennydeck had entered the room. "The gentleman was about to explain himself to you," he said to Mrs. Presty. "Why don't you give him the opportunity?"

She had no choice but to submit—in appearance at least. Never had she hated Herbert as she hated him at that moment. The captain went on with his explanation. He had his reasons (he said) for hesitating, in the first instance, to present himself uninvited, and he had accordingly retired. On second thoughts, however, he had returned, in the hope——

"In the hope," Herbert interposed, "of seeing Mrs. Presty's daughter?"

"That was one of my motives," Bennydeck answered.

"Is it indiscreet to inquire what the other motive was?"

"Not at all. I heard a stranger's voice, speaking in a tone which, to say the least of it, is not customary in a lady's room; and I thought——"

Herbert interrupted him again. "And you thought your interference might be welcome to the lady! Am I right?"

"Quite right."

"Am I making another lucky guess if I suppose myself to be speaking to Capt. Bennydeck?"

"I shall be glad to hear, sir, how you have arrived at the knowledge of my name."

"Shall we say, captain, that I have arrived at it by instinct."

His face, as he made that reply, alarmed Mrs. Presty. She cast a look at him, partly of entreaty, partly of warning. No effect was produced by the look. He continued, in a tone of ironical compliment: "You must pay the penalty of being a public character. Your fame is known in the newspapers."

"I assure you——"

"It is useless to deny it. Public fame reaches us all. As you don't read the newspapers, allow me to repeat it. You are engaged to marry the beautiful widow, Mrs. Ormond." I think I quote those last words correctly."

Mrs. Presty suddenly got up. With an inscrutable face that told no tales she advanced to the door. Herbert's tingling jealousy of the man who was about to befriend Catherine's husband led him into a serious error; he had driven Catherine's mother to desperation. In that state of mind she recovered her lost audacity, as a matter of course. Opening the door, she turned round to the two men, with a magnificent dignidence of manner which in her happiest moments she had never surpassed.

"I am sorry to interrupt this interesting conversation," she said; "but I have stupidly forgotten one of my domestic duties. You will allow me to return, and listen with renewed pleasure, when my household business is off my mind. I shall hope to find you both more polite to each other than ever, when I come back." She was in such a frenzy of suppressed rage that she actually kissed her hand to them as she left the room!

Bennydeck looked after her, convinced that some sinister purpose was concealed under Mrs. Presty's false excuses, and wholly unable to imagine what that purpose might be. Herbert still persisted in trying to force a quarrel on the captain.

"As I remarked just now," he proceeded, "newspaper reports are not always to be trusted. Do you seriously mean, my dear sir, to marry Mrs. Ormond?"

"I look forward to that honor and that happiness. But I am at a loss to know how it interests you."

"In that case allow me to enlighten you. My name is Herbert Linley."

He has held his name in reserve, feeling certain of the effect which he would produce when he pronounced it. The result took him completely by surprise. Not the slightest appearance of agitation showed itself in Bennydeck's manner. On the contrary, he looked as if there was something that interested him in the discovery of the name.

"You are probably related to a friend of mine," he said, quietly.

"Who is your friend?"

"Mr. Randal Linley."

Herbert was entirely unprepared for this discovery. Once more the captain had got the best of it.

"Are you and Randal Linley intimate friends?" he inquired, as soon as he had recovered himself.

"Most intimate."

"It's strange that he should never have mentioned me on any occasion when you and he were together."

"It does, indeed, seem strange."

Herbert paused. His brother's keen sense of the disgrace that he had inflicted on the family recurred to his memory. He began to understand Randal's otherwise unaccountable silence.

Poverty and Distress.

That poverty which produces the greatest distress is not of the purse but of the blood. Deprived of its richness it becomes acrid and watery, a condition termed anæmia in medical writings. Given this condition, and scrofulous swellings and sores, general and nervous debility, loss of flesh and appetite, weak lungs, throat disease, spitting of blood and consumption, are among the common results. If you are a sufferer from this, poor blood employ Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery," which enriches the blood and cures the grave affections. Is more nutritive than cold liver oil, and is harmless in any condition of the system, yet powerful to cure. By druggists. 6dw3

RUPTURE CURED IN FROM 20 TO 90 DAYS BY WEARING EGAN'S IMPERIAL TRUSS.

Read the following extract from a letter of a well-known citizen of St. Catharines,—hundreds like it:

ST. CATHARINES, Sept. 20th, 1885.

GENTLEMEN,—Being over 70 years of age, and over 20 years ruptured, I looked upon my case as hopeless, especially as I tried various appliances without success, among others, recently, two springless trusses manufactured in New York State, costing me $40. Nothing would retain my Hernia. I have worn your trues over four months, night and day, with great satisfaction and comfort; even to bathe in it the rupture has never come down, it holds me perfectly secure under all circumstances. You may publish it for the benefit of other sufferers. Yours truly, CAPT. E. KING.

This Cut Shows one Style only.

This new Spiral Spring Pad Truss has taken ten years to make it perfect; is guaranteed to hold the very worst case during the hardest work or severest strain. It will cure every child sure; and 90 out of every 100 of adults. Be warned—don't waste your money on useless appliances, but send stamp for our treatise; it contains full information, your neighbors' testimony, price list and questions for you to answer. When writing please mention this paper. Address from a common Blotch, or Eruption, to the worst Scrofula. Salt-rheum, "Fever-sores," Scaly or Rough Skin, in short, all diseases caused by bad blood are conquered by this powerful, purifying, and invigorating medicine. Great Sores and Ulcers rapidly heal under its benign influence. Especially has it manifested its potency in curing Tetter, Rose Rash, Boils, Carbuncles, Sore Eyes, Scrofulous Sores and Swellings, Hip-Joint Disease, White Swellings, Goitre, or Thick Neck, and Enlarged Glands. Send ten cents in stamps for a large treatise, with colored plates, on Skin Diseases, or the same amount for a treatise on Scrofulous Affections. "THE BLOOD IS THE LIFE." Thoroughly cleanse it by using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and good digestion, a fair skin, buoyant spirits, vital strength, and soundness of constitution, will be established.

GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY

CURES ALL HUMORS,

CONSUMPTION,

which is Scrofulous Disease of the Lungs, is promptly and certainly arrested and cured by this God-given remedy, if taken before the last stages of the disease are reached. From its wonderful power over this terribly fatal disease, when first offering this now celebrated remedy to the public, Dr. PIERCE thought seriously of calling it his "Consumption Cure," but abandoned that name as too limited for a medicine which, from its wonderful combination of tonic, or strengthening, alterative, or blood-cleansing, anti-bilious, pectoral, and nutritive properties, is unequaled, not only as a remedy for consumption of the lungs, but for all

CHRONIC DISEASES OF THE Liver, Blood, and Lungs.

If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have sallow color of skin, or yellowish-brown spots on face or body, frequent headache or dizziness, bad taste in mouth, internal heat or chills, alternating with hot flashes, low spirits and gloomy borebodings, irregular appetite, and coated tongue, you are suffering from Indigestion, Dyspepsia, and Torpid Liver, or "Biliousness." In many cases only part of these symptoms are experienced. As a remedy for all such cases, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has no equal.

For Weak Lungs, Spitting of Blood, Shortness of Breath, Bronchitis, Severe Coughs, Consumption, and kindred affections, it is a sovereign remedy. Send ten cents in stamps for Dr. Pierce's book on Consumption. Sold by Druggists.

PRICE $1.00, OR 6 BOTTLES FOR $5.00.

New Wine in New Bottles.

What was known as the Bon Marche has become defunct, and the vacant premises will be occupied about Feb. 1st by a gentleman whose fine personal and business qualities are well known to the public—Gough, the wonderful cheap man. The premises are being refitted and remodelled on a grand scale—after the plan of a clothing house in New York, which is the finest on the continent, and from now until the day of his removal Gough will sell all his overcoats and suits at marvellous reductions. His large stock must be sacrificed before removal, for, following the Scriptural text to "put new wine into new bottles," he is determined to open out an entirely new stock in his new store. Remember, for two weeks only. Don't miss it. For prices see his advertisement and be convinced.

Dominion Election Scandals.

The heat and worry of the Local elections are only fairly over, when from Ottawa sounds the tocsin of war for the Dominion elections, and, figuratively speaking, the heather is again on fire. Some argue that so much politics to the square yard is bad for business, but Belleghem, the Famous Furniture Factor, does not find it so. At the Local elections he was elected by a sweeping majority—during their progress he sold stocks of furniture, and his prices and his goods gave the best of satisfaction. Belleghem is again a candidate at the Dominion elections. He is in favor of greater public economy, to be exhibited by selling the public furniture of the best, at the most economical prices; he is also in favor of protection, that is, the protection of the public against high-priced furniture, and inferior goods. His furniture, of the most fashionable and substantial make, in endless variety, is still offered at the most reasonable prices.

The Association Formed.

A meeting of the young people of the George street Methodist Church was held last night to form an association for mutual improvement and the carrying on of Christian work. The society was organized and named "The George street Methodist Church Young People's Association," and the following officers and committees were appointed:

HONORARY PRESIDENT:—Rev. I. Tovelle or his successor.

PRESIDENT:—Mr. J. Flavelle.

FIRST VICE-PRESIDENT:—Mrs. A. Wilson.

SECOND VICE-PRESIDENT:—Mr. H. S. Griffin.

SECRETARY:—E. E. Scott.

TREASURER:—Miss Emma Keele.

COMMITTEES.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE:—The officers together with Miss Mary A. Allen and Mr. W. A. Dixon.

The members of the other committees are to be appointed by the Executive Committee and given to the association at next meeting for approval.

About fifty persons gave in their names as members, as desirous of becoming members.

READING REPORTS.

Reports of Smith, Eastnesse and Lakefield Agricultural Society, and the Peterborough and Ashburnham Horticultural Society were read and filed.

SECRETARY'S REPORT.

To the Members of the West Riding of Peterborough Agricultural Society.

GENTLEMEN,—In presenting my report for 1886 I have left the financial statements entirely to the Treasurer confining myself principally to a cursory history of our affairs during the past year. The first item of importance was the appeal made by our directors to the County Council at their annual meeting held at Peterborough, January last for a grant to enable them to erect suitable buildings. The claims of the society for such a grant were ably laid before the Council by several of our directors. The Council after considering the matter gave our directors to understand that were the societies of East and West Peterborough amalgamated they would be inclined to vote a liberal sum towards the erection of suitable buildings in Peterborough. Acting on this suggestion of the Council, a deputation from the West Riding Agricultural Society left here at noon on Tuesday 9th March, 1886 and proceeded to Norwood to meet the directors of the East Riding and if possible woo, and win them over to join the West, and have a grand Central Exhibition in Peterborough. Every one of the deputation took part in the discussion with the directors of the East and made every reasonable overture they could be expected to, but to little purpose. The fair maid of the East would not accept of the liberal offers of the gallant of the West, but shook her head and "said"

"Na, na, it winna dae,
I canna, winna, winna, manna, buckle to," so ended the eastern courtship. At the June session meeting of the County Council, our directors reported the non-success with the East, and endeavored once more to obtain a grant from the Council, but were again unsuccessful. Nothing daunted your directors with that pluck and energy that has characterised all their proceedings in connexion with the society, determined to go on with the buildings. Plans and specifications were prepared, tenders were advertised for, a number were received and that of Mr. William Lasher, Peterborough, for $1,350 was accepted. Under the superintendence of Mr. John McClelland, Chairman of the building committee, —who was unsparing in time and trouble— along with the other members of the committee, the building was completed in a very satisfactory manner, and the building is today a standing monument of their untiring industry, which they expect to greatly improve and add to as our finances permit.

SPRING SHOW

Our annual spring show of bulls and stallions was held in the Exhibition Grounds on Saturday, the first of May, and was the best held here for years. The number of entries for stallions was 32, for bulls 32. Prizes awarded for stallions $100, for bulls $52. The attendance was very large as will be seen from the money received at the gate, viz., $54.30, fifteen cents being the admission fee for non-members, members being admitted free.

In the month of July, R. C. Strickland, Esq., of Lakefield, sent in his resignation as a Director of this Society which was accepted, and James Stevenson, Esq., Mayor of Peterborough, was unanimously elected in his stead. The wisdom of such a choice was soon apparent, for from the moment Mr. Stevenson accepted the appointment he ably assisted the other Directors in the performance of their duties.

It would take up too much of your time for me to go into details recording the arduous duties devolving upon your Directors in revising the Prize List of 1885 and the considerable addition made thereto, such as "plants and cut flowers," "fine arts in oils," "water colors," crayons, &c., prizes being offered in these classes, both for professional and amateur artists, also penmanship, linear drawing, photographing, maps, etc., natural history and mineralogy, besides "ladies work," embracing a great variety of articles. Arrangements with the railway companies had to be made. Popular amusements had also to be considered. A band contest was at one time contemplated, but owing to the shortness of time, and the want of sufficient funds, had to be abandoned. The money subscribed for the band contest was got principally from gentlemen in town, who, although the "band contest" was dropped, generously allowed the Directors to apply the fund to other kinds of entertainment, resulting in securing tour kilted lads from the Thistle Dancing Club of Toronto, accompanied by a Queen's prize piper—Mr. Monroe.

While the foregoing matters were being considered and arranged by the Directors, your Secretary was busy, two weeks previous to the show, recording the various exhibits in the entry book.

In the year 1885 the total entries were 925, in 1886 the total entries amounted to 1506. These figures clearly prove what Mr. Carnegie, the ex-President, stated in his address to the Society last year regretting the disunion between the town and county with regard to supporting the Society, "what helped the one helped the other and union was necessary," adding "there was no better place in Canada for a successful exhibition than Peterborough." Also, remember that the Agricultural Society, of Port Perry, not far distant, was holding their exhibition on the very same days as we were. Port Hope also encroached upon one of the days, and Lindsay had the start of us. If our County Council had given us the grant applied for, thereby enabling us to give more liberal prizes I have no doubt whatever but that our entries would have amounted to 2000 and over. It is to be hoped that our County Council will withdraw their opposition and join in with the directors of the current year, and generously aid what is to all intents and purposes a farmers' institution. We pass on to record the principal event that has ever occurred in the history of the Society, viz. the visit of His Honor John Beverly Robinson, Lieut. Governor of Ontario, and suite, who came purposely to open the exhibition. Such a gala day had not been seen in Peterborough for many years. Not only was it an honor conferred upon the Society but upon the town. Our town and Agricultural exhibition by the visit of His Honor got more publicity through the press of the country, and also brought hundreds of visitors to our town. Able addresses were presented to His Honor one from the Mayor representing the town and one from Mr. Carnegie representing the Agricultural Society. Both these gentlemen deserve the thanks of the town and this Society in particular, for the able manner in which they upheld the resources privileges, and industries of our town and county.

I will now proceed to give to you the names of a few of the principal prize-winners who won prizes in cash from $15 and upwards:—

A. R. Kidd, Warsaw	$22 00
Joseph Redmond, Otonabee	20 00
C. Fairbairn, Peboregeon	24 00
G. M. Roger, Peterborough	47 50
Robert Vance, Ida	45 00
James Baptie, Springville	40 50
Wm. Collins, Smith	28 50
D. Grant & Sons, Woodville	37 00
Robert Hannah, Bethany	37 00
Mrs. Timothy Walsh, Keene (besides a silver butter cooler, valued at $10.00)	25 00
Samuel Curtis, Harwood	24 00
Thos. Stevenson Smith	24 00

Last R. Bowlby, Asphodel 21 00
Jas. Wright, Mill Creek 15 00
W. Wallace, Lang 15 00
W. Graham, Lang 15 00
D. Scully, Douro 15 00
J. Vance, Bethany 15 00
N. J. White, Lakefield 17 50

A glance at the foregoing list will prove to the most sceptical that it is the farmers who reap the most advantage from agricultural exhibitions and not the townspeople, as a great many who reside in the country are apt to suppose. Therefore, I think that County Councils ought to support these institutions more liberally than they generally do. The minor prizes just bear the same proportion to winners in town verses country, as I have already enumerated. The time for township half-penny shows has gone by. Railways and other facilities, which enables the farmer to ship his stock and produce with more safety, comfort and ease 100 miles, than he could 10 in days gone by, have dealt a death-blow to little side shows, and any farmer who has stock or produce worth exhibiting will, if he is wise, forward the same to some large central show, where there is some honor attached, over and above the monetary interest, should he succeed in carrying off a prize. Every farmer should become a member of the Central Exhibition in the county where he resides, and as many more outside his own county as he can afford. To show our country friends how much interest is manifested in helping along with material aid our society by several gentlemen in town, and to show these gentlemen how grateful the Directors are for such disinterested support, I cannot better close this report than by thanking them in the name of the Directors, and appending their names with amount of subscription thereto:—

Membership last year 225. This year, by adopting the plan of deducting one dollar from every prize winner as membership fee for 1887, we have on the roll as paid members 140 to start this year with, and it is to be hoped that the same energy displayed by the Directors of 1886 will be followed by the Directors of 1887, and roll up the membership to five or six hundred. All of which is respectfully submitted by

Yours truly,

ELECTING OFFICERS.

The election of officers was then proceeded with, as follows:

PRESIDENT.—John Carnegie.

FIRST VICE-PRESIDENT.—Wm. Rutherford.

SECOND VICE-PRESIDENT.—Mr. Vance.

DIRECTORS.—Messrs. Stevenson, Garbutt, Fitzgerald, Fair, Tully, McClelland, Collins, Redmond, and A. McNeil.

AUDITORS.—Messrs. F. J. Lewis and J. A. Hall.

Mr. McClelland moved a vote of thanks to the retiring President, Mr. Garbutt, which was seconded by Mr. Tully and carried.

Mr. Garbutt replied briefly, thanking them for the compliment and expressing the belief that every director deserved the same. He hoped the new directors would faithfully help the officers in the discharge of their duties during the coming season.

The meeting then adjourned.

Apply at the Home.

Dr. Barnardo, of London, Eng., will send out about the first week of March 200 boys, aged 10 to 16 and upwards, for farm labour and other employment. Those desirous of securing such help are recommended to apply early to Mr. Edward Duff, Dr. Barnardo's Home, Peterborough, who will furnish all necessary particulars.

Serious Accident.

The uneven and slippery condition of the walks makes walking a difficult and somewhat dangerous operation. Yesterday Mr. James Duncan, Rubidge street, while passing along Simcoe street, near the creek, slipped and fell, fracturing his thigh bone. He was conveyed to his house by Mr. G. W. Hall. Dr. King and Dr. Halliday gave the necessary surgical attendance.

Coming Next Week.

Wilson Day's Dramatic Co. opens a two weeks' engagement at the opera house here next Monday, at popular prices, 10 and 25c. The Kingston Whig thus speaks of their performance:—"A splendid house greeted the Wilson Day Dramatic company last night upon the first production here of Bartley Campbell's play, "Van the Virginian." It was a fine drama, well-acted throughout, and no doubt made a lasting impression upon all present. Mr. Day, as "Vandyke Vernon," gave an excellent rendition of a difficult role, and acted throughout with that spirit and finish that stamps all he undertakes. He was specially strong in the scene where he is subservient to his duty and gives up his wife rather than sully his honor, and the audience quickly responded in a round of applause. Miss Osborne, as "Kate Calvert," did some remarkably clever acting. Her parting with Van in the third act, and the interview with Calvert in the fourth act, were exceptionally fine, and brought down the house. Miss Willis, as "Louie," and Mr. Sumners, as "Charley Knox," made much merriment by their perfect portrayal of a pair of very spoony lovers. Mr. Henderson, as "Jingle," was excellent, while the "Jemima" of Mrs. Day deserves special mention. The support throughout was good. Little Annie Bird sang "Pretty as a Picture" in the second act."

The "City Depot."

THE BEST PAPER
you can possibly have in your family is the MONTREAL "WITNESS," which gives more profitable and interesting reading matter, has more fearless and intelligent editorials, and is in all respects, one of the most reliable and newsy journals on this continent. There are, now-a-days, unfortunately, but too few newspapers that can be admitted into the sanctity of the family hearth, but the "WITNESS" is one of the few. Though full of enterprise in the matter of news, it never admits into its columns anything that could possibly injur the mind of even the youngest of its readers, while its Question and Answer Department, in which queries on all subjects of general interest are replied by competent authorities, renders it of the greatest possible value to all its subscribers. To commemorate the fiftieth year of Queen Victoria's reign over the British Empire the publisher of the "WITNESS" are given to all subscribers to that paper—either new or renewing—who send ten cents in addition to their subscription, a magnificent
PICTURE OF HER MAJESTY.
This fine portrait is highly spoken by many prominent Canadians who have already received it, and consider it a worthy likeness of our noble Queen.

"The yearly subscription to the "DAILY WITNESS" $3.00, and to the "WEEKLY WITNESS" $1.00, an additional 10cent sto be in either case if the pictures be desired.

Send in your subscriptions without delay to JOHN DOUGALL & SON, MONTREAL.

The "NORTHERN MESSENGER" is ever gaining in popularity, and is still "THE CHEAPEST ILLUSTRATED PAPER PUBLISHED." Prices of books and money are given to those who canvass for it. Price only 30c. a year, with reductions to clubs. Sample copies sent to any who may request them. JOHN DOUGALL and SON, MONTREAL.

A good agent for the family is the "WEEKLY MESSENGER," which gives the current news in a concise form, together with selected stories. The small sum of 30c. will obtain a year's subscription.

EXTRACT FROM MONTREAL WITNESS, DATED DECEMBER 31st, 1886:—

THE LATE MR. McLACHLAN.
AN INSURANCE COMPANY'S PROMPT SETTLEMENT.

We have been asked by Mr. McLachlan to publish the following, and do so in view of the exceptional public interest taken in the case mentioned:—

To R. Macaulay, Esq., Managing Director of the Sun Life Assurance Company:—

DEAR SIR,—I have much pleasure in acknowledging the payment by you of $17,130.70, being the amount due under the policies held by your Company on the life of my brother, the late John S. McLachlan. A company's character is tested when an opportunity arises in which it has the power to take advantage of a technicality or inability (as in the present case) to comply with every condition and requirement, so as to occasion delay and expense, and perhaps finally defeat a just and honest claim. There is no doubt in the mind of any reasonable man that my brother and Mr. Sumner were unhappily drowned, and the affidavit produced abundantly support this; but although a careful search has been made, the bodies may never be recovered—owing to the swiftness of the current and the low temperature of the water. It would, indeed, be a hardship if any company were, under the circumstances, to demand technical proofs which, from the very nature of the case, it is impossible to furnish. I have great pleasure in certifying to the honorable and liberal manner in which your Company has acted in regard to the claim. As soon as your board of directors was aware that the accident had really happened, you gave every facility for a prompt settlement. You have been the first of the companies interested to pay, and I thank you for the kind and satisfactory manner in which you have met me.

W. MCLACHLAN.

The Dominion Safety fund, we understand, has also paid its policy of $2,000. The Sun Life has taken from the executors of Mr. McLachlan a personal bond to refund the amount of insurance with six per cent per annum compound interest, should he ever turn up alive. Mr. J. S. McLachlan had in all $42,130.70 insurance on his life, and other companies resist the claims.

TOWN LOTS!
Parties desiring to buy Town Lots can buy to advantage from
D. W. DUMBLE.

WHY
Will people pay rent when houses and lots can be purchased on such easy terms as are offered by the undesigned. Come and inspect our work and see for yourselves how we construct our houses. Our chief aim and study is to build substantial, warm, frost and damp proof houses. I am offering good building lots, and will build solid brick houses, nine-inch walls, strapped and lathed, two stories, for less money than you can buy frame or veneered buildings. We cordially invite those who anticipate renting or buying to inspect our work and prove for themselves that our houses are not merely built to sell. Every house I've sold gives first-class satisfaction, and I am determined that every house I build shall be a standing testimony to honest building. JOHN CARLISLE, Donegal Street, 2nd block west of St. Andrew's Church. wd

IRISH DISTURBANCE.

THE EVICTIONS CONTINUED WITH THE CROWBARS.

DUBLIN, Jan. 20.—Several evictions were made at Glanbeigh, County Kerry, to-day. The tenants did not offer any resistance. The crowbar brigade, employed to tear down vacated dwellings, were not used.

The Conspiracy Bill.

LONDON, Jan. 20.—It is learned that the Conspiracy Bill will not be brought before Parliament until a chance arises to push it energetically through all the stages. If the extension of the provisions of the bill to the whole kingdom be opposed the measure will be confined to Ireland.

Not so Poor as Reported.

DUBLIN, Jan. 20.—Maurice Murphy, one of the tenants evicted from the estates of Sir Rowland Wise, at Glen Leigh, owns twenty-seven cows and has £260 in cash. A reporter, telegraphing from Glen Leigh, says the people there are much better clothed and fed than many of their brethren in the South of Ireland, and asserts that the land, though poor, is vastly better than in many other parts of the country. Most of the estate books in the region of Glen Leigh show that the rents have been considerably reduced in the last few years.

An Irish Member Married.

DUBLIN, Jan. 20.—Maurice Healey, M.P. for Cork, was married in this city to-day to Miss Annie Sullivan. The Lord Mayor of Dublin, who is an uncle of the bride, entertained the bridal party at his house.

AFFAIRS IN FADERLAND.

Getting up a War Scare to Help the Army Bill.

BERLIN, Jan. 20.—Emperor William to-day received a committee from the Upper House of the Landtag and repeatedly thanked them for their loyal and patriotic assurance. He said: "You may repeat publicly throughout the country that I was deeply grieved by the vote of the Reichstag on the Army Bill, but you have filled my heart with balm. We had shown the necessity for our demand and did not expect a refusal because the new measure tended to diminish the danger of war."

The North German Gazette, Prince Bismarck's organ, speaking of the organization of the Red Cross Society, says the army may speedily demand its help.

The North German Gazette, referring to the report that France is about to erect wooden barracks on the frontier, states that it is undeniable that France is collecting on the frontier more troops than the fortresses and garrisons are able to shelter.

The Socialists' Campaign Weak.

BERLIN, Jan. 20.—Prince Bismarck having awaited the issue of the Opposition manifesto to the electors, will publish the Emperor's manifesto either to-day or on Monday.

The campaign of the Socialist party has weakened owing to the absence of Bebel, Frohme and Aver, who are in prison. The Socialists, however, are confident of gaining at least two seats in Berlin.

PARALYSED BY ELECTRICITY.

How an Electric Light Lineman in New York Met His Death.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—The building occupied by the Centennial American Tea Company on Vesey-street was gutted by fire to-day. While the fire was in progress Lineman Simons of the Electric Light Company climbed a pole to cut the electric lines leading into the store. In the act he received a shock which paralyzed him. He fell to the ground, striking on his head, and died in ten minutes. A number of girls working in an upper floor, in a leather duster factory, were panic stricken by the smoke. Several fainted, but all were brought out safely. The fire is supposed to have originated from the electric light wires.

France and the Holy See.

ROME, Jan. 20.—In view of the declaration of M. Goblet, the French Prime Minister, to the committee which is considering the question of the abrogation of the Concordat, that, although he was in favor of the separation of church and state, he thought Parliament and the country would oppose it, Cardinal Jacobini, Papal Secretary of State, has instructed the Papal Nuncio at Paris to remind the French Government of its obligations towards the Holy See, and to intimate that if they were not fulfilled the Vatican would act accordingly.

The Spitalfields Disaster.

LONDON, Jan. 20.—The Rothschilds and other wealthy Hebrews offer a reward for the discovery of the person who gave the false alarm of fire at the hall in Spitalfields on Tuesday night and caused the panic and terrible loss of life which followed. A subscription list has been opened for the relief of the relatives of the victims of the disaster.

The Bulgarians at Home.

ROME, Jan. 19.—Prime Minister Depretis received the Bulgarian deputation to-day. He advised them to avoid giving offence to Russia, but said he must abstain from counselling them about Bulgaria's difficulties, which could all be easily surmounted, he thought, by the exercise of prudence and by endeavoring to abide by the terms of existing treaties.

They Must Not Evade Conscription.

LONDON, Jan. 21.—It is reported that the German Government confiscates the property of and condemns to prison by default all the residents of Alsace-Lorraine who evade the conscription by emigrating. Forty-seven persons have already been summoned to Wissembourg for evasion. Similar steps are being taken elsewhere.

Pinkerton Men Shoot a Boy.

JERSEY CITY, N.J., Jan. 20.—This afternoon while a number of boys were playing in an open lot, at the corner of Henderson and Eighteenth-streets in this city, adjoining the yards of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railway Company, a fracas occurred between the boys and Pinkerton's men, and Thos. Hogan, 16 years old, a looker-on, was shot and killed by one of Pinkerton's men, who were stationed on the company's property. The shooting caused intense excitement. Three of Pinkerton's men were arrested.

Died of Trichinosis.

STEVEN'S POINT, Wis., Jan. 20.—Silas Philbrick and his wife have died of trichinosis. Philbrick had a pig, upon one of whose eyes a sore extended nearly the whole length. The animal was killed, and after cutting away the diseased part they ate the rest.

BULGARIAN TROUBLE.

REPORTS OF A EUROPEAN CONFERENCE SAID TO BE UNFOUNDED.

VIENNA, Jan. 20.—The negotiations for the settlement of the Bulgarian question are progressing favorably. They are mainly between Russia, Austria and the Porte on the one side, and between the Porte and Bulgaria on the other. The basis on which they are being conducted is that the Bulgarian Regency shall resign when satisfactory assurance is given regarding a candidate for the vacant throne. Efforts are being made to induce Russia to give the desired assurance. It is proposed that a new Bulgarian Government, representing all parties, shall be formed preparatory to the dissolution of the Sobranje and the ordering of the new elections. The Bulgarians are disposed to accept these terms.

Reports of a Conference Unfounded.

ST. PETERSBURG, Jan. 20.—The reports that a conference of the Powers on the Bulgarian question is about to be held are unfounded. Russia is awaiting the resignation of the Bulgarian regents. When that event occurs a provisional Government, which will be recognised by all the Powers, will be established and Russia will adopt a conciliatory course and propose a candidate for the Bulgarian throne other than the Prince of Mingrelia. Notwithstanding Prince Bismarck's declaration in the Reichstag, it is believed that Germany is not indifferent to the affairs of Bulgaria. Prince Bismarck's reference to Bulgaria is supposed to have been made with the view of encouraging Russia to take energetic steps toward a settlement in Bulgaria favorable to her own interests. Such a Russian policy, it is thought, would probably not be resisted at the beginning, but later Austria, Hungary and England would be unable to remain passive, and a conflict would ensue which would weaken Germany's neighbors and afford Bismarck an opportunity to advance German interests.

CANADIAN ODDFELLOWS.

Conclusion of the Grand Lodge Session at Hamilton.

HAMILTON, Jan. 20.—The Grand Lodge, C.O.O.F., has been sitting here for the past two days completing the new constitution and financial schemes begun at Drummondville in June last. The sessions were presided over by Grand Master Gearing of Toronto, and among the prominent members present were Grand Secretary Parkinson and Grand Treasurer Boxall of Toronto, P.G.M. Dr. Cameron of Owen Sound, Grand Chaplain Rev. Mr. Osborne of Gravenhurst and Grand Organizer Wade of British Columbia. There were about fifty delegates present. Much business has been transacted during the sessions, and the best of feeling has prevailed. Among the important matters legislated upon are the introduction of an insurance scheme in connection with sick and other benefits, securing $500 at the death of a member, the changing of the composition of the Grand Lodge and the abolition of the Board of Directors. Yesterday afternoon Rev. Mr. Osborne was unanimously elected Grand Chaplain for the balance of the term. The session closed this afternoon.

THE QUEBEC PREMIER RESIGNS.

Rumor that Hon. Mr. Taillon Has Been Called to Form a Cabinet.

QUEBEC, Jan. 20.—Hon. J. J. Ross handed his resignation to the Lieutenant-Governor about 2 this afternoon, and, though not learned authoritatively, it was stated that he was shortly followed by Hon. E. F. Flynn, Solicitor-General. Rumor says that Hon. L. O. Taillon, Attorney-General, has been called to form a Cabinet. It is stated that the course taken by Premier Ross and Solicitor-General Flynn has been in contemplation since last election, but they were only prevented from taking this step through the intervention of Mr. Taillon. Taking all rumors for what they are worth, nothing of a positive nature is known beyond the Premier's resignation.

The Telegraph to-night states that Premier Ross resigned on account of ill-health, and that Hon. Mr. Taillon has responded to the call to form a new Cabinet.

THE FLOOD AT CORNWALL.

Great Destitution Exists in the Inundated District.

CORNWALL, Ont., Jan. 20.—The water continues to fall, being now fully six feet lower than on Tuesday morning. It is, of course, too soon for mill-owners to estimate the damage, but it will be very large, though not as great as at first imagined. The weave-room of the Canada Cotton Company is not submerged as at first reported, the water only wetting a portion of the floor and not damaging any goods or machinery there. There seems at present no further immediate danger of another inundation, and as soon as the water recedes measures will at once be taken to get the mills going. There is great destitution among the flooded-out sufferers, and a public meeting is to be held to-night to devise further measures for relief.

The Montreal Chess Tournament.

MONTREAL, Jan. 20.—At the Canadian Chess Association tournament the following games were played to-day: N. M. McLeod won from J. P. Cooke; C. P. Champion won from J. Wright; McLeod won from Wright; J. Barry won from J. A. Robertson; Champion won from McLeod; Hurlbert won from Champion; McLeod won from Hurlbert; Champion won from R. Short; Robertson won from Wright; G. Barry won from Hurlbert.

The score up to the present is: J. B Hurlbert won 2 lost 3; C. P. Champion won 3 lost 4; N. M. McLeod won 5 lost 3; W. H. Hicks won 2 lost 1; J. Wright won 2 lost 3; J. S. Cooke won 1½ lost 3; G. Barry won 4 lost 1; J. A. Robertson won 1½ lost 2; Robt. Short won 1 lost 1.

HAMILTON AFFAIRS.

Attacked by a Dog—Arrested for False Pretences.

HAMILTON, Jan. 20.—A daughter of Thomas O'Neill, residing on the corner of Hughson and Wood streets, was attacked a few days ago by a Newfoundland dog owned by Mr. Harvey, a hotelkeeper. The girl went to call on Harvey's daughter and was thrown down in the yard by the dog and bitten badly on the arms, hands and side. She has since been confined to bed. The dog was immediately destroyed.

Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Charlton, Mr. A. E. Kerr, of this city, and Miss Baxter of Burlington will sail for England by the Umbria on Saturday.

George Dietrich, belonging to Detroit, who has been visiting in this section, was arrested to-day just as he was leaving for the West, on a charge of obtaining by false pretences. He hired a cutter at Temple's livery, saying a Mr. Elliott had sent him for it, kept it for two weeks and refused to pay for it. A young woman who was with him insisted upon going to the cells with him, but the officers would not permit it.

A large party of tobogginers from Brantford will be present at the carnival.

The Pigeon Shoot at St. Mitre.

ST. CATHARINES, Jan. 20.—The following is the result of the second day's shoot for the sweepstakes of $200:

Fourth squad: Dalton, 9; Woodruff, 4 retired; D. J. Belden, Toronto, 10; J. Gibson, St. Catharines, 9 retired; E. George, Niagara Falls, 3 retired; J. Swarts, Buffalo, 5 retired.

Fifth squad: J. Werper, Buffalo, 7 retired; J. Koch, Buffalo, 4 retired; H. Simmons, Buffalo, 4 retired; J. Thomson, 2 retired; George Rogers, St. Catharines, 9; H. Clatterbuck, St. Catharines, 6 retired.

Sixth squad: E. Stroud, Hamilton, 7 retired; B. West, St. Catharines, 4 retired; J. Smith, Pt. Colborne, 5 retired; A. Jackson, Buffalo, retired.

This ended the squad shooting, and then began the clearing of ties. For first place, J. E. Stroud, Hamilton; C. Forsyth, Dundas; and J. Clark, Buffalo, each of whom scored 11 yesterday, tried conclusions, with this result: Stroud 3, Forsyth 2, Clark 2. Forsyth defeated Stroud for first. The first three prizes were awarded: Forsyth first, Stroud second, Clark third. W. Stroud, Hamilton; Hutchinson, Syracuse; and Belden, Toronto, divided for fourth, fifth and sixth prizes.

LONDON, Jan. 20.—Assistant Relief Inspector Baskerville has been dismissed from office because of his fondness for women of bad character.

LIBERALS,

RALLY

To-Night!

Dominion Elections.

A Grand Rally of every working Liberal in Town is called for THIS EVENING, in the Liberal Club Rooms, to perfect organization for the coming Dominion Elections.

The Daily Examiner.

FRIDAY, JANUARY 21, 1887.

THE WAY THE MONEY GOES.

With the national debt rolling up by millions a year, with the highest rate of taxation failing, not only to not meet the current expenditure, but even causing deficits in two years amounting to eight millions, it would be thought that the Dominion Government would have redeemed some of their promises of economy. In the civil service department there has been a shameful increase of employees. In 1878, the last year of Mr. Mackenzie's administration, the number was 480; at present there] are 1,180. The following table shows the increase:

Departments.	1878.	1886.
Governor-General's office	11	13
Privy Council office	12	22
Department of Justice	12	20
Militia and Defence	32	33
Secretary of State's Department	36	46
Department of Interior	41	234
Department of Indian Affairs	None.	43
Auditor-General's office	None.	23
Finance Department	37	59
Department of Customs	27	34
Department of Inland Revenue	28	34
Department of Public Works	31	148
Department of Railways and Canals	None.	31
Postoffice Department	130	194
Department of Agriculture	40	127
Department of Marine and Fisheries	23	28
Receiver-General's office	15
Total	480	1,180

To this is to be added fifty attendants in the Senatorial sepulchre, and 237 persons engaged in the House of Commons, and there results a total of 1,467 persons at Ottawa living at the public expense. These gentlemen have what the boys would call "soft times." Their hours of nominal toil are from ten o'clock in the morning till four in the afternoon, but their number is so great that the bulk of the labor of most of them is finding something to do. The number is increased so much that a new departmental building is now being erected at a cost of $500,000 for their accommodation. It is not surprising that there should be so great an increase of civil servants when it is pointed out that this department is largely used by members of the Government as a means of providing for their relatives. For instance, the Premier's relatives, three in number, draw every year $3,750 from the public chest. The relatives of Hon. Mr. Chapleau receive annually of the people's money, some $4,000, not including a subsidy of $272,000 for a railway of which the virtuous minister is described as "head, tail and middle." The relatives of Sir Hector Langevin draw from the public funds the modest figures of $7,500 per year. The relatives of Hon. Thomas White are housed at the public expense to the tune of $2,600 per year, and the Minister of Finance provides for his relatives with the people's money to the extent of some $3,000 per year. Hon. John Costigan, the friend (?) of Ireland whose milk-and-water Home Rule resolutions were supported by Conservatives in the House because they would do as little good to the cause of Home Rule as possible, if he does forget the wrongs of Ireland, does not forget the rights of his relatives to $2,200 worth of pickings from the public purse as well as shares in timber limits and North-west grazing lands. Hon. Mr. Pope plays the paternal to his relatives by distributing among six of them $7,100 per year. Sir Leonard Tilley proved to be the most loyal man to his family on record. After drawing $6,000 per year as Minister of Finance, he dropped into the snug sinecure of Lieut.-Governor of New Brunswick, having before he resigned office, managed to slip no less than fifteen of his relatives into the Civil Service, who draw the tidy sum of $17,681 per year. Can the people wonder with such an exhibition of extravagance and waste—and it is only a sample of every department of the Administration—that the public debt is increasing "by leaps and bounds" and that the annual expenditure has in eight years climbed from 23 millions a year to 39 millions a year. And this state of affairs will go on from bad to worse, so long as the present Government is kept in power. The only way to put a stop to their ruinous waste is to place Mr. Blake in power. He and the Liberals are pledged to economy and they will carry it out, for they kept their word during the short time they were in office—from 1873 to 1878—for the annual expenditure under Mr. Mackenzie in his last year was half a million less than when Sir John resigned office in 1873.

A LIE that is half the truth is the basest kind of falsehood. Mr. Cox's political opponents seek to make the point that he was opposed to the inception of the Ontario and Quebec Railway. As president of the Midland R. R., Mr. Cox could not be expected by the most idiotic, to exert himself very strongly for the establishment of a competing line. The duty of his position was to do his best in the interest of the shareholders of the road of which he was presiding officer. No honest elector will impute one iota of blame to Mr. Cox for doing his duty and he would have been worthy of execration if he had betrayed his trust and taken a course to depreciate the property of the shareholders of the Midland. It is a base insinuation of falsehood that Mr. Cox's personal interests led him to oppose the construction of the O. & Q. R. R. Mr. Stevenson is President of the Cox company and that company, so far as competition is concerned, can charge its own price for gas. Suppose there is a project for establishing a new and competing gas company, would any sane man expect Mr. Stevenson to take an active interest in a rival concern that would damage the interests of his own company? Mr. Cox was placed in an exactly parallel position with regard to railway construction and the course he took is the only course an honorable man in his place could have taken. It is preposterous that he should be charged on that account with being hostile to the interests of the town, and his whole career gives the lie to the base insinuation. Mr. Cox has done more for the good of Peterborough than ten generations of the blatant grumblers who, by insinuating a lie, seek to misconstrue his actions.

THE desperate means taken by our down street contemporary to injure Mr. Cox demonstrates how greatly the opponent of its candidate is feared. An elaborate attempt is made to show that Mr. Cox by being one of a "bogus" company to thwart the construction of the C. P. R., was hostile to the interests of the country. The offer was made by a collection of Canadian financiers, representing many millions of dollars, and was a bona fide offer, and its acceptance would have saved millions in the construction of the line. The term "bogus" does not apply with much relevancy to an offer made by solid financiers one of whom was Mr. Cox, whose check is good for from $500,000 to a million of dollars. No one but a "bogus" friend to the people of Canada, can see in the offer of the company of which Mr. Cox was one, anything hostile to the public interests.

THE hard-up-for-a-cry Conservative journals soundly berated Hon. Mr. Mowat for, as they asserted, "springing" the local elections. Yet Mr. Mowat gave six weeks' notice, in favorable weather and good roads, while Sir John, with the country an impassable mass of snow, and travelling about the country an impossibility, gives only five weeks' notice. Why don't they abuse Sir John a little for "springing" the Dominion elections?

MR. JUSTICE PROUDFOOT has decided that he has no power to issue a mandamus in connection with the recent Provincial election, in West Durham, and there will be no recount.

A Locomotive Plunges Through.

RIVER DU LOUP, Que., Jan. 20.—Last night about 11 o'clock the side rod of one of the engines on the Intercolonial Railway accommodation from Levis broke near St. Alexandre. Both Driver Montgomery and Fireman Langlois jumped, but unfortunately Langlois had his neck broken, dying instantly. Montgomery escaped with a few broken teeth and several slight contusions.

The Elora Accident.

ELORA, Ont., Jan. 19.—An inquest on the body of Michael Dubeau, a section man from Cataract, who was found dead on the Canadian Pacific Railway track here yesterday morning, was held last night. A verdict of accidental death was rendered. His left arm was torn off, right leg fractured, neck dislocated and the base of his skull fractured. He leaves a wife and family.

Ruined by Fire.

MONTREAL, Jan. 19.—A disastrous fire occurred in Robert Gardner's machine shop, situated between Nazareth and Dalhousie streets and fronting on Brennan-street. The fire was discovered shortly after 2 o'clock this morning. The premises are in ruins. The damage cannot as yet be ascertained, but will be very heavy.

Arrest of German Spies.

LYONS, Jan. 19.—Two German spies were arrested here to-day for attempting to bribe a French soldier into obtaining for them one of the new repeating rifles with which the Government is about to equip the army.

Threatened Danger.

In the fall of '84, Randall Miller, of Mitland, N.S., was prostrated to his bed with an attack of incipient consumption. Cough remedies all failed. He rapidly grew debilitated, and friends despaired of his recovery. He tried Burdock Blood Bitters, with immediate relief, followed by a speedy cure. 2w3d

"Are you nearly related to Mr. Randal Linley?" the captain asked.

"I am his elder brother."

Ignorant on his part of the family disgrace, Bennydeck heard that reply with amazement. From his point of view it was impossible to account for Randal's silence.

"Will you think me very inquisitive," Herbert resumed, "if I ask whether my brother approves of your marriage?"

There was a change in his tone as he put that question, which warned Bennydeck to be on his guard. "I have not yet consulted my friend's opinion," he answered, shortly.

Herbert threw off the mask. "In the meantime you shall have my opinion," he said. "Your marriage is a crime—and I mean to prevent it."

The captain left his chair, and steadily faced the man who had spoken those insolent words.

"Are you mad?" he asked.

Herbert was on the point of declaring himself to have been Catherine's husband until the law dissolved their marriage when a waiter came in and approached him with a message. "You are wanted immediately sir."

"Who wants me?"

"A person outside, sir. It's a serious matter—there is not a moment to lose."

Herbert turned to the captain. "I must have your promise to wait for me," he said, "or I don't leave the room."

"Make your mind easy. I shall not stir from this place till you have explained yourself," was the firm reply.

The servant led the way out. He crossed the passage, and opened the door of a waiting-room. Herbert passed in—and found himself face to face with his divorced wife.

CHAPTER LI.

Without one word of explanation Catherine stepped up to him and spoke first.

"Answer me this," she said; "have you told Capt. Bennydeck who I am?"

"No."

The shortest word in the language was all that he could say in the moment when he first looked at her.

She was not the same woman whom he had last seen at Sandyseal returning for her lost book. The agitation produced by that unexpected meeting had turned her pale; the overpowering sense of injury had hardened and aged her face. This time she was prepared to see him; this time she was conscious of a resolution that raised her in her own estimation. Her clear blue eyes glittered as she looked at him, the bright color glowed in her cheeks; he was literally dazzled by her beauty.

"In the past time which we both remember," she resumed, "you once said that I was the most truthful woman you have ever known. Have I done anything to disturb that part of your old faith in me?"

"Nothing."

She went on: "Before you entered this house I had determined to tell Capt. Bennydeck what you have not told him yet. When I say that, do you believe me?"

If he had been able to look away from her he might have foreseen what was coming, and he would have remembered that his triumph over the captain was still incomplete. But his eyes were riveted on her face; his tenderest memories of her were pleading with him. He answered as a docile child might have answered:

"I do believe you."

She took a letter from her bosom, and, showing it, begged him to remark that it was not closed.

"I was in my bedroom writing," she said, "when my mother came to me and told me that you and Capt. Bennydeck had met in my sitting-room. She dreaded a quarrel and an exposure, and she urged me to go down stairs and insist on sending you away—or to permit her to do so, if I could not prevail on myself to follow her advice. I refused to allow the shameful dismissal of a man who once had his claim on my respect. The only alternative that I could see was to speak with you here in private, as we are speaking now. My mother undertook to manage this for me; she saw the servant and gave him the message which you received. Where is Capt. Bennydeck now?"

"He is waiting in the sitting-room."

"Waiting for you?"

"Yes."

She considered a little before she said her next words.

"I have brought with me what I was writing in my own room," she resumed, "wishing to show it to you. Will you read it?"

She offered the letter to him. He hesitated. "Is it addressed to me?" he asked.

"It is addressed to Capt. Bennydeck," she answered.

The jealousy that still rankled in his mind—jealousy that he had no more lawful or reasonable claim to feel than if he had been a stranger—confirmed him in his resolution not to read the letter. Speaking with marked respect he begged that she would accept his excuses.

She refused to excuse him.

"Before you decide," she said, "you ought at least to know why I have written to Capt. Bennydeck, instead of speaking to him as I had proposed. My heart failed me when I thought of the distress that he would feel—and, perhaps, of the contempt for myself which, good and gentle as he is, he might not be able to disguise. My letter tells him the truth, without concealment. I am obliged to speak of the manner in which you have treated me, and of the circumstances which forced me into acts of deception that I now bitterly regret. I have tried not to misrepresent you; I have been anxious to do you no wrong. It is for you, not for me, to say if I have succeeded. Once more, will you read my letter?"

The sad self-possession, the quiet dignity with which she spoke, appealed to his memory of the pardon that she had so generously granted, while he and Sydney Westerfield were still guiltless of the injury inflicted on her at a later time. Silently he took the letter from her and read it.

She kept her face turned away from him and from the light. The effort to be still, calm, and responsible—to endure the heartache, and not let the suffering be seen—made cruel demands on the self-betraying nature of a woman professed by strong emotion. There was a moment when she feared the night while he was reading. She looked round at him, and instantly looked away again.

He rose and approached her; he held out the letter in one hand and pointed to it with the other. Twice he attempted to speak. Twice the influence of the letter unmastered him.

It was a hard struggle, but it was for her sake; he mastered his weakness and forced his trembling voice to submit to his will.

"Is the man whom you are going to marry worthy of this?" he asked, still pointing to the letter.

She answered, firmly: "More than worthy of it."

"Marry him, Catherine—and forget Me."

The great heart that he had sore sorely wounded pitied him, forgave him, answered him with a burst of tears. She held out one imploring hand. His lips touched it—he was gone.

CHAPTER LII.

Brisk and smiling, Mrs. Presty presented herself in the waiting-room. "He's gone!" she announced; "I looked out of my window and saw him leaving the hotel." She paused, struck by the deep dejection expressed in her daughter's attitude. "Catherine!" she exclaimed. "I tell you Herbert has gone, and you look as if you regretted it! Is there anything wrong? Did my messenger fail to bring him here?"

"No."

"He was bent on mischief when I saw him last. Has he told Bennydeck of the divorce?"

"No."

"Thank heaven for that! There is no one to be afraid of now. Where is the captain?"

"He is still in the sitting-room."

"Why don't you go to him?"

"I daren't!"

"Shall I go?"

"Yes—and give him this."

Mrs. Presty took the letter. "You mean tear it up," she said, "and quite right, too."

"No; I mean what I say."

"My dear child, if you have any regard for yourself, if you have any regard for me, don't ask me to give Bennydeck this mad letter! You won't hear reason? You still insist on it?"

"I do."

"If Kitty ever behaves to you, Catherine, as you have behaved to me—you will have richly deserved it. Oh, if you were only a child again. I'd beat it out of you—I would!"

Poverty and Distress.

That poverty which produces the greatest distress is not of the purse but of the blood. Deprived of its richness it becomes scant and watery, a condition termed anæmia in medical writings. Given this condition, and scrofulous swellings and sores, general and nervous debility, loss of flesh and appetite, weak lungs, throat disease, spitting of blood and consumption, are among the common results. If you are a sufferer from this, poor blood employ Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery," which enriches the blood and cures the grave affections. In mere nutritive tone cod liver oil, and is harmless in any condition of the system, yet powerful to cure. By druggists. 6dw9

What True Merit Will Do.

The unprecedented sale of Boschee's German Syrup within a few years has astonished the world. It is without doubt the safest and best remedy ever discovered for the speedy and effectual cure of Coughs, Colds and the severest Lung troubles. It acts on an entirely different principle from the usual prescriptions given by physicians, as it does not dry up a cough and leave the disease still in the system, but on the contrary removes the cause of the trouble, heals the parts affected, and leaves them in a purely healthy condition. A bottle kept in the house for use when the diseases make their appearance, will save doctor's bills and a long spell of serious illness. A trial will convince you of these facts. It is positively sold by all druggists and general dealers in the land. Price 75 cents, large bottles. eodw41tf

SUN LIFE ASSURANCE CO. OF CANADA.

Gross Life Business for 1886, - - - $3,540,000.

EXTRACT FROM MONTREAL WITNESS, DATED DECEMBER 3RD, 1886.

THE LATE MR. McLACHLAN.

AS INSURANCE COMPANY'S PROMPT SETTLEMENT.

We have been asked by Mr. McLachlan to publish the following, and do so in view of the exceptional public interest taken in the case mentioned:—

To R. Macdonald, Esq., Managing Director of the Sun Life Assurance Co., Montreal:

DEAR SIR,—I have much pleasure in acknowledging the payment by you of $2,000, the amount due under the policy held by me in your Company on the life of my brother, the late James S. McLachlan. After making the claim upon you which has been so promptly met, I had the misfortune to meet with a railway accident, which, although not of a serious character, has rendered it impossible for me to comply with certain formalities and requirements, so as to complete the proofs of my claim. There is no doubt in the mind of any reasonable man that my brother and Mr. Bannatyne were unhappily drowned, and the affidavit produced abundantly support this; but although a careful search has been made, the bodies may never be recovered owing to the swiftness of the current and the low temperature of the water. It would, indeed, be a hardship if any company were, under the circumstances, to demand technical proofs which, from the very nature of the case, it is impossible to furnish. I have great pleasure in certifying to the honorable and liberal manner in which your Company has acted in regard to the claim. As soon as your board of directors were aware that the accident had really happened you gave every facility for a prompt settlement. You have been the first of the companies interested to pay, and I thank you for the kind and considerate manner in which you have acted.

W. MCLACHLAN.

The Dominion stability fund, we understand, has also paid its policy of $2,000. The Sun Life has taken from the executors of Mr. McLachlan a personal bond to refund the amount of insurance with six per cent per annum compound interest, should he ever turn up alive. Mr. J. S. McLachlan had in all $62,126.70 insurance on his life, and other companies resist the claims.

ST. CATHARINES, Sept. 30th, 1885.

GENTLEMEN,—Being over 70 years of age, and over 30 years Ruptured, I looked upon my case as hopeless, especially as I tried various appliances without success, among others, recently, two operations treated me [illegible] York State, costing me $50. Nothing would retain my Hernia. I have worn your truss over four months night and day, with great satisfaction and comfort; even to bathe in it the rupture has never come down, it holds me perfectly under all circumstances. You may use my name in favor of other sufferers. Yours truly, CAPT. E. KING.

This new Spiral Spring Pad Truss has taken ten years to make it perfect; is guaranteed to hold the very worst case during the hardest work or severest strain. It will cure every child sure; and 99 out of every 100 of adults. Its wearer don't waste your money on useless appliances, but send stamp for our treatise; it only costs a full half-cent. Ask your neighbors' testimony, price list and questions for you to answer. When writing please mention this paper. Address,

Run Over by a Sleigh.

A little daughter of Mr. Coyle Brown yesterday noon in jumping off a farmer's sleigh near the corner of George and Murray streets, in some way was thrown under the hind bob, the runner of which passed over both her legs, bruising them severely. She also received slight internal injuries. The little girl went on to school, but was soon taken very sick and had to be sent home.

Prize-winning Poultry.

Mr. J. McClelland, of Peterborough, made seven entries at the Ottawa Central Poultry Show, held this week, on which he took 4 first and 2 second prize, viz:

1st.....Buff Cochin Cockerel
1st and 2nd..... " " Pullett

His birds were the most admired of any at the show, prominent poultry fanciers speaking highly of them.

A Common Amusement.

The balmy weather of last night drew a large crowd of spectators to the corner of Hunter and George streets, who were amused by the actions of a farmer with a spirited team of horses in making a "scatter" among the Salvationists in the rear end of the procession. The Army soldiers, about fifty strong, were crossing George street, and the farmer came along before the procession had quite cleared the centre of the street. An attempt was made by one of the 'pickets' to stop the team, but the driver lashed his horses and forced his way through, scattering the soldiers, lads and lasses alike, like "chaff before the wind." Fortunately no one was hurt. Such incidents are of almost nightly occurrence.

More Counterfeit Bills.

A new counterfeit $2 Dominion of Canada note has made its appearance in Toronto, says the Mail, and it is evidently being extensively "shoved." It is a very dangerous counterfeit, and persons are liable to be deceived by it, as it is fairly well engraved. It is dated June 1, 1878, check letter B, and is payable at Montreal. Its general appearance is good, although on comparing it with the genuine note the engraving of the counterfeit will be found to be coarser, particularly the back of the note, which is also poorly printed. The letter "E" in the word "Finance," in title "For Minister of Finance," is a little larger than the other letters, while in the genuine they are all of a size. Similarly in the counterfeit the letters "Bri" in the word British are out of alignment. The paper used in the counterfeit has a yellowish tinge, while that of the genuine is a clear white. The numbering (in blue ink) is equal to or better than the genuine, and the counterfeits already detected bear different numbers.

The Tower of London,

As Described by Rev. Mr. Munro—An Interesting Lecture Thoroughout.

A fair-sized audience gathered in the Baptist Church last night to listen to Rev. Mr. Munro lecture on "The Tower of London." Rev. E. F. Torrance occupied the chair. Rev. Mr. Munro was in good voice, and succeeded in commanding the attention of his audience throughout. On the wall were a couple of paintings of the tower; one as seen from the river, which is crowded with yachts and steam launches, banners flying on the massive battlements of the tower, and the whole place in evident holiday attire; the other was a birds-eye view of the whole castle, showing every tower and turrets, the various gates and the interior court. The rev. gentleman's remarks abounded with quiet and interesting anecdotes connected with the tower. The jewel-house, Queen's gate, traitor's gate, white tower, were described, also St. Peter's Church and cemetery, in which lie the bodies of Queen Anne, Boleyn, and dukes and earls innumerable. A few yards from the door of St. Peter's is a small white stone in the ground, enclosed by a railing, marking the spot where stood the terrible block, on which perished Hastings, Queen Anne, Lady Jane Gray and many others. Connected with the various towers were numerous stories of

THRILLING ESCAPES

of the prisoners, whose wonderful feats are almost incredible. The story of Sir John Oldcastle, the celebrated Lollard, arrested and imprisoned for heresy, his escape and final triumph were touched upon. The Bell, Beauchamp, Bloody and other towers had numerous sad and pathetic incidents, not devoid of a certain grim humor connected with them, to which the speaker did ample justice. The ceremony of locking the gates at night was fully described, and the celebrated attempt of the notorious Col. Blood to steal the crown jewels was vividly pictured. The hundreds of startling stories connected with the reigns of the English monarchs from Henry II to the present day, showing the brave, patriotic and indomitable spirit of the English noblemen, or their still more persevering and faithful wives, whose loving schemes for their weal seldom failed the mark, were brought out; the history of each tower or place of interest was detailed briefly but pointedly, mainly consisting of scenes of murder, torture and death. The last character mentioned was the brave Sir Walter Raleigh, who perished, after numerous adventures, to satisfy the vengeance of the Spanish king. Tower Hill, on which so many executions took place, was alluded to, after which the speaker remarked that the story of the Tower of London was not only the history of tyranny, oppression and crime, but also the conflict of

CIVIL AND RELIGIOUS LIBERTY.

Let the comparison between the England of then and the England of to-day be extended to the England of the middle ages and its contemporary nations, who were just beginning the fight for liberty, in which England was taking the lead.

Mr. Clarkson in rising to move a vote of thanks, remarked that he was very thankful to the Rev. gentleman for the instructive lecture given. He had seen the tower himself, and the lecture had enlightened him upon many doubtful parts connected with the story of the tower. The motion was seconded by Mr. H. S. Griffin, and on being put to the audience by the chairman, Rev. E. F. Torrance, was carried unanimously.

Rev. Mr. Munroe said that the lecture had to be so greatly condensed that he had probably told only one-tenth of the interesting reminiscences linked with the tower, but he had endeavored in the short time at his disposal, to give as concise but comprehensive a lecture as possible.

The Nicholls Hospital.

Adjourned Meeting—Matters for the Finance Committee.

At the adjourned meeting of the Nicholls Hospital Trust, held in Mr. Poussettes' office yesterday afternoon there were present Mr. R. Hall, chairman; Mr. W. Manson, secretary; Messrs. McClelland, Stratton, Davidson and Flavelle.

Messrs. Davidson and Stratton were appointed members of the Visiting Committee.

A communication was read announcing that at a meeting of the congregation of St. Andrew's church Mr. W. Manson had been elected representative on the Nicholls Trust.

The matter of purchasing supplies was left in the hands of the Supply Committee, with instructions to ask for tenders for six months supplies of butchers meat, bread, milk, flour, drugs and ice.

Before adjourning, the Chairman requested the new Finance Committee to assume their duties at once, stating that among other things that they would have to look after would be the proposed increase of salary of the lady Superintendent, who was now getting $300 a year, and the collecting of fees for the care of the young lad who was injured in the country some time ago and placed in the hospital, either from the township in which the accident occurred or Mr. W. H. Moore, who had secured his admission to the hospital.

The meeting then adjourned at the call of the Chairman. The regular monthly meetings will in future be held at the hospital.

Auburn Anniversary Services.

The Sunday School's Annual Concert—A Fine Programme.

The Auburn Sunday School anniversary was celebrated with great eclat at the Auburn church Thursday evening. The friends were greeted with a full house. An excellent tea was provided by parents and teachers, after which a full programme was rendered by the children, comprising duets, choruses, recitations and dialogues, Mr. F. Mason presiding as chairman.

PROGRAMME.

Good Evening to All.....Children's chorus

The Chairman gave a short account of the progress of the school and the difficulties of carrying on a school with about one half the complement of teachers, and urged strongly upon those present to give a helping hand, as some classes were broken up just for the want of teachers. He closed by saying that Mrs. Keodry and Miss Fitzgerald are deserving of great praise for their painstaking and trouble in training the children for this entertainment. A delightful and happy evening was brought to a close by all singing God Save the Queen.

"Mum's the Word."

A Novel Entertainment and a Complete Success.

The residence of Mr. J. J. McBain, corner King and Ashburn streets, was thronged last night with people, old and young alike brimming over with feelings of friendship and pleasure, the occasion being the much talked of and anxiously looked for "Mum Social." The "mum" part of the entertainment consisted of the entire company maintaining perfect silence for a space of about fifteen minutes, the time being designated by the ringing of bells; anyone disturbing the calm by as much as a whisper to pay a forfeit. "Speech is silver, silence is gold," runs the old German saw, and many of those present last night testify to the truth of at least one half the proverb. A nice little sum was accumulated from the "fines" imposed on the gentlemen who preferred to yield to the almost irresistible efforts of the young ladies to induce an infraction of the law, very few caring to undergo the martyrdom incurred in observing a stoic silence amidst so much friendly conversation. A most enjoyable time was had, different amusements being at hand to furnish diversion to the pleasure-seekers. During the evening the following excellent programme was rendered.

Part I.

Piano solo.....Mr. G. Schaldcr
Reading.....Mr. Rowan
Solo.....Mrs Logan
Duet.....Misses Johnston and Ella Cox

Part II.

Instrumental duet.....Mrs. Davis and Miss M. (Cox
Recitation.....Mr. Rowan

God Save the Queen.

A Letter of Thanks.

PETERBOROUGH, Jan. 20th, 1887.

W. H. HILL, Esq., General Manager for Central Ontario of the Sun Life & Accident Assurance Co.

DEAR SIR,—I beg to acknowledge the receipt from you as general agent of the above company of $120.00 being the full amount of an indemnity of $5.00 for twenty six weeks under an accident policy held by me in the Sun Life and Accident Assurance Company, due to me by reason of an accident which occurred to me about six months ago.

I desire also to express my gratitude to you and to your company for the prompt, satisfactory and liberal manner in which my claim has been fully paid, a claim which the company might perhaps have repudiated on technical grounds.

Yours very truly,
W. G. MATTHEWS.

Gaining Favor.

The Wilson Day Dramatic Company are scoring fresh triumphs at every appearance before the public. The company is at present playing at Belleville to crowded houses, and will open a two weeks' engagement at the Opera House here on Monday next. The Ontario has the following: "Nobody's Child" was put on at the opera house last night by the Wilson Day Company to a good audience. It is a drama without a single weak point, and gained instant favor. The stage settings, which are carried by the company, are perfect, and the scenes on the rocky coast of Cornwall, in England, were accurate. Mr. Day, as "Joe" (Nobody's Child), gave a perfect and realistic picture of the wandering, half-witted village fool, and so completely had this talented gentleman sunk his identity into the character he portrayed that his audience were loud in their praise and approval. Miss Osborne, as "Lucy Tregarvon," was all that could be desired, acting as she did with a spirit that carried her auditors with her. Miss Willis, as "Patty Tavrock," was excellent, and played her part thoroughly well, keeping the audience in good humor when on. Mr. Henderson, as "Peter Grice," the miser, played a difficult role perfectly. The balance of the support was good. Little Annie Bird sang between acts and received the heartiest of welcomes."

"I Had a Dream."

The head clerk in a George street establishment the other afternoon drew some $225 from the bank, which he hid under his pillow before retiring to bed. Visions of ferocious burglars and murderous midnight marauders floated through his imaginative brain, but after loading his watch-dog and letting loose his revolver, the h. c. retired to his downy couch with the conscious satisfaction of having done his duty, come what might. Somewhere about the middle of the night he was awakened by the presence of two men in his room, upon whom the brave young man leaped with tiger-like ferocity, determined to protect his wealth and sell his life as dearly as possible. After struggling fiercely for a few minutes against the combined assaults of both men, he at last succeeded in breaking from his adversaries and ran downstairs into the shop. After kicking over the coal scuttle and barking his shins, he suddenly—awoke with a start and discovered that he had had a bad attack of nightmare. The money was under the pillow all right, and as soon as the excitement wore off the young man resumed his slumbers.

Curling.

A match between two rinks each of Peterborough and Lakefield clubs was commenced at the rink this afternoon. Following are the players:—

Lakefield	Peterborough.

Geo. Hatton,	John Clarin.
W. Van Every,	G. Cochrane.
E. B. Edward.	R. O. Strickland.

THE GOVERNOR-GENERALS'S PRIZE.

A point game was played this afternoon between eight members for the Governor-General's prize, as follows: Messrs. T. P. Attrill, T. Rutherford, R. S. Davidson, W. G. Ferguson, A. McNeil, C. McGill, J. B. Pentland and S. Ray. A possible 36 points can be made, from 9 different shots, 4 tries for each. At the conclusion of the game the scores are aggregated and averaged. The club in Ontario making the highest average goes to Ottawa to play an ordinary rink game with the winning club in Quebec, the victorious rink in this contest to claim the prize.

Free Trade.

The reduction of internal revenue and the taking off of revenue stamps from Proprietary Medicines, no doubt has largely benefitted the consumers, as well as relieving the burden of home manufacturers. Especially is this the case with Green's August Flower and Boschee's German Syrup, as the reduction of thirty-six cents per dozen has been added to increase the size of the bottles containing these remedies, thereby giving one-fifth more medicine in the 75 cent size. The August Flower for Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint, and the German Syrup for Cough and Lung troubles have, perhaps, the largest sale of any medicines in the world. The advantage of increased size of the bottles will be greatly appreciated by the sick and afflicted, in every town and village in civilized countries. Sample bottles for 10c. remain in the same size. sod w41

UNREST IN OLD LANDS

AUSTRIAN AUTHORITIES REGARD THE SITUATION AS SERIOUS.

VIENNA, Jan. 21.—An inspired letter from Berlin says: "In Government circles here the situation is regarded as serious. The peaceful tone of the French press is not assuring, and it is evident that the papers have been ordered officially to adopt a pacific attitude. There can be no question that France is preparing military camps on the German frontier. It remains to be seen whether a plausible reason can be given for this."

Suspicious Events Expected.

BUCHAREST, Jan. 21.—M. Stojanoff has been hastily summoned to Sofia by the regency. M. Stojanoff states that important events may soon be expected in Bulgaria, the Government intending to take energetic measures.

Opinion in Constantinople.

VIENNA, Jan. 21.—The Political Correspondence prints a letter from Constantinople saying: "A decided opinion prevails here that the Bulgarian difficulty will be speedily overcome. As Russia is not pledged officially to the Prince of Mingrelia the Porte is prepared to regard the recent circular to the powers as void. This will ensure the resignation of the regents, and in the meantime, until a new election has been held, the formation of a coalition government."

THE QUEEN'S JUBILEE.

To be Celebrated by a Great Procession in New York.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—A meeting of the committee in charge of the Queen's jubilee in New York, to be celebrated on June 28 next, was held here to-night. Erastus Wiman, President of the Canadian Club, presided. The committee resolved that a feature of the day's celebration should consist of a monster parade of English, Scotch, Irish and Colonial residents, and that deputations should be invited from other cities and towns to participate. It was stated that at least 25,000 persons would be in line.

Chapleau and the Government.

OTTAWA, Jan. 21.—Hon. J. A. Chapleau has not yet resigned, but the red flag is up. He was seen at his residence this afternoon.

"There are differences," said the Secretary of State, in reply to a question, "between the Government and myself."

"Have you resigned?"

"No, the report is untrue. I have not come to any decision on that point."

"What was the cause of the difficulties?"

"I am not prepared to make any statement to the public."

"Yes," he continued in answer to a question, "it is true that Sir Charles Tupper is on his way to this country for the purpose of participating in the campaign. I am unaware whether he will enter the Government or not."

Mr. Chapleau has not attended the two Council meetings since his return from Montreal last Wednesday night.

Toronto Club Curlers Beaten by Londoners.

Majority for London, 3.

A Prohibitionist in Cumberland.

HALIFAX, Jan. 21.—I. J. Hingley declined the nomination of the Prohibition party in Cumberland county as a candidate for the House of Commons. The nomination was then offered to John T. Bulmer of Halifax, who has accepted.

Sir John Nominated for Kingston.

KINGSTON, Jan. 21.—Sir John Macdonald was nominated by the Liberal Conservatives to-night. It is understood he will come here in a few days and formally accept the nomination.

Mayoralty Contest in Ingersoll.

INGERSOLL, Jan. 21.—James Noxon, who was elected as Mayor of the town by acclamation, having some few days ago resigned, Mr. G. Caswell and Mr. T. Buchanan are now candidates for the office, and no little excitement prevails over the election.

A Danish Banker Arrested.

LONDON, Jan. 21.—Manager Hansen, of the western branch of the Private Bankers of Copenhagen, has been arrested. He is charged with embezzling 200,000 crowns.

Chess Winners at Montreal.

MONTREAL, Jan. 21.—The following are the winners of to-day's games at the Canadian Chess Association tournament: J. P. Cooke won G. Barry; Robt. Short won W. H. Hicks; G. Barry won W. H. Hicks.

Pre[illegible] Syndicate.

Mr. H. W. C. Meyer, Mayor of Wingham, says that the Canadian Pacific Railway will be completed and running through his town by June 1. Salt will be manufactured on March 1. Everything is well under way and the industry promises to be a great success. The Canadian Pacific Railway will expend $35,000 on buildings, etc. Mr. Meyer has succeeded in selling Wingham debentures to the Canada Life Insurance Company at par.

Women in City Business Houses.

From the Merchant, Jan. 18.

Women, being in the majority in the cities, are gradually but steadily taking the places of men in many of the business houses; and, judging from the large number who are engaged as book-keepers and cashiers, they give satisfaction, too. In any case, their presence seems to make the stores brighter and more attractive, while at the same time men in the habit of swearing, unconsciously or otherwise, are forced to draw the line in the presence of ladies, and are thus improved as gentlemen.

LEAGUE'S EXECUTIVE.

IT IS CONDEMNED BY POOR LAW GUARDIANS IN MAYO.

DUBLIN, Jan. 21.—The Board of Poor Law Guardians of Westport, County Mayo, have unanimously adopted a resolution condemning the Executive of the National League at Dublin as unlawfully constituted, because it was not elected by the people composing the League, and asking Mr. Parnell to arrange to have substituted a new Executive which shall be elected by the suffrages of the whole League. The resolution declares this change necessary for the safety of the Irish cause. Copies of the resolution have been forwarded to Mr. Fitzgerald, President of the Irish League in America, and to prominent members of the order in that country.

The Agitators Trembling on Tragedy.

LIVERPOOL, Jan. 21.—Mr. Goschen, Chancellor of the Exchequer, in a speech here last night, said it was "a libel on the Liberal Unionists to say their attitude was incompatible with the entertaining of the greatest sympathy for Ireland and for Irish tenants: "The Irish agitators," Mr. Goschen said, "are now trembling on tragedy. They are increasing collisions between the tenants and the law. They are lighting a blaze whenever they can and fanning the flame by agitation."

Evictions Resumed.

DUBLIN, Jan. 21.—The evictions at Glenbeigh were resumed to-day, Messrs. Conybeare and Dillon, acting for the tenants, having failed to make terms with Agent Roe. Roe now proclaims that he will raze to the ground the habitations of all tenants refusing to meet his terms.

THE FISHERY COMPLICATIONS.

A Motion Made for the Production of the Correspondence.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Jan. 21.—In the House to-day Belmont offered the following resolution which was referred to the Committee on Foreign Affairs: That the President be requested to transmit to the House copies of such correspondence, up to the present day, between this Government and the British Government, as he may decide can now properly be made public in regard to the deprivation inflicted on Canadian ports on American fishing vessels having the right to touch and trade; of the liberty heretofore enjoyed by such vessels to enter Canadian ports open to foreign vessels, and to buy and sell and to transmit merchandise therein, and which is permitted in such ports to American vessels and to vessels of all other nationalities.

OFF FOR EGYPT.

A Large Crowd Assembles to Wish Stanley Farewell.

LONDON, Jan. 21.—Henry M. Stanley started to-day for Egypt. He goes first to Brandisi and thence to Suez. A large number of reporters and distinguished persons gathered at the railway station to witness Mr. Stanley's departure. In behalf of the reporters of London [illegible]ms, ex-President of the Press Club, [illegible] to Mr. Stanley a pocket compass carried by the former in the Soudan campaigns while serving as a special correspondent Mr. Stanley's last words, in reply to an enquiry by a reporter were. "I will return as soon as I can. Give my kindest regards to my friends in America, Belgium and England." As the train moved out of the station Mr. Stanley was lustily cheered.

THE DUGAS-SHEPPARD CASE.

A Motion Made for the Arrest of the Defendant for Default.

MONTREAL, Jan. 21.—The Dugas-Sheppard libel case was again before the courts to-day when Mr. Adam, on behalf of the plaintiff, Mr. Dugas, made a petition for a contrainte pour coups against the defendant on the ground that since judgment condemning Mr. Sheppard to pay $1000 damages the bailiff entrusted with the execution had made a return of no effects, and the remedy asked was the only one left at the disposal of Mr. Dugas. Mr. Weir appeared for the defendant and asked that the case be continued to Wednesday next to allow him to communicate with his client, which demand was granted.

HAMILTON ITEMS.

The False Pretences Case—Removed to the Penitentiary.

HAMILTON, Jan. 21.—George Deitrich, who was arrested yesterday charged with obtaining a horse and cutter from John Temple by false pretences, was discharged at the Police Court this morning, there being a doubt as to whether there had been fraudulent intent on the part of the prisoner. The young woman who was with Deitrich when he was arrested left the court with him.

Robert McCullough, sentenced to three years in the penitentiary for beating his wife, was removed to that institution this morning.

The Week's Record of Failures.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—The business failures occurring throughout the country during the last seven days, as reported to Dun, Wiman & Co., and R. Russell & Co., of the Mercantile Agency, to-day by telegraph, number for the United States 270, and for Canada 23, or a total of 301 failures, as compared with 323 last week, 299 the week previous to the last, and 329 for the corresponding week of 1886. Of the 270 failures in the United States this week the Western and Pacific States report 116, and the Southern States 69.

Pinkerton's Shooters.

JERSEY CITY, Jan. 21.—As a result of the killing of young Hogan by the Pinkerton detectives yesterday, Mayor Cleveland announced to-day that Capt. Foley and his men of the Pinkerton Guard would be withdrawn at once and the property of the railway company placed in charge of the Jersey City police. The sheriff has refused to swear in the Pinkertons as deputy-sheriffs.

Saved the Cost of Trial.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Jan. 21.—Two burglars who entered Mead's bakery yesterday and shot and killed W. E. Mead, who was expelling them, were overtaken by the Chief of Police and his assistants. The burglars resisted arrest and fired at the officers who returned the fire, instantly killing one of them and mortally wounding the other. The latter died this morning. Their identity is unknown.

Two Sportsmen Missing.

ST. JOHN, N.B., Jan. 21.—On Tuesday George Gibbs, a married man, and a young man named Michael Doherty went to Partridge Island in a boat on a shooting expedition. Not turning up, search was instituted yesterday and the boat found cast upon the rocks and considerably battered. No trace of their bodies has been discovered.

Grand Trunk Traffic Returns.

MONTREAL, Jan. 21.—The following are the traffic returns of the Grand Trunk Railway for last week: Passenger train earnings, $66,235; freight train earnings, $138,014; total, $270,; 250—against $240,234 for the same period last year, showing an increase of $29,915 for this year.

—Houses take wings when advertised in the "To Let" columns of the EXAMINER.

A CASE OF INSANITY.

The Housemate of a Man who has a Wife and Children in Hamilton.

HAMILTON, Jan. 21.—On the 20th of October, 1880, Miss Mary Fimpel, a young lady residing in St. Catharines, was married to Mr. Whiting by Rev. C. C. Johnston, then of St. Catharines, and for some years the couple lived happily there. Whiting was a peace agent, and made a very good living at the business. On the first of August they came to this city and for a short time Whiting operated this district on behalf of Messrs. Wm. Bell & Co. About the end of August he went to Renfrew for the same firm, leaving his wife and four children here. Mrs. Whiting has not seen her husband since. A few days ago the news reached her that he had married a young lady belonging to Renfrew. A diligent enquiry proved this report to be well founded. On Jan. 6 he was united to Miss Nellie Villeneve of Fort Coulonge, forty miles from Renfrew, in the Presbyterian Church of that place. Proceedings were at once taken to have the faithless husband prosecuted for bigamy. The necessary papers were issued, and the Chief of Police [illegible] telegraphed to the Renfrew authorities to arrest Whiting immediately. The answer came back that the man had left before the arrest could be effected. It is altogether likely that Whiting and his new love have said adieu to Canada.

Mrs. Whiting has no relatives as all in this country and very few friends. The oldest of her four children is only 5 years and the youngest 6 months. Her husband left her with no money, in fact, took everything he could get before leaving here, and she consequently has nothing.

The Ottawa Waterworks Committee consider that it will soon be necessary to increase the pumping machinery at the pump house, as the growth of the city has been so rapid of late that the extensions of the waterworks system have greatly lessened the available fire pressure and unduly tax the machinery.

Poverty and Distress.

That poverty which produces the greatest distress is not of the purse but of the blood. Deprived of its richness it becomes scant and watery, a condition termed anæmia in medical writings. Given this condition, and scrofulous swellings and sores, general and nervous debility, loss of flesh and appetite, weak lungs, throat disease, spitting of blood and consumption, are among the common results. If you are a sufferer from this, poor blood employ Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery," which enriches the blood and saves the grave afterdoses. Is more nutritive than cold liver oil, and is harmless in any condition of the system, yet powerful to cure. By druggists. 6d&3

CONSTITUTIONAL FAILURE.

The outrageous disregarded of constitutional usage manifested by the defeated Ross-Taillon government in Quebec, in clinging to office after an adverse majority of the legislature had been returned, has been climaxed by another equally glaring instance of contempt for both common political decency and constitutional precedent. Hon. Dr. Ross, Premier has resigned and his colleague, Hon. Mr. Taillon has been called upon to form a ministry. This leaves things in about the same position as previously, for the verdict of the province at the recent elections was against Dr. Ross and all the members of his cabinet, and Hon. Mr. Taillon has no more claim to the right of remaining in office than Hon. Mr. Ross. Some severe or substantial pressure must have been brought to bear upon Lieut.-Governor Masson, for until recently he has firmly refused to countenance any shuffle of portfolios that would nullify the will of the people by retaining the Ross Cabinet in office. It is evident that the hand of Sir John, who is notorious for his interference in provincial matters in his own interests, is in the deal. Under the circumstances there is sufficient warrant for the rumour that Lieut-Governor Masson is to take the place of Hon. Mr. Chapleau in the Dominion Cabinet and that the bolting Secretary of State is to warm the gubernatorial seat. Sir John is equal to such an occasion, and it is he that must be held guilty of the gross breach of faith with the people of Quebec implied in over-riding their will as expressed at the polls and forcing upon them a Premier in whom but a few short weeks ago, they voted want of confidence, and one whom their representatives still object to. The outrage is so patent that the Tory Montreal Star severely condemns it. The Star of Friday says:—

"When Mr. Ross resigned the premiership it was in our opinion clearly the duty of the Lieut.-Governor under the circumstances to call upon the leader of the Opposition to form a government. We say this not because we admire Mr. Mercier or approve of the course he has pursued, but because we believe it safest and best closely to follow constitutional usage. If Mr. Ross despaired of forming a government that would be acceptable to the majority of the people's representatives the proper course was to give the Opposition an opportunity to see what they could do, and in case of their failure, then send for Taillon. Besides, respect for the verdict of the people at the polls requires that the leader of the party which has compelled the Premier to resign should have the opportunity afforded him of forming a Government. We believe that that verdict should be carried out in a legitimate and constitutional way, and that it is not for the Conservative party of the province to make a precedent which may in after years used to their injury."

THE INDEPENDENT ORGAN.

It is important, in view of the course which the Mail is now, and has for some time been pursuing, to watch closely its bearing upon the relations between the organ and Sir John. While the Mail poses as independent and outside of the Conservative party, there are evidences pointing to the fact that it is still the organ of the Conservatives, and that its recent course is part of an organized plan for promoting the success of the fortunes of the Conservative party at the present elections. Several phases of this matter have been before referred to in these columns. The Globe of Friday adds a new and formidable count to the indictment. It consists of an article composed largely of selections from the Mail which go to prove the existence of an understanding between Sir John Macdonald and the Mail, throughout the course of the remarkable political transformations of the organ. No person who has taken the trouble to look below the surface has had any doubt that the course of the Mail has been pursued with the knowledge and approval of the "Chieftain," who is, therefore, bound by its utterances and responsible for its declarations. The Globe promises to pursue the subject and says: "By the time we have done with the subject we promise our readers we shall have exposed the inner workings of an organized hypocrisy such as has no parallel in the annals of journalism or politics."

MR. J. H. DUMBLE, of Cobourg, brother of Mr. D. W. Dumble of this town, has received the nomination in the Reform interest as candidate for the representation of West Northumberland in the House of Commons. Mr. Geo. Guillet is the Conservative candidate.

Sir Charles Dilke is writing a series of articles for Manchester Guardian on foreign affairs.

Gone Before to Paradise.

(Written for the Examiner.)

IN MEMORY OF MISS E. A. MCKEE, WHO DEPARTED THIS LIFE DEC. 27TH 1886.

Grateful we mus'd, no fresh graves made
This year, as soon to end,
When lo! With sudden breath,
It took from us our friend.

So suddenly, for many days,
We scarce could realize
That we no more will see her till
We meet in Paradise.

Upon God's day the tonguit her close,
His words of truth and love,
And with the next day's setting sun
Passed to His courts above.

Few weeks have passed since she to one,
Whose days seemed numbered, show'd
Salvation only through the Lamb,
Whose blood on Calvary flow'd;

Nor thought that she would be the first.
To pass from earth away;
Nor seldom unexpectedly
Goes our life's truest day.

Meekly she 'mong life's duties, mov'd
In humble path she trod,
And pure in heart—how blessed now,
For such alone see God.

As deep in ocean's briny depths,
Lie gems of rarest kind,
So Virtue's graces intervine
Around the lowly mind.

She lov'd the graves of dear ones gone
To deck with flowers, now snow
Her mantles, but she's joined them where
Flowers, amaranthine grow.

Most emblem is the snow-rob'd tomb,
Of the immaculate dress,
That clothes the soul that is array'd
In Jesus' righteousness.

On resurrection's morn the soul
And body unified,
Shall with the Risen Living Head
Be with him glorified.

E'en now with gladsome wonderment,
It may be her's to know,
Blest inmate of the work she deem'd,
So little here below.

May we who mourn her loss, be led
By faith, and discern
God's voice, that through His dealings, we
May wisdom's lessons learn.

With wills resign'd to Him who in
Our hearts as king doth reign,
Submissive take the cup He gives,
Of pleasure or of pain.

By grace divine, so living when

What True Merit Will Do.

The unprecedented sale of Boschee's German Syrup within a few years has astonished the world. It is without doubt the safest and best remedy ever discovered for the speedy and effectual cure of Coughs, Colds and the severest Lung troubles. It acts on an entirely different principle from the usual prescriptions given by physicians, as it does not dry up a cough and leave the disease still in the system, but on the contrary removes the cause of the trouble, heals the parts affected, and leaves them in a purely healthy condition. A bottle kept in the house for use when the diseases make their appearance, will save doctor's bills and a long spell of serious illness. A trial will convince you of these facts. It is positively sold by all druggists and general dealers in the land. Price 75 cents, large bottles. eodw4tf

Have You thought about It.

Why suffer a single moment when you can get immediate relief from all eternal or external pains by the use of Polson's Nerviline, the great pain cure. Nerviline has never been known to fail in a single case: it cannot fail, for it is a combination of the most powerful subduing remedies known. Try a 10 cent sample bottle of Nerviline You will find Nerviline a sure cure for neuralgia, toothache, headache. Buy and try. Large bottle 25 cents, by all druggists. 6dw3

THE BASE-BALL OF 1887.

CHANGES OF RULES OF THE GAME.

The Pitcher Allowed Much Less Latitude than Heretofore—Livelier Work Probable.

DIAGRAM OF THE NEW FIELD.

The thing about the game that is of most interest is the reform of the pitching laws undertaken by the last convention. One of the most widely-known base-ball writers and scorers in the country is Henry Chadwick of Brooklyn, an old-timer and official scorer for the Brooklyn club. He was evidently built for a player, but has never devoted himself to the game professionally other than as a writer about it. When the new rules were announced he interviewed several members of the Committee of Conference to obtain trustworthy interpretations of the changes.

"The base-ball fraternity," says Mr. Chadwick, "in 1887 will for the first time in the history of professional ball, play under one official code of rules—viz.: that authorized by the conference committee of the National League and the American Association at the meeting held in Chicago, which code was afterwards indorsed at the annual conventions of both organizations. On this exceptional legislative occasion not only were the members of the joint committee of each organization the ablest men that could have been selected for the purpose, but they were assisted in their important work of revising the playing rules by a special advisory committee of leading club captains of the two associations, who were invited to aid the committee by such practical suggestions as the experience of the last season pointed out as necessary. Prior to the meeting the work of amending the rules each season has been done by the delegates to the annual meetings of each organization, and the result was that not only two different codes of rules, but crude and unsatisfactory amendments, which frequently had to be changed before the close of the ensuing season. Under the new order of things, however, the promise is that the work of the conference committee will be found sufficiently practical as to render changes unnecessary until the next annual meeting. A primary object the committee had in view in framing a new code of playing rules was to introduce such amendments as would lessen the individual responsibility of the umpire in his rendering of decisions in disputed points and transfer it to the code itself, thereby reducing the chances of disputing decisions

POSITION FOR PITCHING.

"The first thing the pitcher will have to attend to in studying up the new rules is the method of taking his stand in the 'box,' preparatory to delivering the ball to the bat. Formerly he could hide the ball behind his back—which he is now prohibited from doing—and could stand within the lines of his position in such a way as to admit of his taking one or two steps in delivery, as his position was then a space of 7 feet by 4 in extent, besides which he had the privilege of lifting his feet. All this is now prohibited under the new code. As the rule now is he must take his stand, when about to deliver the ball, within the lines of a space of ground only five feet six inches by four feet. It will be seen at a glance that the position is very different from that in vogue last season. In the first place the pitcher is now required to keep his right foot—his left, if a left-handed pitcher—standing on the rear line of his position, and he is not allowed to lift his foot until the ball leaves his hand. In pitching he can not pitch or throw the ball unless this foot is on the ground that he derives the power to give the last impetus to the ball in delivering it. He is also required to hold the ball so that it can be seen in his hand by the umpire."

THE LIMITS OF A FAIR BALL.

"In such a narrow box will not the pitcher find it impossible to take the short run that has characterized the work of some of them in the past?"

"Exactly. Besides keeping his right foot—or left foot, as the case may be—on the line, he is now prohibited from taking more than one step in the delivery; and when taking this one step his forward foot must touch the ground to the left of the centre line of his position."

"Will these rules make any material difference in the effect of the pitcher's delivery?"

"Decidedly yes. The changes are very important, the main effect of them being to force the pitcher to learn to obtain a better command of the ball in delivery; and they also have the effect of reducing his power to send in very swift balls. The double code, while it enabled him to attain greater speed in delivery, necessarily obliged him to sacrifice accuracy of aim and tear of catchers, besides placing the batsman in the position of being obliged to devote nearly all his attention to avoid being severely hurt by being hit by the pitched ball."

"The other important changes in the pitching rules introduce more costly penalties for unfair and wild pitching. In the first place, the pitcher is now allowed to send in but five unfair balls before he becomes liable to the penalty of giving the batsman his base off balls, and this penalty is increased by adding the charge of a base hit against the pitcher every time a base is given on balls.

POSITION FOR THROWING.

Then, too, every time the pitcher hits the batsman with a pitched ball a base is given the batsman as a penalty for the error. The same penalty, too, is incurred every time the pitcher commits a balk, and the liability to balk in delivery is greatly increased under the new rules. It will be seen, therefore, that the pitcher has now to guard against three costly errors in his method of delivery—viz.: those of sending the batsman to his base on balls, for hitting him with a pitched ball, and for making a balk. This largely-increased responsibility attached to the position, however, is offset by an important advantage which the new code grants to the pitcher, and that advantage lies in the throwing out of the code the clause in the pitching rules which required the pitcher to send in balls 'high' or 'low,' as the batsman chose to call for. A fair ball is designated, under the new code, as 'a ball delivered by the pitcher while standing wholly within the lines and facing the batsman, and as defined in Sec. 3 of Rule 5; the ball, so delivered, to pass over the home-base, and not lower than the knee of the batsman, nor higher than his shoulder.' The designated class of 'high' and 'low' balls thrown out under the new code were not only a detriment to the pitcher in his effort to employ strategic skill in his method of delivery, but they were the most difficult class of balls for the umpire to judge correctly; and his errors of judgment in this respect were a fruitless cause of wrangling and 'kicking' by pitchers and batsmen. Under the new code, therefore, a greater latitude is given the pitcher in this respect, as he is now only called upon to send in balls 'not higher than the batsman's shoulder, nor lower than his knee,' and every such ball is now a fair ball, provided, of course, that it at the same passes over the home plate. This is one of the most important and radical changes made in the rules for some years past, and though it may bother a few batsmen at first it will ultimately be of advantage to them. One benefit it yields is that of relieving the umpire of a very difficult part of his duties, while at the same time it affords the pitcher greater facility for strategic skill in his position.

"The only amendment introduced in the American rules by the new code is the clause, 'and any motion calculated to deceive a base-runner.' It will be readily seen that stealing bases under this rule will not be as difficult as it was under the absurd ruling in vogue the latter part of last season."

Catarrh of Years' Standing Cured.

N. WASHINGTON, M. D., Throat and Lung Surgeon, Toronto.

DEAR SIR,—I am pleased to be able to state to you that I am now free from Catarrh. It is almost incredible that in so short a time I could have been cured of Catarrh, which has affected my health for years. A little over two months ago I took treatment from you, and to-day the Catarrh is entirely cured. Your treatment is simply a marvel, I will heartily recommend any of my friends personally, and would suggest to all thus troubled the advisability, of consulting you immediately. Accept my many thanks.

Yours, etc.,

GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY

CURES ALL HUMORS,

from a common Blotch, or Eruption, to the worst Scrofula. Salt-rheum, "Fever-sores," Scaly or Rough Skin, in short, all diseases caused by bad blood are conquered by this powerful, purifying, and invigorating medicine. Great Sealing Ulcers rapidly heal under its benign influence. Especially has it manifested its potency in curing Tetter, Rose Rash, Boils, Carbuncles, Sore Eyes, Scrofulous Sores and Swellings, Hip-Joint Disease, White Swellings, Goitre, or Thick Neck, and Enlarged Glands. Send ten cents in stamps for a large treatise, with colored plates, on Skin Diseases, or the same amount for a treatise on Scrofulous Affections.

"THE BLOOD IS THE LIFE." Thoroughly cleanse it by using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and good digestion, a fair skin, buoyant spirits, vital strength, and soundness of constitution, will be established.

CONSUMPTION,

which is Scrofulous Disease of the Lungs, is promptly and certainly arrested and cured by this God-given remedy, if taken before the last stages of the disease are reached. From its wonderful power over this terribly fatal disease, when first offering this now celebrated remedy to the public, Dr. PIERCE thought seriously of calling it his "Consumption Cure," but abandoned that name as too limited for a medicine which, from its wonderful combination of tonic, or strengthening, alterative, or blood-cleansing, anti-bilious, pectoral, and nutritive properties, is unequaled, not only as a remedy for consumption of the lungs, but for all

CHRONIC DISEASES OF THE Liver, Blood, and Lungs.

If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have sallow color of skin, or yellowish-brown spots on face or body, frequent headache or dizziness, bad taste in mouth, internal heat or chills, alternating with hot flashes, low spirits and gloomy forebodings, irregular appetite, and coated tongue, you are suffering from Indigestion, Dyspepsia, and Torpid Liver, or "Biliousness." In many cases only part of these symptoms are experienced. As a remedy for all such cases, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has no equal.

For Weak Lungs, Spitting of Blood, Shortness of Breath, Bronchitis, Severe Coughs, Consumption, and kindred affections, it is a sovereign remedy. Send ten cents in stamps for Dr. Pierce's book on Consumption. Sold by Druggists.

PRICE $1.00, OR 6 BOTTLES FOR $5.00.

Slippery Paths.

The middle of the street was in great demand this morning as a promenade, the sidewalks having too pronounced a tendency to fly up and strike the unwary traveller over its glassy surface with a most uncomfortable and painfully prominent "thud." Only the "rocky" ones dared the feat, and in nine cases out of ten met with ignominious failure. "Just too horrid for anything" was the universal verdict of the ladies. Along George street, though, the merchants cleared away the ice or sprinkled it with sawdust or ashes, rendering the walking considerably easier.

Gone to New York.

The half-daft young Englishman, Morgan, who was sent some time ago to Toronto and soon afterwards returned, was taken in hand the other day by Councillor Stenson and sufficient money was raised by subscription to procure a passage to New York and leave a surplus of $1 in his pocket. At the last meeting of the town Council there was considerable discussion about Morgan, who, it was feared, would be a burden on the corporation. It is likely the town will not be put to any more expense on his account, for which the thanks of the town are due Mr. Stenson. At New York the poet will quit "droping into poetry" and propose to drop into work by working his passage over to England.

A Successful Man.

MR. J. P. Dunn, the genial and obliging Station Agent of the C. P. R., Peterborough, has posted in our office a magnificent bill of the C.P.R., advertising reduced fares for the Montreal Carnival, Feb. 7th to 12th. It is printed in brilliant colours, and shows the fine palace, Rhetorican snow-shoeing and tobogganing, and is altogether both an artistic masterpiece and a taking advertising medium.

Free Trade.

The reduction of internal revenue and the taking off of revenue stamps from Proprietary Medicines, no doubt has largely benefitted the consumers, as well as relieving the burden of home manufacturers. Especially is this the case with Green's August Flower and Boschee's German Syrup, as the reduction of thirty-six cents per dozen has been added to increase the size of the bottles containing these remedies, thereby giving sixfifth more medicine in the 75 cent size. The August Flower for Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint, and the German Syrup for Cough and Lung troubles have, perhaps, the largest sale of any medicines in the world. The advantage of increased size of the bottles will be greatly appreciated by the sick and afflicted, in every town and village in civilized countries. Sample bottles for 10c. remain in the same size. eodw41

Thought He was Tobogganing.

The "office cat" came around this morning smiling and purring coldly terrestrial, and after settling down contentedly in the big arm chair, remarked: "There was a nice little party at the toboggan slide Friday night. Among the party was one extremely obtuse who took just one slide. "That same" was his determined rejoinder to all requests to "have another." He got up in his sleep last night and inadvertently placed his foot on a small spool of cotton at the head of the stairs, and landed at the bottom rather emphatically without touching more than two steps. He was instantly aroused from his somnambulistic state, and executing a large lump in the occipital region, feelingly remarked: "Well this is the second time I've been fool enough to go down a toboggan slide, and you bet it will be the last!"

Business Changes.

Mr. Wesley Miller is opening up a new boot and shoe store in the new Cox block, George street, next the floral drug store.

Mr. Charles Legrow is removing his barber shop from the "Arcade" to the new Cox block, next the City Hotel.

The premises lately occupied by the Bon Marche are being fitted up in regal style for the king of clothiers, Gough, who removes about Feb. 1st.

Mr. Fitzsimmons has opened out tonsorial parlors in the shop on Hunter street, next Brisbin's flour and provision store. Mr. Fitzsimmons' establishment makes the ninth barber shop in town. With nine barber and twice-nine lawyers, there should be no difficulty in our citizens being properly "shaved."

Working a "Racket."

The other night P. C. Pidgeon was informed by a gentlemen whose veracity there is no reason for doubting, that a certain youth in town has a new and decidedly neat way of "pilfering," as shown by an operation which he witnessed the other day. The lad jumps on a farmer's sleigh, which is usually well stocked with parcels of groceries, dry goods, etc., and while the latter's back is turned tosses out one or more of the packages into the snow by the roadside. After riding a little further he quietly drops off and retracing his course, picks up the parcels and carries them off. The gentleman knows both the boy and the victim, and was informed that the proper course to take would be to lay the particulars of the case before the farmer, so that he could institute legal proceedings. It is certainly a bold as well as ingenious method of stealing, and should be stopped.

A Rare Theatrical Treat.

On Monday evening next the Wilson Day Dramatic Co. open a two weeks engagement at the Opera House here. They come highly recommended, and play at popular prices, 10 and 25c. The Ottawa Free Press has the following: "A good audience despite the pouring rain assembled to witness the performance of Davy Crockett by the Wilson Day Theatre company last evening. Those that attended were regaled with a rare treat, as a better performance it would be almost impossible for any troupe to furnish. This famous drama should be more or less familiar to all theatre-goers as it has been played over three thousand times by the well known Frank Mayo; which of itself is sufficient evidence of its undisputed hold upon the public. Mr. Day, as Davy Crockett, gave a realistic and natural picture of the heroic backwoodsman, and the lights and shades of the character were so admirably portrayed as to almost rivet the audience to the actor. The closest attention was paid throughout the entire performance, the interest never flagging once. Miss Osborne, as Elinor Vaughan, the cherished and cultured lady who sacrifices pride and station to wed her hero, was truly excellent and again convinced her numerous admirers in the audience that she is the most finished actress seen in Ottawa for a long time. The rest of the support was good and the stage settings appropriately handled. The company certainly deserves the undivided and largest patronage that can be bestowed upon them as they are the most talented that has ever appeared here. Little Annie Bird as Bob Crockett acted and sang as only this wonderful child is capable of. She is a best within herself.

The Bachelor's Vision.

(Written for the Examiner.)

While [illegible] a paper [illegible] I got the
I saw a noted widow that is quaint, peculiar way
Announced that Mr. Nincompoop expressed her total dismay—
His wife had had a son and heir, that weighed just thirteen pound.

I sat before my fire, in my sheepskin coat, slippers,
I'd made a hearty dinner, and lay myself
free from care;
O'er all my senses stealing came a dreamy
sweet repose,
And ere I'd finished reading, I was in a dom.

Again was I perusing, quite bewildered, I confess,
An imaginary journal from some mystic printing press.
That of accidents and warriors had a most perplexing dearth,
For every page and column just announced some recent birth.

I read that to the dwelling of the genial Mr. Brown,
Had come a little visitor, his happiness to crown;
The paper also informed me—and a paper's never wrong—
That the child was born a female and was eighteen inches long.

"On the tenth MacDuff Oilkenly was presented with a son,"
So read one truthful item. Ere the paragraph was done,
The startling information it proceeded to disclose—
That the boy had just ten fingers and a half a score of toes.

"At 27 Chestnut street, at ten o'clock this morn,
At Gus Pincoodle's residence a little girl was born,"
But the joy of all was lessened, tears bedewed each parent's cheek,
When with sorrow they discovered that the baby couldn't speak.

Eureka! about for rapture! sing aloud in joyous tones!
There's been a fresh arrival. At the house of Mr. Jones
Is a babe with curly eye-brows of a pure, aesthetic tint,
And a pretty pair of optics with most delightful squint.

The wife of Mr. Spoopendyke, this paper did declare,
Had given him a daughter, and the daughter had red hair;
It printed them the following: "As true as eggs is eggs,"
Mrs. Smith has had a baby with a pair of bandy legs.

Next door there lives a person whom I often wished to shoot;
He devotes entire evenings to practice on a flute.
But I read with exultation, he'd been punished for his sins—
For his wife, the paper told me, had "presented him with twins."

"We extend congratulations to our neighbor, Mr. Fry, Whose wife has brought him triplets." This announcement met my eye.
Huge drops of perspiration from my brow in anguish broke,
Then I started up in terror, and in starting up—awoke.

ADMITTING ITS CLIENT'S GUILT.

Speaking in reference to the cause of the North-west rebellion, the Toronto Mail, Sir John's personal organ, discharged its conscience by the following outburst of truth. Referring to the Half-breeds, the Mail of July 8th, 1885, says:—

"Had they (the Half-breeds who rose against Ottawa tyranny) had votes, like white men, or if, like the Indians, they had been numerous enough to command respect and overawe red tape, without doubt, the wheels of office would have revolved for them; but being only Half-breeds, they were put off with an eternal promise, until patience ceased to be a virtue.

"We repeat again that the departmental system under which such callous and cruel neglect of the rights of a portion of the community was possible, was wrong, and should be censured."

WORKING CLASSES ATTENTION

We are now prepared to furnish all classes with employment at home, the whole time, or for spare moments. Business new, light and profitable. Persons of either sex easily earn from 50 cents to $5.00 per evening, and a proportional sum by devoting all their time to the business. Boys and girls earn nearly as much as men. That all who see this may send their address, and test the business, we make this offer. To such as are not well satisfied we will send one dollar to pay for the trouble of writing. Full particulars and outfit free. Add ess George Stinson & Co. Portland, Maine.

D. W. DUMBLE.

WHY
Will people pay rent when houses and lots can be purchased on such easy terms as are offered by the undersigned. Come and inspect our work and see for yourselves how we construct our houses. Our chief aim and study is to build substantial, warm, frost and damp proof houses. I am offering good building lots, and will build solid brick houses, nine-inch walls, strapped and lathed, two storeries, for less money than you can buy frame or veneered buildings. We cordially invite those who anticipate renting or buying to inspect our work and prove for themselves that our houses are not merely built to sell. Every house I've sold gives first-class satisfaction, and I am determined that every house I build shall be a standing testimony to honest building. GERMANY AND FRANCE.

The Belief Prevails That Hostilities Between Them are Imminent.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—The belief grows stronger every hour that Bismarck is about ready to require explanations from the Goblet Ministry as to the meaning of French warlike activity. It is assumed that the French Ministry will reply evasively. In the present temper of Prince Bismarck there is serious danger that an unsatisfactory explanation will be followed by a declaration of war and hostilities. A bad feature of the situation is the growing restlessness in France, where the idea that the long looked for struggle for the recovery of Alsace and Lorraine is at hand is gaining ground everywhere and arouses popular enthusiasm. The press of both countries suppresses all material facts relating to the war preparations. Enough has transpired, however, to show that troops are being raised, drilled and equipped at all the military centres in both countries with a rapidity that can only be explained on the theory that both armies are being raised to full war strength and that mobilisation has begun.

Gen. Boulanger's attitude on the military votes is regarded as a proof that war is nearer than was generally suspected, even by prominent French politicians. The stability of the French Cabinet, apparently re established for the moment by timely concessions, is again threatened from other quarters, and Prince Bismarck is probably awaiting the next Cabinet upheaval to make another move.

Summing up the situation to-night, it may truly be said that the whole of Europe resounds with war alarms. No living man can predict what the next hour may bring forth. Trade prospects in England, otherwise brighter than has been the case for years, are becoming somewhat clouded by the increasing uneasiness.

There is Extreme Danger of War.

LONDON, Jan. 24.—The Daily News professes to know that there is extreme danger of war. It says the Government is alarmed on account of its having heard that Germany is likely, within a few days, to ask France to explain the meaning of the French military movements on the frontier.

THE QUEENSBERRY DIVORCE CASE.

The Marquis Makes no Defence and the Decree is Granted.

EDINBURGH, Jan. 22.—The court to-day granted a decree of divorce to the Marchioness of Queensberry from the Marquis of Queensberry on the ground of adultery. The evidence adduced showed that the Marquis after marriage lived as a bachelor in St. James-street, London; that his wife was never there, but that a lady went frequently to the apartments occupied by the Marquis in St. James-street, dined there with him and occupied the same bedroom with him. The Marquis made no defence.

The New Hebrides.

PARIS, Jan. 22.—In the Chamber of Deputies to-day M. Freppel urged that the New Hebrides ought to be united to New Caledonia. England's claims to the territory in question had no solid foundation. As for Australia's fears that the Government intended to found a penal settlement in the islands, they should be dispelled by an official denial. The Panama Canal, he said, would add greatly to the value of French possessions in Oceanica.

Salvationists Mobbed in London.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—A party of Salvationists which had gone to meet Gen. Booth upon his arrival at Northampton yesterday was mobbed by the populace. Missiles of all kinds were thrown by the mob, and the General himself was made the target for lumps of ice. The police were powerless.

A Knight of Labor Shot.

KEY WEST, Fla., Jan. 22.—Telegrams from Tampa say that members of the Cuban Federation fired on Knights of Labor as they were leaving their hall. One Knight was killed and three seriously wounded. The trouble has grown out of a strike inaugurated on Monday. There is much excitement here among the Cuban Knights, who are 1000 strong, and money is being raised for the Tampa Knights' Union.

Ireland Does Not Want Separation.

LONDON, Jan. 23.—Thomas Power O'Connor, speaking at Whitehaven on Saturday, said Gen. Buller and Mr. Plunkett became moonlighters soon after witnessing the condition of the Irish peasants. He denied that Ireland desired separation. "We have," he said, "one Crown and one Empire. We have also twenty three parliaments. Why not twenty-four? The reason we have one Crown and one Empire is that we have twenty-three parliaments."

THE M'GLYNN CASE.

THE INHIBITED PRIEST WRITES A LETTER IN HIS DEFENCE.

REV. EDWARD M'GLYNN, D. D.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—Archbishop Corrigan having made a statement of Dr. McGlynn's case, the latter to-night furnished the press with the following letter:

Pending a fuller statement, which I shall feel called upon to make as soon as physically able, I desire now to say that in the paper of Archbishop Corrigan, published this morning, certain letters and parts of letters essential to the understanding of the case are omitted. I did promise in 1882 to make no more Irish Land League speeches, and when again censured in 1883 for favoring the Irish revolution in a speech in behalf of the starving people of the West of Ireland, made at the request of the United Irish County Associations, I did promise to make no more speeches on the Irish question, even for charity, but did not bind myself by promise to abstain for all time to come from public speaking on political and social subjects. With one exception—that of my speech at the Chickering Hall meeting, I have yielded obedience in all things, even when I could not feel that the obedience was rightfully demanded. Nor has my conduct either toward the Archbishop himself or toward the Roman authorities been of the defiant character which the suppression of parts of my letters gives to it. I gave to the Archbishop in that part of the letter of December 23, which he has not published, good and sufficient reasons why I could not go to Rome. I have never retracted, nor without doing violence to my conscience could I retract. My firm conviction is that God made the land for the equal use of all his children, and that laws which deny their birthright to the great majority of men are unjust and injurious and ought to be abolished.

I am theologian enough to know that the Catholic Church has never condemned this doctrine as contrary to Catholic truth. If the Pope, teaching the universal church as the chief bishop thereof, or, as the term is, ex cathedra, thus declaring what has been handed down from Christ and his apostles in the deposit of faith, should declare that this doctrine is contrary to Catholic faith, I should then, as a Catholic, repudiate it. But I am also theologian enough to know what the church teaches as to the limitations of this power of definition, and therefore to know that the doctrine of the equality of human rights in land can no more be condemned by the church than any other truth. EDWARD McGLYNN.

The personal effects of Dr. McGlynn were removed to-day from the rectory of St. Stephen's. A large crowd gathered in front of the house and hissed and cheered while the work was going on.

The Pope Reserves the Case.

ROME, Jan. 22.—The Pope having reserved for himself the settlement of the case of the Rev. Dr. McGlynn, of New York, it is expected in ecclesiastical circles that the latter will submit to the commands of the church.

A Meeting to be Held.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—A committee of Dr. McGlynn's parishoners met to-day and formulated a report which will be presented to a large meeting to-morrow evening on the steps of St. Stephen's. If the basement hall is forbidden them by Dr. McGlynn's successor.

THE PLAYGROUND OF AGITATORS.

Mr. Chamberlain's Latest Utterance on the Irish Question.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—Joseph Chamberlain, in a speech at Hawick, said that Ireland has too long been the playground of paid agitators. The land question ought to be dealt with finally by making the cultivators owners and enlarging small holdings. The tenants would never be satisfied while they had the hope of getting land for nothing, which hope formed the basis of the plan of campaign. This plan, the speaker said, was the most immoral, the most dishonorable conspiracy ever developed in a civilized country. Mr. Chamberlain said he was hopeful the question of autonomy would be settled upon the principle of providing legislative authority for the Irish to manage their domestic affairs, with a provision preserving the rights of minorities and the integrity of the Empire.

The Work of Eviction in Kerry.

DUBLIN, Jan. 22.—Evictions at Glenbeigh, County Kerry, were suspended to-day owing to the absence of the Sheriff. Twenty-three men were to-day arraigned before the magistrate at Kilorglin for obstructing the work of the sheriff during the past week in making evictions at Glenbeigh. Immediately after the arraignment a mass meeting of citizens was held to express sympathy with the prisoners. Several of the speakers openly denounced the evictions as tyrannical and barbarous. Forty-one ejectment decrees have been granted against tenants on the Londonderry estates belonging to the Skinners' Company of London.

Ten thousand Nationalists met at Kilorglin, near Killarney, yesterday. Speeches were made by Messrs. Dillon, Conybeare, Harrington and others. All the speakers protested against the eviction of tenants.

Parnellite Candidates.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—Mr. Parnell said to-night that Mr. Swift McNeill had decided to run for Parliament in South Donegal. After referring to Mr. McNeill's fitness for office he said:

Mr. McNeill's return as a Protestant Nationalist by a Catholic electorate will have great effect in dispelling the fears and prejudices of northern Protestants, affording, as it will, to Ulster a signal example of that love of toleration and absence of bigotry so remarkable among the Catholics of Ireland.

Mr. Parnell further says:

It has also been settled that Mr. Healy shall contest Longford in place of Mr. Justin McCarthy. So we will no longer be without Mr. Healy's great energy and fighting power, which were so much wished for during the last session.

LIVERPOOL, Jan. 22.—In a speech last night Mr. Goschen said: "We will take no advice from those who may be hostile to this country. We will not go to Irish-Americans for a solution of the problem. We have to remember that Ireland is composed of various classes, and we are not bound to give way to the majority there if we find that the minority represents a great portion of that which is best and highest in the nation. We must deal impartially with all classes."

Sammerman's Relief.

LONDON, Jan. 23.—Henry Campbell Bannerman, Liberal member of Parliament and formerly Chief Secretary for Ireland, in a speech at Aikron on Saturday, said he believed that when Home Rule was granted to Ireland Parnell would be the Conservative leader in the Irish Parliament, supported by the Government and the landlords, while Parnell's present adjutants would lead the Opposition.

FISHERIES DISPUTE.

CORRESPONDENCE PASSING BETWEEN ENGLAND AND CANADA.

OTTAWA, Jan. 22.—The announcement that considerable cipher correspondence by cable had been passing yesterday between the British Government and the Governor-General's office has caused unusual interest here, as it is understood that it is in relation to the fishery difficulty and the retaliatory attitude recently taken at Washington. It is positively known that the British Government impressed upon Sir John Macdonald, when sanctioning the enforcement of the fishery regulations of the treaty of 1818, after the abrogation of the fishery clauses of the Washington treaty in 1885, the necessity of maintaining friendly relations with the United States. That the British Government did not desire to get mixed up in the fishery squabble was made apparent in their not co-operating in the employment of their war vessels with the Dominion cruisers in the protection of the fisheries, as was the case prior to 1871, before the Washington treaty was ratified. The fear of being drawn into trouble with the United States by some bungling act of the Dominion Government has undoubtedly given considerable uneasiness to the British Government, and there is little doubt Lord Salisbury is disposed to yield to any reasonable interpretation of the treaty rather than strain it to its utmost limit.

The Time for Trifling Has Gone by.

OTTAWA, Jan. 22.—John Henry Pope, Minister of Railways and Canals, said to-day in reference to the fishery legislation: "If the proposed measure is carried it will close English ports to all classes of American vessels and prohibit all intercourse between Great Britain and her colonies and the United States. Mind, I say if such legislation should become possible, which it is not, and it is strange to me that in the consideration of this self-defense act the Yankee law-makers have overlooked the important fact that no matter what Congress may do, no matter what act may be passed or what resolutions and prohibitory legislation carried, there is always much wind in the first place. The time for trifling with Canada has long since gone by."

Views of the Minister of Marine.

OTTAWA, Jan. 22.—Hon. Mr. Foster, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, in an interview held to-day concerning the Belmont Bill, said that whilst the bill appeared to assume that American fishing vessels had trading rights in Canadian waters, the treaty of 1818 gave them no such rights. He says the Canadian Government has not in a single instance refused any fair rights of hospitality to American fishermen, and that if Congress deprives Canadian vessels of the privileges denied to American vessels in Canadian ports, it will only prevent Canadian fishermen from trading in American ports. Measures of retaliation looking to the complete abrogation of trade between the two countries, Mr. Foster says, he does not believe the American people will ever sanction.

SIR JOHN'S "ASSISTANCE."

That Sir John will stick at no means to carry his political points, is well known. What the gerrymander failed to do, was left to the partizan Franchise Act; where that failed the vulgar boodle euphemistically Boultbeed into "assistance," is to give the coup de grace. The malodorous Boultbee is a candidate against Hon. Alex. Mackenzie, and feeling that his chances are not of the best, he applies to "Dear Morgan," the judge who officiated as revising barrister in East York. That Boultbee dared send such a letter, as is given below, to a judge shows that their past relations have been such as to lead to the inference that Judge Morgan's revision of the voters' list has not been made without an eye to Mr. Boultbee's interests. In the course of his speech at Markham on Friday night, Hon. Mr. Blake read the letter referred to in the manner indicated in the following extract. Mr. Blake said:

I find in a Toronto paper a most interesting letter, which was written the other day by the Conservative candidate for East York. It bears a good date, and that's about the only good thing in it. (Laughter.) It is dated Sunday morning. (Uproarious applause.) You know "the better the day the better the deed."

TORONTO, Jan. 9.
Sunday a. m.

Dear Morgan, I think it might serve me materially if you were to see McCarthy this a.m.—

That's Sunday morning—(loud laughter) "Dear Morgan?" Does anybody know a person of the name of Morgan? (Loud laughter.)

—and impress him incidentally that I am likely to carry East York.

That was an excellent thing for Mr. Morgan to do. He knew all about it, and nobody had done so much to help Mr. Boultbee as Mr. Morgan, so, of course, he naturally appealed to Mr. Morgan, who had done so much for him before to do him this good turn. (Cheers.)

—With his usual habit, politically, of talking authoritatively about what he does not understand.—

Poor Mr. McCarthy. "Things he doesn't understand?" Don't you remember that letter he sent out just before polling day in the Provincial elections, assuring the Conservatives that they were certain of at least 50 seats, and had an even chance for seven more? Don't you remember that proof that he exactly knew his business and talked of what he had understood? (Cheers and laughter.)

—He has been telling Sir John that I have no chance of carrying the riding.—

I believe Mr. McCarthy was right for once.

—Now, Sir John will be here in a day or two.—

You know he did come up a day or two later, so Mr. Boultbee was right.

—and I want McCarthy loaded up the other way by the time he arrives, as McCarthy's present statement may to a certain extent hamper me on getting some—

Some what?

A voice—"Money."

Mr. Blake—Did you say money? Oh, no, it was only "assistance." (Great applause and laughter.)

—assistance which I require.

A. BOULTBEE.

P.S.—Don't let him gather that you have any motive in doing this. A. B.

H. MORGAN, Esq., Toronto.

You, gentleman, understand what that "assistance" will be. I dare say some of you may be tendered a little of that assistance. (Cheers and laughter.) And now we know exactly what Sir John Macdonald for, and we know what was to go on the while, and we know arrangements were to be made for Mr. McCarthy to be "loaded up the other way"—(laughter)—so that he would favorably impress his leader and relative, Sir John, with the idea that Mr. Boultbee could carry East York and so he would get the necessary "assistance." For, of course, Sir John would not throw his "assistance" away, and if he were satisfied East York was lost there would be no use in giving "assistance" when no consideration could be given in return for it. And now you see the gullelessness of Mr. Boultbee. (Laughter.) He is a simple-hearted fellow. When in trouble he writes to his Judge.

CAME UP TO TORONTO

HE WRITES TO HIS REVISING BARRISTER,

he writes to this judicial officer and tells him to go and see his friend Mr. McCarthy, and load him up with the opinion that the riding of East York has been fixed by Gerrymander and Morganization; and having the assurance of Mr. Morgan, who knows more about it than anybody else, Mr. McCarthy will think it all right, and will so tell Sir John, and Sir John will be satisfied that "assistance" will not be thrown away. So East York will be bought like a beef in the market.

THE Orangeville Advertiser says that, "were it not for the timely warning of the Globe, the Reformers would have been caught napping" (in respect to being prepared for the elections.) This may be true in a general sense, but it does not apply to Peterborough. The Globe is a great journal, as wide-awake on political matters as the proverbial weasel, but the EXAMINER announced the correct date of the elections, through special information, a fortnight before the official declaration was made.

Free Trade.

The reduction of internal revenue and the taking off of revenue stamps from Proprietary Medicines, no doubt has largely benefitted the consumers, as well as relieving the burden of home manufacturers. Especially is this the case with Green's August Flower and Boschee's German Syrup, as the reduction of thirty-six cents per dozen has been added to increase the size of the bottles containing these remedies, thereby giving one-fifth more medicine in the 75 cent size. The August Flower for Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint, and the German Syrup for Cough and Lung troubles have, perhaps, the largest sale of any medicines in the world. The advantage of increased size of the bottles will be greatly appreciated by the sick and afflicted, in every town and village in civilized countries. Sample bottles for 10c. remain in the same size. eod w41

Napoleon the Great,

(there was only one great Napoleon) wished the word impossible banished from the dictionary. In many a case where leading physicians have pronounced a cure impossible, consumptives and victims of other foul diseases have been restored to health by using Dr. R. V. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery." Soothing and healing in its nature its power over scrofulous and pulmonary diseases is simply marvellous. Far more nutritive than cod liver oil, a powerful invigorating tonic and harmless as it is powerful. 6dw4

It all Depends.

"POLITICS is queer business," remarked a defeated candidate with a sigh. "As a business I suppose it is queer," responded a more successful one; "but I guard it as pleasure, not business.

This is to certify that I have used McGregor's Speedy Cure for Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint, and so honestly say that if it cost me one hundred dollars ($100.00) a bottle I would not be without it, as it has done more good than all the medicine I ever used, and I feel like a new man.—Yours truly, ALEX. STEEL, Carleton Place, Ont. This medicine is for sale at 50c. and $1 per bottle at John McKee's Drug Store. eodw4

The funds of the Company being invested in first mortgages on Real Estate, no better security can be offered to depositors or debenture-holders, they having a first charge or mortgage on the whole Assets of the Company, the shareholders having the reserve. The general statement shows that the amount so invested was over $600,000, and on the security of real estate at least double that value.

By the laws of Ontario, Trustees, Executors and Administrators may deposit Trust Funds of the estates which they control in this Company, and are free from all further liability, a privilege of which many have largely availed themselves.

TO BORROWERS—Money is obtainable from this Company on approved Real Estate security at the Lowest Current Rates of Interest.

The Mortgages may be repaid by yearly instalments, or otherwise as may be agreed upon, the interest standing at once on all amounts paid on account of the sum borrowed.

Applications may be made either to the Head Office, or to any of the Agents.

With that outburst of temper she took the letter to Bennydeck. In less than a minute she returned, a tamed woman. "He frightens me," she said.

"Is he angry?"

"No—and that's the worst of it. When men are angry I am never afraid of them. He's quiet, too quiet. He said: 'I'm waiting for Mr. Herbert Linley; where is he?' I said: 'He has left the hotel.' He said: 'What does that mean?' I handed the letter to him. "Perhaps this will explain,' I said. He looked at the address, and at once recognised your handwriting. 'Why does she write to me when we are both in the same house? Why doesn't she speak to me?' I pointed to the letter. He wouldn't look at it; he looked straight at me. 'There's some mystery here,' he said. 'I'm a plain man; I don't like mysteries. Mr. Linley had something to say to me when the message interrupted him. Who sent the message? Do you know?' If there is a woman, living, Catherine, who would have told the truth in such a position as mine was at that moment, I should like to have her photograph. I said I didn't know, and I saw he suspected me of deceiving him. Those kind eyes of his—you wouldn't believe it of them!—looked me through and through. 'I won't detain you any longer,' he said. 'I'm not easily daunted as you know—the relief it was to me to get away from him is not to be told in words. What do you think I heard when I got into the passage? I heard him turn the key of the door. He's locked in, my dear, he's locked in. We are too near him here. Come up stairs."

Catherine refused. "I ought to be near him," she said, hopefully; "he may wish to see me."

Her mother reminded her that the waiting-room was a public room, and might be wanted. She proposed going into the garden, and telling the servant who usually attended on them where they might be found.

Catherine yielded. Mrs. Presty's excitement found its overflow in talking perpetually. Her daughter had nothing to say, and cared nothing where they went; all outward manifestation of life in her seemed to be suspended at that terrible time of expectation. They wandered here and there in the quietest part of her grounds. Half an hour passed—and no message was received. The hotel clock struck the hour—and still nothing happened.

"I can walk no longer," Catherine said. She dropped on one of the garden chairs, holding by her mother's hand. "Go to him, for God's sake!" she entreated. "I can endure it no longer."

Mrs. Presty—even bold Mrs. Presty—was afraid to face him again. "He's fond of the child," she suggested "let's send Kitty."

Some little girls were at play close by who knew where Kitty was to be found. In a few minutes more they brought her back with them. Mrs. Presty gave the child her instructions, and sent her away proud of her errand and delighted at the prospect of visiting the captain by herself, as if she "was a grown-up lady."

This time the period of suspense was soon at an end. Kitty came running back. "It's lucky you sent me," she declared. "He wouldn't have opened the door to anybody else—he said so himself."

"Did you knock softly, as I told you?" Mrs. Presty asked.

"No, grandmamma, I forgot that. I tried to open the door; he called out not to disturb him. I said 'It's only me,' and he opened the door directly. What makes him look so pale, mamma? Is he ill?"

"Perhaps he feels the heat," Mrs. Presty suggested, judiciously.

"He said 'Dear little Kitty,' and he caught me up in his arms and kissed me. When he sat down again he took me on his knee and he asked me if I was fond of him, and I said 'Yes, I am,' and he kissed me again, and he asked if I had come to keep him company. I forgot what you wanted me to say," Kitty acknowledged, addressing Mrs. Presty, "so I made it up out of my own head."

"What did you say?"

"I told him mamma was as fond of him as I was, and I said 'I mean to bring her with me!' He put me down on the floor, and he got up and went to the window and looked out. I told him that wasn't the way to find her, and I said; 'I know where she is; I'll go and fetch her.' 'He's an obstinate man, our nice captain. He wouldn't come away from the window. I said: 'You want to see mamma, don't you?' And he said: 'Yes.' 'You mustn't lock the door again,' I told him, 'she won't like that'; and what do you think he said? He said: 'Good-by, Kittie!' Wasn't it funny? He didn't seem to know what he was talking about. If you ask my opinion, mamma, I think the sooner you go to him the better."

Catherine hesitated. Mrs. Presty on one side and Kitty on the other led her between them into the house.

CHAPTER LII.

Capt. Bennydeck met Catherine and her child at the open door of the room. Mrs. Presty, stopping a few paces behind them, waited in the passage, eager to see what the captain's face might tell her. It told her nothing.

But Catherine saw a change in him. There was something in his manner unnaturally pensive and subdued. It suggested the idea of a man whose mind had been forced into an effort at self-control which had exhausted its power, and had allowed the signs of depression and fatigue to find their way to the surface. The captain was quiet, the captain was kind; neither by word nor look did he warn Catherine that the continuity of their intimacy was in danger of being broken—and yet her spirits sank when they met at the open door.

He led her to a chair, and said she had come to him at a time when he especially wished to speak with her. Kitty asked if she might remain with them. He put his hand caressingly on her head. "No, my dear; not now."

The child eyed him for a moment, conscious of something which she had never noticed in him before, and puzzled by the discovery. She walked back, cowed and silent, to the door. He followed her and spoke to Mrs. Presty. "Take your grandchild into the garden; we will join you there in a little while. Good-by for the present, Kitty." Kitty said good-by mechanically—like a dull child repeating a lesson. Her grandmother led her away in silence.

Bennydeck closed the door and seated himself by Catherine. "I thank you for your letter," he said. "If such a thing is possible, it has given me a higher opinion of you than any opinion that I have held yet."

She looked at him with a feeling of surprise so sudden and so overwhelming that she was at a loss how to reply. The last words which she expected to hear from him when he alluded to her confession were the words that had just passed his lips.

"You have owned to faults that you have committed and deceptions that you have sanctioned," he went on—"with nothing to gain and everything to lose by telling the truth. Who but a good woman would have done that?"

There was a deeper feeling in him that he had ventured to express. It betrayed itself by a momentary trembling in his voice. Catherine drew a little closer to him.

"You don't know how you surprise me, how you relieve me," she said, warmly—and pressed his hand. In the eagerness of her gratitude, in the gladness that had revived her sinking heart, she failed to feel that the pressure was not returned.

"What have I said to surprise you?" he asked. "What anxiety have I relieved, without knowing it?"

"I was afraid you would despise me."

"Why should I despise you?"

"Have I not gained your good opinion under false pretenses? Have I not allowed you to admire me and love me without telling you that there was anything in my past life which I had reason to regret? Even now I can hardly realize that you excuse and forgive me: you who have read the confession and my worst faults; you who know the shocking inconsistencies of my character—"

"Say at once," he answered, "that I know you to be a mortal creature. Is there any human character, even the noblest, that is always consistently good?"

"One reads of them sometimes," she suggested, "in books."

"Yes," he said. "In the worst books you could possibly read—the only really immoral books written in our time."

"Why are they immoral?"

"For this plain reason, that they deliberately pervert the truth. Claptrap, you innocent creature, to catch foolish readers! When do these consistently good people appear in the life around us, the life that we all see? Never! Are the best mortals that ever lived above the reach of temptation to do ill, and are they always too good to yield to it? How does the Lord's prayer instruct humanity? It commands us all, without exception, to pray that we may not be led into temptation. You have been led into temptation. In other words, you are a human being. All that a human being could do you have done—you have repented and confessed. Don't I know how you have suffered, and how you have been tried! Why, what a mean pharisee I should be if I presumed to despise you!"

She looked at him proudly and gratefully; she lifted her arm as if to thank him by an embrace, and suddenly let it drop again at her side.

"Am I tormenting myself without cause?" she said. "Or is there something that looks like sorrow showing itself to me in your face?"

"You see the bitterest sorrow," he answered, "that I have felt in all my sad life."

"Is it sorrow for me?" she went on, trying to speak calmly.

"No. Sorrow for myself."

"Has it come to you through me? Is it my fault?"

"It is more your misfortune than your fault."

"Then you can feel for me?"

"I can and do."

He has not yet set her at ease.

"I am afraid your sympathy stops somewhere," she said. "Where does it stop?"

For the first time he shrank from directly answering her. "I begin to wish I had followed your example," he owned. "It might have been better for both of us if I had answered your letter in writing."

"Tell me plainly," she cried, losing all fear of him in her anxiety to know what was in his mind—"tell me plainly, is there something you can't forgive?"

"There is something I can't forget."

"What is it? Oh, what is it! When my mother told poor little Kitty that her father was dead are you even more sorry than I am that I allowed it? Are you even more ashamed of me than I am of myself?"

"No. I regret that you allowed it; but I understand how you were led into that error. Your husband's infidelity had shaken his hold on your respect for him and your sympathy with him, and had so left you without your natural safeguard against Mrs. Presty's sophistical reasoning and bad example. But for that wrong-doing there is a remedy left. Enlighten your child as you have enlightened me; and then—I have no personal motive for pleading Mr. Herbert Linley's cause, after what I have seen of him—and then, acknowledge the father's claim on the child."

"Do you mean his claim to see her?"

"What else can I mean? Yes! let him see her. Do (God help me, now when it's too late!) do what you ought to have done, on that accursed day which will be the blackest day in my calendar, to the end of my life."

"What day do you mean?"

"The day that you remembered the law of man and forgot the law of God; the day when you broke the marriage tie, the sacred marriage tie, by a divorce!"

South Ward School.

Alterations were on Saturday made in the seating arrangement of Mr. Sterlings' room in the South Ward School. Heretofore the pupils have been sitting facing the light—not just the best arrangement in the world for either convenience or advantage. By the new system of seating this annoyance has been obviated. All the other rooms will be similarly re-arranged.

Fine Cattle.

A remarkably fine herd of Shorthorn cattle passed through town yesterday, consisting of four heifers and one bull, purchased by Dr. Kincaid for his stock farm in North Monaghan. They were:—"Rose of Wakerfield," "Bonny Dooe," "Lady Elgin," "Nelly of Walkerfield," and "Asphodel Champion." If more of the farmers and stock-raisers of the County would follow Dr. Kincaids worthy example, the stock of Peterboro' County would in a few years be fully equal to that of any county in western Ontario.

Harvesters at Work.

The ice crop is being harvested, and "sleighs high piled with crystal cubes, to cool our parch-ed bronchial tubes, in summer's heated season," are hourly passing through the streets on the way to the sawdusty sepulchere, where the ice will remain till exhumed in the blistering month of July to perform its glacial functions in congealing the hirsute redundancy of the conventional boarding-house butter. The ice is said to be first-class. Great care should be taken in guarding against accidents by persons driving or walking into the openings made by the removal of the ice. There is a strict law providing to that effect, rendering its neglect punishable.

The January Freshet.

The January freshet has done considerable damage on the creek. Messrs. Paterson & Son's tannery was the chief sufferer. At 10.30 o'clock the creek was on its good behaviour, but two hours later it had risen rapidly. The water had raised the ice under the Brock street bridge and lodged up that structure some two or three feet, and the tannery was flooded, all the vats being overflowed, thus destroying the tanning liquor and involving a loss of between two and three hundred dollars. Mr. W. Paterson, jr., at once apprised Mr. Cahill, chairman of the Street and Bridge Committee, who, in the absence of a street inspector, very promptly and commendably took steps to put men at work, and in a short time a free course was made for the water, and all danger of further damage averted. There does not appear to be anybody to blame for the damage that has been done, the thaw was unexpectedly copious for the usual January softening and the rise of the water surprisingly rapid. Throughout its course it has been acting in a riotous manner. Two or three miles out of town it rose so high as to pile up the ice in some places as high as the fences. The colder weather has rapidly diminished the volume of water and no further present danger is to be feared. The present freshet will not have been without its advantage as well as loss, if it leads the authorities to take steps to avoid the damage to civic and private property by the spring freshets.

A MURDEROUS MIDNIGHT.

Serious Shooting Affray in the West End.

The Almost Fatal Result of a Drinking Bout—An Italian Shot Down by a Comrade—Not Likely to Recover—The Culprit Arrested and Remanded for a Week.

At the wierd hour of midnight on Saturday a little, old, tumble-down, rough-cast house on Reid street, next the railway track, and just opposite the Wm. Hamilton foundry, was the scene of a shooting affray that will, in all likelihood, terminate fatally. As nearly as can be learned from a mass of conflicting information, the affair was the result of jealousy and midnight orgies. The house where the shooting occurred is occupied by two families and a number of Italian laborers. In the front part live Frank Marino (the one who did the shooting), Joseph Murphy (who was shot), and "Jim"; in the rear apartments reside Frank Desautelle, wife and family, and James Stapley, wife and family. These families are related to each other. The inhabitants of the cottage are on most intimate terms, passage between the rooms being free to each other at all hours. Saturday night a drinking bout was began, and before their appetites were satiated

SEVEN FLASKS OF WHISKEY

had been emptied, and all more or less felt the effects of the liquor. A slight dispute occurred between Desautelle and Marino over a little affaire de coeur, the lady in the case being Mrs. Desautelle, a bright, attractive looking little woman. The disputants, incensed by the fumes of the liquor, waxed warm, and words of reproach were quickly followed by abuse and threatenings. Desautelle ordered Marino out of his apartments, and the latter after a while yielded. Desautelle then, for some inexplicable reason, ascended through a trap door in the ceiling into the garret, the floor of which was composed of the bare joists, lath and plaster. He had with him a bed-slat, and after punching his foot through the ceiling in his own side of the house, passed on and jammed the bed-slat through the ceiling of the Italian's rooms. Marino then fired two shots from a revolver at the spot in the ceiling, where he supposed Desautelle to be, but fortunately missed the mark. This evidently frightened Desautelle, for he immediately retraced his steps and descended to the lower apartments. Meanwhile Jos. Murphy in endeavoring to placate Marino, himself became so enraged at the latter's obstinacy that he struck Marino in the face; this developed further complications. Murphy's passion was fully aroused, and, passing through Desautelle's apartment, went to the woodshed and procured an axe. With this, on re-entering Desautelle's room, he and considerably alarmed the inhabitants. Striding forward, he flung the door wide open leading into his own domicile, with axe in hand. Instantly his body was made the target for a bullet from Marino's revolver, the shot taking effect in the lower part of the abdomen. The wounded man walked to the opposite side of the house, still retaining his hold on the axe, back to the door where he had been shot, and back again to the front door, where he fell with the cry, "Oh, I'm shot." He was immediately placed in bed and constables Adams and McGinty summoned, who, upon their arrival, summoned Dr. Kincaid and Chief Cooper. Meanwhile Marino had left the house and he was not arrested for some time. On Chief Cooper's arrival he immediately took charge of the case. Watch was kept on the railway depots for the missing man, but about five o'clock the Chief and P. C. McGinty returned to the scene of the affray, where they found Marino preparing to levant. A subscription was being taken up by his friends to raise the necessary funds, the wounded man, Murphy, contributing $5. Marino was arrested by P. C. McGinty, together with all the other occupants of the house, who, with the exception of the women, were placed in the gaol. At the police court this morning Marino pleaded guilty to the charge preferred against him, and he was remanded for a week, the witnesses being bound to appear on their own recognizance.

SMASHED THE COOK STOVE

THE VICTIM OF THE SPREE,

Murphy, the wounded Italian, is a brawny Italian of massive build. Dr. Kincaid, immediately upon his arrival, probed unsuccessfully for the ball, which entered on the left side of the abdomen, towards the lower part. The bullet passed downwards and outwards, evidently lodging in the region of the hip joint. Being unable to find the bullet without making a very large opening, which would have endangered the man's life, it was thought proper to put him under treatment with a view to keeping down inflammation, which up to this time has been successful. Murphy's condition has some what improved in the last 24 hours. Dr. Kincaid states that while the man is still in great danger the case is not entirely without hope.

ANTE-MORTEM STATEMENT.

Chief of Police Cooper acted promptly in the matter, and hearing on his arrival that the man was dying, despatched for Mr. Dumble, the Police Magistrate, who, in the presence of several witnesses, took the following deposition from Murphy:—

I believe I am dying from the effects of a shot fired from Frank, now present—this is the Frank (pointing to him.) I was shot last night a little after twelve o'clock. I am shot in the groin; I don't know how many shots. There was a row in the house between Frank, the prisoner, and another man. There was no anger between Frank and me. After Frank shot me he went out of the house. Frank shot me, and he said to me, "Joe, I want to shoot you to-night." There were present in the room at the time myself, Mrs. Stapley, Frank and Mary Stapley and Mary Desautelle. There was a man upstairs, Mary Desautelle's husband.

We all had whiskey, two flasks; Frank brought the whiskey. There never was any trouble between Frank and me. Two families lived in the back of the house. Several men were here drinking. Frank is a foreigner. He speaks Italian and English, but I don't know of what country he is. Have known him two years. We have always been friendly. I have a wife and three children in Italy. If Frank was sober he would not have shot me. I saw the revolver in Frank's hand. There were only the two women, Frank and I in the room when he shot me. Desautelle was upstairs. I was just inside the room when shot. He, Frank, did not say anything just as he shot me.

CONFLICTING STATEMENTS.

The interested parties are very reticent about the whole affair, and would give but little information to the reporters. The particulars above chronicled were gathered from the members of the police force, who were told half a dozen different tales. P. C. McGinty patrolled the premises yesterday, dispersing and keeping order among the crowds of curious visitors who endeavored to satisfy their curiosity by gathering on the sidewalk in front of the house or edging cautiously about to catch a glimpse of the wounded Italian.

Township Councils.

Reports of the Meetings, Furnished by the Township Clerk.

DUMMER.

Members elect for 1887, met in Town and Agricultural Hall, Warsaw,—A. R. Kidd, Reeve; Richard Crowe, Deputy Reeve; and George Kirk, Thos. Webster, and Henry A. Moore, as Councillors, they took the declaration of qualification and office.

Messrs. Benjamin James, jr., and E. McIlvena, sr., were appointed Auditors, and Mr. Wm. F. Darling, Assessor.

A motion by Mr. Kirk, seconded by Mr. Moore, providing for the keep of Alexander Slevin, by Mr. Alexander Small, for $104 for the first six months, dating from Dec. 22nd in each year, and $90 for the last six months was carried.

On motion, Messrs. A. R. Kidd, Wm. Darling, George Kirk, Jacob White and A. F. Choate, were re-appointed a Local Board of Health for 1887.

No action was taken on an application for keep of Ackie Newell, as said Newell properly belongs to Douro.

The council adjourned till Saturday, 26th February.

CAVAN COUNCIL.

Members elect met on Monday, Jan. 17th, and took the declaration of office, as follows: Messrs. Samuel E. Ferguson, Reeve; Joseph Thorndyke, Dep-Reeve; Councillors, Wm. A. Fallis, Chas McNeil and John Boyd.

Communications were read from George A. Payne, Thomas Newman and Blaney G. Winslow, all applying for the office of Assessor which were laid on the table.

Councillor Fallis recommended paying Mr. Joseph Craig for 115 yards of gravelling on the 4th concession line, the balance of the work to be completed in the spring. Mr. Craig was paid in full for all gravelling done by him to date.

On recommendation of Coun. Thorndyke, Mr. Alex. Bristo was allowed $2 for repairing the bridge in front of his premises.

Messrs. John W. Whitfield and Robert Vance were appointed Auditors at a salary of $6 each; Mr. George E. Payne was re-appointed Assessor at a salary of $100.00, and Mr. Christopher Twamley was re-appointed Collector of Rates at a salary of $120.00.

Mr. Septimus Lamb was heard by the Council. Mr. Lamb complained of the dangerous condition of two bridges and a culvert on the 10th Con. line opposite lots 5, 6 and 7. The Reeve was appointed to examine the bridges and culverts complained of by Mr. Lamb; and, if necessary to re-build them in the spring, to order timber now for the same.

On motion the Clerk was instructed to advertise for tenders for corporation printing for the year.

A Board of Health was appointed as follows:—Messrs. James McLean, J. J. McGill, Thomas McCannes, and the Reeve and Clerk.

Mr. John L. Richardson, caretaker of the town hall, was allowed $5.00 "for the neat and tidy manner in which he has kept the town hall during the year."

A number of orders were issued on the Treasurer, after which the Council adjourned until Friday, the 18th day of February next.

Police Court.

Timothy Rey, a stalwart, intelligent looking man, was sent to gaol for three months as a vag.

The Lipsett assault case was adjourned till Feb. 1st.

Frank Marino, charged with shooting with intent to kill, was remanded for a week.

Of the four Scott Act cases which were to have been tried, two of the parties admitted a first offence and were fined $50 and costs each; the case against George Lipsett, of Ashburnham, was adjourned till Tuesday of next week; the case against Daniel Shanahan is being proceeded with.

Personal.

Mr. W. J. Morrow has returned home from a trip to the sunny south. But he likes Canada the better and will stay here, and "no more a-roving go."

Robbing Their Employer.

Saturday evening about $40 was missed from the safe in the EXAMINER office. The crime was traced to two employees of the office, one of whom, while the other kept guard outside, gained admittance to the safe, and helped himself to the contents. The larceny was committed between the time of closing the office to business and the hour of finally closing the safe for the night. The culprits confessed, and about $29 of the money was returned. Legal proceedings are still pending, the case having been adjourned until Wednesday.

Open To-night.

Wilson Day's Dramatic Co., opens a two weeks engagement at the Opera House to-night. The company has just closed a successful fortnights' play at Belleville; the press of that city speak in the highest terms of Mr. Wilson Day and his troupe, which include Miss Osborne, a talented lady actress, and little Annie Bird, who has on former occasions charmed the hearts of Peterborough audiences by her winsome ways and sweet singing. THREATS OF DIRE WAR

THE FISHERIES BILL BEFORE THE U.S. SENATE.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—The Senate took up the Fisheries Bill to-day. Mr. Frye (Me.) suggested to Mr. Edmunds (Vt.) that the words "also if thought proper" should be omitted before the words authorizing the President to deny the entry of fish from Canada, because that language seemed to suggest that prohibition would be the last resort of the President, while in his (Frye's) judgment it will be the first resort, and probably the only one under the present circumstances. Mr. Edmunds consented to having the words struck out, and they were eliminated.

Mr. Ingalls (Kas.) thought these fishery difficulties must be ultimately settled either by negotiation or by war. This measure was distinctly one of retaliation. It was an eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth, a fish for a fish, an insult for an insult, a wrong for a wrong. He thought it important, before the Senate was called upon to vote, that the Committee on Foreign Relations should advise the Senate whether this measure was intended to be pacific or hostile, whether it was in effect an irritation to negotiate or practically a declaration of war. There was a feeling of invitation, the real party interested being Great Britain and not Canada, which was at any moment, if the present attitude was continued, liable to lead to discontent which might ripen into exasperation and this into open hostilities. It was, therefore, of very great importance that at the outset the Senate should understand whether the bill was intended as a pacific or a hostile measure. It appeared to him that the reporting of a measure which authorized the President to enter simply on a process of retaliation was hardly consistent with the gravity of the situation. It was a dangerous course to authorize the President to continue in the same line of conduct as a policy, with the inevitable result, either of final negotiation for the purpose of settling these questions, or else of going to war in defence of rights under the treaty of 1818. He thought it would be better, more in accordance with the dignity of the subject and with the morality which ought to prevail among nations as among men to declare the conviction of the Senate that the relations between the Powers are such as to require negotiations, and that there should be an authority not to issue letters of marque and reprisal, but to select a commission to consider the subject and if possible to reach some basis of an understanding between Great Britain, Canada and the United States in regard to the fisheries.

Mr. Frye said that Mr. Ingalls seemed to forget that Canada was playing the same role now which she had played twice before. She played it but for one purpose, and that was to secure negotiations for reciprocal treaties, and then reciprocal treaties had turned out to the disadvantage of the United States and to the advantage of Canada. If the President of the United States were tomorrow to take advantage of this bill, which would authorize him to close American ports against Canadian fish, that, he believed, would end all trouble between the United States and Canada. Canada would stop her outrages.

Mr. Frye proceeded to particularize many of the outrages to which American fishing vessels had been subjected in Canadian waters. The British Government knew the utter inhumanity of these cases and knew that the outrages had been committed in violation of law, as well as of good neighborhood.

Mr. Vest (Mo.) inquired of Mr. Frye whether in the case of the hauling down of the American flag on the Mary Grimes the Government of Great Britain endorsed the action of Capt. Quigley, and whether, on the contrary, that Government had not expressly disavowed the act and apologized for it.

Mr. Frye quoted from a recent statute passed by the Dominion Government in still further hostility to American fishermen, and said that that legislation had been approved by the British Government. The hope, therefore, that Great Britain would do what was fair and just was destroyed, and it might have been known that that would have been the result. What the Committee on Foreign Relations sought was that the President of the United States should be empowered to close American ports against any fisherman, or all fishermen, against any merchant vessel or all merchant vessels. The Queen of Great Britain had to-day the power to close her ports against any of the products of the whole world if she saw fit, he saw no objection to entrusting that power to the President. He believed the President would only have to take advantage of this bill and issue his proclamation that no fish, fresh or salt, or canned or smoked, the product of Canadian fisheries, shall be landed in any port of the United States, and not another outrage by this British colony would be heard of. But if these outrages were to continue and were to result in a reciprocity treaty (as had been the case before) that treaty would again be abrogated and the outrages would be again renewed. This law, he said, had power in it. He believed that the President had at heart the honor and dignity of the great republic over which he presided. He believed that the President was in favor of protecting the rights of every American citizen. Aye, more, he believed that he was an honest man and that if this law were passed the power which it would put into his hands would be used for the protection of American rights.

Mr. Ingalls said that he had desired to ascertain, if possible, the purpose and intention of the Committee on Foreign Relations in the proposed legislation. He understood from the statement of the Senator from Maine (Mr. Frye), speaking for the committee, as he (Mr. Ingalls) supposed he did, that if this bill became a law it was a declaration to Great Britain that she would continue these practices at her peril, and that if they were persisted in they must be enforced by war.

Mr. Edmunds: That does not necessarily follow.

Mr. Ingalls said the Senator from Vermont had stated sotto voce that that did not follow at all. The statements of facts made by the Senator from Maine constituted a case belli under the law of nations. The continuance of amicable intercourse under such circumstances would be impossible. He had, therefore, desired to know whether the purpose of the bill was to invite diplomacy or to announce to Great Britain that such proceedings had been carried to the extremity and limit of peaceable solution. The voice was the voice of Canada, but the hand was the hand of Great Britain.

Mr. Edmunds asked Mr. Ingalls whether he meant to say that any act which the [illegible] purpose of the United States might constitute a violation of a treaty was necessarily a cause belli.

Mr. Ingalls: I meant to say that declared and avowed and continued violations of treaty obligations, or of international law are a cause belli.

Mr. Edmunds: Any international violation of a treaty may be considered by the wronged party a cause for war, if the nation that is wronged chooses to resort to that "last reason of kings," but every violation of the principle of good neighborhood is not a cause belli. According to the practice of all nations that do not wish to shed blood, such violations would be the reason for reciprocal retaliatory measures intended to bring the offending party to a sense of the inconvenience of such conduct. But it does not necessarily follow that every breach of treaty is to be followed by war.

Mr. Ingalls: How about a continuous, deliberate wilful violation of the treaty?

Mr. Edmunds: That is a different thing.

Mr. Ingalls: That is the case.

Mr. Hoar (Mass.) supposed the seizure of the vessel of one nation (without right) by the vessel of another nation was as clear a cause belli as could be supposed. The wrong which Canada had done did not consist chiefly in a squabble for the right of fishing. It consisted of an attempt on the part of Canada to compel the United States to repeal certain laws of a wholly domestic character.

Mr. Ingalls: That purpose does not anywhere appear.

Mr. Hoar: That purpose is manifestly disclosed by the recitals of the report of the committee.

Mr. Ingalls: I should like to know from the Senator from Vermont (Mr. Edmunds) what is the purpose of this bill. If its purpose is to apply the lex talionis, that does not mean anything. This thing has got to be settled by treaty or war.

Mr. Hoar: It can be settled by stopping those outrages.

Mr. Ingalls: But the trouble is liable to break out again. It has got to be settled so far as this bill is concerned, either by diplomacy or by blood. Does the Senator from Vermont mean this bill to settle the trouble by negotiations or by a fight?

Mr. Edmunds: By neither.

Mr. Ingalls: Then you do not want to settle it at all.

Mr. Edmunds: That is the jump of my friend out of the frying pan into the sea. So far as settling it by negotiation is concerned the treaty of 1818 is just as clear as it can be. The treaty says how American fishermen are to be treated in Canadian waters they are to be allowed shelter, to be allowed to get certain supplies, but not to be allowed to catch fish. That is just as clear as human language can make it. Those regulations which the Canadian authorities have made are not, in the way they have been administered, a fair execution of the treaty, but are plainly outside of it. That may be a casus belli if the United States chooses to consider it such. The question here is not a question of war, but is a question of counter-valling regulations which all nations have resorted to long before war and which usually never come to war.

Mr. Ingalls: The senator from Vermont states that the question in controversy between the two countries is merely the interpretation of the construction of the treaty of 1818.

Mr. Edmunds: No, I do not say that.

Mr. Ingalls: I understood the Senator to say that. England had always been a ruffian, a coward and a bully among the nations of the earth; insolent to the weak, tyrannical to the feeble and cringing and obsequious to the strong. Her history for centuries has been a record of crimes against the human race. In Ireland, in Scotland, in Wales, against the Roman Catholics, against the Boers of South Africa, against the Hindoos and the Chinese—wherever there has been a feeble, a weak, a helpless nation, Great Britain has been there for the purpose of rapacity and plunder and conquest. England bears no good will to this country. When I say that Great Britain is not friendly to this country I mean that the ruling classes are unfriendly to this country. Her course has been always one of wrong, insolence and outrage. If I read this transaction aright there is no purpose on the part of Great Britain to secure a peaceful solution, a peaceful interpretation of the doubtful provisions of the treaty of 1818. She desires to render it impossible for free, friendly reciprocal relations (political and otherwise) to exist between Canada and the United States. Therefore, I was glad to hear from Mr. Frye that so far as he is concerned it is to be a declaration to Great Britain (recognizing her agency and her power in the matter) that she will persist further at her peril.

Mr. Hoar thought no further argument was necessary to convince the minds of the majority of the Senators of the expediency of the measure. He understood that the annoyances and grievances to which American fishermen were subjected was an attempt by a foreign country, by hostile interference, to enforce upon us a change in our laws of a purely domestic nature. He characterized these annoyances as most emphatic and flagrant acts of hostility.

Mr. Morgan (La.) said there was no war in this measure. There was peace in it and nothing else. But if the troubles were allowed to go on there would be war in them and war beyond control of Congress. The first blood that would be drawn in a controversy of this kind on the Canadian coast would be the tocsin of war.

Mr. Evarts (N.Y.) argued in support of a bill which, he said, was not in the nature of menace, or tending at all in that direction. It was the duty of Congress, he said, to take the subject away from local disturbance, irritation and resentment. So far from the bill tending to war or leading to umbrage, it was intended to have a contrary effect. It was an immediate announcement to the people that they only had to trust their protection, not to personal resentment, but to the Government of the United States, and when the opening summer should bring about the recurrence of the fishing season and of fishing dangers, the question would be removed from that theatre of collision and (if not concluded) it would be under the control of both Governments in deliberate considerations of what should be done in order to have stability of intercourse and in order to give stability to the peace and dignity of the two great nations—the United States and Great Britain.

Mr. Vest recognized the unanimity of sentiment that would prevail should forcible measures become necessary, but deprecated the talk of war with England. "Whatever else may be said about England or her people," he said, "they have in their veins the same blood, as regards conquest and oppression, that runs in our own veins, and when it comes to a question of right or English honor, I am not afraid to say, in spite of any impression in this country against England, no people that have ever lived in history will go further and suffer more to defend their rights or their national honor. We are their children, and when we speak of this spirit upon our own part, let us recognise the fact that it comes from a fountain still in existence, and that has not run dry." The power contained in the bill was the most extraordinary declaration of war known to civilized nations, and the bill itself [illegible] most extraordinary expressions [illegible] of which he did not pretend to [illegible] Still he would vote for the bill because it contained provision that the President should have discretionary power in the matter. It was well enough to talk in a rhetorical style about war with Great Britain; when they came to the matter of military resources there were some things which had better be said in a secret session.

Mr. Gorman (Md.) thought the bill should prohibit Canadian cars and engines from passing through this country.

Mr. Riddleberger (Va.) opposed the bill because it was in the nature of a treaty with Great Britain. He wanted no treaty.

Mr. Voorhees's amendment for the appointment of a commission to take testimony in regard to losses and injuries inflicted upon American fishermen was lost: Yeas 17, nays 27.

The bill was then passed: Yeas 46, nays 1 (Riddleberger).

BRITISH COLUMBIA LEGISLATURE.

The Opening Yesterday—Chas. E. Pooley Elected Speaker.

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C., Jan. 24.—The Provincial Legislature opened at Victoria today. Charles E. Pooley was elected Speaker. The speech contained nothing very important. Bills for the better protection of provincial timber lands and relating to imprisonment for debt will be brought up during the session

Shot in a Belgian Theatre.

BRUSSELS, Jan. 24.—A riot occurred in the theatre at Ghent during the progress of a Flemish play representing the French republican occupation of Belgium in an unfavorable light. At a prearranged signal a body of workingmen and Socialists in the audience began to hoot the actors. This resulted in a fight between the workingmen and Socialists, and the tradesmen and middle class people present. The "Marseillaise" was sung, and for a time the theatre was a scene of the greatest disorder.

HAMILTON MATTERS.

A Family Quarrel—A Waterfall on the Mountain—Suit for Damages.

HAMILTON, Jan. 24.—George Manders was charged at the Police Court this morning with having assaulted his wife. Mrs. Manders said that she had been separated from her husband for some time, he paying her $3 a week to maintain her and two children. On Saturday he went to her house drunk and commenced to break her windows. The accused was fined $2 and costs.

The sewer near the Mountain View House became choked yesterday with rubbish, and the water flowed in a great stream over the brow of the mountain, near the top of the James-street steps. Laborers were kept at work all day directing the water into the sewers by way of the street grates. Several cellars were flooded, but otherwise little damage was done.

Mary Foley reported to the police that a male child about three weeks old was left on the doorstep of 42 Catharine-street south Sunday night. It appears that the lady of the house went down to the hospital and adopted the child, but did not want her husband to know about it.

M. Malone, on behalf of James McGrath, issued a writ of summons on Saturday against Detective McKenzie, Sergeant Vanatter and Constable Hawkins. The plaintiff claims $5000 damages for false arrest.

The Ministerial Association met to-day and among other business passed a resolution demanding a reduction in the number of saloon, hotel and tavern licenses in the city.

Rev. Sam Jones will not visit the city until the latter part of next month.

THE COAL HANDLERS' STRIKE.

The Strikers Will Not Permit the Carrying of Coal to New York.

JERSEY CITY, N.J., Jan. 24.—The striking coal handlers in Jersey City and Hoboken resorted to new tactics this morning to obstruct the moving of coal. A large number of strikers were assembled at Hoboken ferry and threatened a number of car men moving coal to New York with violence, and several of the car men were so frightened that they returned with their loaded carts to the yards. The retail dealers communicated with police headquarters, and men were at once detailed to protect the car men. Most of the coal was intended for private consumption. The strikers declared they would not allow any coal to be moved to New York. At Hoboken ferry two loads of coal were dumped in the presence of the police without interference. The Lackawanna Company this morning worked six piers. At Weehawken the Pennsylvania Coal Company started in for the first time since the strike by working 200 men brought from New York. At Bergen Point the situation is unchanged.

Burned to Death.

OIL CITY, Pa., Jan. 24.—The residence of H. L. Ross at Fern City, sixteen miles north of here, was destroyed by fire this afternoon, and his four children were burned to death.

Preparing for Battle.

BOMBAY, Jan. 24.—The Andaris are preparing to attack the forces of the Ameer of Afghanistan in the spring and have sent a messenger to Persia to ask Ayoub Khan to join them or send them a leader.

FALSE FRIENDS.

The Conservative journals and party hacks are making frantic efforts to save their party at the polls on February 22nd. They magnify the benefits of the "National Policy," and hold up the danger of losing it in terrorem over the heads of the working classes. They claim that the Conservative party is the party alone that is interested in "keeping Canada for the Canadians"—in protecting the labor interests from competition, and in providing perpetual employment for workingmen at the highest wages. But the manner in which they set about this is peculiar. The most recent instance is furnished by the Kingston Whig, which says:

"The Government is importing machinery required for public works, while men are being dismissed from the Canadian Engine and Locomotive works—which can build anything in iron work—because there is no employment for them. This is 'Canada for the Canadians' with a vengeance."

The Whig's conclusion is just and the instance it gives can be supplemented by others. The Government even went to the United States for dredges for use on public works, which could be as well, if not better and more cheaply built in Canada. Is the Government, in the case cited by the Whig, so applying the principles of the "National Policy" as to protect the interest of Canadian mechanics? If the Government had ordered the machinery it is now importing, at the Kingston Locomotive Works, the workmen who are now thrown out of employment in the dead of winter would have now been employed. While the Government were buying the dredges above alluded to in Buffalo, less than twenty miles distant in Canada, in the town of Welland, the Messrs. Beatty were making a specialty of building dredges and works of that class. If they had received the Government's order they would have had either to engage more hands or been able to give their staff more constant employment. But on the contrary, Yankee mechanics throve on the money of the Canadian taxpayer, and the Canadian mechanics that were thus robbed of their due of work, had to contribute to the very taxes that went to enrich foreign mechanics. The "national policy" may be the most beneficent policy in the world but if it is disregarded and the high taxes for its maintenance still imposed, of what benefit is it to the labouring classes? The present Government have shown themselves regardless of the interests of the working men. They protest everything but labour and that has to fight its own battles against competition encouraged by the assisted immigration policy of the Government, which uses the hard earned wages of the mechanic and labourer to pay the half a million of dollars annually expended in importing labourers to lessen the Canadian's chance of getting or keeping a job. Talk about jag handled free trade. It is nothing compared to the jag handled way in which the principle of keeping Canada for the Canadians is carried out, and the Dominion Government in professedly posing as the friends of Canadian labor, while their dishonest manner of carrying out their policy, is distinctly hostile to it, proves them to be false friends, to be regarded with distrust. It is their policy to make everything subserve the promotion of their party schemes. Canadians have been fooled long enough by them and they will never get even justice till they throw off the rule of the present dominant combination and elect men who will honestly carry out their professions.

THE imports into Canada for consumption during the month of December amounted, according to the official returns, to $7,495,596, and the total exports amounted to $4,824,563, producing an excess of imports over exports of $2,671,164.

A VENERABLE joke of Punch might be revived to explain the etymology of the term Cabinet, as applied to Dominion ministers—because they are so continually cabbin' it. The members of the present Dominion Cabinet have, in the past seven years, spent in cab hire, for themselves and friends, $194,884. Apply a little "simple reduction" to these figures and this is the way it comes out:—

Travelling expenses and cab hire for seven years	$194,884 00
Average for one year	27,840 00
" " month (twenty-six working days)	2,320 00
Average for one day (ten working hours)	80 00
Average for one hour	8 00

Nearly nine dollars spent every hour by these men driving about enjoying themselves! How do the taxpayers of Canada like that? Vote as you think, and the extravagance will end.

THE OLD AND NEW YEAR.

SERMON BY LAYMAN.

(Written for The Examiner.)

The passing away of the old year is like the death of man. It has performed its allotted task and is gone. Who can tell all its history? It has seen many things; its pages are filled with joy on the one hand and with lamentations and sorrow on the other; it has seen millions of new births and millions of new deaths; it has seen man full of hope and man full of despair; it has seen myriads of human beings struggling on, seeking for what they never found, and then become discouraged, and weary, and worn with trials and disappointments, and in a short time disappear and be seen no more. And it has seen its own life and death. The records of the old year are filled with many strange events; they show the workings of human efforts and mans' dependance upon a Being superior to himself; they show that all a man can do is at best transitory and illusory, and that his greatest success often leads to his greatest misery; they shew that in the midst of life we are in death; and they show that boundless wealth will not add one moment more to man's existence. To look over the past is to know what is to come. Every year has its own experiences and teaches its own lessons. The success or misfortunes of the world during the year now gone are but an index to the years which are to come. How much trouble and sorrow, and how little real happiness. Man's life is but a shadow, for it is full of false hopes and expectations which are seldom realized, and is spent in trials, and struggles, and foolishness, and vanity, and then it is gone, like the old year, into an endless eternity. But the world still lives and the years come and go. The sun lights up the earth by day and the moon and stars by night; the seasons fill their allotted space, bringing heat and cold, cold storms and balmy breezes, and the grass grows or withereth, and the husbandman sows the seed and waits patiently for the harvest. And then what of the wide world? How much improvement has been made and how much real progress during the past year? Is mankind better or worse than it was before? Has civilization increased and has the light of the gospel spread over the dark places, and are men wiser and better? We here live in a happy land, a land where truth and justice reign, and where every one can call his home his castle and where he need not be afraid, for law and order prevail, and every man can worship God according to the dictates of his own conscience. But let us look at the dark places where the gospel light has never shone, and into which some few holy, God-fearing men are just beginning to penetrate. Look at the teeming millions, ground down by barbarism and wicked rulers, whose only hope lies in the success of the few good men who have given their lives to help redeem them from their terrible bondage. How many years have got to come and go before twelve hundred millions of God's people shall embrace Christianity and be saved. Looking over the pages of the last nineteen hundred years, and at the history of the life and death of Him who came upon the earth and died for the salvation of the world, and taking an account of the comparatively few who have heard and embraced the gospel, a doubter might be bold enough to assert that, at the present ratio of increase, many thousands of years must elapse before the evangelization of the world. But though Christianity has spread slowly, it has spread surely, and there are strong indications that it is permeating the whole of mankind and that within a comparatively short period the Bible will be the universal text book and the rule and guide of the whole world. The spread of the gospel may be likened to the flood of a mighty river, which, at its source and for a long distance, presents the appearance of a small rivulet, while as it goes on its course gradually increases in volume and strength until it overbears all opposition. Two thousand years ago the world, according to present comparison, was yet in its infancy. The good seed was then sown among a primeval and comparatively rude people. As mankind has increased in numbers so has increased the spread of the Gospel also, and the result is that at the present time it is assuming larger proportions and in forcing its way among people who had no knowledge of its existence and no knowledge of a Saviour. It has now got beyond its initial form and, like the great river, is flowing onward, covering the whole earth with its heavenly influence, and we are beginning to see thousands and tens of thousands of worshipers where before there was only persecution and hate. Wherever it goes it proclaims peace and forgiveness and love, and those who hear it for the first time stop to listen again and then become converts and believers in its Heavenly origin. Whole communities of cannibals and savages professing Christianity, and the door appears to be opening throughout the whole heathen world for the entrance of the missionary and for the preaching of the Gospel, and he would be a bold man who could say that the effect of the next fifty years will not be to evangelize at least one half the heathen world and bring those peoples directly under the rule of Christianity and the Bible. Mankind must be getting better. Some say that they are growing worse and that wickedness is on the increase, but it is not so. Any one who traces man's history back to its beginning cannot fail to see that the human race has been progressing in knowledge and wisdom. Let him only look to the last three hundred years and realize the wonderful progress that has been made, and how rapidly the world is being penetrated with Christian principles, and he will not fail to note that this progress increases as the years roll on, and increases in a greatly growing ratio, and what fifty or one hundred years have hitherto accomplished in the past ten and twenty years will now accomplish in the future. And it is not too much to say that at the end of another hundred years the gospel will overspread the earth and Christianity influence and govern all its people. But, say some of the doubters, look around you and see the widenese of increasing wickedness and the frivolity of the inducements to sin which abound. This is to a certain extent true. But look also at the increase of the population, the increase of wealth and the tendency of education as it now exists throughout the world. All must admit that education is necessary and desirable. That to raise man from his former state of semi-ignorance his mind must be enlarged by knowledge. And all will admit that the future progress and welfare of the world depend upon the intelligence and the ability of the people to keep pace with the growth of civilization, and to force onward and upwards the progress of human destiny and human freedom. But the question is not as to education in the abstract, but it is this, whether it should not be so used as to enable the young so to develop and direct their minds that it will enable them to use that education for the practical and every day purposes of life. In our own country, and the same remarks apply to other countries, where schools are free, the great desideratum is to see that the young be well grounded in elementary knowledge first and last, and that the mind be trained to meet the duties and requirements of after life. When this is accomplished our young men and women may be safely left to take care of themselves. They will learn more naught what is really useful instead of the flashy ornamental, as their good sense will not be overborne by feelings of pride and vanity. Practically they will not be above honest labour, and their main objects will be independence and comfort. They will be women and men, in the true sense of these words, as contra-distinguished from ladies and gentlemen. And a country, filled with people of this class, will be a country well governed and honest, and its people will be truly independent and free. But what about the results of the present year? Will these results show a progress in advance of the year now past, and will the world be wiser and better? All history teaches us that the world moves onward; that the material progress of mankind is certain to follow, and we may reasonably assume that the ushering in of the year eighteen hundred and eighty-seven will see the whole human race better instructed and more happy and more free than it is to-day. The signs of the times all point to the growth of the spiritual and civil advancement of the inhabitants of all parts of the earth, and that the light of Christianity will be let into the dark places, and then peace and prosperity and happiness will follow after. There never was a time when such exertions were put forth for the evangelization of the world. England and America especially are most conspicuous in this respect. Millions of money are contributed every year for this purpose, and go where you will, there will be seen evidences of those Christianizing influences and the foot-prints of the missionaries who go out, far away from friends and home, to carry the glad tidings of the Gospel to heathen lands. And looking back over the past twenty-five years and at the progress which has been made in this good work, and taking into account the impetus to future progress arising from the success of the past, it does reasonably seem that the spread of Christianity during the next quarter of a century will far exceed all that has ever yet been accomplished. And there is little doubt that, at the end of the next fifty years, there will not be found any people who have not been brought under the happy influences of the Gospel. Yes, the world is progressing in wisdom and goodness. Doubters may say as they like, but Christianity will continue to spread and the dark places will steadily, but surely, be illuminated by the light of the gospel, and the poor, down-trodden, and oppressed and ignorant will be raised up to the perfect stature of goodness and freedom.

Sure Cure For Rheumatism

If the system is well cleansed by some medicine that acts upon the bowels, kidney and skin, such as Burdock Blood Bitters, and the sufferer will use Hagyard's Yellow Oil according to directions, there are few cases of rheumatism, however bad, but will yield promptly to the treatment. 2w3d

She listened—not conscious now of suspense or fear; she listened, with her whole heart in revolt against him.

"You are too cruel!" she declared. "You can feel for me, you can understand me, you can pardon me in everything else that I have done. But you judge without mercy of the one blameless act of my life, since my husband left me—the act that protected a mother in the exercise of her rights. Oh, can it be you? Can it be you?"

"It can be," he said, sighing bitterly; "and it is."

"What horrible delusion possesses you?" she broke out. "Why do you curse the happy day, the blessed day, which saw me safe in the possession of my child?"

"For the worst and meanest of reasons," he answered—"a selfish reason. Don't suppose that I have spoken of divorce as one who has had occasion to think of it. I have had no occasion to think of it. I don't think of it even now. I abhor it, because it stands between you and me. I loathe it, I curse it, because it separates us for life."

"Separates us for life! How?"

"Can you ask me?"

"Yes, I do ask you!"

He looked around the room. A society of religious persons had visited the hotel when it was first opened, and had obtained permission to place a copy of the bible in every room. One of those copies lay on the chimney-piece in Catherine's room. Bennydeck brought it to her, and placed it open on the table near where she was sitting. He turned to the new testament, and opened it at the gospel of St. Matthew. With his hand on the page, he said:

"I have done my best rightly to understand the duties of a Christian. One of those duties, as I interpret them, is to let what I believe show itself in what I do. You have seen enough of me, I hope, to know (though I have not been forward in speaking of it) that I am, to the best of my poor ability, a faithful follower of the teaching of Christ. I dare not set my own interests and my own happiness above His laws. If I suffer in obeying them as I suffer now, I must still submit. They are the laws of my life."

"Is it through me that you suffer?"

"It is through you."

"Will you tell me how?"

He had already found the chapter. His tears dropped on it as he pointed to the verse.

"Read," he answered, "what the most compassionate of all Teachers has said, in the sermon on the mount. And forgive me and pity me, if you can."

She read: "Whoever shall marry her that is divorced committeth adultery."

Another innocent woman, in her place, might have pointed to that first part of the verse, which presupposes the infidelity of the divorced wife, and might have asked if these words applied to her. This woman, knowing that she had lost him, knew also what she owed to herself. She rose in silence and held out her hand at parting.

"Have you nothing to say to me?" he asked.

"Good-by, my one last friend; good-by forever!"

When she had said that she had said all.

He drew her to him gently and kissed her on the forehead. The agony in his face was more than she could support; she recoiled from it in horror. His last act was devoted to the tranquility of the one woman whom he had loved. He signed to her to leave him.

CHAPTER LIII.

Mrs. Presty waited in the garden to be joined by her daughter and Capt. Bennydeck, and waited in vain. It was past her grandchild's bed-time; she decided on returning to the house.

"Suppose we look for them in the sitting-room?" Kitty proposed.

"Suppose we wait a moment before we go in?" her wise grandmother advised. "If I hear them talking, I shall take you up-stairs to bed."

"Why?"

"Because we mustn't interrupt them."

"Why?"

Mrs. Presty favored Kitty with a hint, relating to the management of inquisitive children, which might prove useful to her in after life. "When you grow up to be a woman, my dear, beware of making the mistake that I have just committed. Never be foolish enough to mention your reasons when a child asks why."

"Was that how they treated you, grandmamma, when you were a child yourself?"

"Of course it was."

"Why?"

They had reached the sitting-room door by this time. Kitty opened it without ceremony and looked in. The room was empty.

Having confided her granddaughter to the nursemaid's care, Mrs. Presty knocked at Catherine's bedroom door. "May I come in?"

"Come in directly! Where is Kitty?"

"Susan is putting her to bed."

"Stop it! Kitty mustn't go to bed. No questions! I'll explain myself when you come back." There was a wildness in her eyes, and a tone of angry command in her voice, which warned her mother to set dignity aside and submit.

"I don't call that like the Sphynx," Mrs. Presty resumed on her return. "That letter, that fatal letter to the captain, has justified my worst fears. What in heaven's name are we to do now?"

"We are to leave this hotel," was the instant reply.

"When?"

"To-night."

"Catherine! Do you know what time it is?"

"Time enough to pack up and catch the last train to London. Don't raise objections! If I stay at this place, with associations in every part of it which remind me of that unhappy man, I shall go mad! The shock I have suffered, the misery, the humiliation—I tell you it's more than I can bear. Stay here by yourself if you like: I mean to go."

She paced with frantic rapidity up and down the room. Mrs. Presty took the only way by which it was possible to calm her. "Compose yourself, Catherine, and all that you wish shall be done. I'll settle everything with the landlord and give the maid her orders; sit down by the open window; let the wind blow over you."

The railway service from Sydenham to London is a frequent one. At a few minutes before midnight they were in time for the left train. When they left the station Catherine was calm enough to communicate her plans for the future. The nearest hotel to the terminus would offer them accommodation for that night. On the next day they could find some quiet place in the country—no matter where, so long as they were not disturbed. "Give me rest and peace, and my mind will be easier," Catherine said. "Let nobody know where to find me."

These conditions were strictly observed—with an exception in favor of Mr. Farrazin. While his client's pecuniary affairs were still unsettled the lawyer had his claim to be taken into her confidence.

(To be Continued.)

Free Trade.

The reduction of internal revenue and the taking off of revenue stamps from Proprietary Medicines, no doubt has largely benefitted the consumers, as well as relieving the burden of home manufacturers. Especially is this the case with Green's August Flower and Boschee's German Syrup, as the reduction of thirty six cents per dozen has been added to increase the size of the bottles containing these remedies, thereby giving one-fifth more medicine in the 75 cent size. The August Flower for Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint, and the German Syrup for Cough and Lung troubles have, perhaps, the largest sale of any medicines in the world. The advantage of increased size of the bottles will be greatly appreciated by the sick and afflicted, in every town and village in civilized countries. Sample bottles for 10c. remain in the same size. eodw41

The Coming Postman.

The poetess who can make "roast beef" rhyme with "vegetables" is the kind of a postess the world is waiting to crown as queen.

Napoleon the Great.

(there was only one great Napoleon) wished the word impossible banished from the dictionary. In many a case where leading physicians have pronounced a cure impossible, consumptives and victims of other fell diseases have been restored to health by using Dr. R. V. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery." Soothing and healing in its nature its power over scrofulous and pulmonary diseases is simply marvellous. Far more nutritive than cod liver oil, a powerful invigorating tonic and harmless as it is powerful. 6dw4

Big Work.

Some one wants to know what the work of a man is. Well we don't know unless it is to have his picture in an imported soap establishment.
